By the Mussulman community of India, who nowadays so sadly lack powerful friends and sympathisers amongst their rulers, and who for some inscrutable reasons now seem to have unfortunately fallen into the disfavour of Government, the removal by death of a most kind-hearted and staunch friend, like Sir Edward Clive Bayley, must be felt not only as a personal loss, but will be viewed as a deep public calamity. Descended from an illustrious family, having long and intimate association with Indian affairs from the earliest period of the establishment of British rule in this country, Sir Edward inherited the traditional sympathies of his family for the impoverished and degraded condition of the Mussulmans of India. He had early studied Arabic and Persian literature with our late townsman, Moulvie Abdool Jubbar, at that time Meer Munshi in the Foreign Office, and thus got an insight into the beauties and defects of the Mussulman character, and could thoroughly sympathise with the Mussulman wants and aspirations. When fresh out to India, he had seen the last flickering refulgence of Mussulman power and glory, and after a few years' course saw it totally vanish into thin air. His natural sensibilities were quickened, and he threw all the weight of his sympathy on the side of our unfortunate co-religionists, and did much to promote their advancement and welfare. Not to speak of his generous and warm friendship for, and patronage of, many a deserving Mahomedan gentleman both in Calcutta and elsewhere, the Mussulmans owe Sir Edward a "debt immense," of endless gratitude for a public measure which was principally due to his powerful influence, and which has already done so much, and is destined hereafter to do so much, for the promotion of Mahomedan education in these provinces. The fact is well known that it was Sir Edward Clive Bayley, who as Home Secretary to Lord Mayo's Government, influenced that noble Earl to sanction the memorable Resolution for putting a stop to the misappropriation of the princely Mohsin Endowment Fund, and for directing the employment of its proceeds to its present legitimate object of advancing purely Mussulman education. For this single noble act—putting aside all else—Sir Edward's memory will be cherished in the grateful recollection of our co-religionists.

High-minded, generous-souled, courteous, and polite, with dignified but amiable presence, Sir Edward was a man of "light and sweetness," to make use of Matthew Arnold's expression, and a veritable type of a thorough and noble English gentleman. Those who had the honour of his acquaintance shall not soon forget his ever cheery face and benign appearance. If England desires to conserve her Empire in the East, and to found it on the solid basis of the devoted loyalty and affection of the teeming millions of India, let her only send out to this country high-bred Englishmen with generous instincts and enlightened sympathies for the people, like the late Sir Edward, who can attach to themselves the affection, love, and homage of those over whom they are set to rule, and who thus constitute the only true and solid "scientific frontier" for guarding England's Colossal Empire, not only from aggression from without, but also from dangers from within.

We offer, on behalf of the Mahomedan community, our respectful condolence to the relatives of the lamented deceased Mahomedan Observer and Urdu Guide, May 17.

THE QUETTA GARRISON.

THE decision to bring Quetta permanently under the Commander in Chief in India is an administrative measure in the right direction. It is evident that Quetta, at the present junction of affairs, constitutes perhaps the most important command in the Indian army. It is the chief outpost in the path of the danger menacing India from the West, and a centre where British influence and control radiate over a large number of the turbulent tribes dwelling beyond the pale of the Amir of Kabul's authority.

along the south eastern border of Afghanistan. The necessity of placing Quetta under the direct political supervision of the Supreme Government was recognised when the administration of the district was taken over. It is altogether anomalous, and conducive to great administrative inconvenience, that there should be division between the authorities exercising political and military control in the district, and that whilst the political affairs of Quetta should be directed by the Government of India, in military matters it should refer to Bombay.

The concentration of all authority at Quetta under the charge of the Central Government is a proceeding which admitted of no further postponement. The delay which has already been allowed to take place must be set down to the spirit of indulgence which the Government of India has always shown in its dealings with the Government of Bombay. It has been said, and no doubt the present measure will cause the cry to be repeated with vigour, that the retention of Quetta on the part of Bombay is necessary to the welfare of the Bombay army. Quetta, we are told, supplies the Bombay army with the only training-ground for warfare it possesses, and the removal of the district from the Bombay command will, it is alleged produce dire results in the way of rapidly converting the Bombay army into a body of rural police. If this argument is to be taken as advanced seriously, and not merely as a rhetorical flourish, and if we are to understand that the military salvation of the Bombay army does as a fact depend on its being allowed to furnish two or three regiments of the Quetta garrison, we think that it will be generally agreed that the Bombay army must be in "a parlous state." We are disposed to take a more hopeful view of the efficiency of the Bombay troops than they seem to care to take themselves, but, apart from the question of the value of that army as an engine of war, it may be as well to point out, by way of allaying its alarm, that the transfer to Quetta to the charge of the Supreme Government will in no way interfere with the present system of furnishing a part of the garrison from Bombay. Just as Madras troops garrison towns beyond the limits of the Madras command, so Bombay troops will continue to form a portion of the Quetta garrison. The Bombay army will not be deprived of availing itself of its present opportunities in this respect of learning the art of war.—Englishman.

THE AFGHAN DEMARCOATION QUESTION.

IF, as we suppose, the British commander's escort on the Afghan-Russian frontier leaves India via Quetta, and journeys via Candahar, Girishk, Furrak, and Herat to Sarrahkha, the journey at fifteen miles a day, including a few halts, will take fifty days at least. It is now seventy-two days to the 1st of October, so that there is not much time to spare if the escort is to rendezvous at Sarrahkha on the above date. It is essentially necessary that the escort be mounted, followers and all. As is the custom in Persia and Afghanistan, followers on foot are sure to lag behind, and will probably be cut off. We think, in spite of the Ameer's protection through his territories, it is doubtful whether the escort will reach their destination without having more than one brush with evilly disposed ruffians. It is therefore essential it should not be reduced unnecessarily. From 500 to 800 men is the least number that should go, for not only will a suitable guard consistent with the dignity of the mission be required; but smaller escorts for subsidiary work, such as survey parties, will have to be furnished. The suggestion that only 150 men should go, and that they should sneak up to Sarrahkha by a roundabout way direct from Quetta to the Persian frontier and thence northward, is a disgrace from which we are saved by the physical difficulties of such a route. If then the 1st October is the date on which the escort is to reach Sarrahkha, it must leave Quetta at latest by August 10; and that is, in about twenty days. There is a rumour that the Guides Cavalry will be detailed for escort duty. It would take them and their horses ten days to get to Quetta, so they should be on the move by the end of this month. Other members of the mission, such as surveyors, medical men, &c., have therefore only about twenty days to arrange their affairs, get their kit ready, and secure servants who will consent to go on such an expedition. We trust, therefore, for their sakes that they may have already been duly warned.

Sir Peter Lumsden will probably go to St. Petersburg, thence to Teheran to confer with the Persian Government. If that be the case, seeing that Sarrahkha is thirty days' consecutive marching from Teheran, he must leave that city by the 1st September, and London probably not later than the 1st August. However, if his presence at home arranging preliminaries, or at St. Petersburg, is necessary, he can, by travelling from Baku (distant seven days from St. Petersburg, and eight from London via Warsaw) to Michaelofski and Askabad, reach Sarrahkha in about a fortnight, just half the time requisite for the journey from Teheran. We should not be surprised were Sir Peter Lumsden to be accompanied by Mr. Condy Stephens of the Foreign Office, who has already been to Aska-bad, and who is a good Russian linguist, besides knowing Persian, and, what is more important, Turkish. We only hope Afghan treachery and fanaticism will not compel the united British and Russian escorts to combine to defend themselves against a common enemy. Such an event is not impossible, and will certainly not tend to a settlement in favour of Afghanistan, and on that special interest, perhaps more than anything else, the safety of the mission will depend. But then how about the escort coming back, especially if decisions adverse to so called Afghan claims are given?

Since writing the above a telegram from our special correspondent at Simla informs us that Mr. Condy Stephens, of the Teheran Legation, and Colonel E. Stewart, at present on special duty on the Persian frontier, are likely to go with the Demarcation Commission as assistants to Sir Peter Lumsden. It is probable also that Colonel Ridgeway, at present officiating Under Secretary in the Foreign Department, will accompany the Commission.—Englishman.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE SIMLA EXODUS.

(INDIAN STATESMAN.)

THE abuse of the practice of going to the hills is exciting, we are glad to see, marked attention at home. The editor of Allen's Indian Mail writes:—

"The agitation against the Simla system of 'government by picnic' gains strength, and has already borne fruit. The Government of India has checked Mr. Grant Duff in his desire to extend the system by locating the military accounts at Bangalore. Lord Ripon has properly exercised his power to vote, in preventing Mr. Grant Duff from thus subordinating the public interests to the comfort of a few highly-placed officials. To the native subordinates, who, from the vast bulk of those who are thus yearly carried up to the hills, the exodus is an unmitigated affliction; they are torn away from their homes for the great part of the year, and forced to shiver in a climate that is not only uncongenial but positively unwholesome to them."

It is not perhaps generally known in India, that the editor who writes thus has himself had several years' experience of the effects of this removal. He is no other than Mr. Roper Lethbridge, who was Press Commissioner at Simla under Lord Lytton's Government, and it is he who now writes:—

"At Simla the Viceroy lives in an atmosphere heavily charged with the noxious vapours of sycophancy and adulation. His conversation one day is chiefly with Mr. Ilbert and Dr. Hunter, and the next is chiefly with Dr. Hunter and Mr. Ilbert—of course we use these names as types, and in no personal sense; and the obvious result—the necessary result, whenever the Viceregal mind happens not to be a particularly strong one—is a Mutual Admiration Society of the worst order."

We told Mr. Roper Lethbridge very pointedly our own reflections on the subject, when he came down to Calcutta with Lord Lytton's entourage in November, 1878, and he himself now writes:—

"The experience of the last two years seems to be absolutely conclusive on one all-important point; and that is, that such minor advantages as that of the increased physical vigour of the Secretaries are absolutely as nothing when compared with the enormous disadvantages entailed by the mischievous seclusion, during the greater part of the year, of those who direct the policy of the empire."

Instead of two years, he should have written "ten." The Afghan war in 1878, was as distinctly the result of the Government being at Simla from 1873 to 1878, as was the previous war in 1838, the result of Lord Auckland's being there. It is simply impossible to trace, or adequately describe, the harm that has arisen from the false and unwholesome atmosphere which prevails at the hills, and the going there will have to be restricted, as it ought to have been, as a privilege to men whose health and vigour need renovation in a hill climate.

THE LATE RAI KRISTODAS PAL, BAHADUR, C.I.E.

ONE of the most melancholy duties of the Press is to record from time to time the removal by death of men, who, by their public usefulness, have rendered their fellow subjects unstinted service. Of few men of this generation in India can it as truthfully be said as of the late Kristo Das Pal that he served his countrymen and his country with a success and fearlessness that finds few equals among the natives of India. By the sheer force of his own strong individuality he commanded the respect of English and Indian alike.

The Hon. Rai Kristodas Pal Bahadur was born in Calcutta in the year 1833 and received his education first at the Oriental Seminary and then at the Hindu College, where under the late Captain D. L. Richardson, Captain Harris, and their select band of educationalists he received the basis of that sound and liberal education which carried him so successfully through life. He left college in 1857, and having finished his education before the days of the University charter, fortunately escaped becoming a graduate of the Calcutta University. He immediately devoted himself to journalism, and was a frequent contributor to the local press, when at last in 1861 from being a mere contributor, he was appointed sole editor of the Hindoo Patriot, which, during the twenty-three years it has been under his direction, has been raised from an almost moribund state to that of the first native journal in India.

A very leader among the men of his generation in the Press, on the public platform, in the Municipality, and in the Legislative Council, Kristodas Pal advocated the claims and the interests of the men of his own blood with an eloquence and moderation and a calm irresistible logic which gained for him the love of his countrymen and the honour and respect of Englishmen. No native of his generation possessed such a wide idiomatic command of English, and whether in the pages of the Hindoo Patriot which he conducted so long and with such marked ability, or in the numerous minutes which, as Secretary of the British Indian Association, he addressed to Government on every topic which has occupied the attention of the Legislatures for many years past; the same clear logical grasp of the matter dealt with was everywhere conspicuous. During the nineteen years he was a member of the Local Corporation, he was always an active member of the body, and rendered valuable service during the prolonged discussions in the Bengal Council and public demonstrations in Calcutta, which during the early portion of Sir Richard Temple's rule led to the establishment of the present Municipal constitution.

A record of the life of the deceased is the record of the political history of Bengal during the past twenty years. In belonging to the old school, Kristodas Pal was naturally a Conservative Hindu of a very pronounced orthodox type, and was pre-eminently a safe man who always commanded the confidence of both the European and native communities. It was, as far as we can recollect, in 1872 that he was first appointed a member of the Bengal Legislative Council, and he speedily established his reputation as one of the most skillful debaters of that body; and his numerous speeches on legislative measures were marked by a terseness of style, compactness, and logic which surprised those who had been accustomed to the looseness of style and thought which characterised the best efforts of native orators to express themselves in English. As a public speaker he stood far ahead of any of his countrymen, and his utterances were in many respects superior even to those of his colleagues whose mother tongue was English, and whose training had been entirely British. He was the accepted leader of a large and influential section of Hindus whose political attitude towards the English Government corresponds in many respects to that of the Muhammadan Liberals who are represented by Syed Ahmed Khan, of Alighur. It was not Kristodas Pal's ambition to act the part of a reformer; it was rather to act the part of an interpreter and representative of the more influential section of his fellow countrymen. Hence in a great measure his resolute opposition to the most cherished schemes of Sir George Campbell. There was a reminiscence of the old antagonism between Lieutenant Governor and native Editor, when the former, during the debate on the Vernacular Press Act, having declared that the Anglo-Native papers were more seditious than all the vernacular journals put together, single out the Hindoo Patriot as the most dangerous of them all!

The deceased was one of the first who received the newly created Order of the Indian Empire, having in the previous year received the honourable distinction of a "Rai Bahadur" at the Belvedere Durbar held by Sir Ashley Eden. In presenting the Sunnud the Lieutenant Governor, addressing the deceased, spoke as follows:—

"You have for many years taken a leading part in all public movements affecting native interests. You have advocated earnestly and well the rights and interest of your fellow-countrymen, and you have raised the Anglo-Vernacular Press to a high and influential position, and Government is indebted to you for much valuable assistance most ungrudgingly given."

As the champion of the Zemindars, though not one himself, the deceased was unanimously selected by the British Indian Association for the seat in the Viceroyal Council placed at its disposal by Lord Ripon to fight the battle of the Rent Bill. How ably he has fought that fight we all know. The Rent Bill yet remains, but Kristodas Pal is dead, and his death will be an almost irreparable loss to the zemindars.

Kristodas Pal was an Honorary Magistrate and Justice of the Peace; a fellow of the Calcutta University, and was actively connected with nearly every public body of any note in and about Calcutta.

It is too early yet to estimate the force of the influence which he exercised on this generation, but the lessons of his life which speak to his own countrymen are not far to seek. Laboriously hard working, he prepared himself for every emergency. This seems to us the whole secret of his life. Such a life as his so freely given for public ends on the press and on the platform, and at his desk, could not but make inroads even on the strongest frame. In such a career he has been stricken from his place, and those who followed his body to the Nimtolla Ghat, which his own great countryman, Ram Gopal Ghose, preserved from destruction, might well wonder "who is there among us who will take up the burden of this man's work?" In the presence of death all minor differences disappear, and men's good deeds are not always "interred with their bones." To-day we can only mourn with unfeigned sorrow the loss of one whose loss to India seems irreparable.

THE CREMATION.

The remains of the late Rai Kristo Dass Pal Bahadur were cremated yesterday evening at 5 p.m., at the Nimtollah Burning Ghat in strict accordance with orthodox Hindu custom. A few moments before he expired, his son, Babu Radha Churn Pal, poured a few drops of Ganges water into his mouth, and anointed his father's forehead with mud from that river, placing a few leaves of Ocimum Basilicum (Tulsi) on his forehead. He then chanted the names of the Hindu gods and goddesses, while anointing the corpse. The family priest of the household chanted prayers. After he breathed his last, his eyelids and lips were closed by his son who was the chief mourner. The remains of the deceased were then put in a cot, and brought down to the courtyard. Here the chief mourner placed nine bits of gold on the mouth, nostrils, and eyes of the corpse. The head was then anointed with otto of spiknard, and his body with otto of sandalwood. The corpse was then dressed in clean clothes, after which garlands of flowers were placed on it. A small plant of the sacred Tulsi with root and flowers, was then placed on the head. During this period a number of people had flocked in to see the last of the well-known patriot, among whom were Babu Peary Mohun Mukerji, of Utterpara, Babu Rajendra Dutt and his sons, Maharaja Jotendro Mohun Tagore, Babu Jamokinath Roy, Dr. Kanye Lal Dey, Rai Bahadur, Babu Kaderanath Dutt, Babu Prosad Das Dutt, Babu Protap Chunder Ghose, Babu Mohendra Narain Das, Babu Surut Chunder Ghose, and Babu Mahatab Chunder Mullick, all intimate friends of the deceased. At 3 p.m. the funeral cortège proceeded from Baranosi Ghose's street, where the deceased resided, to the Burning Ghat at Nimtollah. The corpse was borne by the relatives and friends of the deceased. On the way the corpse was deposited opposite the temple of Anando Mohi, near the Ghat, where prayers were offered up according to the Hindu ritual. A numerous body of friends of the deceased followed the cortège from the home to the river side, where it was laid by the side of the river and anointed with Ganges water by his son. It was then placed in one of the rooms to the west of the spot where cremations take place. The crowd here began to increase, and several hundreds of natives came to pay their last respects. We observed Mr. H. L. Harrison, Dr. O'Brien, and Mr. Turnbull among the assembly who gathered round the remains of the deceased. We also observed Dr. Mohendralal Sircar, Pundits Moheshchunder Nairatna, Shibnath Shastri, Nursing Dass Pal, Babus Issen Chunder Bose, Preonath Dutt, Ramanath Sen, Ramgopal Bose, Gopal Chunder Dutt, Serish Chunder Dutt, and several other influential native gentlemen. The funeral pyre was then prepared, and was composed partly of sandalwood. Punctually at 5 p.m., the cremation ceremonial commenced. Half-a-dozen of the friends and relatives of the deceased carried the corpse from the room in which it was, and placed it near the pyre. A clean piece of cloth was put on the pyre, and the body was uncovered up to the waist. After this his son was summoned to the side of his father's remains where some ghi was put into his hand with which he anointed the head of the corpse. Ganges water was again sprinkled on the body, after which the officiating priest gave the son two rings, composed apparently of Tulsi leaves, which he placed round the fore fingers of his own hands. The priest then chanted some invocations in a low tone which the son repeated. After this ceremony was performed, the corpse was taken up by the relatives and friends and placed on the funeral pyre. The pyre was set alight and the corpse cremated. Whilst the body was being cremated, rice, dhal, and pice were distributed to the poor. We understand that the expressed wish of the deceased was that his cremation ceremonies should not be attended with any pomp. He leaves a son and daughter, and his father and mother are both alive. He has bequeathed Rs 10,000 to the District Charitable Society, besides several other legacies to his relatives, friends, and some servants. As soon as the death of the deceased was announced, the Bengal offices and the Treasury buildings were closed.—Englishman.

Sir Oliver and Lady St. John were to leave Simla for Srinagar on the 2nd inst.

At a meeting of the Calcutta Municipal Corporation on Thursday the 31st ult., a series of resolutions were passed, protesting against the action of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in appointing a commission to enquire into the sanitary condition of Calcutta, as an infringement of the constitutional rights of the Municipality.

The Calcutta Trades Association and several other public bodies in Calcutta have passed resolutions expressive of their regret at the death of the Hon. Kristodas Pal.

Mr. James Wilson, who figured prominently in the Pigot Hastie case, has been reappointed a professor in the General Assembly's Institution at Calcutta.

A rumour which was originated in Calcutta that the Home Government has asked the Government of India whether three regiments of native cavalry can be spared for service in Egypt is without foundation.

The new dock lately opened by the East India Railway Company at Calcutta, having been built on a quicksand, has suddenly subsided to the extent of several feet.

Typhoid is prevalent in Simla, and Sir M. Biddulph's eldest daughter has been carried off by it.

Lieutenant Colonel Hills, R.E., has been appointed to officiate as Engineer in Chief of the Benares Cuttack Railway Survey.

The Government of India has been asked to sanction a further allotment of Rs. 2,00,000, applied for by the Financial Commissioner of the Punjab on account of advances under the Land Improvement Act.

The prospects of polo in Northern India are said to be certainly improving. In addition to the military tournaments in the Upper Provinces there will this year be an open tournament in Calcutta during the December race week, and as a cup of the value of one thousand rupees is offered for competition, the entries should include the best teams in the country.

The President of the new Municipal Committee at Lahore is a native gentleman who cannot speak English. It will be interesting to ascertain in what manner this appointment will influence the course of local self-government in the capital of the Punjab.

Ganesh Das, the treasurer of the Lahore Post Office, who was put on his trial for embezzlement of Government money, has been convicted by Mr. Parker, Judicial Assistant Commissioner, and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, and a fine of Rs. 1,000, or six months' further imprisonment. The defence collapsed.

The Allahabad paper says:—The appointment of Mr. MacDonnell as permanent secretary in the Bengal Revenue Department satisfactorily disposes of the conflicting claims of the two candidates for this coveted post. The respective rights of the contending parties have long been a frightful subject of discussion among members of the service, a matter now happily set at rest. Mr. MacDonnell is to be congratulated on an act of tardy reparation thus done him by the decision of the Lieutenant-Governor.

The officers of the Calcutta Volunteers have decided to form a Volunteer Band to take the place of the defunct Town Band.

The public health of Calcutta at the present time is in a very satisfactory condition. The death-rate during the week ending the 19th ult. was only 18.9 per thousand.

The Zambesi Expedition will consist of 7,000 men. It will march on September 12.

The elegant and animable native print to which we referred the other day as having been recently issued in Calcutta, is destined to gain a reputation for scurrility. From its latest issue we call the following choice morsel:—"The most helpless and pitiable creature in the world is a native prince. No doubt he rules over millions, but he is at the mercy of every ragamuffin that has got a hat over his head and a coat over his body. To-day one writes that he is a tyrant tomorrow another says that he is a despot and the troubles for his existence. Is the chieftainship of a native state any longer worth its name?"

According to the Behar Herald, we understand that H. H. the Maharajah of Darbhanga is thinking of appointing a new manager, Colonel Money, for an enterprise for which the Maharajah goes on to say, that it is no too much to say that Colonel Money has been managing the vast estates with credit to himself and the Raj. He is an officer of varied experience, knowing full well how to get business done in a native estate.

We fully agree with him, Colonel Money's hard work and strict attention to his duties tender such a graceful action on His Highness's part just what it should be.

Rain is very much wanted all over Darrang. This is backward.

The prospects of tea is good in Nowgong. The weather is showery, and cholera is still reported from the interior.

In Lakimpur the prospects of tea have improved. The weather is hot.

Reports from Sylhet regarding tea are favourable. There is less water in the rivers and hoars than usual.

The weather has been intensely hot in Cachar. Tea prospects are better. Red spider is diminishing, but blight is extending. The present weather seems to favour blight.

"Hot with occasional showers," is the news from Kamrup. The prospects of tea are fair. Cholera prevails in portions of the district. Tea prospects are not favourably reported on from Sibsagar. The outturn up to date is behind last year. The weather is hot and sultry, with light rains generally at night.

Weather at Tezpur during the past week has been hot and dry. There was heavy rain on the 17th and slight rain on the morning of the 21st. Reports from gardens fairly good. The river has fallen considerably during the past few days.

The Murree correspondent of a contemporary, writing on the 27th ult., says:—On Tuesday Lord Garmoyne, on hospitality intent, gives another dance at the Assembly Rooms. I say another, because it is pretty generally understood that he it was who stood the brunt and paid the expenses of the one given the other day, avowedly by a "few residents of the club." It is sure to be a good one, as his lordship appears to understand how to arrange these things, and does everything with far from a niggard hand. But the attendance will not perhaps be so large as at the last, many having refused owing to his not having gone through that terrible, but at the same time most necessary ordeal of "calling." The conveniences of society must be adhered to even at Murree. It is a great pity this was not understood or explained at first; for no doubt many have refused who would otherwise have gone with pleasure, and most certainly would have enjoyed themselves.—Times of India.

MADRAS.

The Governor of Madras arrived at Ootacamund on the 24th ult. A woman gave birth to three girls recently at Pannaloor, in the Chowghat district of the Madras Presidency.

The official designation of Miss E. Isis Pogson, "Meteorological Superintendent," Madras, has been changed to "Meteorological Reporter," which is the designation adopted in all the other Presidencies.

The hearing of the charges against Mr. Brecks-Atkinson, of the Madras Civil Service has terminated. Colonel T. Weldon, the Commissioner, will make his report to Government.

The Madras Government has decided to make a grant of Rs. 500 in aid of the scheme for the translation of the Hibbert lectures, and is prepared to buy thirty copies (at Rs. 5) of the Tamil translation when it shall be completed.

The provisions of the Municipal Taxation Act (Act XI. of 1881) have been extended to the civil and military station of Bangalore, with certain modifications. Under the provisions of the same Act the Governor General in Council prohibits the levy by the Bangalore Municipal Commissioners of the tax upon artists, professions and trades or callings upon all persons exclusively in military employ, or belonging to any department directly attached to the Army or to the Public Works Department, military branch.

A fatal disease has, a Madras paper states, broken out amongst the foxhounds of the Ooty hunt. Twenty-three dogs have died up to date, and the loss estimated at nearly Rs. 4,000. This, of course, has put an end to the sport for the season. Mr. Mill, Inspector of the C Division, was called in, while at Ooty, to investigate the matter, and he is of opinion that the outbreak is due to a virulent form of enteric fever. The cause, however, is still a mystery. Great sympathy is felt for Colonel Iago, to whom the loss of his hounds is a serious blow.

NATIVE SERVANTS IN AUSTRALIA.—It will be remembered that about twelve months ago, a gentleman, in Bengal re-executed some commissions for the despatch of native domestic servants to Australia, and the Madras papers had a great deal to say about it. We are sorry to learn now that the experiment has proved, in the end, a dismal failure. The servants were very carefully selected, and were about the best that Madras could produce. At first they behaved very well, and gave such unbounded satisfaction, that Madras servants became the rage in Melbourne. But good treatment spoiled Ramaswamy and Moothammah, and they soon came to find out that servants had rights in Australia they never dreamt of in their native Putnam. Ramaswamy went in for whiskey, would get drunk, and deposit himself at full stretch on the drawin'-room sofa, till forcibly ejected. Moothammah affected boys and went in for desperate flirtations, quite unmindful of her business. We have it at first hand that Madras servants are as much prohibited from settling in Melbourne now, as Chinese are. The entire batch who were sent out from Madras have been shipped back in 100—The Australians will have nothing more to do with them.—Bangalore Spectator.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(Bombay Government Gazette, August 5.)

Captain H. C. Manse, C.I.E., of the Sind Volunteer Rifle Corps, has been granted six months' leave of absence to England from to-day.

Permission to resign his appointment in connection with the Bombay Volunteer Rifle Corps has been granted to Surgeon-Major Langley.

It is probable that Surgeon Damania, Bombay Medical Department, will be appointed to the Staff Surgeancy of the fortress of Asirgarh.

Major W. C. Ramsden, Wing Commander, to officiate as second in command, and Major L. R. D. H. Campbell, 1st Punjab Infantry, to officiate as Wing Commander.

Major General Sir Herbert Macpherson has returned to Allahabad from leave, and resumed command of the station from General J. I. Murray.

Captain E. J. Chanter, of the Simla Volunteer Rifles, succeeds Major Hill as Secretary of the Northern India Rifle Association—an excellent selection indeed.

Lieutenant Harvey Welman, of the 2nd Battalion Royal Irish Rifles, officiating wing officer 13th Native Infantry, has been admitted to the Bombay Staff Corps.

Captain W. H. D. Jones, of the Bombay Staff Corps, succeeded to his majority on the 26th ult., having completed twenty years' service, six of which have been in the Staff Corps.

The following appointments have been sanctioned by the Government of India in the 3rd Sikh Infantry, vice Major W. B. Aislabie, Wing Commander and second in command, on furlough:—

Colonel Warden, Bombay Staff, Assistant to the Agent to the Governor General and Boundary Commissioner, Baroda, has been allowed furlough to Europe for eighteen months, on private affairs.

Extensions of leave have been granted to Surgeon A. S. Faulkner and Surgeon Major P. Murphy, for 183 days and six months respectively, the former on medical certificate, and the latter on private affairs.

Lieutenant Meade, of the 3rd Cavalry H.C., is an additional candidate in Persian, Higher Standard, for the Civil and Military Examination, which will take place at the new Secretariat on the 4th inst.

In reply to a reference from the Punjab Government, the Adjutant General's Department has stated that no military officer is entitled to any allowance, fee, or honorarium for sitting on an Examination Committee.

The death is announced at Kasauli of Lieutenant Colonel G. K. Shaw, of the 1st Battalion Durham Light Infantry, now quartered in Allahabad. Colonel Shaw, who was commandant of the depot at Kasauli, had been suffering from illness for some time past.

Captain E. C. Hart, R.E., who has been brought on the strength of the Public Works Department, has been appointed Executive Engineer, Khandesh, relieving Mr. D. Rutherford, who has been appointed Executive Engineer, Sholapore.

A notification in the Gazette of India replaces the services of Major W. S. Peat, Squadron Commander, 1st Bombay Lancers, at the disposal of the Military Department with effect from the date on which he was relieved of the duties of sub assistant to the Governor General's Agent at Baroda.

Sir Thomas Baker, whose appointment as Adjutant General in India, in succession to Sir George Greaves, was said to have been officially settled, has been suffering from a tumour which necessitated a severe surgical operation. It is therefore considered probable that he will not come to India after all.

As the British non-commissioned officers attached to the corps of Sappers and Miners in the three Presidencies are now eligible to compete for musketry prizes on the same terms as other infantry soldiers, Clause 63, Indian Army and Navy Circular, 1882, sanctioning an annual prize of Rs.25 for the best shot amongst these non commissioned officers in each Presidency is cancelled.

The vacancy in the Durham Light Infantry occasioned by the death of Lieutenant Colonel Shaw, which took place at Kasauli on Sunday, 27th July, will, it is presumed, be filled by the promotion of Major R. Crawford, who, in all probability, will succeed to the command of the 1st Battalion (late 68th) next October, on Colonel Tucker vacating on completing his five years.

The "second furlough" of the men of the Punjab Frontier Force has, it is stated, just been stopped, and no further leave is to be granted this year to officers and men of the force after the 15th of September. The air is full of rumours of wars in consequence of this step, but the simple explanation of the action of the military authorities is probably to be found in the fact that some 3,000 men of the Frontier regiments will be needed in September for the Zhob Valley expedition.

The retirement of Captain Philip Montague, of the 12th Lancers, will most probably be shortly gazetted, provided recent orders do not interfere, he having obtained leave to England on private affairs pending retirement. He joined the 12th Lancers from the 7th Dragoon Guards in September, 1883, as captain. The senior lieutenant of the regiment has only three years' service or so; consequently the promotion, if the retirement be sanctioned, will not go regimentally.

The Bombay Government Gazette notifies the appointment of Brigadier-General C. E. Oldershaw, C.B., at present commanding the Sind district, to officiate on the divisional staff (during the absence of Major General Sir John Ross, K.C.B., on leave on medical certificate), vice Brigadier General Brice, whose tenure of command expires on the 23th inst. Col. Smart will continue to officiate on the brigade staff during such time as Brigadier General Oldershaw may remain on the divisional staff.

The proposed camps of exercise of Delhi and Hassan Abdul have been vetoed by the Supreme Government for financial reasons, the chief of these being, it is stated, that the Zhob Valley expedition will in itself serve all the purposes of a camp of exercise on a considerable scale. It remains to be seen whether the Commander in Chief will silently acquiesce in the abandonment of a proposal which was presumably recommended on sufficient military grounds and with the Zhob expedition in view.

The Hon. the Lieutenant Governor and Chief Commissioner, North West Provinces and Oudh, has made the following appointment in the mounted company of the Oudh Volunteer Rifle Corps:—Mr. J. Quinn, C.S., to be captain; Mr. F. G. Johnson, to be 1st Lieutenant; Mr. H. Birnie, to be 2nd Lieutenant Surgeon M. Gaisford, 2nd class Civil Surgeon, has been appointed to officiate as Superintendent, Central Prison, Agra. Surgeon Major J. McCanaghey, Civil Surgeon, Shajehanpore has proceeded on privilege leave, and Surgeon R. R. Weir, 6th Bengal Native Infantry, will hold medical charge during his absence.

The Indian Government steamer Clive, 2,722 tons, Captain W. J. Powell, arrived in Bombay harbour yesterday from Portsmouth, which port she left on the 27th June, calling en route at Gibraltar 3rd July, Malta, 9th, Port Said 13th, Suez 14th, and Aden 21st. She brought the following details:—From Portsmouth.—Captain and Mrs. Dean Pitt, wife of Major Baddeley, of the R.A., three children and two governesses, Major Wild, late Commissariat Department, Lieut. Gordon, Bombay Staff Corps, Riding Master F. Shearna, of the 12th Lancers, Miss Fletcher and Miss Du Val. From Aden.—Captain Gwyn, and two natives, of H.M.S. Amberwitch, five European men, one woman, and three children; five native men, three women, seven children, and seven followers of the British troops.

Colonel P. A. Twynam, who has succeeded Colonel Lascelles as assistant Adjutant General at Portsmouth, commanded the 2nd Battalion of the old 15th, now the East Yorkshire, for five years in this country on the Bombay side, going on half-pay on September 6, 1881. He served for thirty years in the 15th, having joined it in December, 1851; he is now over fifty-two years of age; he has held several Staff appointments, having been Brigade Major, also Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General at Aldershot, as well as an Aide-de-Camp at Ceylon. He was assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General in Egypt for the large space of two months, but having been at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, and mentioned in Lord Wolseley's voluminous despatch, he received the C.B. and medals. He is a Colonel of July 1, 1881.

The command of the 40th N.I. will be vacant on the 18th October, when Colonel Rowcroft will have completed seven years in command of a regiment. He was appointed commandant, 35th N.I. in 1877, and on the breaking up of that corps on 1st July, 1882, was transferred to the 40th, on Colonel Dandridge's appointment to the Brigade Staff. This is the only vacancy falling in this year. The promotions in this case, it is pretty sure, will go regimentally, Lieutenant Colonel Morton, who has served with the regiment since August, 1858, obtaining the command, and Major Sir Benjamin Bromhead the second in command. Captain Hutchinson, now seconded as Garrison Instructor at Umballa, will probably move up to Wing Commander, his place being taken pro tem. by Major Vyvyan, now with the 38th N.I. at Peshawur, Major Fraser being provided for elsewhere.

The undermentioned officers have permission to appear before the Civil and Military Examination Committee which assembles at the new Secretariat, at 11 a.m. on Monday next, the 4th August, for examination in the native languages:—In Hindoostanee, High Standard.—Lieutenant C. A. Brown, Northumberland Fusiliers (attached to the 8th N.I.); Lieut. E. H. Bethell, Royal Engineers; Lieut. G. J. C. Hall, L.N. Lancashire; Lieut. H. M. S. O'Brien, L.N. Lancashire; Lieut. C. de C. Hamilton, Royal Artillery; Lieut. C. H. U. Price, Wiltshire (attached to the 9th N.I.); Lieut. A. A. Groves, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers (attached to the 10th N.I.); Lieut. A. Wilson, Manchester (attached to the 10th N.I.); Lieut. C. E. Hodgson, Meywar Bheel Corps; and Lieut. G. A. Collins, Meywar Bheel Corps. In Persian, Lower Standard.—Lieut. G. L. Mellis, 8th Regiment N.I.; and Major H. F. Symth, Royal Artillery. In Mahrathi, Higher Standard.—Lieut. C. E. Wegg-Prosser, Rifle Brigade.

LONDON PRODUCE MARKETS.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's sales were small, comprising only 12,600 packages, all "without reserve." The auctions have passed without any improvement. The private contract market remains very quiet. Further sales are announced for to-morrow. At to-day's and yesterday's auctions 6,383 packages Indian, 727 Ceylon, and 1,681 Java teas passed at firm to full prices all round. Yesterday's China sales comprised only 1,557 packages green, and 1,514 packages scented teas. The former, representing mostly the first arrivals of the new crop, went at easy and disappointing prices. The scented showed no change in values. At to-day's China auction 12,452 packages sold without reserve. 1,623 packages common to good common blackleaf sold from 6½d. to 9¾d. per lb.; and 1,186 packages fair to medium at 10d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. 3,010 packages common to good common redleaf sold from 6½d. to 10¾d. per lb.; and 1,498 packages fair to medium from 11d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. Some fine Pecco Congous realised from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5½d. per lb. Generally black and redleafs over 8d. passed fairly steadily; grades under 8d. without any quotable alteration in prices, but occasionally in favour of buyers.

SUGAR.—West India has been dull at last week's decline. 300 casks found buyers, the bulk in the public sales to-day. Of 1,958 bags Palmyra Jagghery, about 630 bags, out of condition, sold without reserve at 6s.; common quality withdrawn at 8s. On the spot, 1,000 bags crystallised Penang sold, no price given out. A cargo of Porto Rico, off coast, reported at 13s. 9d. per cwt., Liverpool quay terms. Beet advanced 6d. on Saturday, but closes 11s. 10½d. to 12s. In the Clyde market pieces are quiet at prices in favour of buyers.

COFFEE.—There have not been any public sales to-day, and the market is inactive. The same remarks will apply to cocoa.

RICE.—A cargo of Saigon, 1,873 tons, at Malta, sold at 6s. 9¾d. per cwt., open charter.

BLACK PEPPER is quiet. 600 bags Singapore sold for distant delivery at 7d. per lb.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's China sales comprised 7,276 packages which sold without reserve at steady, with occasionally easier, rates. Rather more animation was shown in the biddings than has been the case recently, 935 common to good common black leafs sold at from 7½d. to 9d. per lb.; 482 good common to fair at 10¼d. per lb., and 327 half chests fair to medium, at 1s. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb.; 2,478 half chest red siftings and broken leaf sold at from 4¾d. to 6¼d. per lb.; 1,486 half chests common red leaf, 6½d. to 7¾d. per lb.; and a chop of 796 half chests Saryunes at 8½d. per lb.; 762 packages green and scented sorts passed without change. The Indian sales consisted of 2,347 packages Indian, and 455 Ceylon teas. All good parcels sold at very firm to improving rates, but undesirable parcels showed an easy tendency.

SUGAR.—The market is without alteration. Yesterday's business in West India should have reached 604 casks 1,000 bags, partly at public sale. Something done to-day, particulars not reported. The Clyde telegram reports rather more business in pieces. Beet sold at 12s. per cwt. August shipment.

COFFEE.—A few lots fine Plantation Ceylon, including bold, realised very high prices, from 79s. 6d. to 105s. No change in other kinds, which sold from 56s. 6d. to 59s. 6d. for low good middling, 98 casks 54 barrels and bags sold. 264 bags Liberian part sold 52s. to 57s. East India sold at 53s. to 60s. for pale and greyish, 65s. for good medium, and 78s. for good bold. The market is quiet.

SPICES.—The public sales to-day were small, with few changes. Black and white pepper quiet. Of the former 186 bags Tellicherry sold at 7½d., 215 bags Singapore being bought in at 7¼d. to 7¾d., and 236 bags Lampung at 6¾d.; 69 bags Singapore were withdrawn at 10¼d. to 10¾d. 190 bales Zanzibar cloves sold at easier rates, chiefly 57-16d. to 5½d. for good fair. 1,238 packages Cochinchina ginger nearly all sold, rather dearer; rough sorts from 41s. to 48s.; part scraped and scraped, 51s. 6d. to 57s.; good to bold cut, 71s. 6d. to 85s.; 253 bags African, 39s. 6d. to 40s. 6d.; 42 barrels Jamaica, 46s. to 47s. No Pimento offered. A few packages West India mace sold at 1s. 5d. for fair, and nutmegs at 1s. 7d. to 2s. 6d. per lb.

SAGO.—Quiet. 691 bags small grain, part sold at 10s. 6d. to 11s. A few lots Singapore tapioca, fine mark, sold at 1¾d. to 1¾d., but most of the supply bought in. 100 barrels Rio, sold at 4½d. to 5¼d. per lb.; and about 200 bags seed pearl at 12s. Medium bought in at 14s. per cwt.

RICE quiet.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that the produce markets with few exceptions, are in the same dull condition as previously quoted. Brown West India sugar has sold at some further decline, but closes at a recovery on the lowest rates accepted last week. Other descriptions of cane grown have been quiet. Dry refined goods have fallen 3d. to 6d. Beet, after receding to 11s. 6d. f.o.b. for August shipment, sold at 12s. 1½d. to 12s. 3d. per cwt., with a firmer tone. The coffee market remains quiet, with moderate transactions. Fine bold and colory Plantation Ceylon commands extremely high prices, while East India descriptions are occasionally easier. To-day a few parcels Guatemala and other Central American brought full valuations. There has been a slight increase of demand for China tea during the last few days, and new Congous at the public sales showed steadiness. Indian teas are rather active, in many cases obtaining better prices. The supply of cinnamon at auction next Monday will probably comprise 1,300 bales. Black and white pepper have met with less attention than of late. At the weekly spice sales yesterday Cochinchina ginger sold well. Zanzibar cloves went rather in favour of buyers. There were no nutmegs offered. Rice continues unsettled.

TEA.—To-day's China sales comprised 10,255 packages without reserve. The tone generally was better, especially for new season's black-leafs, between 7½d. to 10¼d. per lb. Green teas, of which 3,592 packages were sold, showed irregular and mostly lower rates; 2,433 packages common to good common black-leafs sold at from 7½d. to 10¼d. per lb.; 351 half chests fair at 11d. to 11¼d. per lb.; red siftings, 5d.; 1,012 packages common Saryunes and Padroc; 7½d. to 7¾d. per lb.; Paklings, in boxes, from 11d. to 1s. 1d. per lb.; 1,101 boxes Canton Congou realised 8¾d. to 9¾d. per lb.; old season's first crop Mingchows, at 8¾d. to 9½d. per lb. At the Indian auctions, 2,385 packages Indian and 346 Ceylon teas passed. The firm tone lately established was fully maintained for all desirable parcels. Subjoined is Messrs. Hawes and Heitz's fortnightly report:—Indian—22,119 packages, of which 10,413 were of the new crop, have been brought forward at auction and mostly sold. Fine liquoring sorts were most in demand and commanded high prices. Teas of poor quality are still difficult of sale, even at the low rate current. Some exceptionally fine parcels have come forward from Kangra Valley, and were eagerly competed for. The Darjeelings have been of varying quality, and invoices with fine lines scarce. Cachir teas, with a few exceptions, notably a fine invoice from Borokai, have been in different liquor, and consequently brought poor prices. Old season's sell slowly at about former rates, common kinds being lower and very difficult of sale. Ceylon teas have come forward in better assortment, many invoices showing decided improvement in cup and realising high prices; but all thin, burnt sorts show low averages. The highest prices were represented in a small invoice of Blackstone, viz., broken Pekoe 2s. 7d.; Pekoe, 1s. 8d.; Souchong, 1s. 3d.; broken tea 1s. 1d.; Java—2,450 packages have been catalogued ex.s.s. Prins Frederik, Dorunda Limburg, and Vcorwaarts. Prices have remained very steady for all kinds, and there is no doubt that on the present scale of rates ruling for Souchong kinds, buyers can have far better value in Java growths than in either China or Indian tea. The quality of most of the shipments has been satisfactory and ready sales were effected. Pekoes continue in strong inquiry at a further advance in value, Sinagar Pekoe finally selling to 1s. 6d.; ditto flowery Pekoe, Pekoe, 1s. to 1s. 3¼d.; broken Pekoe, 1s. 0½d.; Pekoe Souchong, 8½d. to 10¼d.; Congou, 8½d.; broken tea, 8d. Sales consisting of 3,875 packages are advertised for sale in Amsterdam on September 3, and further catalogues are printed for this market of direct imports.

SUGAR.—A more steady tone in the market for refining West India. Sales yesterday and to-day 700 casks, at rather better prices. Some of the Palmyra Jagghery, ex sale, reported at 8s. per cwt. Beet is dearer by 1½d. to 3d., and the demand for refiner's goods in the Clyde market somewhat active. M. Bertrand Silz, writing from Paris on Wednesday, stated that on Monday last the first fortnightly liquidation took place and brought more activity; 13,600 bags were tendered. This was relatively a small quantity; but, notwithstanding this, the market continued its backward course, being influenced by the rain which was then falling abundantly and the bad reports of the U. K. markets. Whatever the end may be, the present range of prices will undoubtedly bring the ruin of almost all the factories; and it is already reckoned that at least a hundred factories will stand still this winter. The rains which have fallen since Monday last have cooled the earth, and the roots present a better appearance.

COFFEE.—Rather small supplies and firmer prices in many cases. 131 casks 49 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon sold, middling to good middling colory, 63s. to 68s.; fine, 71s. 6d. to 73s.; bold 82s. to 89s., up to 105s. for superior. 10 tiers 46 barrels and bags Jamaica mostly sold, good middling, 65s. 6d.; fine 85s.; superior, 105s. to 111s.; 1,985 bags foreign partly sold, ordinary to fine ordinary Guatemala, 43s. 6d. to 49s. One lot washed Rio, 61s. 6d. per cwt.

FRIDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The warlike news of this morning has caused an inquiry for red and black leaf congous, and grades of the firmer under 1s. per lb. are about ¼d. to ½d. up. Black-leafs have been dealt in more freely under 1s. per lb., and but for the firmness of holders, a much larger business would have passed in the lower grades. No auctions have been held to-day.

SUGAR.—The West India market is firm, muscovado kinds being fully 6d. dearer. Crystallised Demerara by auction went at full to rather higher rates, from 19s. to 20s. 6d. The total business for the week is 1,663 casks 2,640 bags. Beet supports yesterday's advance. Pieces are 3d. to 6d. dearer on the week here and in the Clyde.

COFFEE.—Plantation Ceylon by auction met a good demand, and colory qualities as well as bold are 1s. to 3s. higher than on this day week. 210 casks 125 barrels and bags sold, good and fine middling colory, 69s. to 70s. 6d.; bold, 81s. 6d. to 95s. 60 bags native bought in at 54s. East India steady for good and fine, which sold at 71s. 6d., and bold at 89s. to 83s. 6d.; 79 cases 634 bags off red. Mocha easy; 268 packages chiefly sold at 77s. to 78s. for greenish small berry. Foreign coffee held firmly, 500 bags Manila bought in 42s. 6d.; 2,316 bags other foreign part sold, fine ordinary to low middling Costa Rica, 48s. 6d. to 54s. 6d., and Guatemala, 52s. to 56s. 6d. per cwt. Business in Rio by private contract.

CEYLON AND SINGAPORE.—Referring to the announcement that the War Office has decided that Ceylon and the Straits are to be placed under one command with its headquarters at Singapore a Ceylon paper writes:—If the statement is correct, Ceylon, once regarded as the "key of India," is to take second rank after Singapore. The Straits capital is certainly important as a great entrepot of commerce, a harbour and a coaling station, midway between India and China, but Ceylon is the advance-guard of India, with a population ten times more numerous than that of all the Straits Settlements. Of course, we want our military burdens lightened, but we scarcely anticipated the mode in which the end is apparently to be gained.

THE GREAT MEETING AT CHUPRA TO OPPOSE THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

THE resistance to the Bengal Tenancy Bill is growing both in volume and in intensity in every part of the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal. The meeting of Friday last at Chupra, over which the Maharajah of Hutwa presided, seems to have been in every way worthy of the importance of the district as an agricultural centre. The resolutions adverse to the Bill were passed with absolute unanimity; and they specify in the clearest possible terms the objections to the Bill which are entertained not only by the enlightened inhabitants of the district of Chupra, but by every other intelligent well-wisher of Bengal. The monstrous powers entrusted by the Bill to the officers of a despotic and almost irresponsible Government—powers that are not desired by those officers themselves—are properly described by the people of Chupra as “wrong in principle and contrary to the spirit of the Regulations.” The Chupra resolutions are also entirely justified in denouncing the vicious theory of free sale of tenure—which, of uncertain benefit to anyone in Ireland or elsewhere, is certain to be utterly disastrous in Bengal to every class of the community, except the money-lenders, the lawyers, and the tax-gatherers. If Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert persist in contemptuously disregarding the bitter cry of Bengal, we earnestly hope that that cry will reach the hearts and awaken the consciences of the English people, before it is too late for help to be rendered.

MR. DAMPIER'S RETIREMENT AND THE TENANCY BILL.

THE Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has published a farewell order in honour of Mr. Dampier on his retirement, after nearly thirty-five years' of service, and we believe that the compliment was well merited. But the Lieutenant Governor takes the opportunity of making a remark of some political importance, and of rather ambiguous signification in its personal application to Mr. Dampier. The text runs thus:—“He leaves India at a time when the principles and practice of revenue administration in Bengal are undergoing a thorough revision, and it is in connection with this last great and important measure that Mr. Dampier's knowledge and varied experience have been of the utmost value to the Government.” If this is so, it may be well to ask why the Lieutenant Governor has allowed himself to be deprived of Mr. Dampier's services at such a critical time?

There is a well-known proverb against the policy of swapping horses whilst crossing a ford; and, surely, some inducement might have been held out to Mr. Dampier to remain in India a little longer to assist the Lieutenant Governor and his counsel. But to those who have studied the recent literature of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, it must be well known that there are some important parts of that revolutionary measure which would go considerably beyond the reforms and changes to what Mr. Dampier would have consented.

Mr. Dampier was for many years a member of the Board of Revenue, but we have had occasion to notice that since Mr. A. P. Macdonnell became the Lieutenant Governor's secretary and adviser in Revenue matters, it has been the custom for the Government to ignore, as far as possible, the existence of the Board of Revenue. In the mockery of an official inquiry into the amended Tenancy Bill, which is now going on, Mr. Macdonnell addressed the Divisional Commissioners instead of the Board of Revenue. Be this as it may, as regards Mr. Dampier personally, there remains the fact that the Lieutenant Governor has taken the opportunity of informing the public that the principles and practice of Revenue Administration in Bengal are undergoing a thorough revision, and we can only accept the high-sounding phrase as an admission of the revolutionary character of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, which will be a warning to those experienced members of the India Office who have had the Bill under their consideration.

THE EDUCATION OF INDIAN PRINCES.

ALL true friends of India will be delighted to observe that the country is beginning to reap the benefit of the good educational seed sown during the boyhood of many of those Indian princes who are just now entering on the serious duties of their important and responsible positions. If any doubt ever existed as to the advisability of our Government encouraging the education of our young chiefs and nobles in the learning and accomplishments of Western civilisation, we think that that doubt must have been set at rest by the happy results now apparent in such typical cases as that of the Maharajah of Darbhanga, who is doing good service to his country as a Councillor of the Viceroy, and that of the Maharajah of Kuch Behar, who has recently been installed in the active work of administering his State. We might advance other examples in Bengal alone, not less satisfactory on the whole; but these two instances of the beneficial effects on the country at large, of the high education and careful training of its chiefs, are sufficient to establish the conclusion we have always contended for in these pages.

The doubt to which we have referred was mainly based on a supposed danger, that a high English education might lessen the natural sympathies of race and kinship between the chiefs and the people. Now, on such a question as this, it is impossible to obtain better testimony than that of the Hindoo Patriot. The Patriot is not only the leading Native paper of India; it is not only the acknowledged organ of the aristocracy of Bengal; it most unquestionably possesses the entire confidence of all sections, and especially of the "orthodox" section, of the Hindoo community, and is on the whole admirably representative of Hindoo public opinion. The Maharajah of Darbhanga has long ago been universally accepted as one of the ablest and best of Indian leaders; and now, this is what the Patriot says of the Maharajah of Kuch Behar:—

"We have all along maintained that there cannot be a material advancement of our national interests unless and until our chiefs and princes are educated to devote greater personal attention to the affairs of their State. It affords us pleasure to learn that some of our native states are just now making satisfactory progress, and we make no doubt that in course of time these would prove model administrations. From recent advices received, it appears that Kuch Behar, under its youthful Maharajah, bids fair at no distant date to eclipse others in administrative success. Our readers are aware that the Maharajah, got back his ancestral Raj in October last from his guardian, the British Government; since then he has been steadily conducting the duties of the administration to the entire satisfaction of his subjects. The Maharajah is possessed of great intelligence, and his perseverance in mastering the details of administration is highly spoken of. His desire to promote the material advancement of his subjects is very great. Already the Maharajah is maintaining education in his state at a great cost. Five per cent. of his entire revenue has been allotted for that purpose. The Maharajah is assisted by a council, consisting of three members. We are informed that before he left for the hills, he used to sit almost daily in council to transact business of state. As the president of that body, the Maharajah would dispose of civil, criminal, and revenue cases after a patient hearing. Kuch Behar is to be congratulated on having such a worthy ruler. We really wish that his example would be followed by his brother chiefs in other parts of India."

Those who are best acquainted with the menaces of Indian society in Bengal will be well aware that this testimony of the Hindoo Patriot is (apart altogether from the high reputation for impartiality which our contemporary has always borne) distinctly an unprejudiced one; and we think that both the Maharajah of Kuch Behar and the Government of Bengal may be congratulated on its tenour. We entirely agree with the Patriot that the circumstances of Kuch Behar are such as to encourage increased attention to the education of the scions of Indian princely houses—whether by the aid of accomplished English gentlemen as tutors and guardians; by the establishment of more numerous "Indian Etons," like the Rajkumar colleges of Kathiawar, Ajmer, and Indore; or by the provision of improved facilities for European travel, such as those promised by Dr. Leitner at Woking, and by Professor Monier Williams at Oxford.

The medal of the Royal Humane Society has been awarded to Subadar Khan, of the Guide Corps, for his gallant conduct in saving Lieutenant Campbell from drowning.

THE COLOMBO BREAKWATER.—The furious burst of the south-west monsoon last month did not damage the new breakwater. Dredging operations are still being carried on, at the rate of about 15,000 cubic yards per mensem, most of which is deposited at sea a few miles from the entrance to the harbour. The total expenditure on the harbour works up to the end of June was Rs. 77,58,604.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs. 20,00,000 in bills on India, and telegraphic transfers, were received on Aug 20 at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills on Calcutta, Rs. 16,000; on Bombay, Rs. 2,84,000; and on Madras, Rs. 1,17,000, the average rate in all three cases being 1s. 7½d. In telegraphic transfers on Calcutta Rs. 3,00,000 at an average of 1s. 7½d., making a total of Rs. 7,17,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7½d. will receive in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at 1s. 7 17-32d. and above will receive in full. From April 1, till August 19 remittances for Rs. 6,74,43,67 were sold and realised £5,538,285.

LORD NORTHBROOK'S STAFF.—A correspondent writes:—“Moulvi Mahomed Samiulla Khan, judge of Aligarh, who has been selected by the Indian Government to act on the staff of Lord Northbrook in Egypt, is the son of the late Mahomed Azizulla Khan, who acted on the residency staff of the Mulk Mahfuzah in 1818, and for a short time was political agent at the Court of Nahun. Being in affluent circumstances he retired soon afterwards and died in 1854 at his family residence in Delhi, where his distinguished family had settled down. Moulvi Samiulla Khan, a great Oriental scholar and learned Mussulman divine adopted the legal profession and was one of the leading members of the Bar at the Sudder Dinani Courts of Agra and afterwards the High Court of Justice at Allahabad. In 1873 he accepted the office which he at present holds and which is the highest that is given to Indians who have not qualified themselves in England. He has been on various occasions sent by the Government to different districts of the North West Provinces to reform the work, and has always been honourably mentioned by his superior authorities. The Government of the North West Provinces expressed their regret that they could not raise him to the High Court Bench, owing to his insufficient knowledge of the English language. He has been a most indefatigable reformer of the social condition of his countrymen, and it is greatly owing to his valuable assistance that his friend and kinsman, the Honourable Syed Ahmed Khan Bahadur, C.S.I., has been enabled to found the Mahomedan Anglo-Oriental College at Aligarh, which is now the leading national institution of its kind in India. In 1880 he travelled in Europe and visited England, and was presented to the Prince of Wales, the Secretary of State for India, and other distinguished men of the day. Since his return, he has busied himself in the propagation of European thought and Western culture among his fellow-countrymen.

OBITUARY.—The death is announced of Lieut. Frederick W. L. Birdwood, R.A., temporarily attached to No. 1 Mountain Battery at Dalki, near Quetta. Although a very young officer, his rank in his regiment dating only from February, 1881, Lieut. Birdwood was well known in Bombay from his family connections and as a prominent member of the Gymkhana, or Athletic Club, having brought with him from Marlborough College a reputation as a cricketer, which he maintained in India. He was also an eager sportsman, and met his death from a fall while out hog hunting. He was very popular in his regiment and in society generally, and gave great promise of distinction in his profession. He was the eldest and only surviving son of General William Albert Birdwood, R.E., for many years Secretary to the Madras Government in the Public Works Department, and a cousin of the Hon. Mr. Justice Birdwood, of the Bombay High Court, and of Sir George Birdwood, of the India Office.—At the July meeting of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, held at Calcutta, the Vice President announced the death of Dr. Hugh W. McCann, honorary secretary of the society. Dr. McCann was born at Kirkcubright, Scotland, in 1853. He was educated at the Liverpool Institute, and subsequently at London University, where he distinguished himself, and in 1873 he was elected a scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge. In the examinations of 1876, he was bracketed seventh wrangler. Deceased was for some time a master at Harrow, and he also took an active part as lecturer under the University extension scheme. In 1879 he received an appointment in the Bengal Educational Department. In 1881 he was elected honorary secretary of the Asiatic Society, and he was for some time a trustee of the Indian Museum. In 1882 he officiated as secretary to the central committee for the management of the Economic Museum, his duties being of an arduous character. Dr. McCann compiled a valuable report on the dye stuffs of Bengal, based on returns received from commissioners of divisions. During the Calcutta International Exhibition he was in charge of the Educational Section, and recently he had assumed editorial charge of the Calcutta Review. Dr. McCann was very successful as a teacher and lecturer, and his premature death from cholera will be keenly felt in many circles in Bengal.

THE INDIAN AND COLONIAL EXHIBITION OF 1886.
His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has addressed the Governors and other authorities in India and the colonies to enlist their influence in support of the Indian and Colonial Exhibition which is to be held at South Kensington in 1886.

Writing to his Excellency, the Governor of Bombay, his Royal Highness says:—

“It is my intention to hold a special exhibition of the produce and manufactures of the Indian Empire and the colonies in 1886. The interest shown by the millions of visitors to the Indian Museum at South Kensington and to the collections of Indian art exhibited by the Science and Art Department in all the large commercial towns of the United Kingdom and at Paris, Berlin, Stockholm, and Copenhagen since 1879, proves the widely-extended appreciation of the hand-made manufactures of India which exists on the Continent of Europe, and in this country. The express purpose of the exhibition of 1886 is to demonstrate on the fullest scale to the inhabitants of these islands the unbounded industrial resources at their command within the limits of Her Majesty's Indian and colonial dominion. It is essential that India should be adequately and unsparingly represented on the occasion, or the exhibition will be incomplete and a failure so far as the great practical ends I desire to result from it are concerned. I trust, therefore, that your Excellency will take a favourable view of the undertaking, which, besides benefiting both India and England, will tend to strengthen those moral bonds of union between all classes of Her Majesty's subjects which are the chief strength of the British Empire. As regards the administration of the exhibition, it is my hope that this may be carried out by a Royal Commission rather than by an executive committee, as in the case of the Fisheries and Health Exhibitions.”

In replying, Sir James Fergusson states:—

“My colleagues in this Government and I fully appreciate the advantage to the people of the Bombay Presidency which may be derived from your Royal Highness's conception, and we shall not fail to make it thoroughly known in all the districts and in the native States under our Government. We shall appoint a suitable committee to promote and direct the contribution of articles for exhibition, and shall give assistance when necessary for their transmission.”

Copies of the letter of his Royal Highness and of the reply of the Governor of Bombay have been forwarded to the committee for the Bombay International Exhibition and to the Commission in Scinde the commissioners of divisions, all collectors and all political agents, residents and superintendents, with the suggestion that a committee should be appointed to procure promises of contributions of articles of produce and manufacture, and to insure the worthy representation of the Presidency at the proposed Exhibition in London. The divisional district and political officers are directed to bring the project prominently to the notice of the public, and personally of the chiefs and the leading members of the community, and it is intimated that the Governor in Council will be prepared to make a grant from provincial revenues to bear the cost of the transmission to England of the exhibits, and of the return of the articles shown which may remain unsold at the close of the exhibition.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—Steadier Indian exchanges enabled the brokers in the silver market to dispose of between £60,000 and £70,000 worth of bar silver, received per Holbein, at the previous price, 50¼d. per ounce. Mexican dollars remain at 50¼d., but they are not readily saleable, having been offered at that rate without finding buyers. China exchange rates are unaltered, but Rupee Paper is dull, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closing at 83¼ 83½, and the Four per Cents. at 81 81¼.

TUESDAY.—Some small amounts of bar silver have again been sold at 50¼d. per ounce, and the nearest nominal price of Mexican dollars is still 50¼d. Indian exchange rates are unaltered at about 1s. 7½d. The Shanghai quotation is weaker at 3s. 1¼d., while Hongkong is unchanged at 3s. 9d. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper closed at 83¼ 83½, and the Four per Cents. at 80¼ 81¼.

WEDNESDAY.—The tendency of the market for bar silver has been a little unsettled since the result of the sales of India Council remittances was announced, but 50¼d. per ounce continued to be quoted by the brokers as the nearest price, the supplies on hand being very small. Mexican dollars are now quoted at 50 5-16d., a fall of 1-16d., but there has been very little business doing in them. Eastern exchange rates are unaltered, and Rupee Paper closed at much about last night's prices—viz., 83¼ 83½ for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80¼ 81¼ for the Four per Cents.

THURSDAY.—About £50,000 worth of bar silver, consigned from Chili per Valparaiso was sold this morning at 50¼d. per ounce, but the market was easier later in the day. Some Mexican dollars were placed at 50 d., but the market does not seem steady even at this fresh reduction of 1-16d. in the price. Indian exchange rates are easy at 1s. 7 15-32d. in Calcutta, and 1s. 7 d. in Bombay, the China rates remaining at 3s. 9d. in Hong Kong and 3s. 1¼d. in Shanghai. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper closed at  $83\frac{1}{4}$  to  $83\frac{1}{2}$ , and the Four per Cents. at  $80\frac{1}{4}$  to 81.

FRIDAY.—Bar silver is flat, though the price is nominally unchanged at  $50\frac{1}{4}$  d. per ounce, and a few Mexican dollars have been sold, but only after the price had further declined to  $50\frac{1}{4}$  d. Indian rates of exchange are quoted at Rs. 7 15-32d., and China rates are unaltered. Rupee Paper continues very inactive, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. are  $\frac{1}{2}$  lower at  $83\frac{1}{4}$  to  $83\frac{1}{2}$ , the Four per Cents. remaining at  $80\frac{1}{4}$  to 81.

SATURDAY.—There has been little or no business in either silver or in Rupee Paper. All prices were unaltered, bars being quoted  $50\frac{1}{4}$  d. and Mexican dollars  $50\frac{1}{4}$  d. per ounce, and the Eastern exchanges were unchanged.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."
A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION
TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE
OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing fortnightly (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"We have received a copy of what we venture to predict will prove one of the most useful books that ever fell into the hands of a ship's officer—a vocabulary of the sea jargon of Indian lascars. In the brief space of eighty-two pages Mr. Smith has given us some 1,400 nautical terms, embracing nearly the whole vocabulary of native crews. We congratulate Mr. Smith on the completion of a book which, if it is the least pretentious, is, to our thinking, the most useful and the most enduring of all the books he has yet written."—Statesman, Calcutta.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGH, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances deriving elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 18th, 1884.

DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY.—GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, and is generally sufficient. Dr. GIBSON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHOEA." From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances of the efficacy of Dr. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhoea and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhoea, and even in the more terrible form of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Russell St., W.C.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN OF EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSCRUPULOUS IMITATIONS. Be careful to secure the Trade Mark of all Chemists. 1s. 1/6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. SOLE MANUFACTURER.

THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL & CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed their most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grande monde and elite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing parures and other costly diamond ornaments. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" can be worn at all times, even by daylight, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1:300th that of real diamonds.

FIFTY-SEVEN

By

HENRY GEORGE KEENE, C.I.E., M.R.A.S.,

Author of "The Fall of the Mughal Empire," &c.

"The author breaks new ground. He essays to inform us how the different districts in the North West were preserved from anarchy by their civil administrators during such a stupendous catastrophe as the revolt of the army, upon whose support social order, in a great measure, rested. The task involves stories of adventure and pluck, which never come amiss to the many readers who have relatives serving abroad; and these stories are given in picturesque language, with a conciseness precluding tedium, and in a tone throughout of the modesty which seems natural where duty is considered the first obligation, and courage the first attribute of an English gentleman."—World.

"Mr. Keene tells how the civil officers in the districts kept or restored order, largely by their own individual influence, often by heroic exertion, and almost invariably with the loyal aid of native subordinates. He describes the events which occurred in some eight or nine districts of the North West Provinces and Bengal. His narrative is unpretentious in style, but it clearly shows that courage, firmness, heroism, and self-sacrifice were displayed among the members of the Indian Civil Service, as well as by the soldiers who stormed Delhi, relieved Lucknow, and avenged the crimes of Cawnpore."—Scotsman.

"This work claims our hearty recognition of its thoroughness. It gives us a most readable and trustworthy recognition of the reports of eye-witnesses, always the most valuable to the student of history. It has a special interest from the fact that Mr. Keene was himself one of those district officers who honourably held their ground during those fearfully exciting times."—Literary World.

"Mr. Keene writes to give somewhat tardy honour where it is due—viz., to the civilian officers who, during the period of the Indian Mutiny, remained at their posts, and in many instances deprived of military aid, had themselves to raise and command levies for the protection of the district."—Morning Post.

"A volume which seems to us to break new ground, and to supply a want felt by those who have ever endeavoured to study the subject. The materials for the most part new, and it treats of incidents in themselves fairly entitled to attention, and calculated to excite interest. The fights, the rides, and the surprises and the escapes, are all related in picturesque language."—Homes' News.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, SEPT. 1, 1884.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Aug. 11; Madras and Allahabad, Aug. 10; Calcutta, Aug. 9.

In our leading columns to-day, we deal with the very remarkable resolution of the Government of Bengal on the "Annual Report on the Administration of Civil Justice in the Sonthal Pergunnahs for 1883." We learn that the impression produced by the very significant facts disclosed in this document has been so strong in certain influential quarters, that it is now a matter of doubt whether the clauses of the Bengal Tenancy Bill relating to Free Sale will not be altogether withdrawn by the Government of India.

We are glad to observe that H.H. the Maharajah of Hutwa, at the monster meeting held at Chupra last week to denounce the Bill, laid prominent stress on the evidence afforded by this Sonthal Pergunnahs' Report. We shall look with interest on the full report of His Highness's speech, which should arrive by the next mail but one. If we may judge from the telegraphed summary, it will afford fresh evidence that the Maharajah of Hutwa is ably following the distinguished example of the Maharajah of Darbhanga, in leading a patriotic and constitutional opposition to the revolutionary legislation now in fashion at Simla.

The chief topic of interest in our Indian telegrams, is still the approaching departure of the Russo-Afghan Frontier Delimitation Commission. It is progressing in that humble-minded fashion which is so much in favour with the present Government.

The Journal of the Anjuman-i-Punjab gives some interesting particulars in regard to the arrangements for Dr. Leitner's Punjab guest-house at Woking. We take the following extracts:—

"Her Majesty the Queen has been pleased to accept from Dr. Leitner a present of books and photographs, including that of the Oriental College. The, perhaps, most eminent portrait sculptor of the day, Mr. Adams Aton, purposes coming out to India to take busts in clay, gratis, of the Punjab chiefs, if they will give him sittings; his object being to present them to the Walhalla of Indian Worthies to be established in connection with the Woking Institute, so as to familiarise English gentlemen with the aspect of their Indian confrères. Mr. Frederic Pincoff will act as resident and honorary superintendent of the Punjab Institute when Dr. Leitner returns to duty in India. Mr. Priestley, C.S., late of Peshawar, is the honorary secretary; Dr. Duke, late civil surgeon of Simla, will act as honorary physician and adviser in medical studies; Mr. Fisher, C.S., an honorary adviser in legal studies; whilst other branches of learning will be, or are, similarly represented by honorary advisers and tutors to the students. The arrangements for a museum in connection with the Punjab Guest-house at Woking are progressing most satisfactorily. 1,480 Egyptian, Græco-Egyptian, Syrian and other antiquities; 483 Indian and Central Asian ancient and modern art objects; 4,000 Roman, Greek, autonomous, Bactrian, Sassanid and other coins, &c., are now in process of systematic arrangement. As regards the Library, Dr. Hyde Clarke and others will give books; and it will probably be proposed that the Anjuman shall give or lend important books and manuscripts for investigation and utilisation at the hands of scholars. A series of characteristic native shops will constitute an interesting and useful feature of the Punjab Institute at Woking. They will be constructed by Mr. Eudon Clarke at one of the entrances; and every opportunity will be given to any good English artificers who are enterprising enough to go and try their fortune there. Everything, short of giving them food or pay, in the way of connecting them with the manufacturing or commercial interest will be done in order to make their stay a profitable one; and the assistance of some members of the Club has been promised in a matter advantageous alike to English and Indian interests. The artificers will receive free quarters."

It is rumoured that Mr. Lalbahadur Ghose will come forward as candidate for the Parliamentary representation of Finsbury. We should be delighted to have this rumour confirmed; we have long been anxious to see some representatives of India in Parliament who can be relied upon to devote all their energies to the cause of that country.

It is further rumoured that Mr. Ghose will come forward in the Radical interest. We trust that this is not true. As we have often declared in these columns, we think that the interests of India are far too comprehensive, too Imperial, to be tied up to the following of any party in England, whether Conservative or Liberal. Our young Indian friends in London have unhappily of late shown a tendency to forget this important fact, and a readiness to confide the sacred cause of India to any Radical tag-rag or bob-tail who will be flattered by their alliance, and who will use them as tools to improve their own political position. There are in Parliament, on both sides of the Houses, statesmen to whom the representatives of a true "Indian party" in England might look for guidance with safety and honour. It would be invidious to set forth a complete list of such statesmen; but it is sufficient for our present purpose if we mention such names as those of Lord Northbrook and Mr. Fawcett on the Liberal side, and Lord Lytton, Lord Cranbrook, Mr. Edward Stanhope, Lord George Hamilton, and Mr. Denzil Oslow, on the Conservative side.

It is, perhaps, only fair to Mr. Ghose and our other young Indian friends in England, to note, that the mistake they make in attaching themselves to a disreputable faction is one that is not unnaturally made by political inexperience. The Radical persons to whom they attach themselves are only too thankful to demonstrate to the public that they have any following, whether Indian or otherwise; and consequently, are willing to throw themselves into any breach, however hopeless, and to take up any case in utter disregard of its merits. But a little experience of political life will show, that advocacy of this kind is worse than useless—it is sufficient to damn any cause, however meritorious. We hope that, whenever an Indian candidate is found with the courage and the means to contest an English constituency, he will have the good sense to come forward—just as the Maharajah Daulip Singh at one time proposed to come forward for Whitby—on strictly "Independent" lines.

If an Indian candidate is to have any bias at all, on either side, it must be, as a mere matter of common sense, in the direction of Conservatism. What sympathy with the needs and aspirations of India can possibly be felt by a genuine Radical—with his "Perish India" theories, with his anti-Imperialism, and his avowed desire to restrict our national care to the narrow limits of the "silver streak"—his iconoclastic notions about the rights of property, whether landed or otherwise—his hatred of high education, and devotion to the three R's., his intolerance of import duties and his love of direct taxation—his bitter hostility to all religion save the destructive atheism of the Bradlaugh school? The Indian mind is essentially religious, loyal, law-loving, and Conservative; we doubt whether, if left to honestly follow the promptings of its own better nature, a single point of contact would be found between it and the undisciplined, strife-loving, irreligious character of modern English Radicalism.

Every loyal and enlightened—equally with, and perhaps even more keenly than, every patriotic Anglo-Indian—will deeply regret the tone of the extracts from a section of the Vernacular Press in Bengal, that was given in the Times telegram of last week. The Times, in its leader on the subject, rightly says that some of these extracts are more deplorable than any of those that appeared during the Russo-Turkish War, and that justified Lord Lytton's Vernacular Press Act. The Times, however, does not notice one all-important difference between the two occasions. We have now, unhappily, in India as in England, a Government that seems bent on stirring up strife and hatred between the various classes of its subjects. At home, the Ministry endeavours to excite the populace against the House of Lords and the Conservative party—and then professes a holy horror, when a Thorold Rogers charges the whole aristocracy of Britain with foul debauchery, when a Chamberlain talks of 100,000 Birmingham men marching on London, and when a Bradlaugh loudly declares that the Throne must go down with the Peers. So in India, Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert have done their best, first to make the Native community hate their English friends and fellow subjects, then to induce the tenants to hate their landlords, and generally to stir up strife and contention everywhere; and now they begin to quail before the monster of anarchy and confusion which their own vanity or perversity has created.

HARDLY less regret will be felt at the critical state of the relations now existing between the Government of Bengal and the Calcutta Municipality, on the question of the sanitation of the City. This unfortunate difference of opinion accentuates the regret which we all feel at the irreparable loss we have sustained in the premature death of Kristodas Pal, whose influence has always been thrown upon the side of an amicable settlement of every dispute.

It is said to be definitely settled that the British Commission on the Russo-Afghan frontier shall skulk round through Beloochistan in order to arrive at the scene of its labours on the Helmund. Of course, "It's pretty Fanny's way." To be consistent, Mr. Gladstone ought to offer all the tribes on the road a good round subsidy, with plenty of repeating rifles and ammunition as a present to boot, to induce them to let us off this time, and not hurt us too much.

We take the following personal intelligence of our Indian visitors, from the Journal of the National Indian Association :—

"At the close of the summer session of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, Mr. Syed Mohammed Hossain, Lucknow, stood first in order of merit among the students who gained the Diploma of the College; and he also obtained the Holland Gold Medal. Mr. Kaikhosro Bahadurji has passed the Intermediate Examination in Medicine of the University of London in the First Division. In the Honours Examination he took Third Class Honours with the second place in Physiology, and First Class Honours with the fourth place in Materia Medica. He has also obtained in the Terminal Examinations of University College, the Second Silver Medal (equal with another student) in Anatomy, the First Silver Medal in Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and a Second and First Class Certificate in Physiology and Chemical Physiology respectively. Mr. Aurung Shah, Assam, stood second in the late Competitive Examination in Zoology and Comparative Anatomy of the University of Glasgow; and he obtained a First Class Certificate of Honour. Mr. Cawas Lalca and Mr. Jamsetji Framji Kolaporewalla have passed the L.R.C.P. of London Examination. The Benchers of the Middle Temple, in the last Scholarship Examination, awarded a prize in Common Law to Mr. Jitendra N. Palit. In the Competitive Examination, held last month, for the Indian Medical Service, Mr. U. N. Mukerji stood fourth among the five successful candidates, with 2,411 marks. In the recent Examination of the Select Indian Medical Service candidates for commissions as surgeons in the Service, Mr. H. E. Banatvala stood third among the five candidates, with 4,666 marks. In the Technological Examination, held by the City and Guilds of London at the end of May, Mr. Ardesbier Burjorji Master passed with honour in Electric Engineering. Fundita Rama Bai has been appointed Teacher of Sanskrit and Oriental Languages in the Ladies' College, Cheltenham. The Gilchrist Scholar for this year is Babu Manick Lal Dutt, a student of the Presidency College, Calcutta.

KHAN BAHADUR BOMANJI SORABJI, C.E., has passed the Examination for the Ph. D. degree in the Royal Bavarian University of Wurzburg. The three subjects chosen by Mr. Bomanji Sorabji were, Inorganic and Organic Chemistry, Experimental and Mathematical Physics, and Mathematics.

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected up till Saturday, August 9:—

"We have had an exceedingly quiet week in our freight market, and business may be said to be almost at a standstill. Rates of freight are in most instances quite nominal, and have a decided downward tendency. Owners, however, decline all offers, and are somewhat surprised ships do not go off on their terms. In the meantime arrivals continue on the most liberal scale, and our unfixed tonnage stands increased to 53,000 tons."

We take the following on the Calcutta Indigo Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s report:—

"Crop prospects nearly everywhere have undergone a change for the worse since our last issue owing to want of rain, which has been general throughout the Indigo districts. We have not yet received sufficient returns to enable us to give any idea as to what the total yield in Lower Bengal is likely to be, but judging from those which have come to hand, it looks as though Jessore and Purneah only would do better than last year. First cuttings are now nearly finished in Behar, and by next opportunity we hope to be able to give a detailed estimate. Rain is badly wanted everywhere to bring on the Khoontees, and without a steady and general downpour, we fear these are likely to be disappointing. The returns from Chuprah could scarcely be much worse. In Benares and the North-West Provinces the weather has been very dry, the falls of rain being both light and partial, and the crop is generally reported to be stunted and backward. Should the want of rain continue, it is doubtful whether the outturn will be as large as the increase of cultivation led us to expect a month back."

THE same firm gives the following on the Calcutta Tea Market:—

"The demand for tea during the past fortnight has not been as brisk as usual, and buyers have not been inclined to operate at former rates. The result has been that a lower range of prices has been established, but even at this there is not much competition. The quantity offered was about 22,000 chests, and about 20,000 chests were sold. Fine and finest teas have sold irregularly, but generally at a decline. Medium Pekoes and broken Pekoes show the heaviest fall, Common Broken and Souchong classes have scarcely changed in value."

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The following are the general remarks of the Agricultural Department on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ended August 30.—

"There has been slight rain throughout the Madras Presidency, but more is still wanted in the ceded and southern districts. In Mysore the fall has been light, and the deficiency is beginning to cause some anxiety in the province. The rains have set in again in Coorg, and there was a good fall during the week under report. In the Bombay Presidency rain was general, but more is still urgently wanted in parts of the Deccan, especially in Dharwar. Rain has fallen in varying quantities throughout the Berars, Hyderabad, and the Central India and Rajputana States. Heavy rain continues to fall in the Central Provinces, and a break is needed. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh most districts have had rain, but more would be beneficial, especially for the early rice. Good rain continues to fall in the Punjab. In British Burma the rainfall is still behind that of last year. In Assam and Bengal the fall has been heavier than that recorded last week; but more would be beneficial for transplanting operations in both provinces. Harvesting continues in two districts of the Madras Presidency, and standing crops are generally in want of rain. Kharif sowings continue in Bombay and the Punjab; in the former they have been retarded in places either by too much rain or by a deficiency of rain. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and in the Central Provinces, kharif sowings have been mostly completed, and in the latter province weeding operations are in hand, but they are retarded by the heavy rain. In the Central India and Rajputana States prospects have much improved by the recent rain. In Assam the transplanting of sali crops, and the reaping and gathering of the aus crop, are in hand. Harvesting of early paddy and jute has commenced in some places in Bengal. Cholera is prevalent in most provinces. The mortality in Tanjore was again heavy, and in Dharwar there were also many deaths. Prices show a slight tendency to rise in some places in Bengal; otherwise they are generally stationary.

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated August 31:—

"Further details have been published regarding the recent lamentable affray in Joonaghur. It appears that some Mehranis, who for years past have claimed absolute possession of the village of Juaj, lately assumed an independent attitude, and refused to allow the Joonaghur police to enter the village for the purpose of inquiring into certain alleged crimes. They also collected a body of armed men and gave out that they meant to fight for their rights. Colonel Scott, First Assistant Political Agent, tried to induce the Mehranis to surrender their arms and to admit the police. The head man promised to comply with this request on being assured that an inquiry into the alleged grievances would be conducted under the observation of the British Political Agency. He, however, failed to keep his promise.

"Thereupon a Joonaghur force, numbering fifty troopers and 150 police, with two guns, was moved to Juaj. Colonel Scott again sent to the village, giving the insurgents an hour to surrender. The reply was a refusal, coupled with a declaration of their intention to resist to the utmost. The police were then ordered to enter the village. The Mehranis made a stubborn resistance, and as the houses were mostly loopholed, they were able to protract the street fighting for three hours, after which they were driven out with a loss of six killed.

"Pending the receipt of fuller information as to the merits of the original dispute it would be premature to express any opinion on this affray. It will, however, be remembered that this is the second tragedy which has occurred in the Joonaghur State within the last year, the first being a massacre of Maiyas, which called forth severe censure from the Indian Government.

"The state of the crops in many parts of India is causing very grave anxiety. As regards Mysore, a severe scarcity is almost certain to be experienced, the standing crops being very poor. More rain is wanted throughout the Madras Presidency, especially in Bellary, where the crops are withering, and in Coimbatore and parts of Tinnevely. Complaints of the want of rain are also heard from portions of the Deccan, and from two or three districts of the Punjab. In Bengal the rainfall has been more plentiful during the past week, but more is still wanted for the lately transplanted rice. On the other hand, the crop prospects look favourable in Central India, the North, West Provinces, the greater part of the Punjab, and Rajpootana, except the district of Ajmere.

"Various proposals as to the means of providing employment for the old soldiers in the Native Army are now attracting some attention. The Commander-in-Chief of Bombay has taken up the matter warmly, and a beginning is being made in that Presidency by enrolling a corps of commissioners, on the model of that existing in London. It has been suggested that registry offices should be opened at several centres for recording the names of discharged sepoys desiring employment in a Government department or under private masters, and that the heads of the public offices should be directed to give the preference to duly qualified pensioners seeking work. It is believed that the Commander-in-Chief is prepared to support some such plan; and it is to be hoped that the Government will give it cordial support, as it will do something towards increasing the attractions of service in the Native Army.

"The official report of the cyclone which swept over Arakan last May states that 5,000 native huts were destroyed and 16,000 damaged, and that 2,500 tons of paddy were lost. It is roughly estimated that, including the indirect action on trade, the actual loss sustained amounted to 15 lakhs of rupees. The number of persons killed was 49, of whom 18 were carried away by the tidal wave, 10 who were out in a boat were drowned, and the remainder were killed in various parts of the province.

"A letter from the Ameer, cordially reiterating the assurance of his co-operation and sympathy, reached Simla on Wednesday last. Colonel Ridgeway started on the following day for Rindli and Quetta. The members of the Commission hope to march from Quetta on September 10 and to reach Kwaja Ali, on the Helmund, on the 29th, Herat about the 19th of October, and Sarakhs on the 1st of November. The question of an escort has been re-opened, and it is possible that as the duties of guarding the camp will be heavy, another squadron of cavalry will be added, making up the total to 350 men.

"Captain Maitland, the Intelligence officer, who is now at Nushki, reports that two routes are practicable. The Ameer's agent with the Commission will have no voice in deciding any questions that may arise, but will simply accompany the party for the purpose of advising, furnishing local knowledge, and expressing the Ameer's wishes through the British Commissioners. The Ameer is not recognised as an independent sovereign taking a direct part in the work of delimitation, but merely as being represented in all matters by the British Commissioners.

"The following is the full list of the officers going from India:—Assistant-Commissioner Lieutenant Colonel Ridgeway; attaches, Captains Durand, Yate, and De Lasso, Mr. Merk, of the Bengal Civil Service, Ressaldar-Major Mahomed Hossein Khan, of the 7th Bengal Cavalry, Ressaldar-Major Bahawalidin Khan, of the Central India Horse, Subahdar-Major Hossein Khan, of the 2nd Sikhs, Sirdar Mahomed Aslam Khan, Sirdar Shere Ahmed Khan, Mirza Gholam Ahmed Khan, and Baba Khan; Medical Officer, Surgeon C. W. Owen, C.I.E.; Commissariat and Transport Officer, Major Rind; Naturalist Surgeon, Major Aitchison; Geologist, Mr. Griesbach; Survey officers, Major Hill, Captain Gore, and Lieutenant Talbot; Intelligence officers, Captains Maitland and Peacocke; officers of the escort, Major Bax, Captain Heath, and Lieutenant Drummond.

"It is finally settled that the Zhob Valley Expedition shall consist of one squadron from each of the following three regiments, the 1st Bombay Lancers, the 10th Bengal Lancers, and the 5th Punjab Cavalry; of No. 9 Battery Northern Division of the Royal Artillery, half of No. 1 Mountain Battery, the 4th and 10th Companies of Bengal Sappers, the 2d Battalion of the North Staffordshire Regiment, the 2nd and 3rd Bombay Native Infantry, the 1st and 45th Bengal Native Infantry, and the 4th Punjab Infantry.

"The force will march from Quetta, via the Kawas Valley and Swalan, to Duki, where it will rendezvous on the 30th of September. Anambar, on the river of the same name, 35 miles to the north-east of Duki, and at the south-eastern entrance to the Zhob Valley, will be the base for the collection of supplies after the troops have entered the valley.

SELECTED ARTICLES.

INDIAN REPRESENTATION IN PARLIAMENT.

IN an article dealing with the proposal to set up a native of India as a candidate for a seat in the House of Commons, the Daily Telegraph says:—

"One of the strangest announcements which have reached this country for some time past is conveyed in the intelligence that a native of India seriously proposes to offer himself for election by an English constituency as a Member of Parliament. No doubt there is nothing whatever that is impossible about such an occurrence. It is the entire novelty of the idea which is at first sight so staggering; but nobody can pretend to assert that, given the mild Hindoo willing to try the experiment, and given a constituency ready to accept him as its fit and proper representative in the great council of the nation, there exists any insurmountable barrier to the realisation of the project.

"In a secular sphere of politics he would, in all probability, appear as a Home Ruler, and imagination shrinks from the idea of a novel recruit added to the forces of Hibernian loquacity and obstruction. For those who know the capabilities of the clever Oriental best will be the last to despise his powers as a debater, a 'talker against time,' or as an orator generally. He is extremely quick to pick up the ways and wiles of those with whom he is brought into contact, and is blessed with a superabundant intellectual ingenuity. If he were to discover fifty-six new modes of plaguing Ministers or of blocking a measure, it would be nothing strange. But by that time we take it that his British constituency would have had quite enough of him. At the next election he would be positively nowhere on the poll, and his seat in Parliament—which, of course, would be below the gangway on the Opposition side of the House—would thenceforward know him no more."

The London Correspondent of the Manchester Courier writing on Friday last says:—

"A contemporary this morning indulges in some speculations as to the consequences of the probable candidature and return of a Hindoo gentleman to the House of Commons as the representative of an English constituency. The suggestion is treated, however, as an absolutely novel one, as if such an idea had never been ventilated before. Persons better acquainted with the inner life and aspirations of Hindooism as represented in this country remember that at least two natives of India have been spoken of on former occasions as candidates for the Imperial Legislature, and one of them at least, the Rajah Rampal Sing, in connection with a particular constituency in the North of England. The gentleman who is now referred to as likely to contest an English borough at the first convenient opportunity is evidently that eloquent champion of his fellow-countrymen, Mr. Lalmohun Ghose, who is credited with designs upon the borough of Finsbury. The absence of absolute novelty in such an idea is further accredited by the circumstance that Mr. Ghose left India at the last general election for the purpose of offering himself to somebody or another of British electors, and was only prevented from pressing his claims by the speed with which the election business was carried on and completed. The speculation of the Daily Telegraph as to the Conservative or Liberal politics of a possible Hindoo legislator at St. Stephen's I think I may presume to answer. The very presence of a Hindoo in England is a proof of his radicalism in relation to the social and religious institutions of his own country, and from my own observation he is pretty sure to carry the same habit and tendency of mind into the still wider sphere of Imperial politics."

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.

THE Saturday Review is of opinion that whether the formal delimitation of the Afghan frontier will make the condition of things worse or not, it will certainly make it other than it has been heretofore. It will put an end to those recurring military necessities of "chastisement" which are always, according to Russia, "compelling" her to advance; but it will create in their stead an unfailing crop of political difficulties which can be made at will. In other words, when the peaceful subjects of the Czar, on the west and north-west of Afghanistan, are harassed by the Ameer's marauding "subjects," Russia will not at once "chastise" the wrong-doers and seize their country, but she will make "representations" to the Ameer. That is to say, she will be able at pleasure to manufacture a cause of quarrel with Abdur Rahman personally, instead of having to proceed against offenders whose allegiance to him is only nominal, and whose chastisement, therefore, even to the appropriation of what was only by courtesy "his" territory, he could have afforded to view with equanimity. It is this new power of personal remedy against himself which Abdur Rahman of course fears; whether England has any reason to be pleased at having created it is a question which answers itself.

FOREIGN OFFICERS' VIEWS ON THE NATIVE ARMY.

It may be remembered that during the last cold weather some distinguished Russian officers made a tour through this country, and about the same time a distinguished German officer also visited India. Naturally one of the special objects of their attention was the native army, and we have pretty good authority for saying that all these officers expressed themselves somewhat astonished at the physique of the men, their superior armament, their excellent clothing, and the comfortable accommodation in their lines. The Russian officers in particular admitted that before their arrival in this country they had always heard the native army described as badly armed, wretchedly clothed, men with feeble constitutions, unable to endure fatigue or shoot straight, and with little or no courage. It was at Agra that they were first undeceived as to the condition of the native army, especially in the matter of shooting, as they there witnessed the target practice of the 29th Native Infantry, as well as the way that regiment went through their work on parade. They candidly admitted that as regards shooting the men of their own army could not hold a candle to these Punjabis. They also admitted the great intelligence which the men displayed at their work, and that they were possessed of fine physique and excellent weapons. At the same station they also saw the 14th Sikhs, and though giving a preference to the Punjab Regiment, which last year was the best shooting regiment in the native army, they expressed almost as much admiration for the Sikhs, and were equally struck by their target practice.

From Bengal, however, our foreign visitors went on to Madras, and though we have not heard what opinion they expressed as to the physique or shooting capacities of the Madras Sepoys, though the latter cannot be had, when one of them for two years in succession carried off the Commander-in-Chief's prize as the best shot amongst the native army, we believe that they expressed considerable astonishment as to the way in which the Madras army is at present officered. They must naturally have been astonished to see elderly men with the rank of brevet colonel doing duty as second-in-command and wing commanders in native regiments, a position which, according to their ideas, as well as those of most military men, ought to be filled by captains and lieutenants. Perhaps the height of astonishment was reached when one of the officers, who was the guest of an old colonel, saw his host one evening put on his war paint for the purpose of inspecting the regimental guards, which consisted, generally, of half-a-dozen men each. The colonel was what is now known in the native army, not only in Madras but also in Bengal, as "Regimental British officer of the week," part of whose duty it is supposed to be to inspect all these guards. As his visitor accompanied the colonel on his rounds for the sake of a walk after dinner, he could not refrain from expressing his astonishment that such a duty should have to be performed by colonels and lieutenant-colonels, whose proper place, he considered, would be in command of regiments, and not doing work which in the British army is never performed by any officer of the rank of lieutenant colonel, except, of course, as field officer of the day with a division or brigade. Certainly, under the late alterations in the construction of regiments in the British service, officers with the rank of major, but who are more familiarly known as "mud majors," not being allowed to appear mounted on parade, have to take their turn of duty as regimental captain of the day, but previously no officer of a higher rank than a captain was ever appointed to such a duty. It was only a few days ago that we noticed that Sir Frederick Roberts had devised a scheme for increasing the facilities of retirement amongst the senior officers of the Madras army, and the state of things which we have noticed above certainly shows that some steps have become necessary to avoid the continuance of a state of affairs which has rendered it necessary for colonels and lieutenant-colonels to perform the duties of subaltern officers, and to make the Madras army the laughing stock of foreign officers.—Englishman.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

A EUROPEAN LOCAL ARMY.

THE necessity of preparing India for the encroachments of Russia appears to have brought the great question of a local European Army into public discussion again. We may even go further and say that there is every prospect of the question of a local army being soon forced upon the military authorities at home. Everyone knows that it is not really doubt as to the efficiency or discipline of a local European army that causes the British Government to be so much opposed to the idea of one, but the policy of all Ministers, which is, to keep up a large portion of the English Army at India's expense. The plea of inefficiency is, indeed, absurd, as the familiar example of the Madras Fusiliers can testify. We apprehend that even Lord Wolseley would be glad in his next war to have some thousands of such well-seasoned veteran soldiers as served the East India Company under a twenty-one years' engagement. As to the so-called "European Mutiny," of which so much is made by the opponents of the proposed measure, the affair was simply an act of insubordination on the part of some newly-raised levies, who could not understand the terms of their engagement. In discussing the plan of a local European army, however, we must not assume, with the projectors of all the schemes for such a force, that a European local army composed of men like those of the old Company's army is to be had for the asking. On the contrary, we must rather suppose that the Government of India would have great difficulty in enlisting 50,000 men for ordinary Indian service. In war time, indeed, the Government would find plenty of adventurous spirits only too eager to enlist; but then these are not born soldiers, and it would require time in these days of rifle instruction to make them so. The condition of things which rendered the old Company's standard popular has in truth passed away. First, there is no more of "India" left to conquer, and no more prize money to be gained. Secondly, emigration takes away all the adventurous spirits among the lower classes that used to flock to India before emigration was general. Thirdly, wages are so good at home, in America, and in the Colonies, that men will not enlist for soldier's pay, and least of all for soldiering in India, where the climate renders life tedious in time of peace. If the Government of India wanted to raise a long service army—and none other would suit them—we may depend upon it that they would have to pay handsomely for one. Indeed we should not wonder if the real difficulty of returning to the old local European army were mainly of a financial nature. Even British troops have to be heavily paid for serving in India—vide the £10 bounty the other day,—and yet their service in the country is short, and may not extend, perhaps, over two or three years. A local army man would have to serve in India continuously for twenty years, or for fifteen at the least; and yet the projectors of local European army schemes imagine a man of that requirement would be only too eager to jump at local army service, when he is hardly to be had at any price for the general service of the British Army. It appears to us that before the Government of India could catch a good stalwart man, such as would give promise of being able to stand fifteen or twenty years of Indian service—"boys" would be a mere loss of money and material—they would have to pay as much as the working man can earn at home, and about as much more for Indian exile and military servitude. Nothing can be more preposterous than to assume—as one projector does—that there are "thousands of fine young men in the Colonies" eager for Indian Service on its present lines. The young men may be there, indeed, loafing around, but even the loafer knows his military value in these days, and, what is more, means to have it.

There is no denying that the existing system of garrisoning India is most unsatisfactory. Its cost to India is very great; and the country has not even the satisfaction of knowing that she will have that garrison at the time when she most urgently needs it. It is ridiculous and wasteful that so many of her garrison should be so constantly on the seas between England and India, and the "boys" and "weeds" that are so often enlisted now are manifestly unsuited to the service and the climate. All this makes dead loss to India. But it may be doubted whether a local European army would not cost the Government of India even more money than the present one. For this is certain, that good, serviceable men will not enlist for Indian service, unless the Government of India is prepared to largely outbid the employers of labour at home and abroad. The Government of India ought to make the most of the good and cheap food for powder it has at hand. The Goorkhas and Sikhs are really fine military material, and if regiments of them were fully officered by Europeans, they ought to be second only to British soldiers, and certainly superior to Russian Cossack riftruff. It is a question, too, whether we could not turn Zulus and other African races—the Queen's subjects—into useful war material. Of course, they could not entirely replace the British garrison of India, but they might do so to the extent of some thousands of men. Certainly a European army would be preferable; but in considering one it is absolutely necessary to remember the effects of emigration and of higher wages on the population at home, and also changes which have occurred in those greatest of our recruiting fields, Ireland and Scotland. In Ireland emigration has cleared out thousands, and agitation and Fenianism have checked recruiting. In Scotland thousands have had to make room for deer and grouse, and there is no longer in either country a poor and hardy population to enlist from. The difficulty of recruiting, in fact, grows greater daily, and the Government of India, like others, will have to face it.—Madras Times.

A FAMILY PARTY FOR EGYPT.

The Indian Daily News thinks the appointment of Lord Northbrook to go as High Commissioner for England to Egypt is another mistake of the Government. Lord Northbrook is a man whose reputation rests upon the one speech he made upon Army Reform, at the time when he held the post of Under-Secretary for War. His administration of the Admiralty has not given satisfaction to the service or the country. His career in India showed him to be a doctrinaire, uncertain, unsympathetic, and given to follow fads. Probably, nothing, in the history of any Oriental country, can equal for theatrical folly his amazing blunder of a pretence of trying Mulhar Rao Gaekwar by a court half composed of his peers. A man who could trifle with England's dignity in that most lamentable way is not a man to do England great service. In fact, since Lord Northbrook has been at the Admiralty, the major portion of his time has been spent in leading his friend and some-time colleague, Lord Ripon, from blunder to blunder, until at this moment no greater failure than the present Viceroy can be imagined. Indeed, under the advice and guidance of Lord Northbrook, Lord Ripon is more than a failure; he is a mischief. He has stirred up old antipathies and created new ones, divided class from class, and sown broadcast the seeds of agitation, based upon a dislike to everything English. It will be years before Englishmen and natives again stand shoulder to shoulder for the good of India, as they stood on the day Lord Ripon landed in this country, when Englishman and native, moved by a common impulse of generosity and fairness, insisted that his faith should be no bar to his having a fair trial as an administrator, and should be no bar to his right to render service to his country. Lord Northbrook, when in India, was presumed to be under the influence of his private secretary, Major Evelyn Baring. He goes now to Egypt under the same influence; and after Egypt has been under the rule of Sir Evelyn Baring for many months, it is not likely the Earl of Northbrook, the chief of the Barings, will see anything to the discredit of Sir Evelyn's arrangements. The appointment has too much the appearance of a family arrangement to provoke any large share of public confidence. What can Lord Northbrook do that Sir Evelyn Baring might not do? What can he discover that Sir Evelyn Baring ought not to know already? The only possible thing he could do is to receive power from the Khedive to enable England to assume the direct administration of the country. For anything else his mission is a pure superfluity of hesitation which will deceive no one; for England, as Mr. Gladstone himself admits, has recovered her liberty of action as regards Egypt, and her duty towards that country is as simple and clear as any duty could possibly be.

The Indian Statesman says:—"The announcement that Lord Northbrook is the 'eminent statesman' who is to undertake the solution of all difficulties in Egypt will be received with little enthusiasm in India. Lord Northbrook's abilities were very fairly gauged during his Viceroyalty; and if mere administrative power were our want in Egypt at this crisis, Lord Northbrook might succeed. What has to be encountered and surmounted is a conjuncture of difficulties of an order to tax the highest qualities of statesmanship, and we reasonably doubt if Lord Northbrook possesses them. Major Baring was the real Viceroy of India while Lord Northbrook reigned, and we can regard this arrangement only as intended to give dignity and weight to Sir Evelyn Baring's rule in the eyes of Europe."

THE EXODUS TO SIMLA.

[Indian Statesman.]

MAY we venture to ask the Home Public to read the following letter from Simla, which reached us yesterday:—

"In support of the statement made by Allen's Indian Mail that the annual exodus to the hills has been the cause of much suffering to the clerks and subordinates, I should like to make a few observations. The truth is, it is almost penal servitude for these poor clerks who have to live there. They are away from their homes, families, and friends, and like convicts are brought to these hills, though only bound in silver chains. This observation certainly has a great deal of truth in it; they are mostly natives of Bengal, and are forced to come to the borders of Thibet, leaving their friends and relatives, and most of them their wives and children in Calcutta. The place is uncongenial to them, the climate detrimental to their health, every circumstance opposed to their peculiar habits and their caste. The hills certainly suit Englishmen who are habituated to such climates, but it goes very hard with those who are born and bred up in the tropical climate of Bengal. They are unaccustomed in the first place to wear such warm clothing as they have to do here, and if they show any laxity in this respect owing to their national habit of wearing dhooties and chudders for which they have an ardent liking from infancy, they are pretty sure to catch cold, pneumonia, erysipelas, or some other of the diseases which are so prevalent in Simla. The station is also greatly overcrowded at present. And unfortunately for them, it is very difficult to get good medical advice without heavy charges, which are not within the means of most of them. This is the reason, I think, why of late there has been so much mortality among the native residents. Again, the natives are generally habituated to use freely water for bathing, &c., but here there is at times so much scarcity, that they have either to suffer the want of it, or buy at heavy charges, sometimes amounting to five or six annas a mussuck of unclean water from the bowlies. The bhistles of the Englishmen have mainly the monopoly of the hydrants; and even for using what they do, Mr. Goad of the local municipality, rebukes them for 'wasting so much water.'

Then the houses are quite jammed together in a filthy, unwholesome part of the town in no respect superior to Burra Bazaar in Calcutta, and in some cases even worse, so much so that it is doubtful whether most of the houses have ever tasted pure air in this sanitarium, the rest of the town being occupied by spacious, airy, well-ventilated, and flower-gardened bungalows for the Sahablogues. Much is now being said indeed, of the dirty manner of living by the Bengalee Babors in Baboo Chummeries. I do not know how and where they are to live otherwise. It may be that some of them save something out of what they are paid for house rent, which they should not, but it should also be known that there are others who have to pay more than they get, in order to get proper accommodation.

Then the living is so much dearer. Articles of food, such as fruit, vegetables, rice, milk, tea, are immeasurably dearer than in the plains; for instance, a seer of vegetable leaf sells at eight annas; Bryant and May's matches sell for an anna a box, and other things at double their price. I do not know how poor clerks upon Rs. 20 or 30 can meet their expenses, especially those who have to remain here permanently without extra allowances. I doubt even if those that can get some remuneration could manage well with their large families and children, for a single suit of ordinary warm clothing can hardly be got for less than Rs. 15. I of course do not approve of spending large sums of public money in paying allowances, for the sake of the mere pleasure trips of the high officials; but it is certainly very condemnatory on the part of the Government that when it pays large allowances to these well paid English officers for bringing, as you well say, a gigantic rear column of women and children, servants and bearers, bhistes and sweepers, dhobies and ayaks, and horse and cattle, and what not, too numerous to count, it will not carefully look at the wants of many who draw very small pay, and are compelled to reside here throughout the year. But of all, the hardships seem to be too great for those poor men who are dragged here by the heads of their offices, without paying them any hill allowances, their offices coming up without the sanction of the Government.

The difficulty of the clerks is no less in educating their children here. The English schools are closed to them; the mode of training imparted in the Local Government school does not suit them, and although they have of late established a small infant school of their own, its stability is doubtful, there being no adequate funds to maintain a sufficient staff of teachers. The affliction of those who are forced to stay here permanently seems to know no bounds. Imagine whether it is not a severe hardship to oblige these poor Bengalee clerks to shiver in the extreme cold of the Himalayan winter, while the heads of these officers who are Englishmen, and accustomed to such climates, go down to the plains under the pretence of inspection tours to avoid this very cold, and to enjoy shooting, racing, and pleasant excursions in the mild climate of the plains. What can they possibly do by making inspections four months of the year, while the rest they spend on the heights of the Himalayas? The clerks are not allowed to take leave during the winter months, and if they want to go down they are made to do so during the hottest months, and even that in some offices is not allowed, unless they apply three months previously. One has to go down suddenly to see his dying father or mother, and how could he know the fact three months previously? On such urgent occasions if allowed leave, they have either to go on half-pay, or to procure a substitute for their post. I know an instance in which the mother of a poor clerk having suddenly died in the plains, the man applied for a few days' leave to go home to his sorrowing family; but the head of the department said he could allow him to go only if he got a substitute from the plains, and paid his travelling allowances from his own pocket. This man does not give a single cowrie as extra allowance, as he belongs to one of those offices which come up here by private arrangement.

As you take an interest in these poor men, I address this letter to you, trusting the authorities will take measures to redress their grievances.

We appeal to the entire community whether the state of things depicted in this letter, which we believe to be absolutely true, ought to endure? We have asked the Viceroy to read the letter, and we appeal earnestly to him to redress the heavy injustice with which these men are treated. If the "establishments" must go to the hills, ordinary right feeling demands, and the simplest justice demands, that the subordinates who suffer so much therefrom should have their pay and allowances remodelled. We hope that in a case of this kind at least, our contemporaries will lay aside all jealousies, and assist us in appealing for redress of the wrong which these poor men are suffering, only that a score or two of very highly-paid English officials may escape the discomfort of a few months' heat in Calcutta.

THE PROPOSED OCTROI DUTY IN CALCUTTA.

IN certain discussions on the proposed levy of the octroi in Calcutta it will have been noticed that much use has been made of the old and now somewhat flabby and worn out bogey of direct taxation. Among other advantages claimed for an octroi is that it is an indirect impost, that is to say, were that system introduced, the process of local taxation would be found so easy and simple that the happy citizens of Calcutta would be unaware that the rupees were being extracted from his pockets. He would see Calcutta gradually converted into Hygieia, its bastis abolished, and its smells extinct, and all the time would be unconscious that it was he himself and none other who was paying the money for these desirable results. Such are the virtues of indirect taxation. With them should be contrasted the brutal procedure of the direct method, which, as it were, grasps the unfortunate but wealthy native householder by the throat, and demands of him his money, or threatens to sell him up. The aspect of many things, it is known, depends much on the point of view from which you look at it. There are varieties of direct taxation. The direct taxation of the Imperial sort which affects the whole country is one, and direct taxation of the local sort which affects only an isolated community is another. There are certain well known and well worn objections to the imposition of a direct tax in this country such as an income tax. We need not enter upon them here, but we may remark that the native population of India have really no reason to complain of a tax of this character as they do on the score that any system of direct taxation is exotic and foreign to the ideas of the people. Direct taxation has been from time immemorial a usual part of the fiscal system of the country, and to this day, under the name of land revenue, a large portion of the public receipts are the proceeds of direct taxation. Native States, again, do not hesitate to raise revenue by means of direct taxes, and apparently do not find the difficulties in the matter which are said to be peculiar to British India. But, as we have said, direct taxes for imperial purposes are not to be confounded with direct taxes levied for municipal funds. The objections, such as they are, to the former, do not apply to the latter. The collection of a tax is under a stricter check in a town than in a mufasal, where as a whole the population may be regarded as less intelligent, and so possessed of a feebleness of comprehension of their rights, and where the conduct of authority is subjected to a less keen publicity. Again, and this is perhaps the prime distinction, the taxpayer in the mufasal is not in a position as a rule to perceive the purpose to which his contributions are put; his money goes from him, but he obtains no return of a direct, perceptible kind. It is different with the ratepayer. He sees, though when he is subjected to a Municipality like that which rules Calcutta, this may not always be true—some visible return for the money taken from him. Streets are improved and cleaned, a water supply is provided, the sanitation is attended to. He may not comprehend altogether the advantage of such things, and he may even disapprove of some of them, but he perceives that some definite object is produced out of the taxes which he has to pay, which we may presume is a lesson in political economy not without its consolation. His frame of mind is likely to be one of greater satisfaction with the ordering of things than is probably the frame of mind of his fellow taxpayer in the mufasal, to whom no concrete return is vouchsafed for the money he pays.—Englishman.

THE "INDIAN STATESMAN" AND THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

THE Calcutta Gazette of Wednesday contained the "resolution," as it is called, of the Local Government upon the report sent in by the Commissioner of Bhagulpore, upon the condition of that "division" of the provinces during the last official year, 1883-84, and of its administration by himself and his district officers. Our readers are aware, we suppose, that every district magistrate has to send in an annual report of his administration to the Commissioner of his division, and that the Commissioner in forwarding these reports to the Local Government, is expected to review them, and to accompany the review with an account of his own work as Commissioner during the year. Many of these reports are very able and of great interest, but their great bulk in general prevents the public ever seeing them. All that the public ever here about them is conveyed in what is called the "resolution" of Government upon them, in the official Gazette. This resolution is ordinarily written by one of the secretaries, and adopted by the Lieutenant Governor almost as a matter of course, unless some object of special interest is commanding attention at the time. It was mainly upon these district and divisional—of which the Government must have received some twelve hundred in the last twenty years—that Mr. Mackenzie fell back, when the opponents of the Rent Bill complained that the measure had been brought forward without inquiry into the necessity of such a measure, or demand for it of any kind. The complaint was just, and the use made of the reports very unjustifiable, when a few pages of carefully selected extracts out of thousands were brought forward, after the measure had been framed, as proof that inquiry had been made and evidence taken. We notice the resolution in Wednesday's Gazette, however, that we may direct attention to the following passage in the Commissioner's report, and the remarks of the Government thereon:—

"The relations between creditors and debtors cannot be said to be satisfactory. Bonds are executed at usurious rates of interest. The ordinary prevailing rate for small debts is 4½ or 6 pies per rupee per month, which means about 25 per cent. per annum. Compound interest is also levied. As a necessary consequence of the above state of affairs, the landowners are impoverished to an extreme degree, and the mahajuns flourish. I can hardly name a couple of men from among the landed aristocracy who are entirely free from debt."

Such is the statement of the Commissioner, and as this general impoverishment of the landed aristocracy—in other words, of the zemindar class, is not what the Local Government particularly wants to see established, the resolution proceeds to find fault with the Commissioner's inference that it is the usurious rates of interest which ruin the zemindar, and make the mahajun flourish.

"Capital invested in loans to landholders and small agriculturists no doubt earns a much higher rate of interest than capital invested in ordinary mercantile business. At the same time, the security offered is often bad, the borrowers are mostly improvident, and the prospects of the crop on which in the last resort the recovery of the loan depends are always uncertain. The combined operation of these causes has established a high customary rate of interest, which can only be reduced in the case of the larger landowners by their adopting a more reasonable standard of living, and in the case of ordinary cultivators by securing to them the right to hold their lands undisturbed so long as they pay a fair rent for it."

The Commissioner had said nothing about the general condition of the "ordinary cultivator;" it is the generally impoverished condition of the zemindars which moved his concern. So impoverished are they, he says, that he could "hardly name a couple of men from among the landed aristocracy who are entirely free from debt." The almost cynical comment upon this condition of things is—that they should "adopt a more reasonable standard of living," while the "ordinary cultivator" or ryot is brought forward as a peculiar portefeuille of the Secretariat, and the zemindar warned not to interfere with him. It is the gratuitousness of these comments and the strong bias which they show, that are so instructive to us in dealing with this Tenancy Bill. It is but too clear that the zemindar, let his circumstances be what they may, has nothing to expect from the local Secretariat, when the mildest suggestion of the district officer that they are generally impoverished and in distress, is met only with a sneer at their standard of living as unjustifiable in their circumstances.

THE BOMBAY HYDRAULIC LIFT.

THE Bombay Government cannot, perhaps, do better than make over their white elephant, the Hog Island Hydraulic Lift, to the P. and O. Company, even at the cost of adding another 1½ lakh of rupees to the large sums of money already sunk on it. We presume the extra expenditure thus estimated includes the outlay that will be incurred by removing the lift to a more accessible sight. At present the valuable machinery is simply falling into decay from disuse, and this has been its position ever since it was erected. The P. and O. Company have a graving dock of their own at Mazagon, but it has, perhaps, been found unequal to the larger class of new steamers now being built for the mail service between London and Bombay. The first cost of the lift was £350,000, and since it was erected in 1872, the Government have spent a good deal more money on its maintenance, without reaping much benefit. When used, as it was now and then, it has been found to work satisfactorily but practically the huge and costly machine has hitherto proved useless, because of its distance from the Dockyard, whence labour had to be drawn, and the shipping anchorage. Hog Island, the site chosen for it, is at the further end of the harbour, beyond Elephanta. If the Government can secure an arrangement by which the warships can be overhauled and repaired, whenever necessary, at Bombay by a first outlay of Rs. 1,20,000 on the Lift, and at the same time get rid of the maintenance of what has never been, and is never likely to be, anything but a white elephant on their hands it seems to us that they will make a good bargain. Some arrangement for docking and repairing the larger ships of the East Indian Squadron at a point nearer to their sphere of work than Malta, is very necessary.—London Daily News.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(Bombay Government Gazette, August 12)

Colonel F. P. Fortescue, of the Bombay Staff Corps, is granted the temporary rank of Brigadier General, whilst officiating in command of the Aden brigade.

It has been ruled that a regimental staff officer, other than the quartermaster of a native regiment, is not eligible to hold the appointment of regimental transport officer.

First Class Veterinary Surgeon B. L. Glover, as assistant superintendent, horse breeding operations, N. W. P. and Rajputana, has proceeded to England on ninety days' privilege leave, the duties of his office being conducted by Veterinary Surgeon J. A. Nunn, in addition to his duties.

The Commander-in-Chief has ordered that when artillery are opened with shroffs, a pass-book is to be retained in the possession of the battery commander, and produced at inspection of cash balances, when the shroff will be required to sign the pass-book for the amount shown therein. Commanding officers will, however, be responsible for the money.

The following officers have been admitted into the Bombay Staff Corps:—Lieutenant Robert Southey, of the 2nd Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers, officiating Wing Officer, 12th N.I.; Lieutenant Percy Holland, of the 2nd Battalion Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, officiating Wing Officer, 5th N.I.; and Lieutenant Charles Lewes Hamilton Cox, of the 2nd Battalion Middlesex Regiment, officiating Wing Officer, 5th Regiment N.I.

The Government of India approve of the allotment of the batteries and regiments coming to India during the next trooping season as follows:—T Battery, 1st Brigade, R.A., Kirkee; U Battery, 1st Brigade, R.A., Kamptee; N-1 Battery, Eastern Division, R.A., Murree Hills; No. 1 Battery, London Division, R.A., Campellpore; 3rd Dragoon Guards, Muttra; 2nd Highland Light Infantry, Dagshui; 1st East Surrey Regiment, Canikhet; 2nd Royal Irish Regiment, Subathu, Jutogh.

Lieutenant Colonel Mallaby, of the Bombay Staff Corps, became entitled to his Colonel's allowance on the 3rd inst. Colonel Mallaby entered the service thirty-eight years ago, his first commission being dated August 3, 1846. He became Lieutenant in May 1850, and was promoted to be captain July 1, 1860. He attained his majority in 1866, and six years later he became a lieutenant colonel, being promoted to a colonelcy in 1877. He is one of the few officers of the Bombay Army qualified for the Judge Advocate General's Department. He is also in the enjoyment of a pension for distinguished and meritorious conduct.

Further details regarding the limitation of appointments in the Army Secretariat and Departments have reached the Pioneer. The higher appointments brought under the Secretary and Deputy Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department; the Accountant General in the Military Department; the Military Secretaries of Madras and Bombay; the Commissioners General of the three Presidencies; the three Judge Advocates General; the Superintendent of Horse breeding Operations; the Director of Army Remount Operations. All the above are limited to five years, with the condition that they must be vacated on succession to Colonel's allowance. Another class of appointments will be vacated on promotion to General. This includes the Deputy Judge Advocate General of Bengal; the Deputy Commissioners General of the three presidencies; the Military Secretary, Punjab; the Superintendents of Army Clothing and of Remount Depots, and others. A third class includes those appointments of which the incumbents will continue to be borne seconded on the strength of their regiments, and comprises amongst others the Assistant Secretary in the Military Department, the Deputy Accountant General, and the officers of the Transport Department in the three presidencies. Officers in the Accounts, Commissariat, and Judge Advocate General's Department, except in the few superior posts which fall under the rules above, will not come under the five years' rule, but will have to vacate their appointments either on succession to Colonel's allowances or promotion to Major General, or on attaining the age of fifty-two. By way of regard for vested interests, an officer who held before Jan. 1 last any post of unlimited tenure which is now reduced, will be allowed seven years from the date of appointment, or such further extension, not exceeding nine years tenure in all, as will enable him to complete thirty-two years service.

The Evening News says:—One would have thought that on so critical a question as that of the Russo-Afghan frontier the Government would have taken every step to secure the best men available. The two chief authorities, however, who have made Central Asia a life study have been deliberately passed over. Sir Charles Macgregor, who has travelled over the country where the line of frontier is to run, and has carefully surveyed it with an eye for strategical combinations second to none in our service, is carefully excluded, together with Mr. Charles Marvin, whose wonderful knowledge of the Central Asian problem is unique and world renowned.

The Euryalus visited Mauritius about the middle of last month, and on the 17th there was a dinner at Reduit given by the Governor in honour of Sir W. Hewett. One of the gentlemen present, proposed the health of the Governor, as the only ruler who has taken to heart the interests of the Mauritius, or as the lawyers would say words to that effect; whereupon Sir William Hewett rose and took exception to the statement coupled with other names, he declared that Sir Henry Barkly had striven earnestly to do his duty to all classes. The matter seems to have caused some conversation at Port Louis.

In compliance with the request of the Secretary of State, that the Comptroller General would supply him with a statement of the expenditure incurred on account of the exodus of the headquarters of the Government to the hills for the last five years, a circular has been issued directing the various departments under the Indian Government to send in their respective accounts under that head to the Account Department for consolidation and submission to the Indian Council.

As a minor illustration of the mischief of the hills, we note that Mr. Elliott, chief commissioner of Assam in reviewing the report of the sanitary commissioner of that province for the year 1883, remarks that Dr. Clarke "remained at Shillong from April to October—a practice which the chief commissioner trusts his successor will not imitate, as it hardly allows sufficient time for the performance of the civil duties which attach to the office of sanitary commissioner."

We are glad to see that the military authorities have seriously taken up the question of allowing soldiers to keep ball ammunition in their possession, and have called for reports from commanding officers on the subject. We shall undoubtedly hear of very many fewer cases of murder by soldiers if the twenty cartridges per man which they are permitted to keep by them at present are taken out of their hands, and kept in company arsenals under lock and key.

The rainfall in Coorg this season is extremely backward. The quantity gauged at Mercara up to the 27th July was only 39.11 inches, as compared to 82.82 inches at the same date last year, and 143.65 inches for the corresponding period of 1882. In Mysore, too, so far there has been a serious failure of the rains. A Madras paper, with reference to these districts, says "the present monsoon is an exact ditto of the one that preceded the great famine."

Plans are now being executed to build another large public office on the site of the old opium godowns in Clive-street, between the Post Office and the East Indian Railway House, to accommodate the Offices for Stamps and Stationary and the Calcutta Collectorate. The latter was to have been housed in the new Military Accountant Offices, but now that the building has been completed, it is found that the accommodation is insufficient.

PURE INDIAN TEAS.—Two kinds (both very good), at 25 od. and 25.6 p. per lb., are sold at the Pure India Tea Depot, Ennerdale-road, Richmond. The superintendent (Lieut. Col. MONEY, the Author of the standard work and prize-essay on "Tea Cultivation and Manufacture in India"), who is a large producer, sells at the above low prices 25 per cent. below usual ones) because no middleman's profits are incurred. D. tails Post Free. Address, Manager, as above.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal left Calcutta on the 4th ult., on a visit to Jessore and Khoulna. Replying to an address at the former place on the 5th ult., his Honour denied that he was hostile to Local Self-Government.

At the Calcutta High Court on the 7th ult. an application was made on behalf of the Rev. It has, the Pioneer understands, been practically settled that H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught will leave the Meerut command next March.

The late heavy rains did some damage to the Umritsa-Patnahkot Railway. A break occurred at a point near Sultanpur, but it is now repaired.

Brckland, its member and secretary.

The Englishman says:—Mr. Atkins, the representative of the railway and other European working men in this country, who went to England to place the true state of facts regarding the Ilbert Bill before the British public, in which, as well as in his arguments with Lord Kimberley, he proves completely successful, has returned to India. We understand that the Defence Association propose to make some recognition of the important services that he has rendered to the good cause.

An address was presented by the students, and several speeches were delivered expressing pleasure at Mr. Wilson's return to his duties at the institution.

No reply has yet been received from the Amir in reference to the escort and safe conduct for the Indian portion of the Afghan Frontier Delimitation Commission.

It is believed that the Amir is afraid to give a safe conduct, lest he should be held responsible for any accident that might occur.

Probably the Commission and escort will go via Biluchistan and Persia.

The Zhob Valley expedition is expected to start from Quetta, under General Sir O. Tanner, on September 15. The force will cross the frontier about October 1.

Some fifty people were drowned in the Hoshiarpur district on the 26th ult., by the capsizing of a ferry boat, which was crossing the Sutlej at Tannah Ferry, whilst the river was in flood.

Owing to an unusually heavy rainfall serious floods occurred at Umballa on the 30th ult., doing great damage to house property in and about the cantonments.

A ghastly family tragedy occurred some time ago at Dafa, three marches distant from Kandahar. A Calcutta paper gives the following details:—A man went out one evening to irrigate his fields, leaving his wife alone at home. On returning after dark, he discovered that another man had entered his house. In a fit of rage and jealousy he drew his sword and cut down the intruder: and found out when too late that he had killed his brother. Upon which the Afghan dropped his talwar, and tried to rush out of the house. But the father of the two men, who had posted himself opposite the door with a loaded gun, to shoot the supposed offender if he tried to make his escape, no sooner noticed in the darkness a man bursting from the door, than he fired, and with a true aim. The old man, on discovering that one night had deprived him of both his sons, and that one of them had fallen at his own hands, destroyed himself on the spot.

Lakimpore has experienced hot weather. The prospects of tea are good, and public health is fair.

The prospects of tea are better than when last reported from Cachar, though the outturn is much behind last year. Red spider is diminishing, and blight does not seem to increase.

MADRAS.

It is stated that the Hon. H. S. Thomas contemplates resigning his seat in the Madras Council before the expiration of his tenure of office, and that Mr. Garstin will be appointed to succeed him.

The breach of promise case—Eliza Sherwood, daughter of Captain Sherwood, of the Army Schools, versus Lieutenant King, of the 33rd Madras Native Infantry—came on for the settlement of issues on Tuesday, the 5th ult. at the Civil Court of Bangalore. The damages were laid at £7,000. The defence denied the promise of marriage, and alleged general misconduct against the plaintiff, who is 15 years old. The case was adjourned for final hearing to the 9th inst.

The election of four European municipal commissioners for Bangalore was held on Saturday, the 10th ult. The electors polled freely, and a good deal of interest was exhibited in the result of the contest.

Newab Mooneer-ool-Mulk, Revenue Minister of Hyderabad, reached Ootacamund on the 3rd ult.

A match at football was played on the island at Madras on the 5th ult. between the Madras and Doverton Clubs. It resulted in the victory of the former.

The Madras Mail is glad to be able to announce that the Madras Government has resolved to abandon the project of removing the Military Accounts Offices from Fort St. George into the godowns of the Fort at Bangalore.

The following extract from a Tuticorin circular, dated 1st ult., has been placed at our disposal:—"Our market has been disorganised during the last day or two owing to the loss by fire at Volkart's United Press Company, Limited, where cotton and premises to the extent of two lakhs are said to have been destroyed."—Times of India.

The Times in one of its money articles recently stated that the Oriental Bank would probably use £20,000 through the transactions of its Madras office. The Madras Mail states that the Times is misinformed as to the extent of the probable loss. In connection with the bank's transactions with Messrs. M. Subapathy Chetty and Co., there will be no greater loss than Rs. 60,000, and on another account there may, at the outside, assuming the worst, be a loss of Rs. 90,000, so in all the local branches stands to lose Rs. 1,50,000, or, say £12,000.

At the Madras Criminal Sessions on Thursday the 7th ult. a Hindu was found guilty of theft, and having admitted to six previous convictions the Judge sentenced him to six years' rigorous imprisonment. The prisoner said he had no parents, and therefore there was nobody to take care of him. He told his lordship that he would lead an honest life if his lordship would give him Rs. 1,000, and direct somebody to take care of him. Evidently the prisoner is of Baky Shimp's opinion that it is "so easy to be good on ten thousand a year."

At the Madras Criminal Sessions on the 5th ultimo, a native pleaded guilty to a charge of theft, and being an old offender was sentenced to six years' rigorous imprisonment. After sentence had been passed the following curious dialogue ensued between the judge and the prisoner:—The prisoner said he had a favour to ask his lordship. His Lordship: What is it? Prisoner: Give me one year more and make it seven years' transportation. His Lordship: No, you will have to stay here. The prisoner said he had tried to live under the English Government honestly as well as by robbing, and has failed; he would hang himself. His Lordship suggested that prisoner should try to live honestly. The prisoner as an old hand doubtless knew the difference between imprisonment in India and transportation to the Andamans.

BOMBAY.

At the Bombay Insolvency Court, on the 10th ult., Mr. Justice Scott, the commissioner, gave judgment in the matter of the insolvency of Major General Hewett, late Sheriff of Bombay. The insolvent's discharge was postponed for one year, and the protection of the court was withheld during six months of the period.

Colonel Lockhart sailed from Bombay on the 10th ult. for Peking. He has gone on a mission in connection with the captive crew of the Nisero.

The Supreme Government has addressed the Bombay Government on the subject of the proposed International Exhibition, suggesting the desirability of its not being held in the same year as the Indian and Colonial Exhibition in London; and the local Government has issued a resolution, pointing out that it had already been determined to postpone the Bombay Exhibition from the cold weather of 1885-86.

The subscriptions to the guarantee fund of the Bombay International Exhibition, exclusive of the one lakh promised by the Municipal Corporation, now amount to Rs. 14,36,300. It is expected that the Fund will reach twenty-two or twenty-three lakhs altogether.

H. E. the Governor, replying to an address from the people of Poona on the 10th ult., with respect to the establishment of a high school for girls, said Government fully recognised the claims of women for assistance on the same terms as the men.

The Bombay Government has accepted the resignation of Dr. Roland Blaney and Dr. Pesikaka, honorary assistant surgeons of the Goculdas Tejral Hospital. Dr. Hojel has applied to Government for sanction to institute proceedings against Dr. Blaney for defamation. The latter has withdrawn his letter to the Municipal Corporation.

At the annual meeting of the Karachi Chamber of Commerce last week the usual complaint was made that the interests of the city were being neglected by the Government and the railway companies.

In the suit in the Bombay High Court in which Mr. D. McLauchlan Slater claimed Rs. 23,934 from Premchund Roychund, a broker, for breach of contract in respect of the proposed Oriental Fire Insurance Company, Mr. Justice Hart gave judgment for the plaintiff, awarding all costs, but no damages.

The Bombay Government has issued a resolution reducing the pilotage dues in Bombay by one half in the case of steamers under 1,000 tons burthen, whose masters have obtained the necessary certificate of qualification, and who undertake themselves to pilot their steamers through the outer harbour. The Viceroy has sanctioned the reduction.

BURMA.

An attempt was made to poison a European family at Rangoon on the 3rd ult. The native cook who is suspected of being at the bottom of the affair has absconded.

A Rangoon telegram says that a cyclone travelling from north to south has done some damage to buildings in the interior.

Mr. D. M. Smeaton, settlement secretary, Burma, has left Rangoon, to join his appointment as director of agriculture at Cawnpore.

The official report on the late cyclone at Akyab says the damage to grain and property amounts to fifteen lakhs of rupees, and the loss of life to forty-nine.

A Rangoon telegram, dated the 2nd ult., says:—"Two daring attempts at dacoity were committed near the ice mills by an armed gang. The influx of bad characters has obliged the authorities to prohibit open-air native theatricals in certain parts of the town."

The Arakan paper says that the most remarkable phenomena in connection with the recent cyclone on the Arakan coast were the electric flashes that seemed to fly from tree to tree like short flashes of lightning. After the cyclone the trees are said to have presented the appearance of having been scorched, and thousands of birds lay dead and scattered, whose bodies also seemed scorched.

Some warders had an exciting chase after a convict in Burmah the other day. The man was at work in the stone-breaking shed at Ahlong, when he suddenly ran to the river and jumped in. The guards put out a boat after him, but he was a good swimmer, and got some distance before they came up with him. When the boat came close he dived and tried to capsize it, and was only at last captured from being disabled by a blow with an oar.

The Thayetmyin correspondent of the Rangoon Gazette states the two fortified block-houses at two villages on our eastern frontier are being provisioned with water and stores from Thayetmyin. Each block-house is to take sufficient to last 300 men for six months.

Stock was taken of the valuables of the Dowager Queen of Burmah after her late disgrace. Some 150 lb. of pure gold and a small basket-full of rubies and diamonds were found. But those who knew the rapacious use she made of her influence over the late King for over twenty years, laugh at the smallness of such "savings," and many suspect that the largest portion has been secretly conveyed to the Kin

Woon Mingyee, who is said to be disgusted with the present state of affairs and longing for a change.

Both the official and non-official mind in Burmah is troubled by the "mysterious disappearance" of 200,000 tons of rice. The crop was supposed to be an average good one, and neither the Agricultural Department nor the merchants are able to explain satisfactorily the cause of the deficiency. A correspondent of the Rangoon Gazette, who writes from the station of Allammyo, says that enormous amounts of rice have passed upwards in boats as well as by the Irrawaddy Flotilla steamers into Upper Burmah, whilst in addition the large influx of people from Upper Burmah has greatly increased the rice consumption in the province. This correspondent says that the statistics of rice going up-country by boat are badly kept, and that there is therefore no reliable information of the extent of the exports to Upper Burmah. There is not the least doubt, says another correspondent, that shipments of rice by boat and steamer this year to Upper Burmah have been unprecedentedly large, whilst the number of people coming to the British side from Upper Burmah, and of coolies from India, has also been on a scale never before reached. Although many thousands of these will be rice producers by 1885, they have to be fed in the meanwhile, and have thus decreased the surplus stock available for export to Europe. All rice going to Upper Burmah goes duty free, and hence probably arises the fact that statistics on the frontier have not been kept with that care which prevails at the seaports, where an export duty is levied.

CEYLON.

Colombo, August 2.

Sir Arthur Gordon is showing a good spirit in visiting the outlying districts of the island, especially those in which the food supply for the people is deficient. His Excellency is giving attention to irrigation works, of which there is great need in some directions, and it is hoped that he will see his way to obtain the Secretary of State's permission to raise a small loan for works of such paramount importance and so highly remunerative as these have been shown to be. The large works at Batticaloa, on the East coast, are now yielding 10 per cent. and in a few years with a slight addition to the works they can be made to yield 15 per cent. It is certain we cannot undertake such works from current revenue. The accounts for the first half of the present year just published show a decline of Rs. 35,000 on the corresponding period of last year, but the second half of the year is likely to more than make up the deficiency.

Ten months of our shipping season have elapsed, showing under almost every item of our produce exports a material increase over the same period of last year. Coffee, for instance, is 282,780 cwt., as against 219,271 cwt.; cinnamon, 12,678 bales, against 9,629 bales; coconut oil, 333,056 cwt., against 237,012 cwt. last year; cinchona bark, 9,000,000 lbs. as against 5,500,000 lbs. at the same time in 1883. The total of our increased volume of exports, including tea, which has so largely increased, will, of course, prove a large gain to the resources of the island, notwithstanding low prices for some of our produce.

Tea is now the favourite with our planters, and well it may be, looking to the fact that it can be and is being laid down in London at from 8d. to 9d. per lb. and realises all round from rs. 2d. to rs. 6d. per lb. A very large acreage will be under this new cultivation next year, and in a few years hence our exports of the leaf will assume large proportions. We are by no means apprehensive of the effect of this on the tea market, believing that our quality will ensure a ready sale.

The Ceylon Observer states that the Indian Government is willing to aid the Ceylon Government by advancing the whole cost of the new telegraph cable between India and Ceylon, provided interest is paid at 4 per cent. per annum and the amount repaid within five years from date of laying the cable.

The debts and liabilities of the Ramnuggur Estate, in the district of Oudh, having been discharged, the Lieutenant Governor of Hindustan Provinces has restored the management of the estate to its owner, Thakoor Pirthipal Sing. It is also notified that the debts and liabilities of the Jamu Estate, in the Saktanpore district, having been liquidated, the management of the estate has been restored to Rajah Jaganth Bakhsh Sing.

Major Rind, Officiating Deputy Assistant Commissary General, at Meerut, will probably be put in charge of the Commissariat of Sir Peter Lumsden's party. The survey will be represented by Major Strahan, R.E., Captain St. G. C. Gore, R.E., and Lieutenant the Honourable M. G. Talbot, R.E. The rumour that the Ameer's answer was unfavourable is contradicted at Simla. The answer has not yet arrived.

It is said that the agents of the Maharajah of Shushang contemplate memorialising the Viceroy again on the subject of the heavy loss of revenue sustained by him in consequence of the resumption by Government of the rights to the forests in the Garo Hills. The Maharajah was paid Rs. 1,50,000 as compensation, and signed a release during the administration of Sir Ashley Eden.

Cholera is rife in Tanjore, and the cause—as in Dharwar and some other districts of the Bombay Presidency at present, and as in Calcutta last March and April.—is want of rain. As a Madras paper describes it "the watercourses and wells, owing to the failure hitherto of the monsoon, have run dry, and the people are dependent upon half-dried-up tanks of dirty water, defiled in every way, for drinking purposes."

FRESH EVIDENCE AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.—THE SONTHAL PERGUNNAH'S REPORT.

THE "Annual Report on the Administration of Civil Justice in the Sonthal Pergunnahs for 1883" has been received by the Government of Bengal; and the Lieutenant-Governor's comments upon it are published in a resolution which appears in the Calcutta Gazette for July 23. Both the report itself and the resolution upon it are documents of the highest importance, in view of the light they throw upon Lord Ripon's determination to force on Bengal a revolutionary measure of so-called "reform" in regard to the relations between landlord and tenant.

As all those who take any interest in this most vital question are well aware, one of the most novel and startling of the proposals of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert in the Bengal Tenancy Bill is that which gives to the tenant the right of free sale—the power to transfer his occupancy right to the money-lender or to anyone else who may choose to buy it. This most pernicious proposal has been stuck to by the promoters of the Bill with amazing pertinacity, in defiance of the urgent protests of the whole of the landed interest of Bengal, and indeed of the vast majority of those who have any personal knowledge of the circumstances of the country. The opposition to these proposals has been equally strong on the part of those who resent them as confiscating the just rights of the landlord, and of those who dread their disastrous tendency to reduce the independent ryots of Bengal to the condition of serfs of the money-lenders. Even Mr. Ilbert himself (in Clause 41 of his "Statement of Objects and Reasons") was compelled to admit the possibility of these last-named disastrous consequences arising out of the Bill if it ever became law; but, with that light-hearted recklessness which distinguishes the Radical legislator, Lord Ripon's Government gaily relegates to its successors in office the unpleasant duty of finding out, when the mischief is done, whether some remedy for it can or cannot be devised. And, needless to say, the supporters of Lord Ripon's Government, in less responsible positions, loudly declare that no such mischief is likely to ensue.

Just in the nick of time—when the controversy, as to whether these deplorable results are or are not likely to follow the enactment of the transferability of occupancy-rights—the state of affairs in the Sonthal Pergunnahs, where something of the kind has already been permitted, is brought to light by this report. We will here quote in extenso the clause of Mr. Rivers Thompson's Resolution which bears on this subject:—

"The attempts to restrict the transfer of tenancies by cultivators are stated, however, to have been fruitless. On this point the Deputy Commissioner observes that 'the evil has attained such magnitude, and constitutes such a real danger, that nothing short of the extension of the prohibition against transfers prevailing in the Damin-i-Koh to all Sonthal lands in the district will now cope with it.' An interesting account of the origin of this practice is given by Mr. Oldham in paragraphs 34-44 of his report. Previous to 1878, sales of land by Sonthals, or by mere cultivators, except in one Pergunnah of the Rajmehal subdivision, were unknown, the reason being apparently that in the Damin-i-Koh transfers were prohibited, while in other parts the cultivators were either mere tenants at will, or, if they had rights could find no purchasers. In the year above mentioned, however, Mr. Boxwell, the then Deputy Commissioner, reported that sales of this kind were taking the place of borrowing. A report was called for; all the old officers who were consulted questioned the correctness of the statement, though admitting that the ryot's credit had increased. On this ground interference was deprecated, but in 1881 and 1882 it became known that these sales had largely taken place, and that in many cases the Sonthals were working as labourers on lands on which they had formerly held rights. 'All these changes,' writes Mr. Oldham, 'due to the suddenly enhanced credit, have occurred in the years 1876, all distinguished not only by good harvests, but by prices most favourable to the producers. In the present season, when credit is wanted, there is none, and in my recent tour through Hendue and Passai, I was followed by crowds clamouring for the restoration of the lands, and complaining that they could get no advances. . . . Were the buyers fellow tenants, or even proprietors intent on merging tenancies, there would be nothing to be said. But they are not. They are all either Bengali traders and money-lenders from Beerbhoom and Burdwan, or the far more dangerous class, Bhaghat traders from Bhojpur. . . . It is impossible to describe their greed for land and their daring in pursuit of it.' As a proof of the extent to which these sales have been affected, it is stated in Tappah Hendue (about 450 square miles) 10 annas of the Sonthal lands have been sold, and in Pergunnah Passai (about 300 square miles) 12 annas. How much is mortgaged has apparently not been ascertained. The statement of the Deputy Commissioner that in these transactions the purchasers are always Bengali traders or money-lenders from other districts is not borne out by the returns now before the Lieutenant Governor from the Registration Department. These returns would seem to show that though a considerable number of the sales have been made to mahajuns and traders, in the great majority of cases the purchasers are ryots in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. The figures for 1883-4 are 691 sales to money-lenders, and 1,932 to ryots. The purchases of holdings by the zemindars themselves are very few. But whatever the facts may be as to the persons who buy the ryots' tenures, Mr. Rivers Thompson is of opinion that it is of the utmost importance to the civil administration of the Sonthal Pergunnahs that the Sonthals should retain possession of their lands. The growth of a large class of Sonthali labourers working for interlopers on lands once their own must be checked by every legitimate means as being dangerous to the peace of the country, and of benefit only to a few individuals who are actuated in their dealings with the people by mere mercenary motives, and who consequently are the greatest obstacles to the prosperity of the country. The question is, however, one of much difficulty. The issue of a rule of civil procedure merely prohibiting transfers by sale would probably not check other modes of transfer with which the people are now familiar, such as by mortgaging their lands to creditors, agreeing to continue as cultivators on half produce, or by sub-letting their holdings to be held nominally at a rent by a creditor who in reality pays nothing. The Lieutenant Governor is therefore not prepared to issue a rule on the subject until the matter has been fully considered in connection with the larger question which has been raised as to the right of transfer of occupancy holdings under the Bengal Tenancy Bill now before the Legislative Council, upon which a final decision will shortly be made. The question of the sale in execution of proprietary rights in land has been decided, and the application of Rule 35 of the Southal Civil Rules to all cases, whether tried in Southal courts or under courts vested with powers under Act 6 of 1871, has been confirmed."

We have no hesitation in expressing our conviction that it must be impossible for the Government any longer to persist in forcing the Bengal Tenancy Bill into law, after such disclosures as these. It will be observed that the Deputy Commissioner—the responsible and trusted officer on the spot, who is perfectly acquainted with all that is going on in the district—distinctly states that "in these transactions the purchasers are always Bengali traders or money-lenders from other districts." Even Mr. Rivers-Thompson himself—whose unaccountable support of the Bill has hitherto been its highest, indeed its only, recommendation—admits that "a considerable number of sales have been made to mahajuns and traders." It is true that the Lieutenant-Governor, with a pardonable desire to justify his former opinions, endeavours to show, from the figures of the Central Registration Department, that the case is not quite so bad as the Deputy Commissioner regards it. In one year, he shows, there were 691 sales to "money lenders," and 1,931 to "ryots." But we all know that mere figures can be made to prove anything. Who shall say how many of the "ryots" of the Registration Department were only "money-lenders writ large?" Most people will prefer the positive personal knowledge of the Deputy Commissioner to the tabular forms of the Registration Department. But even on the showing of these same figures, the case is quite sufficiently alarming to render it impossible for Lord Ripon to push on the Tenancy Bill. Mr. Rivers Thompson's words clearly show that he regards the state of affairs in the Southal Pergunnahs with serious apprehension. He frankly admits that "every legitimate means" must be used in that district, to "check" the very process which Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert propose to extend to every district throughout the Lieutenant Governorship of Bengal!

Incidentally, too, the Government Resolution proves conclusively that the mischief once done can never be undone—and that, consequently, there is no foundation for Mr. Ilbert's sanguine notion that his successors will be able to provide for the mischievous effects of his own recklessness. The Lieutenant Governor points out that, when once the people have become accustomed to the practice of transferring the tenures, it becomes almost impossible to prevent their doing so by an official prohibition, for the astuteness of the lawyers is equal to "driving a coach-and-four" through any official prohibition. Consequently, Mr. Rivers Thompson is actually unable to see his way to any remedy for the mischief already done in the Southal Pergunnahs, "until the matter has been fully considered in connection with the larger question which has been raised as to the right of transfer of occupancy holdings under the Bengal Tenancy Bill now before the Legislative Council, upon which a final decision will shortly be made." Surely, after the evidence of this Report, which is now before the Government and the Legislative Council, there can be no doubt as to what that "final decision" must be.

THE INDIAN TEA INDUSTRY.—The results of the working of the Indian tea plantations for 1883, although exhibiting considerable varieties in produce and cost, are nevertheless very fairly satisfactory, and show that a steady increase in tea development may be looked for, although the competition from China, Java, and Ceylon, may involve a fall in prices. The size of the estates differs very much, varying from 7,600 acres under tea cultivation in the case of the Assam Company to the Borokai Company, which has only 850 acres. The yield of the former was 2,569,961lb. or 339lb. per mature acre, while that of the latter was 212,720lb. or 265lb. per acre. Nevertheless, though the Borokai Company had the smallest yield of all the Indian undertakings, it showed the very best results in profit per acre and dividend—viz, £9 3s. 7d. profit and 15 per cent.

The Assam Company divided 14 per cent., although their profit per acre was only £3 8s. 5d. and the cost of the tea 11½d., while it sold for only 1s. 1d. per lb. In the case of the Borokai, the tea cost 1s., but sold it for 1s. 8d., and hence the excellent dividend. Next in size of acreage to the Assam comes the Land Mortgage Bank of India, which has 6,645 acres under cultivation, though its paid-up capital (the largest of all the companies) is £308,468, while the Assam has only £187,160. The yield of the Land Mortgage Bank was comparatively low, being 1,539,120lb., or 23lb. per mature acre. The cost of the tea, too, was high at 1s. 0½d. per lb., although the selling price was pretty good at 1s. 3½d. Although things were rather against the company, which was the only one that declared no dividend, the highest capital per acre is in the case of the Scottish Assam, which is £117; but the yield per acre being pretty good at £337, and the selling price is 1s. 4½d. per lb., this company divided 5 per cent. dividend. Some of the yields per acre were very large, as, for instance, that of the Doom Dooma estate, where it was 617lb. per acre, although the tea only selling at 11½d., probably from coarse plucking, the profit per acre was only £2 12s. 8d., and the dividend 2¼. The next largest yield was from the Borcelli Company with the acreage of but 875. The yield per acre was 535lb., the cost of making but 10½d., the selling price 1s. 2d., the result of the whole being a profit per acre of £7 17s., and a dividend of 8 per cent. The great varieties in Indian tea dividends is shown by the fact that they were—in the case of the Land Mortgage Bank, nil; Doom Dooma, 2¼; Indian Tea Company of Cachar, 3; Scottish Assam, 5; Jhanzi Tea Association, 5½; Dejoor, 7; Darjeeling, 7½; Borelli, 8; Lebong, 9; Jorehaut, 12½; Assam, 14; Borokai, 15. The varieties in yield are attributed principally to atmospheric and climatic causes, especially to drought prevailing in the early part of the season, which brought with it blight and a visitation of red spider. The cost of making the tea differs also very much on different estates, ranging between 10½d. and 1s. 1½d., while the value per lb. varies from 11½d. to 1s. 8d. It is satisfactory to observe that the taste for India tea in England is steadily on the rise, so that the planters have good reason to expect a tolerably prosperous future.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs.20,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on August 27 at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—In bills, on Calcutta, Rs.10,000; on Bombay, Rs.10,000; and on Madras, 10,000, the average rate being 1s. 7½d. in all cases. In telegraphic transfers, on Calcutta, Rs. 3,00,000, and on Madras, Rs.300,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7½d. The total allotment did not, therefore, amount to more than Rs.6,30,000. Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7½d. and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 7½d. will receive in full. Between April 1, and August the 26, total amount allotted reached Rs.6,81,70,467, and realised £5,597,406. For next Wednesday 15 lakhs will be offered.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—In the Silver Market bars are still quoted at 50½d. per ounce, with an absence of business, the supply being limited, pending the delivery of an amount just announced. There were no dealings in Mexican dollars, though a few were offered at 50½d., and the receipt of the amount brought by the Royal mail steamer is awaited. All Eastern exchange rates are unaltered, and the prices for Rupee Paper are practically what they were at the close of last week.

TUESDAY.—The bar silver brought by the Royal mail steamer has been disposed of at 50½d. per ounce. Some of the Mexican dollars which were received by the same vessel were already sold to arrive, and the balance has yet to be dealt with. With the exception of a decline of ¼d. in the Hong Kong rate to 3s. 8¾d. Eastern exchange advices are unaltered. Rupee Paper closed to 83½ 83¾ for the Four and a-Half, and 80½ 81 for the Four per Cents.

WEDNESDAY.—In the Silver Market the remainder of the Mexican dollars brought by the Don was sold at 50d. per ounce. This is a nominal fall of ½d., the last price at which transactions occurred being 50½d. There has been no business in bar silver, which is nominally quoted at 50½d. Indian exchange rates are dull at 1s. 7-16d. to 1s. 7-15-32d., but China quotations are unaltered. Rupee Paper has not been asked for, and prices are quite nominal.

THURSDAY.—Some small amounts of bar silver were offered, but nothing was bought, at 50½d. per ounce, which was again the nominal price. Mexican dollars were also nominally quoted at 50d. Indian telegraphic transfer rates are easy at 1s. 7-16d., and China exchange quotations are unaltered. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper closed at 83 83¾, and the Four per Cents. at 80½ 80¾, but there was no business in either case.

FRIDAY.—Weaker exchange advices from the East checked the inclination of Indian Banks to buy silver, and when the quotations from the other side were advised on Thursday last at 1s. 13-32d., showing a further fall of 1-32d., the market gave way and the amount of bars brought by the Handel could only be disposed of at 50½d. per ounce. At that price almost all the available supplies were cleared, the remittance by the steamer from Ohli not be due for nearly a week. There was absolutely no business in Mexican dollars. China exchange rates are easy at 3s. 8¾d. in Hongkong, and 5s. 1¼ in Shanghai. The prices of Rupee Paper were quite nominal all day, as business was at a complete standstill.

SATURDAY.—Some small amounts of bar silver were again purchased at 50½d. per ounce, but only 49¾d. could be got for Mexican dollars, a trifling amount having been sold at that price, which shows a fall of ¼d. Eastern exchange rates are unaltered, but Four per Cent. Rupee Paper is firmer at 80½ 81, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. remaining at 83 83¾.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—A small China auction, comprising 2,342 packages, passed at full and steady rates, fully maintaining the rise established during the last few days. Private transactions have been less numerous, but prices show firmness and regularity. The India sales represented 6,591 packages. Nearly all sold at very firm prices, demand being chiefly for grades under 1s. per lb. Fine and finest were competed for, Baman-danga orange Pekoe realising 3s. 0¼d. per lb. Broken Pekoes unchanged.

SUGAR.—West India continues steady, the business since last Friday being 794 casks and about 3,800 barrels and bags. At auction to-day fine colour crystallised Demerara sold at higher rates, from 23s. to 24s. 6.; other grades steadier at 18s. to 22s.; 220 casks 170 barrels Surinam reported at prices which do not transpire. A cargo of 1,300 tons Java at 16s. for the United Kingdom, and in Liverpool a cargo of 449 casks 100 barrels Porto Rico at 13s. 4½d. per cwt. Beet is rather dearer. In the Clyde market a good business done this morning at 3d. to 6d. advance.

COFFEE.—The small quantity at public sale went at last week's rates, and there was not any feature by private contract to notice. The catalogues comprised 97 cask and barrels Plantation Ceylon, including middling to good middling at 62s. to 63s.; 38 bags Liberian at 45s. to 55s.; 1,321 bags Costa Rica, 49s. 6d.; 129 bags Mexican bought in at 52s. to 53s. per cwt.

COCOA.—The market is rather unsettled, with a large supply. In the public sales 1,364 bags Grenada sold well at 60s. to 73s. 6d. for common to fair; 2,171 bags Trinidad barley half sold at irregular and occasionally easier rates, from 75s. to 84s. for mixed gray to good red; a few lots Jamaica at 58s. to 62s.; 718 bags Ceylon went 1s. to 2s. lower, from 73s. to 80s., with small at 71s. 6d. to 72s. per cwt.

RICE.—About 10,000 bags port Canning have sold at 6s. to 6s. 10½d., and a cargo of 1,470 tons Bassin, off coast, at 7s. 6d. per Continent.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The China sales, comprising 8,826 packages, viz.:—2,754 new season's black leafs, 1,633 red leafs, and 2,995 green and scented teas, passed at firm to advanced rates. A more active business by private contract shows firmness on the part of merchants for all teas under 1s. per lb., and some transactions, notably for teas under 10d.

per lb., much advanced rates. At the Indian auctions 3,181 Indian and 410 Ceylon teas were offered. The demand ran chiefly on teas under 1s. per lb., which realised again firm prices. Fine broken Pekoes were briskly competed for, one break of Jhabra being knocked down at 2s. 11¼d. per lb. Ceylons sold at previous rates.

SUGAR.—Further large sales of West India have been made, which are not reported, and the market is hardening. Beet is again 1½d. dearer, and refiners prices in the Clyde market have risen 3d. per cwt. for pieces.

COFFEE.—In the public sales 155 casks 24 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon sold at firmer rates; small, 57s. to 59s. 6d.; middling colour, 64s. to 64s. 6d.; fine middling to bold, 73s. 6d. to 81s.; 24 bags Liberian medium, 49s. 6d.; bold, 57s. Fine bold East India brought previous value, but other grades were dull. Of 139 cases 1,307 bags only part sold; medium, 58s. 6d. to 60s. 6d.; bold, 67s. to 70s.; fine, 76s. to 87s.; two lots 91s. and 94s. 111 half barrels Mocha bought at above value. 459 bags Guatemala sold—fine ordinary, 47s. to 48s.; small 44s. to 45s. per cwt.

SPICES.—At the public sales to-day nutmegs advanced fully 1d. and small shipping sorts ½d. per lb. 29 cases Penang sold—bold, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 4d.; small, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 6d.; smaller, 1s. 9d.; 10 packages Java, 2s. 5d. to 2s. 8d.; small, 1s. 8d.; 17 packages West India, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 6d. Mace also rather dearer, 9 cases Penang selling at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d. for middling to fair red. Cloves quiet, and of 184 bags Zanzibar only a lot or two sold at 5½d. for fair. 19 bags Amboyna bought in at 8½d. and three cases Penang at 1s. 4d. per lb. Cochinchina brought some further advance. Part of 344 packages held above present value, but the bulk sold, ends and mixed small rough, 41s. to 45s. 6d.; fair to good, 48s. 6d. to 51s.; small to medium, cut and part cut, 54s. to 59s. 6d.; mixed bold, 63s. to 64s.; 300 bags Bengal, 32s. per cwt. Black and white pepper quiet, and bought in; 98 bags Pimento withdrawn.

SAGO dull; 40 bags large pearl sold 14s., medium bought 14s. 6d., and small, 11s. to 11s. 6d. per cwt. A few lots bullet pearl tapioca realised 13s. 6d. per cwt. Flake chiefly bought in, some damaged, Penang selling at 1½d. to 2d. per lb.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that the produce markets are steady, with some increase of demand for several of the leading articles to meet the requirements of consumers at a recovery upon the unparalleled low quotations current recently accepted, but there are no speculative transactions of importance. Since the 21st inst., in consequence of the news received from China, there has been a good demand for tea, and although no excitement prevailed prices have advanced fully 1d. per lb. upon all common to fair grades of new season's Congou from the lowest point. The medium to fine classes do not yet participate in the improvement. Indian teas have met a strong competition at prices in many cases favourable to buyers. A rather large quantity of West Indian sugar has changed hands. Muscovado kinds now obtain 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt. advance compared with the depressed rates current of late. Crystallised is also dearer. Low brown Eastern descriptions have not met with much attention. Beet has risen 1s. 3d. per cwt. German prompt shipment selling at 12s. 9d., against 11s. 6d. per cwt., about a fortnight ago. In the refined market pieces have realised firmer rates with an active demand. Dry goods have experienced only a slight change for the better. The surplus stock of sugar in the four chief ports of the United Kingdom by the last return was about 75,000 tons. A few parcels of Ceylon cocoa have sold at 1s. to 2s. reduction. The coffee market shows more steadiness, and owing to the very moderate quantity offered this week prices are in favour of the sellers. At the spice sales, Penang nutmegs went about 1d. dearer for home trade kinds. There was a good demand for cinnamon at the auctions on Monday, full rates to 1d. per lb. recovery upon the lower qualities being obtained. Cinchona shows a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb.

TEA.—(From Messrs Hawes and Hertz's Fortnightly China Report.)—The tone of our market, which had contained dull and inanimate, has undergone a complete change since the 22nd inst., when the news of the impending bombardment of Foochow became known here. A brisk demand almost immediately set in from the country. The small stocks of dealers being strikingly inadequate to meet it, the sorts chiefly in request (red and black leafs to about 11d.) were eagerly competed for, with the result of a rise of a full 1d. per lb. for the lower and 1½d. to 1d. per lb. for the grades above. Public auctions, excepting those previously advertised, have been almost nil during the last week. Latest transactions are marked by a tone of great regularity and firmness tending to further improvement. Black leafs, up to 9½d. have advanced 1d. per lb. up to 1s. about 1½d. per lb., and are in active demand. Contracts to 1s. 1½d. per lb. show greater regularity and a firmer tone, but the business transacted in these has not been considerable. Fine medium and fine are unchanged with limited inquiry. Lowest closing quotation for common 8d. per lb. Red leafs, under 11d., of all descriptions are in good demand, and closing rates show an advance in price of ¼d. per lb. for siftings, 1d. per lb. and over for common leafy kinds, Saryunes and Padraes; fully ½d. per lb. for Soey Kuts and Panyongs below 1s. 1d.; 1d. per lb. for Paklings in boxes up to 1s. 2d. per lb., and generally a healthier and more regulated tone for good and fine medium kinds. Lowest closing quotations for common 7½d. per lb. The demand for Russia has been exceedingly small. Old Congous.—Some contracts have passed at from 5d. to 6½d. per lb. in black leafs, 6d. to 6½d. per lb. in red leafs; fair old season's Saryune at auction realised 7½d. per lb.

SUGAR.—Continues firm for West India, of which, besides some crystallised Demerara in bags, 851 casks sold at rather higher rates than quoted yesterday. 253 casks Porto Rico reported at 13s. to 14s. 6d. per cwt. Beet is 3d. dearer, also Clyde made pieces. Subjoined is M. Bertrand Silz's report, dated Paris, August 27:—"Until Saturday last our market showed a daily decline in prices, sellers were found as well for prompt as for the new crop at 40f. 25c., and this in spite of the better feeling which could be noticed in U.K. markets. As all sugar markets followed the impulse given by U.K., ours was obliged to keep in unison, and suddenly at Saturday's evening exchange, prices rose fully 1*f*. per 100 kilos; since then fluctuations have been slight. Transactions for next crop delivery, although rather more active, are restricted for want of sellers."

COFFEE.—There has been a steady market. Ceylon is 1*s*. to 2*s*., and some other kinds, including Guatemala, are rather dearer for the week. Of the former, 144 casks 22 barrels sold to-day. Small and grayish, 56*s*. to 62*s*.; good to fine middling colory, 67*s*. 6*d*. to 73*s*. 6*d*.; bold, 78*s*. to 86*s*.; superior, 90*s*. 6*d*. to 104*s*. 571 casks 311 bags East India unevenly for the commoner sorts, 54*s*. 6*d*. to 59*s*.; but steady for good and fine at 73*s*. 6*d*. to 87*s*. Seven casks 49 barrels and bags Jamaica, 45*s*. 6*d*. to 46*s*. 6*d*. 1,693 bags Costa Rica went steady, middling, 57*s*. to 57*s*. 6*d*.; good middling greenish, 61*s*. 6*d*. to 62*s*. 1,566 bags Guatemala mostly sold, fine ordinary to bold gray, 50*s*. to 55*s*. 6*d*. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo of Rangoon, about 1,600 tons, sold at 7*s*. 9*d*. per cwt. ex ship.

BLACK PEPPER dull, with an easier tendency.

FRIDAY EVENING.

INDIAN TEAS.—Increased activity has ruled in this market, the autumn trade demand having come when supplies and stocks are at almost their lowest, the result being a marked improvement in values for all good and fine qualities upon rates obtainable a month ago, and a rise of ½*d*. to 1*d*. on low grades, which sympathise with the movement in China Congou. The sales have included 14,000 packages of new crop, much of it tea of fine quality, for which competition has been very keen. The Assam and Darjeeling crops promise to be of superior character, judging from invoices arriving. Yesterday's China auctions showed fully-maintained to improving rates for teas under 10; grades above are without quotable alteration. No public sales have been held to-day, and only 4,049 packages are catalogued at present for next week. The private market has been rather less active, but a very firm tone prevails all round. More attention has been paid to medium and fine Ningchows, and some sales made at from 1*s*. 5*d*. to 1*s*. 11*d*. per lb. Fine and finest grades are becoming very scarce in first hands.

SUGAR.—Crystallised Demerara, by auction, sold at 1*s*. to 1*s*. 6*d*. advance upon fine (at 24*s*. 1*d*. to 25*s*.), and 6*d*. to 9*d*. upon current qualities (at 18*s*. to 22*s*.) for the week. Refining West India is firm, and about 1*s*. dearer than on Friday last. Sales:—2,620 casks 15,300 bags, besides others not reported. 1,866 bags Mauritius in the public sales, half sold at 12*s*. 6*d*. to 13*s*. per cwt. Less demand for beet which closes 12*s*. 6*d*. to 12*s*. 7½*d*. prompt.

COFFEE.—Bold Plantation Ceylon met with a good demand at further advanced rates. Colours kinds generally are about 2*s*. per cwt. dearer than on Friday last. 524 casks, 141 barrels and bags sold—low middling to middling, 61*s*. 6*d*. to 66*s*.; good to fine, 69*s*. 6*d*. to 81*s*. fine bold 89*s*. 6*d*. to 94*s*. 6*d*.; superior 105*s*. to 106*s*. 6*d*. 234 cases, 1,300 bags East India sold at high rates, for fine, from 85*s*. 6*d*. to 93*s*. 6*d*.; medium to good sold from 60*s*. to 67*s*. 6*d*.; small in proportion. 267 packages Mocha chiefly withdrawn. 4,249 bags foreign went steadily and chiefly sold—fine ordinary to middling Central American, 47*s*. 9*d*. to 55*s*.; good 58*s*. 6*d*. to 61*s*.; Guatemala fine ordinary to middling, 48*s*. 6*d*. to 59*s*. 6*d*.; fine, 65*s*. to 65*s*. 6*d*.; Costa Rica, 48*s*. to 59*s*.; good bold bought in, 60*s*. to 61*s*. per cwt.

RICE has been firm, but quiet. To-day a cargo of Bassia, 1,340 tons, sold at 7*s*. 10½*d*., quay terms, Liverpool.

PEPPER is dull.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION
OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing fortnightly (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative, and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

FIFTY-SEVEN.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF INDIAN DISTRICTS DURING THE REVOLT OF THE BENGAL ARMY.

BY

HENRY GEORGE KEENE, C.I.E., M.R.A.S.,

Author of "The Fall of the Mughal Empire," &c.

"The author breaks new ground. He essays to inform us how the different districts in the North-West were preserved from anarchy by their civil administrators during such a stupendous catastrophe as the revolt of the army, upon whose support social order, in a great measure, rested. The task involves stories of adventure and pluck, which never come amiss to the many readers who have relatives serving abroad; and these stories are given in picturesque language, with a conciseness precluding tedium, and in a tone throughout of the modesty which seems natural where duty is considered the first obligation, and courage the first attribute, of an English gentleman."—World.

"Mr. Keene tells how the civil officers in the districts kept or restored order, largely by their own individual influence, often by heroic exertion, and almost invariably with the loyal aid of native subordinates. He describes the events which occurred in some eight or nine districts of the North West Provinces and Bengal. His narrative is unpretentious in style, but it clearly shows that courage, firmness, heroism, and self-sacrifice were displayed among the members of the Indian Civil Service, as well as by the soldiers who stormed Delhi, relieved Lucknow, and avenged the crimes of Cawnpore."—Scotsman.

"This work claims our hearty recognition of its thoroughness. It gives us a most readable and trustworthy recension of the reports of eye-witnesses, always the most valuable to the student of history. It has a special interest from the fact that Mr. Keene was himself one of those district officers who honourably held their ground during those fearfully exciting times."—Literary World.

"Mr. Keene writes to give somewhat tardy honour where it is due—viz., to the civilian officers who, during the period of the Indian Mutiny, remained at their posts, and in many instances deprived of military aid, had themselves to raise and command levies for the protection of the district."—Morning Post.

"A volume which seems to us to break new ground, and to supply a want felt by those who have ever endeavoured to study the subject. . . . The matter is, for the most part, new, and it treats of incidents in themselves fairly entitled to attention, and calculated to excite interest. . . . The fights, the rides, and the surprises and the escapes are all related in picturesque language."—Home News.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Aug. 18; Madras and Allahabad, Aug. 17; Calcutta, Aug. 16.

WE are glad to see that the Viceroy has paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Hon. Kristodas Pal, Rai Bahadur, C.I.E. At the meeting of the Legislative Council at Simla, on August 6, his Excellency spoke as follows:—

"Before we proceed to consider the business upon the list before us, I am sure my honourable colleagues will allow me to express my deep regret at the lamented death of Rai Bahadur Kristodas Pal, which has taken place since the last meeting of the Legislative Council. By this melancholy event, we have lost from amongst us a colleague of distinguished ability, from whom we had on all occasions received assistance, of which I readily acknowledge the value. He has been taken from us in the prime of life, when his powers were at their best, and we might have hoped he would still, for many years to come, have been permitted to devote himself to the service of his country with the same energy and patriotism as had hitherto marked his career. Mr. Kristodas Pal owed the honourable position to which he had attained to his own exertions. His intellectual endowments were of a high order, his rhetorical gifts were acknowledged by all who heard him, and were enhanced when addressing this Council by his thorough mastery over the English language. He will long live in the remembrance of his countrymen, and it is with feelings of sincere sorrow that I pay this last tribute to the memory of one who was so well entitled to be regarded as a worthy representative of the intellect and eloquence of the race to which he belonged."

WE would call the attention of our readers to a very remarkable pamphlet by the Hon. Harold Finch-Hatton, which has just been published by Messrs. W. H. Allen, and Co. It is entitled "From all Sedition, Privy Conspiracy, and Rebellion, Good Lord Deliver us." The pamphlet is a trumpet-call to the English nation, to "awake to the importance of shaking off the intolerable burden of a Prime Minister whose language is sedition, who turns his Cabinet Councils into conspiracies, and who is at present engaged in stirring up rebellion throughout the length and breadth of the land." This, which is the concluding sentence of Mr. Finch-Hatton's pamphlet is undoubtedly strong language, but is supported, in the body of the pamphlet, by even stronger facts and arguments.

A STRIKING phenomenon of the present political crisis in England—not less remarkable than the extraordinary and hardly-hoped for success of the Conservative party in fighting the Radicals with their own weapons of demonstrations, processions, and the like—is the extraordinary literary activity of the Conservatives. The scores of pamphlets with which our table is now deluged are, with not a single notable exception, all on one side; and they show very clearly how deeply the literary world of England resents the revolutionary tactics of the present Government. Among these pamphlets we would select for notice those put forth by the Patriotic Association; those of Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett on the Egyptian Question; Mr. Taylor's "Half-a-Century of Revolutionary Influence" (published by Messrs. Vickers, 317, Strand); and "Egypt: An appeal to the English People," by C. (published by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co.

THE Paris correspondent of the Times telegraphs some interesting particulars about the death of one of the most distinguished members of the suite of H.H. the Gaekwar's brother:—

"The body of an Indian gentleman was cremated the day before yesterday September 2, at Etrétat in curious circumstances. Baboo Sahed Chatjay, a Maratha gentleman, who had accompanied his son-in-law, Sampatras, the brother of the Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, one of the chief princes of India, to Europe, died recently at Etrétat of an abscess in the throat. Permission was requested of the Mayor to cremate the body, and he immediately telegraphed to the authorities for authorisation enabling the Indians to perform their sacred rites. He aided them in every possible way to carry out their intentions. The permission having been granted, at midnight wood was carted down to the north ends of the beach, behind a jutting point in the cliff, hidden from the town, and there a pile of two or three feet in height was carefully built of logs crossed and re-crossed, with the ends towards the north and south. The ceremony of sprinkling the sacred powder over the body and anointing it was very simple. An eye-witness, writing to Galignani's Messenger, describes the ceremony as follows:—

"The fire was in a small earthen bowl and was made of sandal-wood, which is difficult to obtain in Etrétat. But in this case a carved box, a souvenir of India was presented for the purpose to the mourners by an English lady, who happened to have it with her. The body was laid upon the pile, with the head towards the north, and then covered with more wood saturated with oil. It was now two o'clock, and the funeral pile was carefully built. The secret of the cremation had been well kept, so that not more than twenty in all were on the spot to witness it."

"The prince threw the burning incense in the bowl upon the north end of the pile, which instantly caught fire, and the Indians, with raised hands, again repeated, 'Ram, ram!' Soon the whole mass was wrapped in a flame that climbed high up the cliff, brought the spectators out strongly against the dark background, and lit the foamy crests of the waves. . . . In an hour the flames began to subside and more wood was piled on. Gradually the morning dawned upon the ceremony. The wind had blown away most of the cinders, and among those remaining only a few pieces of bone, keeping their form, could be found, and those crumbled when they were touched. What human ashes could be distinguished, were gathered up, a part being thrown into the sea and the rest sealed up to be sent to India. Several fishermen had wandered down to that end of the beach during the last hour, but by six o'clock every vestige of the cremation had disappeared. When the rumour reached the awakened inhabitants and brought them in crowds to the spot they hardly believed what was told them, for they only saw a few blackened stones and a few loose shavings that had escaped from the burning."

H.H. THE Gaekwar's brother, who has thus lost a near relative, is about to enter the University of Oxford, as a Commoner of Balliol. A house has already, we learn, been secured for the young Prince and his followers.

THE Indian Daily News says:—"The reports from the various authorities consulted on the Rent Bill are coming in to Government. Considering the vast mass of matter to be gone through, it is not likely that the Government will be able to deal with the subject and submit its views to the Government of India before the middle of September. Mr. Thompson will have accomplished no light task if he be ready so soon."

THE Bombay Gazette says:—

"Shah Jehan, the chief of the Zhob Valley, appears at last to be really alarmed by the preparations which the Government of India are making to punish him for his delinquencies. At any rate he appears to be much more respectful in his bearing towards the British officers, and to have laid aside a good deal of the swagger which he indulged in before he became convinced of the earnestness of the Government of India. The Allahabad papers give currency to a rumour that Shah Jehan would be only too glad to settle his differences with the British Government now that he sees all the preparations for an expedition into Zhob being completed. But he has not the moral courage to take the first step of tendering submission. It is now considered probable that the 1st Native Infantry, which was to have taken part in the Zhob Valley operations as a part of the Punjab Frontier Force column, will join Sir O. Tanner at Puesta."

THE Times of India says:—

"We may be permitted to congratulate General Hardinge upon the success of his scheme for assisting the native soldiers discharged from the army on the expiry of their engagement. It has been adopted not only by Sir Donald Stewart and Sir Frederick Roberts, but has led to the issue of a general order by the Horse Guards on the same subject, which will, our Simla correspondent told us on Friday, be shortly republished in this country in the view of finding employment in civil life for men retiring from British as well as from the native regiments. The subject has, our correspondent adds, attracted much attention at Simla, and a meeting of Artillery officers has already been held to consider how the men retiring from that regiment can benefit by the order. In Bombay the scheme has been wonderfully successful, and is popular alike with the men and their employers."

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected up till Saturday, August 9:—

"During the last few days there has been a little more disposition on the part of shippers to do business, whilst owners have met the market by a decline of 1s. 3d. to 2s. 6d. per ton for sailing tonnage. Rates for steam tonnage are unchanged at last week's quotations. Our unfixed tonnage amounts to 52,800 tons."

We take the following account of the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. T. Watson and Co.'s Tea Report:—

"Public sales were held on the 14th instant, when out of 9762 packages offered, 9456 packages were sold. There was a better demand. Prices were rather irregular and slightly higher for Pekoe Souchongs and Broken, while other kinds sold at about previous rates."

THE Times of India gives the following obituary till the departure of the mail, Aug. 19:—

"Major General J. G. Medley, R.E., late Chief Consulting Engineer Guaranteed Railways, Lahore; Captain C. A. G. Cumine, East Surrey Regiment; Mr J. F. Gell, tutor to the Ramnad and Pudukottah Princes at Madras; Major H. Mc V. Crichton, R.E., Military Works Department, Lucknow."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Sept. 7:—

"The question of the propriety of revising Lord Lytton's rules regarding the admission of natives to the so called Statutory Civil Service is now under the consideration of Government, as also a number of petitions praying for a return to the former limit of age for competitive examination in England. The subject is one of considerable importance. The Statutory Civil Service has been in existence about five years, and, although it is yet too soon to pronounce it an absolute failure, it seems very generally agreed that the experiment holds out small promise of success; and, notwithstanding the occurrence of occasional exceptions, there can be no doubt that the lowering of the age limit, which was carried into effect some years ago, practically excludes natives from competing in examinations in England. The native press has taken up the matter warmly, and public meetings have been held in many parts of the country. The view which the majority of native writers and speakers take is that the system of nomination should be abolished, and that all appointments to the Civil Service should be thrown open to competition, the limit of age being raised by four years, and examinations being held both in India and England. It is understood that this or some other view commends itself to the Radical element of the Government, while the majority of the Council are believed to support the existing system, at least as far as competitive examination is concerned. In the circumstances there is not likely to be any material change in the conditions of competitive examination, but it is not improbable that the rules governing entrance to the Statutory Service may be altered to some extent."

"Last week's crops reports show some slight improvement. Rain has fallen throughout Madras, but, except in the Malabar district more is required. The outlook is not promising in the eastern portion of the Presidency, where drinking water and pasture are becoming scarce. Prospects continue favourable in the Central Provinces, the greater part of Rajpootana, and the Punjab. Some of the Bombay districts require more rain, but the general accounts of the Presidency are fairly good. Bengal reports vary greatly according to the different districts in the Presidency. In Rajshahye, Decca, Chittagong, and the Patna division more rain would be welcome, but the general prospects are not discouraging. Beerbhoom district, on the other hand, reports prospects unfavourable, and in one portion of the district a failure of the crop is inevitable. From Burdwan we hear that the rainfall has been most insufficient. Prospects of rice are distinctly unfavourable in parts, and nowhere good. Midnapore, Hooghly, Hourah, and Bankoorah also urgently require more rain. Heavy and almost continuous rain fell in Calcutta on Thursday, Friday, and yesterday. If it extended up country it will do much good."

"The necessity for the recent agitation regarding the sanitation of Calcutta is strikingly illustrated by the report of the health officer on the condition of Jorabagan, one of the most crowded wards of the city. That ward contains 148 people to the acre, yet in many places the health officer found no drains at all. Such drains as existed were mostly out of order, and sewage was found stagnating in 40 per cent. of them. Some he describes as chains of small cesspools. The soil beneath some of the large houses and passages is literally saturated with sewage. In many cases the houses have no pipes, and the sewage escapes in a large and widening stream down the sides of the building. The atmosphere in the large houses, he says, is dreadfully contaminated, a sickening odour prevailing throughout. The condition of the groups of huts in some portions of the ward is still worse, yet, with this state of things prevailing in the very centre of the city, the self-satisfied gentlemen who composed the majority of the Corporation considered themselves insulted when the Lieutenant Governor described their sanitary work as inadequate, and in a fit of childish petulance marked their sense of outraged dignity by resigning office. The Commission appointed by Government to inquire into the sanitation of the city commences work on the 20th. This is none too soon, and it is to be hoped that its labours may result in a great improvement of the existing state of affairs."

"A preliminary statement of receipts and issues of the Civil Treasuries for July is published in the Official Gazette. The result is disappointing. The items of opium, land revenue, and customs are behind last year to the extent of 32, 18, and 8 lakhs respectively. The chief increases are 10 lakhs from salt, seven from excise, and four from stamps. Guaranteed and subsidised railways show a net decrease of 21 lakhs. State railway receipts increased 21 and State railway issues increased 34 lakhs. The closing balance of July shows 1,229 lakhs, against 1,351 last year. There was a marked falling off in the prices realised at Tuesday's opium sales, the average price per chest for Behar opium being 74 rupees under last month's average, while Benares sold on the average at 83 rupees under August prices."

"The Indian Government is taking steps to co-operate with the South Kensington authorities in the Colonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886. Mr. Buck, secretary to the Agricultural Department, will be the chief Indian Commissioner."

"The Duke and Duchess of Connaught will proceed to Cashmere on a short visit early in October."

"The extraordinary vacillation of the Indian Government regarding the arrangements for the Frontier Commission has shown itself most conspicuously in the matter of the escort. Hardly a week has passed without two or three changes in the number and composition of the troops being announced. It is now stated that 300 men of the 11th Bengal Lancers, and 200 of the 20th Native Infantry will accompany the Commission as far as Nushki, but that their further movements will depend on the report of Captain Maitland, who is now examining the roads from Nushki to the Helmund. Should he report the roads unfavourable the infantry will be sent back to India and only the 300 cavalry will proceed, while if he reports the roads fairly good about 200 lancers and 250 bayonets will go on. The troops mentioned have all started for Sibi. But it by no means follows that Government may not change its mind three or four times more before the march begins."

"The Ameer has sent a trusted official, Kazi Saaduddin, to attend on the Commission, and is laying down supplies at various stages. He has also issued a proclamation that Englishmen are going to travel through Afghanistan, and that whoever molests them will be severely punished. The probable route, and the distances, to be traversed are as follows:—Bolan to Nushki, 150 miles; Nushki to Rudbaar, on the Helmund, 204 miles. Here the Commission will enter the Afghan district of Gurmen and march in a north-westerly direction to Lash, 170 miles. At Lash, Colonel Ridgeway will decide whether to take the Afghan road to Sarakhs, via Furrah, Subgawar, and Herat, or to turn off to the west into Persia and proceed by Shoran, Gezdan, Kafirhalah, and Tomanagha. The former is about 430 and the latter 373 miles."

"There is no recent news regarding the Ameer's operations in the Mangal territory. It is believed that the rebellious Sirdars are attempting to give up the contest and escape."

"QUETTA, Sept. 7."

"It is unlikely that Colonel Ridgeway's expedition will start before the 15th. Elaborate preparations are necessary for the passage of the 200 miles of desert between Nushki and the river Helmund. All supplies, and sometimes water, must be laid out for the party, which contains more than 1,000 souls."

ARMY AND NAVY MAGAZINE.

THE September number of this magazine contains the second chapter of Colonel Malleon's work on "Ambushes and Surprises." The total defeat of the Roman legions under Varus by Arminius or Herman the German is as fully described as the contemporary accounts admit of, and though the actual occurrences practically amount to the fact that the Roman's despised their enemy and allowed themselves to be led into a series of defeats to their utter destruction, yet how this all came about forms a most interesting study, and a lesson too, to be kept in mind by Englishmen. Major Barker writes on "Judging distance as taught in the English Army" showing that we are far too much guided by theory which is more than apt not to coincide with practice. Lieutenant Sleeman's article on "Naval Machine guns" will be found most useful as an exposition of the situation at present. In an article entitled "What's in a Name?" Lieutenant Esme Forbes points out that the most essential features of mounted infantry are perfectly within the capabilities of cavalry, and are indeed practised by them at the present time. In "Cramming and Schooling" Mr. Reane tries to show how to obtain the advantage of both systems. A description is given of the new Chilean cruiser "Esmeralda" the fastest sea-going war-ship afloat. The magazine closes with the usual chapters of Mrs. Phillips's excellent novel "Man Proposes."

CORRESPONDENCE.

OUR MILITARY STRENGTH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In page 1882 of Allen's Indian Mail of the 1st inst. your readers have been informed of the extreme difficulty of keeping up our English army in India to its proper strength. For two years past the Government has neglected to give India its garrison of 60,000 Europeans. Is it not time to give the few British soldiers who protect so extensive and rich an Empire the means of locomotion?

With an efficient system of military railroads, each of our English soldiers might be made equal to three, but the House of Commons, the India Office, and the public generally will not condescend to think of military roads, but concentrate their attention on what they are pleased to call commercial and famine-relieving roads.

The Indian Government has at last been awakened to the necessity of connecting the Ganges and Krishna valleys by railroad from Nagpur to Hyderabad through Chanda, Chinnoor, and Warungool, and various proposals have been made for a railway to connect Nagpur with Jubulpoor.

Firstly. The direct line through Seonee to the railway bridge over the Nerbudda river, twenty miles west of Jubulpoor.

The only objection to this line is that for a distance of seven miles up the Puthrea Ghat between Kooree and Mohgaon the road is steep and rocky, and of very hard rock too—gneis, it is said.

With reference to steepness I understand that our engineers have planned a line on which none of the gradients will exceed one in a hundred. Mr. G. A. Barnett, the agent of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company in India, has reported that the temporary diversion of the great railway between Bombay and Calcutta, south of the Bookri River has a gradient of one in thirty-three.

Secondly. It is proposed to construct a railway northward from Gondia Station (seventy miles east of Kamptee), to Jubulpoor.

This would be the cheapest line and not difficult to construct.

Thirdly. It is proposed by an influential person, it is said, to take the railway 400 miles round by Belaspoor.

It is argued that the direct Nagpur-Calcutta line will pass near Belaspoor, and that from Belaspoor a railway can be constructed over the Umuria coalfields to Kutni Railway Station, fifty-seven miles north by east of Jubulpoor.

This third line would be almost useless for military purposes, and would be very expensive to construct, however pretty it may look on paper; we may lose India before it can be completed.—Your obedient servant,

SILLY AND CRUEL.

Attention should be called, in no party spirit, to the silliness and cruelty of the proposal of Government to employ Canadian boatmen and Iroquois Indians on the projected expedition for the relief of Khartoum. The party aspect of the matter may be dismissed with the remark that the plan is obviously a copy —and a very bad copy—of Lord Beaconsfield's idea of utilising the Colonial resources of the Empire for Imperial purposes. At a certain memorable crisis, Lord Beaconsfield summoned a number of Indian troops to Malta, for the purpose of demonstrating to Russia that, if she ventured to go to war with us, she would find herself waging war with the full forces of a mighty Empire. This strong hint had a very excellent effect, but it was more than a hint, because the Indian regiments have been of great service in the field, and could have been employed without compunction, in the regions in which they would have been called upon to fight. The employment of Canadian boatmen and Iroquois Indians on the Nile affords a most remarkable contrast to the coup of Lord Beaconsfield. The project is reckless in the extreme, and has no redeeming feature. It seems to have been partly suggested on the strength of the circumstances that the general commanding the Nile expedition is the same who carried to a successful issue the "Red River Expedition" in Canada, in 1870. On that occasion Sir Garnet Wolseley found the Canadian boatmen were very useful, but it would be impossible to find a greater contrast than exists between the conditions in the two cases. The Canadians and Iroquois take it as a huge compliment that they should have been invited to give their help, and are ready, like brave men and fanatical savages, respectively, to accept the invitation cheerfully, but they are none the less going on a useless errand that can only end disastrously to themselves. The Red River expedition involved the transportation of a certain number of men with their impedimenta, over a distance of about 400 miles, through some of the healthiest countries in the world, chiefly across lakes and streams, with occasional spells of "portage," the boats used being bark canoes, which are easy to carry, and the difficulties of navigation being very small indeed. The Nile boats are, in proportion to the Canadian river boats, as a hippopotamus would be to a beaver, and the toils of the Nile navigation, conducted as they must be in sweltering heat, are enormous and frequent. The Canadians are accustomed to a cold, for the most part, and genial climate, and to an abundance of wholesome natural food. Of what use would Egyptian boatmen have been on the Red River expedition? Similarly, of what use can the Canadians be on the Nile? Long acclimatisation would be required in either case. It will be the fate of the Canadians, in all probability, to pine and perish. What function the Iroquois Indians may be expected to perform, we do not know. It is said that they are displaying immense eagerness to go on the war trail against the enemies of their "great mother," the Queen. This is very laudable, but it is none the less wicked to take the advantage of the ignorant zeal of these poor people by sending them to face terrible dangers, of a kind totally unknown to them. We do not know which is the more remarkable, the silliness or the cruelty of the proceeding.—Bristol Times and Mirror.

NOTES ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884.—BY THE EAST BENGAL LANDHOLDERS' ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER I. PRELIMINARY.—Sec. 3 Sub-sec. 1. The definition of "estate" does not include such revenue-free or lakhraj lands as are not entered in the general registers of the collectorate. This may not appear to be defective per se. But it excludes unregistered lakhraj lands from being "proprietors" (Sub-section 2). Then if Sub-section 3 of Section 5 be taken into consideration with the above definitions, it will be apparent that an unregistered lakhrajdar cannot have a ryot as his tenant, nor can a tenant have the rights and privileges of a ryot, even if he holds land for the purpose of cultivation, when his immediate landlord is an unregistered lakhrajdar. As an unregistered lakhrajdar is not a proprietor, and as he need not be a tenure holder, the difficulty arises as to whether a tenant holding land under such a lakhrajdar can have the rights and privileges of ryots, even though he be holding the lands for the purpose of cultivation. It is submitted that the proviso contained in Sub-section 3 of Section 5, taken in conjunction with the above-mentioned definitions of "estate" and "proprietor," will preclude such tenants from enjoying the rights and privileges of ryots.

There is a further objection to the definition of "estate" on similar grounds. It does not include such khas mehals as belong to Government, and which are not entered in the collector's General Register as revenue paying lands.

The proviso to this section again expressly excludes also such Government lands as are entered in the General Register of the Collector, and thereby curtails the definition of estate as given in Class C of Sub-section 2 of Section 3 of the Land Registration Act VII of 1876, B.C.

The effect of this would be that Government will not be deemed a "proprietor" in respect of such land—and the tenants holding lands for cultivation under Government will be excluded from the right of acquiring and enjoying the privileges of ryots by reason if the above mentioned provision on Sub-section 3 of Section 5.

The definition of "proprietor" is defective in other ways also. The word "owning" used in the above definition if meant "to be the owner of" in the common and ordinary acceptation of the word then it is very doubtful whether the definition in question would include trustees and persons having a life interest only in the property; as well as mutwallies of wakf properties, sherebats of debutter estates, and managers of charitable or religious endowments and such other persons, or proprietors.

The definition of proprietor as given in the Bill prepared by the Rent Commission had the word "owner;" and the use of the word "owning" in its place is certainly no improvement. If the word "proprietor" has been used in the present Bill in the like sense as "owner" has been defined in the English Public Health Act of 1875, to which reference was made by the Hon. Mr. Herbert when he introduced the Bill of 1883 in Council and which says owner means the person for the time being receiving the rack-rent of the lands or premises in connection with which the word is used, whether on his own account, or as agent or trustee for any other person, or who would so receive the same if such lands or premises were let at rack rent." Then it is submitted that in order to avoid future doubts the definition of proprietor should be made as clear as is the like one in the English Act. On the other hand, the definition in the Rent Commission's Bill, clearly included in the category of proprietors not only a person who was a sharer in an estate but also a person who had "an interest" in an estate. Under the present definition, it is doubtful whether a single individual, out of a number of persons who jointly own an estate, would be treated as a proprietor even separately.

Again, a person who as owner holds some specific lands in an estate or in any other way possesses an interest in the estate would have been recognised a proprietor under the said old definition. But it is very doubtful whether such a person may be reckoned as such under the present wording of this definition.

Sub-section 7.—The words "one set of conditions" in this sub-section are indefinite and may raise difficult questions as to whether various parcels of lands constitute one holding or not, though let out at different times.

CHAPTER II.—CLASSES OF TENANTS.—Section 4.—In the classification of tenants it appears that tenants holding lands other than arable lands have been purposely excluded. Yet the provision contained in Sub-section 5 of Section 5 supposes the existence of such tenants and gives them certain rights and liabilities.

Again, Class B. of Sub-section 4 makes ryots at fixed rent or at a fixed rate of rent a distinct class of tenants. This is against the recognised ideas of the country in the matter of classification of tenants. These numerous distinctions and classifications will not only complicate the system of the law without any adequate advantage being gained by any side.

Although the definition of tenure holders, as given in the present Bill, is an improvement on what is to be found in the preceding one, yet it is not at all precise. The Sub-section 4 of Section 5 which tries to distinguish a tenure holder from a ryot instead of removing rather creates difficulties on that head.

The word "primarily" used in the definition of tenure holders, although put in to cover cases other than those expressly included by the definition, will ultimately raise many difficult questions and make the definition altogether indefinite.

If the definitions of tenure holder and ryot as given in the present Bill be admittedly faulty they should be set right instead of leaving the matter to be discussed and fought out in every case with different results.

If it be difficult for the legislature to give a better and more precise definition of the two classes of tenants it would be more difficult for the Courts to apply properly such definitions in contested cases.

For reasons stated in these notes with reference to the definitions of estate and proprietor, Sub-section 3 of Sec. 5 should be expunged. The retention of this provision will be very injurious to the interest of ryots.

The presumption provided by Sub-section 5 of Section 5 is most objectionable, irrespective of the question as to whether such a class of tenants as is mentioned in this sub-section should or should not be classed as a tenure holder. The provision for such a presumption will be a fruitful source of litigation between the landlords and tenants. It will do nobody any good, but will on the contrary create more indefiniteness in the status of the tenants. It will further create many anomalies. Some tenants holding more than 100 biggas of land will remain ryots, some having the same quantity of land will be promoted to the position of tenure holders on account of having sub-let a part of their holdings, while others having the same quantity of land may remain tenants even after having sub-let the whole of their holdings as the presumption is of a rebuttable nature.

How the presumption may be rebutted it is not easy to determine.

The principles enunciated in Sub-section 4 of 5 for distinguishing a tenant from a tenure holder will not be of much use. Evidence as to the nature of the right of tenancy as originally acquired, will generally be very meagre. Inquiry on this head will generally be unsatisfactory from the nature of things.

The sub-section is objectionable also on other grounds. It indirectly gives authority not only to non-occupancy ryots to sub-let their lands, but even to tenants who are not ryots to do the same. Although the present Bill does not intend to give the rights of occupancy to tenants holding only pasture and such other lands, yet there is just a chance left for such a tenant to convert himself into a tenure holder, and thus secure a position above an occupancy ryot if he can obtain a holding of more than 100 biggas and then sub-let the whole or a part of this holding.

The creation of a new class of tenure holders from out of tenants holding more than 100 biggas will be productive of great mischief. It will bring in a state of things wholly unknown in the country; and, without any advantage being secured to the zemindar, it will encroach upon his rights and privileges.

In short, the presumption is not at all a fair one. It gives an undue advantage even to ryots who have no rights of occupancy, and to other tenants who have so long been recognised as tenants-at-will.

Section 11 of the Rent Commission's Bill had so embodied a most objectionable provision by which a new class of tenure holders were created for the country and though that provision was left out in the Bill of 1883; yet the present Bill again indirectly reproduced it only in a modified though not in a less objectionable form.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "STATESMAN."

SIR,—Without siding myself either with the landlords or with the tenants, but for the sake of justice only, I think it will not be out of place to make a suggestion at a time when this burning question of the Rent Bill is absorbing the attention of the whole people of Bengal. Tenants refractory in their nature constantly set up false pleas of having tendered their rent, adducing evidence, both oral and documentary, fabricated for the purpose. Let me suggest that no tenant should be allowed to plead payment, unless he could show satisfactorily that, previous to the institution of the suit, he had made a valid tender, and failing that, let him be required to deposit the amount with any competent authority.

All Courts and Registration and Post offices might be considered competent authorities for the purpose of this section. The Post Offices, after receiving the deposits, would dispose of them as they do of money orders, provided that no Post Office other than a head office should take and dispose of deposits amounting to more than Rs. 100. All such remittances should be made without any expense either to the landlord or to the tenant. As the Government has levied dak cesses upon all zemindaries, the zemindars and the tenants should claim this free remittance as a matter of right, and no wise Government would refuse them. On the other hand, if the zemindar should suffer a little expense for this, they would not suffer much, because in many cases this will curtail the expenses of keeping gomastas and nabs in the Mofussil.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION.

To the Editor of "The Times."

SIR,—When the public mind is being concentrated on the spurious agitation against the House of Lords and our fresh military operations in Egypt, it is apt to be led away from another important matter of grave Imperial interest—viz., our mission from India to demarcate the western and north-western boundary of Afghanistan.

Of the vast importance of this mission no one who has studied our history of Afghanistan and the rapid annexations of Russia in Central Asia can doubt. It is by far the most important and eventful mission that has ever been sent from India to any country. At the close of the session I endeavoured to obtain some information regarding the policy of Her Majesty's Government on the subject, and I asked some leading questions on the subject, but was met with the usual stereotyped reply of Her Majesty's present advisers—that they could say nothing, as negotiations were still going on. All Mr. Gladstone did was to say that the matter was of "grave importance." From the public Press we now learn that preliminaries have been settled and that Sir P. Lumsden and staff are about to start via Quetta. I will not enter into the particular merits of the officers about to be sent; no doubt they have been well selected. All I will say is that, from many years' personal acquaintance of Sir P. Lumsden, I do not share the opinions of a certain portion of the Press in thinking that a better man could be appointed. My own opinion is that Sir P. Lumsden is the best man who could be sent as head of the mission—an officer who has seen much service in almost every part of India and the frontier, and who has had a large amount of the executive management of our army there.

But I would ask, what is to be done? Where is to be the rendezvous of English, Russian, and Afghan officials? As far as we are concerned, we have no direct interest in the fixing of any particular line as the boundary of Afghan proper on the western side. With Russia it is far different. That Power has been rapidly marching eastward, and naturally, now that she is practically continuous with what has been supposed to be Afghanistan, her object will be to fix a strategic boundary, one that will assist her in the case of real or trumped up difficulties with the ruler of Afghanistan. What, then, is to be Sir P. Lumsden's position? That there will be friction between England and Russia in the matter no one can doubt. Is Sir P. Lumsden to have full powers to settle by himself all disputes? If not, to whom is he to refer, the Indian or Home Government? I presume to the former; but, if so, the matter will be of such vital importance that reference must assuredly be made to the Government of the day in this country. Well, then, how is communication to be kept up between the Indian Government and our mission? In case of further instructions required, it will take months before an answer can be sent, and supposing fresh disputes to arise, months more will elapse, and so on. If anyone supposes that there will not be grave differences of opinion, but that everything will go on amicably, I think he is vastly mistaken. Is Sir P. Lumsden instructed to yield to Russia on every point?

Again, when the boundary is fixed, what then? Are we to guarantee to the Amir its integrity? We know that Russia is not very particular about boundaries, and should she be so disposed she will not scruple to step over this boundary, as she has done in similar cases. What is to happen then? Our agreement with the Amir as a condition of the payment of our heavy subsidy to him is that he is to make us acquainted with his foreign policy. What, if he complains of Russian aggression? Are we to sit idle and look on? It appears to me our mission will be utterly useless unless we inform Russia that when once the boundary has been fixed any infraction of the agreement which will have to be signed will be a casus belli. It is no use saying that all this is hypothetical, and living in hopes that Russia will abide by her word in face of her declarations regarding Khiva and Merv. In short, does Her Majesty's Government mean real "business" in the matter, or is our mission merely a temporary blind to the public here and in India? If this is not the case, far better would it be to keep away from the matter altogether, and thus save India the expenditure of many thousands of pounds and ourselves the discredit of setting forth a phantom mission.

I will not enter into the subject of the commissariat arrangements for the supply of 1,500 men, the number mentioned as forming the escort. If the tribes are friendly disposed there may not be much difficulty, but if otherwise, the difficulties and cost of our enterprise will be enormously enhanced. To sum up, unless our Government is prepared to support the treaty fixing the boundaries by acts, and not by diplomatic palaver, and unless we now show to the people of India that so serious are the Central Asian encroachments of Russia that we are forced at last to come to an understanding, to be supported in case of need by the whole strength of the Empire, it would be much better to wash our hands of the matter altogether and let the boundary be fixed by Russians and Afghans alone.

I would conclude by saying that this is no political affair. Our future relations with Russia and Afghanistan in connection with the advances of the former are matters of vast Imperial importance, having reference to our power in India, and from the bottom of my heart I would say God speed our mission, and let it be an entire success, and put an end for ever to the jealousy between the two countries. This is my earnest hope, it is not my expectation. — Yours faithfully,

Carlton Club, August 29.

DENZIL R. ONSLOW.

SPRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

We have spoken of the one-sided character of the Rent Commission report, but as a fact it is a good deal more than merely one-sided. To act upon the views which find expression therein, and pass this Bill, will certainly be to subvert the settlement, and to make the zamindar and ryot virtually change places. Observe the following passage which we take from par. 56:—

"The price of agricultural produce has increased enormously during the last twenty or thirty years in these provinces. This increase is due to two principal causes. In the first place, even while the relative value of the precious metals remains the same, there is a constant tendency for the money value or price of agricultural produce to rise as population increases and improvement progresses. . . . In the second place, the coinage consists of silver, and the relative value of silver has been gradually decreasing. The price or money value of produce has therefore risen. We are of opinion that the landlord should have a share in the increase of price, due to the above two causes. . . . The landlord ought, according to our view, to participate in the benefit arising from each. The increase of value, if not taken by the State—and the effect of the Permanent Settlement is that the State does not take it—must go to those whom the law allows to keep all that interest in land which constitutes property in land. Now the persons who in these provinces have this property in the land under the existing law, are the zamindars and the ryots, not the ryots only."

The italics in this passage are our own. We quote the paragraph neither for its statements of fact, nor for its economic theory of the effect of population upon prices, but as a very striking exemplification of the general views with which the Commission regard the Settlement of Lord Cornwallis. We have never been numbered with the admirers of that Settlement. We have been identified for nearly thirty years with its opponents, and at a time when every local Government and Administration in this country, with the Supreme Government itself and the Secretary of State in Council, had all agreed to extend the Permanent Settlement throughout India, we stood alone in denouncing the step, and had at last the gratification of seeing its folly everywhere acknowledged, and the step abandoned. But the Rent Commissioners in this passage put an interpretation upon the Settlement, so plainly opposed to its whole scope, intention, and letter, that we honestly marvel at its audacity.

Such stress have the Commissioners laid upon the question of "prices" moreover, as the proper test of the equity or otherwise of the "rental," that their Bill makes it the controlling factor in the rental of the future, blind to the almost insuperable difficulties that attend its application. Instead of expressing here our own view of this great difficulty, we ask all parties to observe what Mr. Gladstone said about a similar proposal concerning the regulation of Irish rents, in 1870:—

"How are these rents to be valued? What is the test? The price of produce? Of what produce? Of one kind of produce or of all kinds? Can any man fix by law any system upon which it will be possible to adjust rents by calculations founded upon prices of agricultural produce of all kinds? Perhaps you will say what was done in the case of commutation of tithes? I will tell you what was done. It was a very rough process indeed,—it was a process to which the tithe commutators submitted, but to which, you may rely on it, no other powerful class in this country will ever again submit. Besides the cases differ in this—the tithe of agistment was gone, the right of the tithe commutator only subsisted in produce of certain kinds, and therefore it was not very difficult to get at the prices of those kinds of produce. The landlord's interest is not restricted to wheat, barley, and oats, but extends to all the varied descriptions of produce. There are no records of the prices. I defy you to keep up records of the prices. They are sold in every possible way and under every possible circumstance. It is impossible to combine them together so as to found upon them a compensation which you can make the basis of these enormous and complicated arrangements. Again, how is the landlord's rent to vary? Is it to vary according to the prices of produce? Because that is the proposal I have seen. It is impossible, in my opinion, to get the prices of produce so as to found the rent upon them by a public authority; and if you could get them, it would be absolutely impossible to apply a standard according to the varying circumstances of each particular holding and its capacity to produce this or that kind of produce."

But this is what the Commission propose to do, under this rash and revolutionary measure. Mr. Gladstone declares it to be impossible, in circumstances of less than one-tenth the difficulties here. And a Bill drafted in this loose and purely theoretic fashion, without an inquiry of any kind as to its probable working, is to be the land law of sixty millions of people.

We said some days ago, that the assumption which pervades the Bill and the report of the Commissioners who drafted it, is that it was the intention of Lord Cornwallis that any increment in the value of the land in these provinces, should primarily belong to the cultivator. The Commissioners do indeed allow that the zamindar "ought to participate" and "have a share" in this increment, but they maintain that the intention of the Settlement was that the State should sell its "property in the land" primarily to the ryot. It was the ryot that Lord Cornwallis wished to make proprietor, and intended to make proprietor, not the zamindar. And it is the ryots first of all in their view, who "have this property in the land under the existing law," though not exclusively. The statement is so extraordinary, that it is amazing it should ever have found utterance. It is the putting forward of these views as a basis of legislation, one hundred years after the Settlement, that elicited such strong comment upon the Bill from the Chief Justice. Like Sir Richard Garth, we should have thought it impossible beforehand, for the contention to be seriously put forward at this hour, that the beneficiary interest which the ryot possesses in his holding, was of such an order that it was the intention of Lord Cornwallis to abandon to him—to the ryot, every incident that makes what we call "property in land," reserving only the fixed assessment for the State, and a commission thereon for the zamindars.

Our views concerning the land question generally diverge, we fear, from those of Sir Richard Garth, but we agree absolutely in the strictures which he makes upon the attempt to base present legislation upon the monstrous fiction that the intention of the Settlement has been frustrated from the first. The Commissioners really seem to have persuaded themselves that the ryot at the time of the Settlement held a beneficiary interest in the land of such a nature, that the interest of the zemindar therein was altogether a subordinate one; and that the Executive Government and the Legislature conspired together from the first, to reverse the status of the two parties, and to permit the zemindar by degrees to appropriate to himself that beneficiary interest in the land, which really belonged in 1793 to the tenant. We are to hold that the Executive Government and the Legislature have steadily misinterpreted the intentions of Lord Cornwallis, and the rights of the two classes; and by this deplorable error reduced the ryot to beggary, and made the zemindar an oppressor. And it is upon this new reading of matters, that we are to override all representations that the Settlement is being subverted, and are to legislate upon the assumption that the interpretation put upon that Settlement for a century past—that is, from its very beginning—has been an erroneous one.

We ask the Government itself, whether it believes that a precedent could be found in any civilised country for legislation inspired by such views. There being no public in India, and the Executive Government having adopted the views of its Secretary, it proceeds at once to move the Legislative Council to give effect by law to the revolution which such views must necessarily make in the status of the two parties. It is useless to remonstrate, because there is no public to appeal to, no public opinion to be elicited of sufficient strength to arrest such legislation. The Zemindar is reduced to hope that some change in the wheel of politics at home may bring with it a change of Ministry. Under a system like this, there is no security whatever against the most revolutionary measures being passed at the will of any clever Secretary who may have some crotchet in his head, and some enthusiasm to back it up. We owe this measure apparently to the ascendancy of Mr. Mackenzie in the councils of Sir Ashley Eden, and the earnestness with which he seems to have pressed his views upon his colleagues. Falling in with the temper of the times, the Bill once adopted by the Executive Government, no reasoning or remonstrance is of any avail. The Bill ought to be thrown out altogether, and the simple legislation that is wanted substituted in its room. Mr. Mackenzie referred to proceed upon his own conception of the theoretic best, and had little difficulty of course in reading it into "the lines" of the Settlement. That the Settlement will be largely subverted by the Bill, there can be no honest doubt. The interpretation put upon it from the first, and acted upon for nearly a hundred years, is to be abandoned, because Mr. Mackenzie is convinced that the interpretation is an erroneous one. Do we not say rightly, that things are done in India that are done in no other country in the world?

DALHOUSIE INSTITUTE.

A MEETING was held recently under the auspices of the East Indian and Anglo-Indian Association, at which Mr. Atkins, as previously announced in these columns, had been invited to speak upon the subject of Lord Kimberley's declared policy towards the "poor white" in this country and the descendants of domiciled Europeans. The chair was taken by the Rev. Mr. Bray, Chaplain of St. John's, and on the platform were Mr. Clarke, of the Indian Daily News, Mr. Gasper, Barrister-at-Law, Mr. Ledlie, Mr. James, Mr. Ma'ge, Secretary of the Institution, and others. The hour was a very favourable one, and by the appointed time a crowded audience had dropped in from their various offices. The chairman introduced Mr. Atkins in a few words, and then Mr. Atkins addressed the meeting. It may be said at once that Mr. Atkins is a very zealous partisan of the side he takes up. His language is blunt, his argument plain, and his whole story unpretentious, simple and vehement. He dwelt upon the fact that the Europeans and the descendants of domiciled Europeans were shut out from various State employ which has become wholly a reserve for the Asiatic native of the country, with whom, as natives of India, Anglo-Indians, Eurasians and East Indians they, had, under the charter, equal rights. Mr. Atkins was well received; but we were somewhat astonished at his assertion that it was the deliberate policy of the Government to drive the classes in whose behalf he spoke to marriage with the Hindu and Mussulman communities, and so merge them into the native population if they wished to compete at all for public service. Mr. Ledlie seconded, the resolution moved by Mr. Atkins, which was:—

"That this meeting respectfully protests against the avowed policy of the Secretary of State in regard to the exclusion of Englishmen and their descendants from the public services in India as being unjust and cruel to Englishmen and their descendants, injurious to the best interest of the country, and opposed to the welfare and happiness of the native masses."

The speech of the evening was, undoubtedly, an eloquent peroration by Mr. Gasper, who by the calm, impassioned and forcible language employed by him caught the attention of his hearers at once, held them closely to his discourse, and sat down amidst enthusiastic applause. Mr. Gasper is an Armenian gentleman without, as he told the meeting, one drop of European blood in his veins, and he described himself as an Asiatic citizen of the Empire, come upon that platform to speak disinterestedly, and in a cause which had his complete sympathy. He reminded the audience that this was the first meeting that had been held in Calcutta since 1831, a period of more than half a century, in which year the grievances that these same communities were subject to had occasioned a representation to Parliament, through the medium of Mr. Ricketts, a Civilian, who was specially deputed to England for that purpose. It was the year, or rather the next year was of the great reform measures which convulsed the English nation; but yet Mr. Ricketts successfully executed his mission, and the result was that charter under which natives of India laid claim to service under Government without distinction of caste, or creed, or race, upon the sole condition of ability, integrity and fitness. Mr. Gasper pointed out that agitation was now in England the means to every political end, which the natives of India were quick to perceive, and that they had formed an association in London for the purpose which they had in view. Agitation! agitation!! agitation!!! he counselled, was the only means of obtaining the community their just rights, and that the matter had only to be represented vigorously, logically and well, to bring home to the understanding of the Government the political expediency, apart from the moral right, of admitting to open competition on equal terms with the children of the soil, the descendants of those who had wrested it, to the honour and glory of England, and helped to save it for the Crown in the dark days of 1857.

Mr. Gasper's resolution was seconded by Mr. James, and was as follows:—

"That this meeting pledges itself to oppose this policy by all lawful means within its reach, and especially by legitimate public agitation in England and India, and to this end determines on sending copies of the resolutions now passed to the Government of India and to all local governments, and to the European and Anglo-Indian Defence Association, in the hope of securing their help in bringing about a policy in harmony with the spirit and letter of existing Acts of Parliament and proclamations of the Queen, and the interests of all classes of the Queen's subjects in India."

The Rev. Mr. Bray followed by an adjuration that they should claim the rights they had inherited, and which, as natives of India, the Government could not deny to them. The East Indian Association, he said, should have for its watchword "Union and Strength," and given these properties, there could be no fear of the result.

The meeting concluded with an enthusiastic vote of thanks to the chairman and Mr. Atkins, who, it is understood, will carry on the campaign."—Statesman.

THE SIMLA EXODUS.

The controversy regarding the annual migration of Indian officials to their hill stations meets with only a doubtful reception in some of the leading English newspapers. A few hardy veterans write to the Times and other journals and protest that they never went to the hills during the whole course of their service. To which it is replied that probably in their days the hills were not accessible; and they have omitted to state how many sea voyages they made to the Cape of Good Hope, which was the favourite sanitarium of former days; especially to members of the Civil Service who received something like two-thirds of their full allowances during the two years of sick leave which could be taken after intervals of three years' actual service in India. There is a constant tendency in all such privileges granted to generate abuses, and there were some delicate individuals, who unquestionably abused the benevolent intention of the Government of India in those times. The question, however, now is not as regards invalids, but concerning those individuals who, in perfect health, are taken up to the cool hill stations at the public expense, and with undiminished salary, although the high scale of Indian official salaries is notoriously due to the risks and hardships of a service to be carried on in a hot climate. What right can a Government official have, be he a Government Secretary, or the head of one of the numerous Government Departments, to establish himself at Simla, and draw the salary which was fixed according to the supposed dangers and discomforts of a life in Calcutta? Who is there, in private life, who has not heard, during his brief visit to a hill station, the confession of the pampered official that he would sacrifice half his salary to be able to live and work always in a cool climate? And there is yet one more point of grave importance which may be briefly noticed regarding the moral effect on a Government official such as the head of a department who lives in the hills, and issues his mandates to subordinates who are in the heat of the plains. It is an axiom, that no man in command should give an order which he is not prepared to carry out, if need be, in his own person. How can the departmental chief reconcile it to his conscience to bid his subordinates go through fire and water, whilst he himself looks on from a position of comfort and safety? But reasons against abuses of official life in the hills are so numerous, that it is imperative on the Indian Government delicately to examine the question before the force of public opinion becomes irritated and unreasonable.—Englishman.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION.

It might have occurred to Mr. Gladstone when defending his policy of scuttling out of Afghanistan that his constituents would like to hear something about the commission which has been sent out to arrange the frontier line between the territories of the Czar and the Ameer. It is an expedition of which we are likely to hear more, and probably it will not be quite of a satisfactory character. The work is one of great peril, and so far as is yet known it has not received the enthusiastic and spontaneous endorsement of the Ameer. He has shown a reluctance to guarantee the safety of the mission, and the latest news which has reached England from Simla on the subject is that the force accompanying the English commissioners will be greatly augmented. But not a word had Mr. Gladstone to offer to calm the apprehensions which have arisen. In connection with Afghanistan affairs there is mixed up in his mind a clever Russian lady, and it was as much as he could do to keep in check the unstinted admiration which he feels for this astute female diplomatist. The passion of the right hon. gentleman for Madame Novikof is something remarkable. She has taken such complete possession of his mind on this subject that she has found no difficulty in persuading him that it is not only ungenerous, but unjust, to suspect Russia of any designs upon India, and that if anything could excite the ambition of Russia in such a direction it would be such a policy as that adopted by Lord Beaconsfield towards Afghanistan. This may be so, but less emotional mortals than Mr. Gladstone are unable to see how Lord Beaconsfield's policy could be the cause of such a wonderful effect; and if they are disposed to suspect Russia they find encouragement in the semi-official organs of the Russian Foreign-office. The writers in these journals assure us that Russia enters upon the Boundary Commission with something like resentment. "It is distinctly harmful," they say, "to inspire Asiatics with the belief that our peaceful conduct is dictated to us by political considerations, that it is the result of an evil necessity, and is compelled by the pressure of an irresistible Power from which they can seek defence and protection against Russia." If this, then, be the feeling of Russia in the matter of the Boundary Commission, something else was due from Mr. Gladstone then a gushing tribute to the abilities of the charming "O K."—Liverpool Courier.

A RUNAWAY ENGINE.—At 9.35 a.m. on the 3rd ult., an engine, uncontrolled, came steaming out of the locomotive yard at Dinapore on to the up-mail line. It appears that a native shunter and fireman were engaged under the engine attending to some machinery when the engine started. The shunter managed to get out between the engine and tender and eventually got on to the engine, and succeeded in stopping it at the canal bridge. The fireman had a most miraculous escape, having received only a few bruises. The up-mail train had left Patna, so the station master at Dinapore, Mr. Anderson, took the precaution to warn the intermediate station, Bankipore, to keep the up-line clear, as an engine had broken loose.

Mr. J. F. Gell, the Bishop's nephew and tutor of the Ramnad and Pudukottah princes at Madras, died and was buried at the Cathedral on Friday. Mr. Gell was only thirty-three years of age, but was always in delicate health. He was held in great respect, and his death is, in consequence, greatly regretted.

H. E. the Governor of Madras replied as follows to H. R. H. the Prince of Wales's invitation to co-operate in the Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886:—"I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your Royal Highness's letter, dated 17th June, 1884, conveying to me the intimation of your Royal Highness's intention to hold a special exhibition of the produce and manufactures of the Indian Empire and the Colonies in 1886, and desiring the assistance of this Government to the undertaking. In reply, I have the honour to state that the Madras Government gladly welcome the opportunity of extending more widely the appreciation of the resources of Southern India, and are prepared to do all that lies in their power adequately to represent this presidency at the approaching Exhibition."

THE SALEM PERJURY CASES.—We publish the judgments of Justice Hutchins and Brand in the appeals preferred by the prisoners in these cases against the judgment of the Sessions Judge of Coimbatore, convicting them and sentencing them to various terms of imprisonment. The appeals were argued before their lordships on Monday. Mr. Spring Branson appeared in support of the convictions, and Mr. Wedderburn for the appellants. In the case of Sabapatni, their lordships reserved their judgment, as they wished to look into the evidence. The convictions of the Sessions Court in the cases of Thandavaroyen, Royapoh Chetty, Govinden Chetty, Raza Govinden, Chenna Kristnen, and Venkatachellapathy was upheld. —Times.

CHEMICAL EXAMINER'S DEPARTMENT.—Difficulty having been experienced in the selection of candidates to fill the appointment of Chemical Examiner, Madras, Government have ordered that a few young officers of the Indian Medical Service should be attached for duty under the Chemical Examiner, with a view to qualifying themselves for the duties of the Chemical Examiner during his absence or when the appointment falls vacant. The Surgeon-General with the Government of Madras has, accordingly, issued a departmental circular to all Indian medical officers who entered the service in 1880 and since, requesting those who wished to qualify for the Chemical Examiner's duties to send in the applications to that effect. —Standard.

THE MADRAS HARBOUR.—It will be gratifying to those who wish the Madras Harbour restored and completed, to hear that the construction of two Titan cranes and one revolving crane for setting large blocks in the breakwaters, has been sanctioned by the India Office in London, and the order has been given to the manufacturers. One of the Titan cranes is to be ready for shipment in six months, the other soon afterwards, so that we may hope to see block-setting resumed on the pier-work, according to the recommendations in the report by the London committee, dated January 23, 1883, has been sanctioned, and is already being carried out under Mr. Beardmore's superintendence at the north pier. The pier-work has not been quite idle since the storm of November, 1881, for some 500 large concrete blocks were made under Mr. Parke's instructions in 1882. These, with the stone-work mentioned above, will give the new revolving crane something to work with, as soon as it can be brought out and erected here. —Mail.

The Madras Times hears that in consequence of recent frauds committed on the Telegraph Department by means of the facilities afforded to the public of making remittances by telegraph, it is the intention of the Director General of Telegraphs to discontinue the practice of accepting deposits from the public for payment to the addresses of telegrams upon which such deposits have been made, from the first proximo. The Government of India has decided that the new military Cantonment at Duki, hitherto variously known as "New Cantonment," "Duki Cantonment," and "Thul Chotiali Cantonment," should in future be called the "Thul Chotiali Cantonment."

Further particulars with reference to the sad accident to Lieutenant Birdwood, of the Royal Artillery, which occurred at Duki recently, have reached Quetta. It appears that while galloping after a pig his horse stumbled and fell, and unfortunately rolled over on to him, completely crushing in one side of his body. The case was hopeless from the first, and the injured officer died the next morning.

In consequence of the conduct of the inhabitants of the village of Kalsar in the Thasra taluka of the Kaira district in suppressing evidence of a murder which occurred close to their village, the Government has ordered that an additional police force shall be employed in the village for one year at an annual cost of Rs. 1,343-8.

The Pioneer, referring to the question of the postponement of the Bombay International Exhibition, says:—"The Bombay view is that the Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886 will close six months before the Bombay Exhibition is opened—if the original date of the latter be adhered to—and that this would give ample time for exhibits to be sent from England to India. To complicate matters there is the Australian Jubilee Exhibition, which is also to be held 1887. There is thus the danger that one of the enterprises will go to the wall, and in the interests of the Western Presidency we sincerely hope it will not be the Bombay Exhibition, in support of which so much practical enthusiasm has lately been shown."

Lieutenant G. E. Gates, adjutant, Kolhapore Infantry Corps, and ex officio Assistant to the Political Agent, has been granted two months' privilege leave.

On Wednesday, the 13th ult. H.M.S. They were found to be in a satisfactory condition; and on Thursday, in accordance with orders received from the Admiralty, the vessel left for Muscat. She will stay at that port a short time and then proceed to England. It is stated that she had been ordered home in consequence of several serious defects which have been discovered in her bottom and elsewhere.

An animated discussion followed upon a recommendation from the town Council to sanction a grant of Rs. 8,800 for the making of a new road to Chingpoojy, which it was urged would be a great benefit to the locality. There was a strong feeling expressed in favour of refusing the grant in order to show the independence of the Corporation, as a protest against the recent strictures on its actions. Mr. Macfarlane strongly deprecated any such course; and ultimately it was agreed to sanction the expenditure required, notwithstanding that several members contended that the proceedings of making grants between budget time was most unbusinesslike and irregular.

BURMA.

News has been received at Rangoon of the arrival at Bangkok of the expedition known as the Holt-Hallett exploring party, which started in January last from Moulmein accompanied by Dr. Cushing, the journey having lasted five months and a half.

Rs.135 in 1882 to Rs.109 in the year under notice. Of the total number of suits to which a money value can be assigned, 14 per cent. were less than Rs.10 in value, and in the previous year 80 per cent. were less than Rs.100 in value. The fall in the total value of suits was due to the marked decrease in the Recorder's Court and in the Court of the Deputy Commissioner, Akyab.

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(Bombay Government Gazette, August 19.)

The designation of the Rangoon and Irrawaddy State Railway Volunteer Corps has been changed to the Burmah State Railway Volunteer Corps.

Captain J. Gordon, Paymaster 2nd Battalion Devonshire Regiment, Jullunder, is about proceeding on two months' privilege leave.

Captain J. Walker, Paymaster, Army Pay Department, 1st Battalion South Yorkshire Regiment, Dinapore, is proceeding on two months' leave to Kashmir.

Lieutenant W. H. Hinde, Royal Engineers, attached to the Bengal Sappers and Miners, has been granted leave to England, to April 1, 1885, on private affairs.

Lieutenant Colonel C. T. W. Penton, 1st. Battalion Connaught Rangers, has been appointed Commandant Naini Tal Depot, and will take command on the 16th inst.

Surgeon D. A. Patterson, I.M.D., has been permitted by the Secretary of State to return to duty; and Surgeon P. J. Baker, I.M.D., has returned to military employ.

The leave granted to Colonel W. M. Campbell, R. E. and Colonel F. S. Iredell, Infantry, has been extended till November 28 and March 31, respectively.

The services of Major W. S. Peat, who was until lately second assistant to the agent to the Governor General at Baroda, have been placed at the disposal of H.E. the Commander in Chief.

Captain Clough-Taylor has resigned the Viceroy's personal staff on the expiration of his leave. This will give Captain Burn, now extra aide-de-camp, the substantive appointment.

Lieutenant Colonel and Brevet Colonel Bartleman, Bengal Staff Corps, has been placed on the retired list, subject to Her Majesty's approval.

Independently of financial reasons, we hear that the abandonment of the proposed camp of exercise at Hasan Abdul is mainly due to the scarcity of transport available.

It is rumoured that the 9th N.I., from Puna, will be sent to Aden in case more troops are required in consequence of the reduction of the garrison in connection with the rising in Yemen.

We regret to learn that Lieut. W. Evans Gordon, assistant political agent, who arrived in Bombay on the 1st inst., has since his arrival been seriously ill, and is now lying at the Officers' Sanitarium at Colaba.

The Government of India has decided that the new military cantonment at Duki hitherto variously known as "New Cantonment," "Duki Cantonment," and "Thal Chotiali Cantonment," shall in future be called the "Thal Chotiali Cantonment."

It is rumoured that the 25th L.I., from Bhuj, will proceed, as soon as the monsoon permits, to Bombay, to relieve the 10th N.I., who will proceed to Bhuj. The 25th L.I. will remain in Bombay until relieved by the 3rd L.I., from Quetta.

The services of Surgeon L. J. Young, Indian Medical Service, have been placed at the disposal of the Home Department, for employment under the Government of the Punjab, with effect from the 24th inst.

The services of Surgeon J. B. Gibbons, officiating medical officer, 11th Bengal Lancers, have been placed at the disposal of the Home Department for temporary civil employment under the Government of Bengal.

Major Little, M.D., Commandant Berar Volunteer Corps, having proceeded on ninety days' leave, Captain Nicholls, of No. 1 or A Company, officiates commandant, in addition to his other duties.

Major G. C. D. Bampfild, Army Pay Department, Paymaster Royal Welsh Fusiliers, Dum Dum, has been granted leave on medical certificate to the 12th of November next, and a Committee of Paymastership has been formed to carry on his duties.

The Controller, Military Accounts, Bengal, had a very narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident a few days ago. He was on horseback, when a dog cart, which was being driven at a rapid rate, collided with him, the wheel striking him on the knee and throwing him off his horse, luckily without serious injury.

Colonel Justice (M.S.C.), Commandant 6th Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, at Raichore, is about proceeding on leave. Captain Kirkwood will officiate Commandant, and Lieutenant Lushington as second in command pro tem. The public buildings for the infantry at Raichore are steadily progressing.

In the Adjutant-General's Department of the Bombay Presidency the Indian forces appear to have almost a monopoly of the appointments. At present out of nine officers holding births therein, six belong to the Indian and three to the British service; the adjutant-General and his deputy are of different services certainly; the Assistant adjutant-General at headquarters belongs to the British, but the three assistant adjutant-Generals are of the Indian, whilst out of the four deputy assistants, there is only one incumbent belonging to the British service; the Brigade Majors are also in the minority as regards the British, to the extent also of one to three.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

ANOTHER MONSTER MEETING IN BEHAR AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.—THE RYOTS COMING FORWARD TO OPPOSE THE BILL

THE following highly significant telegram, dated Arrah, September 3, has been received in London:

"A monster meeting of the landholders of the Shahabad district was held at Arrah yesterday. His Highness the Maharajah of Doomraon was in the chair. Hundreds of ryots were also present. Resolutions were unanimously passed, condemning the Bengal Tenancy Bill as confiscatory of the rights of the landlords, as vested by the Permanent Settlement. It was further resolved that the provisions of the Bill are prejudicial to the present ryots. Concerted action with other associations was resolved on, and much enthusiasm was shown throughout."

One by one each district of the province that is being harassed and threatened by Lord Ripon's revolutionary proposals, is thus coming forward to protest, in the only manner open to it, against the oppression of this new Radical tyranny. A monster meeting of the people of Shahabad under the presidency of the Maharajah of Doomraon is as conclusive of the opinion of that district, as was the earlier one in Gya with the Maharajah of Hutwa in the chair, or the still earlier one in the Patna district held under the auspices of the Maharajah of Darbhanga. But if the damning evidence of the recently published report on the Sonthal Pergunnahs and the remarks of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal thereon, are not sufficient to stay Lord Ripon's persecuting hand, "neither will he be persuaded even though one rose from the dead."

MR. DENZIL ONSLOW ON THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION.

At the present moment, when the frantic efforts of the Radical party are concentrated on the attempt to conceal their disastrous failures abroad by an attack on the Constitution at home, Mr. Denzil Onslow has done a great public service to the Empire by his letter to the Times on the Afghan Frontier Commission, which we reproduce elsewhere. Mr. Onslow's letter throws a clear light on the immense importance of this Commission to the future of the British Empire; and whilst he chivalrously refuses to condemn the Government of Mr. Gladstone so long as their adroit reticence keeps us in ignorance as to whether they have shown, by their arrangements, any appreciation of the vastness of the stake at issue, he indicates with the utmost precision what those arrangements ought to be. We can only hope that his demands will be supported, when Parliament meets next month, by every patriotic member of the House of Commons. It will then be too late for the Government to alter any of its preliminary arrangements for the conduct of the Mission; and as "too late" has been inscribed on every other act of the present Ministry, so we fear that any repentance in regard to the Afghan Boundary Commission, that may be forced on the Government by Parliament in October, will come "too late" for the immediate purposes of the safety and success of the mission. But it will not be too late, it may be hoped, for Parliament to interfere beneficially by insisting that Mr. Gladstone shall not make the whole thing a disgraceful sham to cover Russian aggression. From his speech at Edinburgh last Monday, the Prime Minister seems to regard Madame de Novikoff in the same friendly light as of old, as a trustworthy guide for British statesmen in their dealings with Russia; and doubtless Madame de Novikoff would recommend him to treat Sir Peter Lumsden's Commission as nothing more than an illusory sop to English and Indian Russophobia. It remains to be seen which inspiration Mr. Gladstone will accept, the insidious Russian or the loyal English one.

"ONE-SIDED FREE TRADE" IN INDIA.

MR. SYED MOHAMMAD HOSSAIN, of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, has produced a most valuable and interesting book, which he calls "Our Difficulties and Wants in the Path of Progress of India." (Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co., London.) Mr. Hossain is a gentleman of wide and varied experience and high attainments. A gentleman of Oudh, who can remember the old Nawabi period in Lucknow, with all its barbaric opulence, and who has also within the last year or two kept his terms at the Cirencester College in England, may well have a "story to tell," of no ordinary interest. As, moreover, Mr. Hossain has long been an Inspector of Schools in Oudh, under the British Government—and consequently a travelling officer—his remarks on the prospects of agriculture, of commerce, and of the people generally, would, in any case, be worthy of attention. But Mr. Hossain combines, with his great and unique experience, observing faculties of no mean order; and he tells us what he thinks, with much naïveté and shrewdness.

Like many other people, Mr. Hossain cannot make out how it is that the one-sided, false-bottomed fiscal question that is misnamed Free Trade—which is really "Protection" of the most stupid kind, Protection of the foreigner—does not produce in India all those benefits which Mr. Cobden and Mr. Bright declared would ensue from it everywhere. The English working classes are just now very much in Mr. Hossain's frame of mind.

They, too, "cannot make out how it is." Every other nation on the face of the globe—the French, the Germans, the Austrians, the Americans, and even our own colonies—have solved the problem to their own satisfaction; they have found out that the system which is starving the English working man, which is driving our manufacturers and our commerce to foreign lands, which is ruining those of our colonies (such as the West Indies) on whom we can force it, and which threatens to do as much for India, where British bayonets thrust abolition of import duties on an unwilling people—is a system of Free Trade which is a gross imposture, and is Free Trade only in name.

Mr. Hossain, like a brave man, accepts the inevitable, and has written a very interesting and instructive book to show how the evils of a faulty system may be mitigated by individual energy and by the judicious investment of capital. We may return hereafter to the consideration of his book from this, the immediately practical point of view. But in the meantime we commend to our readers one or two extracts from Mr. Hossain's opening chapters. After frankly explaining the many terrible abuses of the old Nawabi rule in Oudh and the undoubted excellence of the existing administrative arrangements, he goes on:—

"Having become conversant with the nature of the Government, an example of which has been given in the foregoing paragraph, I was really unable to understand what were the advantages of the old time, which make the people so unanimously sigh for it. But at last, after long observation, and full and continuous attention to the circumstances of the people, I found out the secret, that the people in question have gained nothing by the change of the Government, or by free trade; rather they are gradually losing privileges which they formerly possessed. Moreover, the sources of the one thing for which they care, i.e. sufficiency of food, which undoubtedly heretofore had been numerous, have greatly decreased for them. For instance, at first they had entire command and control over agriculture, they had besides many other means within their reach of obtaining a livelihood. . . . Really, the changes and improvements made by the present Government have, as yet, done no good for them, and as long as the people remain the slaves of misery they will not appreciate these improvements. There are post offices, but as a rule the poor have nothing to communicate. There are schools, but they cannot afford to educate the children. There are roads, but they have little or no traffic. There is law, but it has been of very little benefit to them."

So in England, we have a "cheap loaf" for the poor man and no wages, or very low wages, wherewith to purchase it.

"Had they some other means of employing their labour, besides producing the thing which they require in order to preserve their life, certainly their condition would not have been what it is, as they would have enjoyed the benefit of the division of labour, free trade, and home industry; but as they have none of these blessings in their mode of life, they resemble greatly the labourers of the old fable of the pearl fishery in Ceylon, who were employed by foreign dealers in pearl, and used to receive for their labour the oysters, upon which they lived. To those labourers, the pearls (so the story goes) which were sold in India for wonderful prices, were no better than pebbles on the sea shore. . . . There are some other things in this subject worth consideration; the fact, for instance, of there being scarcely any duties on our tea, coffee, tobacco, and silver articles, &c., for the manufacture of which India still has a reputation. But in order to avoid touching on political points, we will say nothing on these matters."

Mr. Hossain wisely urges his fellow-countrymen to strive after an extended commerce, and an improved system of agriculture; and for these ends, he asks for an extension of general and technical education, and deprecates the foolish Radical sentimentalism that would sacrifice the material prosperity of the country to craze about "Primary education for the masses." In a singularly modest and unassuming way, Mr. Hossain's book is highly suggestive, and full of sound practical common-sense.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA—The tenders for £2,171,000 Treasury bills were opened on Sept. 3 at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were as follows, viz.:—In bills at three months, £1,645,000, and in bills at six months, £526,000. Tenders for the former at £99 13s. and above will receive in full, and for the latter at £98 16s. 7d. will receive 75 per cent., and above in full. This result represents a discount rate of 1½ per cent. (28s.) and 2 11-32 per cent. respectively, while the average rate for three months bills was £1 6s. 6d. per cent., and for the six months paper £2 5s. 10½d. per cent.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION—The Press Association says that Sir Peter Lumsden, of the Afghan Frontier Commission, accompanied by Major Barrow and Nawab Khan, interpreter, left Charing cross on Sept. 4 for Odessa, travelling via Ostend, Cologne, and Vienna. They crossed to Calais in the mail packet Foam at about ten o'clock. Mr. Stevens, assistant commissioner, and Mr. Herbert left London the next day. It is expected that the work of the Commission will extend over eighteen months.

FREE MEMORIAL FUND—A very influential committee has been formed in Bombay for the Frere Memorial Fund, and it is expected that a sum of not less than 50,000 rupees will be raised in India altogether towards worthily perpetuating the great Anglo-Indian statesman who did so much for the prosperity of Bombay. The Parsees, as usual, are taking a prominent part in the movement.

THE INDO-AUSTRALIAN TEA TRADE.—In 1883-4 there was a falling off in the Indo-Australian tea trade of £2,360,000, as compared with the previous year. This serious decrease is attributed by the colonial agents to the undesirable quality of the greater part of the tea sent to their market. The tea is described as being "coarse, stinky, and broken, with common poor liquors. It is packed in rough, heavy chests, too large for general requirements, and comparing unfavorably with the neat, even boxes from China." The Calcutta Tea Syndicate are making efforts to remedy these defects.

THE SILVER MARKET AND EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—Bar Silver and Mexican dollars are unchanged in price at 50½d. and 49¾d. per ounce respectively, and business in each case has been very limited. There is likewise no alteration in any of the Eastern exchange rates, and Rupee Paper closes much as it did on Saturday, at about 83 for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80½ 81 for the Four per Cents.

TUESDAY.—Very little business has been done in bar silver, which remains at 50½d. per ounce, Mexican dollars being nominally quoted at 49¾d. The only alteration in the Eastern exchange rates is a fall of ¼d. in Shanghai to 5s. 1½d. Rupee Paper has again been very quiet at about previous prices.

WEDNESDAY.—The Indian Council offered 15 lakhs of drafts for sale to-day, but made no allotment. The opinion generally prevailing this afternoon was that possibly a few tenders at 1s. 7-16d. per rupee were sent in, but that the demand being by no means general or active at that price, the Council considered it advisable to adhere to 1s. 7½d., the price obtained last Wednesday, and only made a special sale of Rs.62,000 of bills at that price on Madras. If the above be the policy of the India Council the effect will most likely be a steadier feeling in the exchanges, which so far are unaltered, more especially if there be an abstention of sales for two or three weeks in succession. Bar silver also has not been affected in any way, there being very little of it on the market to be dealt with. The latest price was again 50½d. per ounce; but rather more than £35,000 will be available to-morrow. There has been a greater demand for Mexican dollars for China, and with no supplies of importance either on hand or to arrive for several days, the price is firmer at 49¾d. to 49½d. per ounce. The Hong Kong exchange rate has advanced a little to 3s. 8½d., Shanghai remaining at 5s. 1½d. A small amount of business has been done in Rupee paper, which closed at 82½ to 83 for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80½ to 81 for the Four per Cents.

THURSDAY.—The Silver Market is firm. The price of refined bars has advanced ¼d., the remittance per Aracania of about £35,000 having been disposed of at 50½d. per ounce. It is understood, however, that the purchases were not on Indian account. At the same time Mexican dollars are quoted at 49¾d. per ounce, but this is in response chiefly to the increased demand, there having as yet been no increase in the amount of business done, owing to the smallness of the available supplies. Indian exchange rates remain at 1s. 7-13-32d., and Shanghai at 5s. 1½d. but the Hongkong quotation has again advanced a little, to 3s. 9d. per dollar. Rupee Paper has been inactive, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closing at 82½ 82½, and the Four per Cents. at 80½ 81.

FRIDAY.—Holders of bar silver have again obtained 50½d. per ounce, but the market was quiet, as yesterday's transactions cleared nearly all the available supplies. Mexican dollars are still quoted at 49¾d., but with very little business. All exchange rates from the East are unaltered but Four and a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper is stronger at 82½ 83½, there having been a slight increase in the demand. The Four per Cents., however, remain at 80½ 81.

SATURDAY.—The purchases of bar silver effected yesterday and the day before left very little to be dealt with, and the market has to-day been very quiet at 50½d. per ounce. No dealings have been reported in Mexican dollars, which are again quoted at 49¾d. The exchange rates from India are slightly harder at 1s. 7-16d., but China quotations are unaltered. Rupee paper has been very inactive, and closed ½ to ¼ lower. The Four per Cents. are now quoted at 80½ 80½, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. at 82½ 83.

Her Majesty's sloop Dryad, 1,620 tons, Captain E. Grey Hulton, sailed on the 18th instant for the Persian Gulf.

Captain H. Kiddel and Lieutenants Wall and McCrea, Calcutta Volunteer Rifles, have resigned their commissions.

Major W. F. C. Gray, 1st Battalion Border Regiment Agra, has proceeded home on three months' leave on urgent private affairs.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's sales of 12,284 packages comprised 10,120 packages Congou, 572 Souchongs, 685 S. O. Pekoe, 579 siftings, &c. A large proportion of the Congou consisted of old season's kinds, and went at full rates. New teas show no change. The private contract market remains very quiet, but prices are firm.

SUGAR.—The market has again fallen into a quiet state. Sales of West India do not exceed 37 casks, 2,000 barrels and bags. Crystallised Demerara by auction went slowly at 17s. to 22s. for low to good bright, 153 bags Guatemala sold at 10s. to 13s. 6d.; 60 bags. Natal bought in 10s. 6d. In the Clyde market prices sold at a decline of 3d. to 6d. from the highest point last week.

COFFEE.—Brazil is firm, but quiet. The public sales to-day were too small to quote from.

COCOA.—The auctions, which were small, went without alteration; about 50 bags Grenada sold at 62s. to 70s., being previous value. Of 130 bags Ceylon which went again at lower rates, ordinary to good brought 67s. to 74s. 6d. The limited quantities of other imports were bought in or withdrawn.

RICE.—There have been arrivals. One cargo of Bassein sold. Particulars not reported.

PEPPER remains quiet. Cassia Lignea, after selling at 26s. last week, subsequently realised 27s. to 27s. 6d. per cwt.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

CHINA TEA.—In proportion to the large offerings of samples (red and black leaf), ex three new steamers just arrived, only a very limited business has been done. Prices privately show no quotable alteration. No public auctions have been held; but 7,570 packages without reserve are catalogued for to-morrow. Indian, Ceylon, and Java Teas.—2,168 packages Indian and 330 Ceylon sold at firm rates, all grades under 1s. per lb. being specially competed for. Some choice teas realised very high rates. 1,049 packages Java tea sold with irregularity, but generally maintained the late improved prices.

SUGAR remains dull. Sales of West India by private contract have been only 28 casks on the spot. Floating a cargo St. Lucia sold 17s. 3d., and one Antigua at 12s. 6d. for Liverpool. Beet quiet, at yesterday's rates. In the Clyde market rather more business doing at unaltered rates.

COFFEE very steady. The good qualities were in some cases rather dearer. 115 casks Plantation Ceylon sold—low-middling to middling, 74s. to 78s.; 53 cases 1,686 bags East India, low medium to medium, 59s. 6d. to 63s. 6d.; good-middling to bold, 68s. to 70s. 109 casks foreign part sold—foxey greenish Guatemala, 45s. to 48s.; Columbian, 45s. to 61s.; washed Rio, 53s. to 54s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo of 1,780 bags Bassein sold at 7s. 5½d. for Amsterdam.

SPICES.—At the auctions nutmegs in good demand at a further advance of ¼d. to 1d. 28 cases Penang sold bold, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d.; medium, 6d. to 2s. 8d.; small, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d.; Zanzibar cloves declined ¼d., 151 bls. sold at 5½d. to 5¾d.; Ceylon and Bengali ginger, 1s. to 2s. dearer. Of the former 321 bags mostly sold; small to medium rough, 47s. 6d. to 50s.; good bold, 52s. 6d. to 53s. 6d.; washed, small and broken, 46s. 6d.; small and medium, 48s. to 49s. 321 bags Bengal bought in at 40s. Pimento quiet and easier; 1,740 bags part sold, 2½d. to 2¾d. Black and white pepper dull, and tending downwards. 197 bags Singapore, white, sold at 10d. to 10½d., and a few lots Siam at 7¾d., the bulk of the supply being bought in. 360 bags Cassia Lignea bought in at 28s. per cwt.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's Overland Circular of Colonial

Foreign Produce says that since the date of last advices there have been few changes in the produce markets, which, rather contrary to general expectation, barely support the improvement last quoted, and supplies are rather large. China tea is now quiet, the business being upon a very moderate scale at the recent advance. Indian growths continue in good demand at full prices, and Ceylon has sold steadily. Rice is quieter, a few of the cargoes arrived off the coast have sold at about previous rates. Nothing of interest in coffee, prices being firm for desirable qualities. The common to medium kinds of East India are in good supply, and do not show any recovery. Colony Plantation Ceylon has again realised some advance. Rio is quiet, deliveries in Hawke last month being very large, the surplus stock at the close, compared with 1883, was brought down to about 4,500 tons. The tone of the sugar market has been more subdued. Several cargoes, West India, off the coast, have, however, been taken at rather lower quotations. Rice grocery crystallised Demerara is dearer. Other cane grown has been inactive. Beet, after selling at a fall of 6d. per cwt. from the highest point of last week, is again a trifle better to-day. With the increased breadth of land under cultivation of beetroot it is inferred that the output of sugar will be larger than during any former season. This will, of course, depend upon the weather during the present month. At the spice sales home trade kinds of nutmegs advanced fully 1d., small shipping sorts being also rather dearer. Ceylon ginger has sold at better prices. Black and white pepper unsettled. Zanzibar cloves are lower than for many years past.

TEA.—From Messrs. Hawes and Hertz's fortnightly Report, "Business during the fortnight has been animated, large quantities being brought forward and mostly disposed of at an all round advance in value. The state of affairs in the East, and consequent hardening in value of China teas under 1s. per lb., has induced an active competition for other growths. Indian, 32,056 packages have been brought to auction, and with few exceptions found buyers at improved rates, the advance amounting to about 1d. on common to medium, and 2½d. to 3d. on fine and finest grades. The bulk was of new season's growth, and many invoices showed improvement in quality as compared with earlier shipments. Biddings were brisk for all kinds, good liquoring Pekoe Souchongs and broken teas attracting most attention. Fine teas have been in larger assortment, but the demand for this class is still in excess of the supply, and some high prices were obtained. Some very fine lines continue to come forward from Kangra Valley, and the following prices were among those obtainable, viz.:—Mela broken Pekoe, 2s. 9½d. to 2s. 10d.; Pekoe, 2s. 3½d. to 2s. 3¾d.; broken Souchongs, 1s. 8½d. per lb. Ceylon, 2,952 packages were catalogued during the fortnight, and mostly showing good quality, were well competed for at full prices, thick Souchongs and Pekoe Souchongs more especially. Java, the market has been steadily supplied, 2,871 packages having been disposed of during the fortnight ex s.s. Macassar, Merkara, Prins van Oranje, and Prinses Wilhelmina. Some invoices of useful quality from Parakamsalak, Tjialik, and Tendo Ayoe, sold readily at an advance of ½d. to 1d. per lb. on all good liquoring parcels; but thin burnt teas hardly share in the advanced rates. At the Amsterdam sale on the 3rd inst., almost all sold. Prices appear to have been very irregular, broken teas and Souchongs selling cheaply as compared with London prices."

SUGAR.—West India does not maintain the highest rates of last week. Sales to-day, 20 casks Demerara. Another cargo sold yesterday for Liverpool. In the Clyde market rather more business done in pieces at firm rates. M. Bertrand Silz has issued the following report, dated September 3:—"The August liquidation was very protracted, and only concluded yesterday. 17,000 bags were tendered, this being a small quantity in comparison with the very important transactions to fulfil. A certain number of sellers had awaited the very last day to cover their sales, and they were compelled to pay 50 and 75 centimes over September quotations. This has given a better tone and rather a firmer tendency to the market, and quotations are to-day 50 centimes above those of a week ago. Rain and sun have alternated; this is rather favourable for the new crop; the value, however, of four months October and four months January has not been influenced, and for these terms there is a good demand."

COFFEE.—The public sales were heavy, and two had to be withdrawn. A great deal of the foreign coffee was bought in. The better qualities of East India and Plantation Ceylon brought full to higher rates. 335 cases 3,124 bags of the former, low to good medium, 58s. 6d. to 67s.; good, rather bold, 74s. 6d. to 75s. 6d.; fine and superior, 94s. 6d. to 10s. 340 casks 154 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon, low middling to middling, 61s. to 66s. 6d.; good to fine middling, 69s. to 73s.; bold 82s. to 97s. 1,225 bags Costa Rica part sold—fine ordinary, 47s. to 49s.; low middling, 53s. to 57s. 2,643 bags Guatemala part sold—ordinary to good ordinary, 44s. to 47s.; low middling to middling, 53s. 6d. to 58s. 20 casks and barrels Jamaica sold—fine ordinary to middling, 50s. to 64s.; good and fine, 75s. to 94s. one parcel 421s. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo of 1,260 tons Necarrie sold at about 7s. 3d. per cwt. for a near port.

BLACK PEPPER is unsettled.

FRIDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's China auctions comprise 1,914 half chests red leaf siftings which realized 4½d. to 5½d. per lb.; 297 half chests Sarynnes, at 7½d. per lb.; 368 half chests Panyongs, at 10½d. to 11½d. per lb.; and 1,115 packages Ningchow, 8d. to 10½d. per lb. Prices for both black and red leaf show a decline on last week's rates. The private market has been very quiet all the week. At yesterday's Indian sales 2,235 packages Indian and 230 Ceylon sold at firm prices. An invoice of Java tea from the Tjinangarang estate also sold. Souchongs passed at about ¼d. per lb. under recent quotations.

SUGAR.—Beet for prompt shipment is rather dearer, but cane remains dull, and the week's business in West India amounts to 400 casks, 4,000 barrels and bags. Prices of crystallised Demerara easier. At the auctions to-day 131 bags Mauritius, 218 Porto Rico, and 741 bags Bengal were chiefly withdrawn. In the Clyde market a better demand and prices firmer.

CORRUM.—The market is firm. Fine qualities of Mysore brought very high rates to-day, medium, 93s. 6d. to 114s. 6d.; bold, 119s. to 120s. 6d.; small 73s. to 80s. 6d. Other fine East Indian and plantation Ceylon, including bold, are again higher this week. Of the former, 325 casks 462 bags sold to-day—good medium to rather bold, 69s. to 73s. 6d.; fine bold, 90s. 397 casks 203 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold—low middling to middling, 59s. to 68s.; good to fine, 77s. 6d. to 81s. 6d.; bold, 83s. 6d. to 87s.; superior, 99s. Foreign about steady; 3,735 bags mostly sold—a pile of good middling green Costa Rica, 62s. to 62. 6d.; other qualities, 46s. to 55s. 6d.; Nicaragua, 51s. 6d. to 52s. 6d.; New Grenadian, 52s. 6d.; Central American, 43s. 6d. to 57s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—Another cargo of Nacrausie sold at 7s. 3d. for the Continent.

PEPPER.—Black quiet. Singapore 7½d. to 7 3⁄4 16d.

COUGHS, COLDS,
 ASTHMA,
 BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances being eliminated), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 15th, 1884.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY. GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA." From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880.

DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is impudently, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. J. T. DAVENPORT, 336, Russell St., W.G.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, Ltd. Excellency of the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assures PAIN OF EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, HYSTERIA.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSUBSCRIBED IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark. Of all Chemists. 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. SOLE MANUFACTURER, J. T. DAVENPORT, 336, Russell St., W.G.

SUBSCRIBER'S OPINIONS.

"I am exceedingly pleased with the beauty of the book and with the thoroughness with which every detail of your laborious task in getting up this fine work has been perfected. Allow me to congratulate you on your success."—ROPER LETHBRIDGE, C.I.E.

"I like the book very much, and think your system a good one, and infinitely superior to any other."—CHARLES E. B. BOWLES.

"I received with much satisfaction the volume of your beautiful Royal Descents, and can suggest nothing in the way of further adornment."—MRS. PIERREPONT MUDNY.

"I think it does great credit to the ability and painstaking of the compiler, and is a valuable contribution to genealogical literature."—THEODORE BOSANQUET.

"Your last is a splendid bit of work."—J. F. FULLER.

"I have to thank you very much for the copy of your book, which does great honour to your talent and researches."—C. E. MEYER.

"The volume of 'Our Noble and Gentle Families' has come to hand; it seems to be most beautifully got up."—EDWARD WOLSELEY.

"Volume of Descents duly received; greatly approve and have tested accuracy in the Scotch cases known to me and found correct."—T. G. MURRAY.

"A work that becomes increasingly valuable; it would be difficult to imagine anything more interesting in its way than your account of the dramatist Cumberland's family; the Wordsworths are also attractive."—HON. H. ROSE-CURZON.

"Royal Descents admired, preface pugnacious, but just. N*** and N*** very interesting."—REV. H. J. GRIFFITHS.

"Your 'Noble and Gentle Families' is a very handsome volume, and besides the Royal Descent contains much the best account of our family that has yet been printed."—REV. E. ROGERS.

"A very splendid book; it seems very interesting."—LADY DOROTHY NEVILL.

"Your wonderful book has reached me."—W. B. CHRISTIAN.

"I beg to express my admiration of the work; to me it seems a marvel of research most ingeniously compiled for the service of present and future generations, and well deserving their gratitude. Externally, too, it is worthy of all praise."—J. C. W. LAMSON.

"Altogether the book and some of the eccentric matter which we have given no idea, must possess very considerable attraction for those whose tastes lie in that way, and who delight in genealogical mysteries and riddles."—ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE.

"Mr. Foster has produced a book of great interest and value."—ACADEMY.

"Mr. Foster's industry is a standing marvel. His 'Peerage and Baronetage' alone is an undertaking which any individual might be proud to have carried out, and which few could hope to rival. . . . Mr. Foster here extends his labours beyond the sphere of the titled classes, and having to choose a boundary by which to circumscribe them, now that he has passed beyond that of hereditary rank, has selected the convenient boundary afforded by the 'Descent' from the Blood Royal of England. . . . It is impossible to turn over all Mr. Foster's pages without being struck by the multitude of facts and dates with which the text is everywhere studded."—MORNING POST.

FIFTY-SEVEN.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF INDIAN DISTRICTS
DURING THE REVOLT OF THE BENGAL ARMY.

HENRY GEORGE KEENE, C.I.E., M.R.A.S.,

Author of "The Fall of the Mughal Empire," &c.

"The author breaks new ground. He essays to inform us how the different districts in the North West were preserved from anarchy by their civil administrators during such a stupendous catastrophe as the revolt of the army, upon whose support social order, in a great measure, rested. The task involves stories of adventure and pluck, which never come amiss to the many readers who have relatives serving abroad; and these stories are given in picturesque language, with a conciseness precluding tedium, and in a tone throughout of the modesty which seems natural where duty is considered the first obligation, and courage the first attribute, of an English gentleman."—World.

"Mr. Keene tells how the civil officers in the districts kept or restored order, largely by their own individual influence, often by heroic exertion, and almost invariably with the loyal aid of native subordinates. He describes the events which occurred in some eight or nine districts of the North West Provinces and Bengal. His narrative is unpretentious in style, but it clearly shows that courage, firmness, heroism, and self-sacrifice were displayed among the members of the Indian Civil Service, as well as by the soldiers who stormed Delhi, relieved Lucknow, and avenged the crimes of Cawnpore."—Scotsman.

"This work claims our hearty recognition of its thoroughness. It gives us a most readable and trustworthy recension of the reports of eye-witnesses, always the most valuable to the student of history. It has a special interest from the fact that Mr. Keene was himself one of those district officers who honourably held their ground during those fearfully exciting times."—Literary World.

"Mr. Keene writes to give somewhat tardy honour where it is due—viz., to the civilian officers who, during the period of the Indian Mutiny, remained at their posts, and in many instances deprived of military aid, had themselves to raise and command levies for the protection of the district."—Morning Post.

"A volume which seems to us to break new ground, and to supply a want felt by those who have ever endeavoured to study the subject. . . . The matter is, for the most part, new, and it treats of incidents in themselves fairly entitled to attention, and calculated to excite interest. . . . The fights, the rides, and the surprises and the escapes are all related in picturesque language."—Home News.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, SEPT. 15, 1884.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Aug. 25; Madras and Allahabad, Aug. 24; Calcutta, Aug. 23.

THE appointment of Lord Dufferin to the Viceroyalty appears, we are glad to see from the telegrams, to have given as much satisfaction in India as it has in England. We deal with the subject in our leading columns.

THE arrangement by which Lord Ripon leaves India before the end of the year has evidently been due to a sudden change of mind on the part of either Mr. Gladstone, or of Lord Ripon himself. For not very long ago it was announced, on what appeared to be official authority, that Lord Ripon would not retire before March next. To whomsoever it may be due, the alteration of plan is a wise and beneficial one.

If the change of plan is due to Mr. Gladstone—as is commonly supposed in London—it probably indicates an intention on the part of the Government to resign or dissolve immediately after the second rejection of the one-barrelled Reform Bill by the House of Lords.

To those, however, who are acquainted with the intolerable nature of the impasse to which public affairs have come in India, it will appear more likely that Lord Ripon has himself prudently insisted on being allowed to retire before the coming legislative season in Calcutta, so as not to further complicate matters for his unfortunate successor. If this be so, we are sure that all parties in the State will applaud His Excellency's decision.

WITH regard to the Bengal Tenancy Bill, it was quite evident—as we pointed out last week—that no responsible Government could dream of forcing it into law, after the disclosures of the recently published resolution of the Government of Bengal on the Sonthal Pergunnahs Report. Here in England, Liberals and even Radicals have joined Conservatives in condemning proposals that could only result in making the ryots of Bengal the rack-rented serfs of the money lenders, and in ruining the most loyal and munificent community in India, the Bengal zemindars. Nor was it possible for any Viceroy, however obstinate, to ignore the earnest and strenuous efforts of the zemindars to lay their wrongs before the Government, according to the best methods of our Constitution, by monster meetings, by memorials, by articles in the newspapers, and by every other means open to loyal and law-abiding subjects of Her Majesty.

WE assume that, in this matter, the traditions of the Indian Government will be scrupulously observed, and that the whole subject will be laid before the incoming Viceroy de novo, to be judged of by Lord Dufferin on its merits. It will, therefore, behove every friend of truth and justice in Bengal, and every ally in England, to unite cordially at this crisis in a resolute endeavour to obtain from Lord Dufferin a full and impartial hearing of the question in all its bearings. It must not be forgotten that, though Lord Ripon himself has gone, or is going, there still remain in high places and very near the ear of the new Viceroy one or two of those who have aided and abetted Lord Ripon in this, the most ill-judged and the most dangerous of all his many pernicious objects.

WE commend to Lord Dufferin's notice the remarkable and significant fact that some of the most powerful articles that have appeared against the mischievous Bill have been published by our ultra-Radical contemporary, the Indian Statesman. Papers like the Englishman and the Indian Daily News might be expected vigorously to oppose a measure that is admitted to tend in the direction of confiscation and Socialism; and nobly have they sustained their reputation. But the opposition of the Statesman is a very good proof of the fact that the Bill, while it cripples the zemindars, will do no earthly good to any other class in the State—and even a Radical when he possesses the honesty and straightforwardness of our contemporary, objects to wanton and purposeless confiscation.

WE publish elsewhere some remarkable statistics of the Indian wheat harvest of 1884, with a general view of the history and possibilities of the Indian wheat trade. These statistics show clearly enough—from the magnitude of the unexported surplus still available in India, and in other ways—that India is quite capable of fully taking the place of the United States as our granary, and only awaits a little encouragement from us to do so.

A TELEGRAM from Bombay to the Statesman says:—

"A London correspondent says that Dr. Hunter has received instructions from the Government of India to push the claim of the Natives of India to an alteration in the limit of age for admission to the Civil Service. The Government of India has taken up the matter warmly and commissioned Dr. Hunter to do all he can in England to win support for its views. Dr. Hunter was to proceed to Oxford, Cambridge, and the Scotch Universities in fulfilment of this object. The Native members of the Northbrook Club were to entertain him at dinner before he left England."

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected up till Saturday, August 23:—

"Steam tonnage has been freely available during the week, and as there is not much cargo of any description offering, rates had a declining tendency. In sailing tonnage there has been hardly anything doing for London and Liverpool beyond relets in the loading ships; for Dundee five vessels have found employment and two for New York. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 45,000 tons."

WE take the following account of the Calcutta Indigo Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Market Report:—

"In our next Circular we hope to be able to give you the detailed outturns of the various Zillahs in Lower Bengal. So far as we can judge from the figures received, we are led to look for a total of from 16,000 to 17,000 maunds, a result very similar to that of last season. First cuttings are now pretty well worked off in Behar, and will, we think, give a total of about 37,000 maunds, being about 4,000 maunds less than last year, the chief falling off being in Chuprah. We are glad to be able to report that the weather lately has been favourable for the Khoontees, which have improved very much, but it is still doubtful whether they will recover from the effects of the long break in the rains. By next opportunity we hope to be able to give some idea as to what may be expected from the Khoontees, together with a detailed estimate of Morhun outturn. In the Benares Provinces and the Doab the weather has also been more favourable of late, despite complaints of too much rain in some places and too little in others. The natives generally state that the plant is so small and backward, despite the late rains, that the yield from it falls far short of that of last season, and that consequently we may look for a smaller total outturn than that of last year. We are of opinion, however, that the increased area of cultivation will more than compensate for any falling off in the yield, and so far as we can form an opinion from present appearances, we incline to think that the outturn is more likely to exceed than fall short of that of last season. We cannot, however, say much on this subject for another month."

THE same firm gives the following on the Calcutta Tea Market:—

"There has been rather more competition, and prices have been firm, with but little alteration in values, except for Pekoe Squahong sorts, which are rather dearer."

THE Times of India gives the following obituary till the departure of the mail, Aug. 26:—

"Mr. John Goldney, Extra Assistant Commissioner, Dera Ismael Khan; Dr. Ananta Chandroba, Honorary Assistant to the Viceroy and Superintendent of Vaccination, Bombay; Mr. Samuldas Furmanundas, Dewan of the Bhownigger State."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Sept. 14:—

"The news of the selection of Lord Dufferin as Lord Ripon's successor has been received by the entire Anglo-Indian community with feelings of unqualified satisfaction. Public opinion in India has long indicated him as the fittest of all possible candidates for the Viceregal throne, while the journals of every shade of politics unite in declaring that the choice of the Ministry could not have fallen on a better man, and in pointing out that Lord Dufferin's experience in Canada and at Constantinople and St. Petersburg pre-eminently qualifies him for taking the reins of Government in India at a moment when strained race feelings within and Russian menace beyond the borders have become questions of the gravest importance. The native newspapers on this side of India, with one exception, have not yet spoken on the subject. The one which has expressed itself, a rabid anti-English journal, carps at the selection, apparently for no other reason than because it meets the approval of Europeans. Lord Ripon leaves Simla towards the end of November. He will probably make a short visit to Agra, and perhaps also to Chopal and some of the Central India States. He will arrive in Calcutta about the beginning of December, a few days before Lord Dufferin's arrival, and will start homewards immediately after making over his charge.

"An apparently inspired article, which has appeared in the Pioneer, seems to show that the recent agitation against the removal of Government to the hills has not been entirely without effect. The writer states that in future officers of the North-West Provinces Government, other than the Lieutenant Governor and his secretaries, will not be allowed to be more than two months continuously in the hills, and then goes on to admit, what has long been obvious to the non-official mind, that officers whose work is essentially that of supervision and inspection, such as inspectors-general of police, gaols, education, and sanitation, directors of agriculture, surgeons-general, and so on, cannot perform their duties equally well in remote hill stations. He next suggests that all local governments might spend May, June, September, and October in the hills, returning to the plains for July and August, according to the custom which always prevails in Bengal. This suggestion, if carried into effect, will certainly be a step in the right direction but the Indian public is not likely to rest content until governments, supreme and subordinate, honestly admit the fact that their duties lie in the plains, and that the hill stations are only to be used as places of relaxation and for recruiting health.

"The fact that 6,501 British soldiers will join the first class reserve this trooping season, and that 1,661 will be invalided from the effect of the climate, is causing anxiety to the military authorities regarding the location of these men in civil life under respectable conditions. The Commander-in-Chief strongly supports the movement now being made to institute county agencies in connection with the army territorial system, to pass to employment men who have served meritoriously in the county regiments. He desires to invite the co-operation of the militia and Volunteer battalions, and also to enlist the sympathy and support of employers of labour in England in regard to the movement, which he considers must fail unless it acquires a national character. Nineteen battalions serving in India have initiated regimental action in this direction, and are in communication with their respective depot centres with a view to creating county agencies. The Indian Government cordially supports the scheme, believing that its acceptance by the mother country at large may lead to results of the greatest importance. Sir Donald Stewart and the principal military authorities in India are also strongly in its favour, some of them freely expressing the opinion that unless the country generally is prepared to recognise the status of the reserve soldier, and particular counties to accept the responsibility of helping men who have served meritoriously in the county regiments, the maintenance by a force for Indian service by voluntary enlistment will soon become impossible.

"Last week's crop reports shows some improvement. A fairly good rainfall in Bengal has been doing much good. Some small relief measures have been commenced in Beerbhom, but even in that, the worst district, the crops have benefitted by the rain. Madras reports insufficient rain and backward crops. In the Madura and Coimbatore districts scarcity is inevitable. In Mysore serious floods have occurred. In the Bombay Presidency the unfortunate town of Surat has fared almost as badly as it did from a similar cause last year. Several houses have been damaged by the overflow of the Taptee river, and some lives lost. The traffic on the Bombay and Baroda Railway was interrupted for some hours.

"The long-pending question of the defences of the Attock Railway bridge is at last decided. They will consist of double-storied block houses, through the upper stories of which the trains will pass. The work will be commenced shortly.

"The report that the Mengwoon Prince has escaped from Pandicherry and intended to proceed to Burma through Siam caused some excitement at Mandalay, but it is now said to be unfounded. The news from all parts of King Theebaw's dominions is of the usual character. The people are discontented, crime is rife, and life and property are insecure.

"Nothing tangible is known in India regarding Burmese feeling in respect to recent events in Annam and China. It is thought in well informed official quarters that certain French adventurers working their own purposes are inducing the Mandalay authorities to consider themselves as likely to benefit by an extension of French power in the East. That idea if once thoroughly implanted in King Theebaw's mind may cause us very great trouble. The possibility of a Burmese and Eastern Asia question assuming a form and proportions similar to the existing Afghan and Central Asia questions is one which can hardly be contemplated with complacency.

"The Indian Government has heard nothing about the Russian travellers who are said to be making their way through Chitral to Cashmere, but thinks it possible that Mahomedans in Russian pay may be roaming about those regions.

"A correspondent of a Lahore paper states that, when at Jummoo in May, he heard of Russian pioneers being in Kafiristan, and intending to explore towards Yassem, Gilgit, and Cashmere. Some chiefs from those countries were then visiting the Maharajah of Cashmere at Jummoo. It is thought that one of the travellers may be either M. Regal or Captain Pontalba.

"The departure of the main body of the Zhob expedition from Quetta is postponed to the 20th inst. The force will probably march from the rendezvous at Duki about the 5th of October."

SELECTED ARTICLES.

THE INDIAN VICEROYALTY.

"THE TIMES."

It is officially announced that the Marquis of Ripon will retire from the post of Governor General of India before the close of the present year and that his place will be taken by the Earl of Dufferin. We cannot doubt that this announcement will be received by the country with great and general satisfaction. With every desire to do justice to those who serve their country in responsible and arduous positions, we cannot pretend to think that the Viceroyalty of Lord Ripon has been a conspicuous success. His original appointment was regarded with some surprise by the country, and his tenure of the office has justified in more than one important respect the apprehensions that were entertained. He reached India at a moment of no little anxiety, and he was hardly established in office when the disaster of Maiwand occurred. The successful conduct of the campaign which ensued and the conclusion of peace with Afghanistan may fairly be reckoned to the credit of Lord Ripon's Government. For the policy then pursued the Home Government was no doubt responsible in the main, but Lord Ripon was the instrument of its execution, and he discharged his difficult task with commendable energy and success. Of his general domestic policy, however, we find it impossible to speak in terms of similar commendation. We are willing to accord him the utmost credit that may be due for industry, good intentions, and active benevolence. But his natural disposition, engaged and developed by the circumstances of his life, is sentimental, visionary, and doctrinaire, and these are qualities which, though amiable and respectable in themselves, are singularly out of place in the ruler of the Indian Empire. We have no desire to revert to the painful and mischievous controversies which were re-used by the Ilbert Bill and other legislative proposals of Lord Ripon's Government. It is, indeed, quite unnecessary to do so. Whatever the merits or the demerits of these measures, and of the Ilbert Bill in particular, it is sufficient to say of the latter that its fate was its condemnation, and the condemnation of the Government which proposed it. The effect of proposing it might have been foreseen if Lord Ripon had been less attached to his own ideas, and more ready to listen to the counsel of those whose knowledge and experience of India were far greater than his own. It should never have been proposed at all, unless the reasons for proposing it were sufficiently strong to overcome the opposition it was sure to encounter. To propose it and then to reduce it to a practical nullity was an exhibition of misplaced obstinacy and weakness, of unsound judgment and feeble resolution, little to the advantage of India, and little to the credit of the Viceroy's reputation for statesmanship.

"MORNING POST."

It would be the merest affectation to pretend that Lord Ripon has demonstrated his possession of high qualities of statesmanship to any marked degree. Lord Dufferin, on the other hand, has proved that he is well qualified to discharge the duties of the high office which he has now assumed. He was a popular and successful Governor General of Canada, and has proved himself singularly capable of understanding and dealing with the subtleties of Oriental diplomacy. While acting as Ambassador to the Porte he displayed powers of firmness and conciliation in a degree rarely seen in association. His more recent efforts at Cairo to settle the Egyptian Question were not particularly fruitful of good results; but this is to be attributed more to the extraordinary folly and incapacity of his official superiors at home than to any lack of ability in himself. As Viceroy of India, Lord Dufferin will have a wide field indeed for the display of statesmanlike qualities. If he should only succeed in rectifying some of the mistakes committed by his predecessor in office, he will deserve well of his country.

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."

There never was an Indian Proconsulate yet which did not bring forth events altogether unexpected and unprovided for; and that happy internal calm which we hope for in India under Lord Dufferin may not be attained. The Governors who were sent out by the company to keep the peace generally waged tremendous wars, and among recent Viceroyalties we have seen the quiet rule of Lord Northbrook darkened by the great famine. The omens, however, are fair at present for a period of restful government, during which the simple and unsubversive yet beneficent reforms which India most wants can be calmly furthered, and all sentimental revolutions put aside. We do our duty best to India, in that vast and marvellous charge laid on us by providence, when we most fortify, for her sake, that British Government which has been the greatest blessing of her recent history, and is the surest guarantee of her future development. And that Government must be fortified by two simultaneous policies—a sincere spirit of justice and kindness in our administration, and a resolute and unflinching maintenance of our material forces within and without. Both policies have strength, not sentiment, for their true foundation; and it is the merest dream to believe that we can trust the affection of those we benefit, or the gratitude of those we bribe to safeguard our front and rear, our borders, or our stations.

"DAILY NEWS."

We hold not merely that the advance of Russia in Central Asia has been a vast gain to civilisation; but also that both England and Russia can, without collision, fulfil their respective destinies in the East. The despatch of the Anglo-Russian Mission for the delimitation of the Afghan frontier is the indication of their common conviction that the two Empires can safeguard their interests without any display of jealousy, much less of hostility. Still, the Russo-Indian question, which is practically an Afghan question, demands skilful diplomatic handling. Indeed, it may be very safely inferred that Lord Dufferin's acquaintance with the Central Asian question constitutes one of the reasons for his new appointment. While he was at St. Petersburg one of his principal duties during a considerable time was to keep his Government informed on Russian enterprise in Central Asia, and the possibilities of Russian dealings with the Afghan Ameer. In the execution of that task he displayed that combination of dexterity, shrewdness, firmness, and tact of which he subsequently gave so many proofs in Constantinople, and still later, and in a lesser sphere, in the city of the Caliphs.

"BIRMINGHAM DAILY POST."

It is hard upon the Government, though perhaps harder on the nation, that Lord Ampthill and Lord Dufferin should be removed from the scene of European politics at so critical a juncture. The course of events in Egypt is not likely to be smooth, and with a weak and vacillating Government the chief safeguard was the strong diplomatists at Berlin and Constantinople. Lord Dufferin's experience, gained as Envoy-Extraordinary to Egypt, would have been invaluable to the Government at the present moment, however much the Premier might consider it inconvenient. It is a matter of history that his lordship's former advice was not acted upon, and it is a matter of reproach to the Government that had it been adopted the present enormously costly expedition to rescue General Gordon would have been unnecessary. In this circumstance lies the danger to the country, and especially to its reputation and prestige, of the removal at the present time from Europe of so able a diplomatist and so keen-sighted a statesman as Lord Dufferin. Otherwise, the appointment will be acquiesced in by all parties, and the new Viceroy will leave these shores for India with the hearty good wishes of his fellow-countrymen.

"LIVERPOOL COURIER."

The new Viceroy is about the same age as the retiring one, about 58, but his record is very different; and there will be general confidence in India as well as in England, that in this instance Mr. Gladstone has made the best appointment in his power, and has thus done something to make amends for the blunder which constituted the Marquis of Ripon Governor-General four years and a-half since. Confidence in the new Viceroy will of course be to some extent qualified by the circumstance that he will be subordinate to the Government in London, and that the influences which rendered him powerless for good in Egypt may operate against his administration in India. Still, making all allowances for such possibilities as are associated with the Gladstonian regime of blunder and humiliation, the British and Indian public will rejoice in the change which removes the Marquis of Ripon from the Governor-Generalship of the great Asiatic Empire.

"LIVERPOOL MERCURY."

Of the out going Governor-General, whose tenure of office has been far from being uneventful, though free from bloodshed and aggression, there can be but one candid opinion. He has striven honestly, and with characteristic resolution, to reform civil, municipal, and social abuses. He found disabilities flourishing which were not only obnoxious to a just and generous representative of Her Majesty, but inimical to peace and contentment in the country. So far as it lay with him he repressed them; and the natives—the real people of India—greatly recognised in him a governor who desired to establish some kind of equality between the conquerors and the conquered. It is the fate of reformers to arouse the anger and incur the slanders of the privileged, but impartial history will pay to Lord Ripon the well-deserved tribute of having unselfishly devoted his considerable talents to the realisation of measures calculated to permanently strengthen the link which binds the millions of India to the British Imperial Crown.

"MANCHESTER GUARDIAN."

It is a melancholy fact that the Indian Government at present refuses the chance of a military career under our flag to the members of Indian princely families, and many a princeling, in whose veins flows the blood of the gallant soldier and who might have made a magnificent leader of light cavalry, is eating his heart out in forced inactivity and sullen resentment against the stifling pressure of a rule which leaves him no chance of showing what is in him. It is not enough to say that such men cannot be utilised without danger. Such a plea is a criticism of our rule far more serious and far more damning than the lying nonsense that is sometimes talked about the over-taxation of the Indian people. To great capacity it is our duty and should be our privilege to open a great career. It is because Lord Ripon has been so strongly penetrated with these principles that he has been beloved in India and will leave there an honoured name. It will be for Lord Dufferin to conciliate the opposition which Lord Ripon's policy has aroused among his fellow-countrymen, and yet in essentials unwaveringly to continue it. For this double function he is well fitted, and if he worthily discharges it he will have done well by England and by India.

"NORTH STAR."

The Marquis of Ripon is coming home—before his time officially, though not before it is high time otherwise—and Lord Dufferin will rule India in his stead. This is a matter for unalloyed satisfaction, both because of the coming and of the departing guest. As Viceroy, Lord Ripon has been a failure, whose only admirers are those Radicals at home whose praise is of exactly the same value as the applause of claqueurs in the Paris Theatres. Lord Dufferin is a happy and hopeful selection. If Mr. Gladstone is only as fortunate in finding fit men for Constantinople and Berlin as he has been for Calcutta, he will in some measure atone for that deplorable series of blunders in foreign policy, which has all but isolated England in Europe.

"BRISTOL TIMES AND MIRROR."

The country will hear with a sense of relief that the Ministry have at last made up their minds to accept the resignation of the Marquis of Ripon, and to instal Lord Dufferin in his stead. Lord Dufferin, who succeeds to the position, is a peer of a very different stamp, and has doubtless been selected in order to rectify, as far as possible, the many mistakes of his predecessor. It is not often that we are able to congratulate Mr. Gladstone; and we are therefore all the more pleased to do so on the present occasion. A better appointment could not have been made. The announcement of the change will, we think, be received with general satisfaction, apart altogether from party considerations. Until recently, Indian affairs have been excluded from the field of party politics, and though there has been a complaint, not without some ground, that India does not receive a fair share of the attention of Parliament, this state of things has had its compensations, in the freedom that has been accorded to the Indian administration, and the absence of those jarring elements of discord, which might accompany a too assiduous application of Imperial supervision. The Viceroy of India have enjoyed opportunities of almost autocratic rule, and their position has not hitherto been abused. We do not allege that Lord Ripon has abused the responsibilities entrusted to him; but the period of his Viceroyalty has been marked by the raising of particularly unwholesome controversies. There was the perverse attempt to introduce, in the form of a Rent Bill, in one of the Indian Presidencies, all the most objectionable features of Mr. Gladstone's confiscatory Irish Land legislation. This Bill, which excited nearly as bitter a controversy as the Ilbert Bill, has been in abeyance for some time, and will probably be shelved altogether on the retirement of Lord Ripon; for Lord Dufferin, who is to be the new Viceroy, is anything but a visionary, and is not given to the indulgence of philanthropic sentiment to the neglect of practical considerations.

"WESTERN MORNING NEWS."

Lord Dufferin is Lord Ripon's successor. There, we fancy, is a great public appointment at which the most fanatical revilers of the Government will find it difficult to cavil. All manner of hard things have been said of Lord Ripon. His Viceroyalty of India has been stormy, and not wholly successful, though he has made a rigorous stand for principles which are dearer to Englishmen than to Anglo-Indians. If Lord Dufferin can sustain in India that charm against criticism which has enabled him to pass unharmed through fires which would at least have singed the characters of other men, he will occupy a unique position in our modern political history, and if at the end of his Viceroyalty he is as safe from aspersions and misunderstanding as he has hitherto been, the Government of the day may instal him at Dublin Castle, and feel assured that not even the tongues of the Biggars and the Healys will wag against him.

Lord Ripon will come home and join the Cabinet. He can hardly be long outside it. Not once has he lost touch of home affairs. Not for a moment has he ceased to watch the progress of politics. He will, of course, be made a duke, and offered a seat in the Cabinet on the first vacancy.

"ARMY AND NAVY GAZETTE."

THE selection of the Earl of Dufferin as successor to the Marquis of Ripon as Viceroy of India will be hailed with general approval. In the precarious, if not strained state of our relations with most foreign powers, it is of the utmost importance that the governors of the outlying portions of our Empire, as well as our representatives at European courts, should be men of uncommon tact, ability, and force of character. In his new position Lord Dufferin will find ample scope for the exercise of those valuable qualifications which he possesses in an eminent degree.

MR. COMMISSIONER FORJETT ON THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

COPY OF LETTER TO LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, M.P.
147, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W., July 15, 1884.

My Lord,—With one exception, you are the only M.P. to whom I wrote and enclosed copy of my letter to Mr. Gladstone on the advances made by the Russians in the direction of India, and the peril, to India and Great Britain, which those advances involved. I also stated circumstances which would place it out of our power to encounter the Russians on the borders of India with any hope of success. I was induced to place myself in communication with you from the evidence your speeches afforded of "the promising statesman." And being a perfect stranger to you, I accompanied the letter with two extracts from histories relating to the Indian Mutiny, and copies of two letters to Lord Kimberley, in order to afford some evidence that my connection with India warranted the expression of the opinions embodied in the letter to Mr. Gladstone.

I received a reply, in which the designation of the writer is not stated, but who, I presume, is your private secretary, in which I was informed that your lordship had perused the papers I sent you with much interest. The simple perusal of the papers, I beg to say, was not my object. They were sent to you in the most anxious hope that some degree of consideration would be bestowed with reference to the remedy proposed—i.e., war in Europe in alliance with Austria and Turkey—by which the calamity that is surging on and which, if not arrested, must and will overwhelm, should be encountered.

War is abhorrent in all its aspects, and as stated in my letter to Mr. Gladstone, "He who advocates a war which is unnecessary or preventable would deserve the execration of man, the malediction of heaven: but it becomes a duty, a holy, a sacred duty when country's needs point to and it is undertaken." I repeat that disasters from the Russian advance are surging on, and if not arrested will overwhelm. The individual, Liberal or Conservative, I should presume, does not exist who would not readily elect to die sword in hand to avert national calamity. And remissness on the part of the leaders of the nation, a shroud of dishonour, and of leading, in a few years, to a naval rivalry, the consequences of which will reach every homestead and spread want and devastation and pauperism throughout the land, would be condemnatory in the severest sense of the word.

A golden opportunity presented itself just previous to Lord Beaconsfield's Government being forced to take part in the Berlin Congress, when the Sepoy regiments were brought to Malta, and when Russia, in a state of material and financial exhaustion, could have been easily broken up. But Russian instrumentality had incited the Bulgarians to revolt, and to the commission of atrocities on Turkish subjects. Suppression by means of disciplined troops was contemplated by the Sultan, but the Russian Ambassador at Constantinople deliberately initiated Mr. Gladstone's "Bulgarian horrors" by counselling the employment of Bazi-Bazouks, a semi-savage militia. The Russian Emperor was then at Yalta, loud in his professions of Christian love and humanitarianism; loud in his professions of perfect freedom from ideas of territorial aggrandisement. But he was not withstanding, carrying on a vast mobilisation of Russian troops on the frontier, and laying in enormous stores of corn and food in Wallachia—this, too, while the Conference in Constantinople was sitting! For three years previously the Russian arsenal had been in full work in manufacturing arms and munitions of war, and contracts had been largely entered into with America for the same purpose. Europe in the meantime, was being diverted with notes, memorandums, protocols and solemn professions of peace and good-will, while it was patent to every small chemist in London, from the enormous quantity of quinine that was purchased and stored away in Russia, that war with Turkey was the object which the Russian Emperor had in view. Prepared at all points, he was awaiting the opportune moment. Of all this Mr. Gladstone was, of course, in quite a state of ignorance, and ambulating England and Scotland, he freely diverted the British public with tales of fiction, and at the moment in keeping with the Russian Emperor's opportunity, his "Bulgarian Horrors," stepped deeply in misrepresentations and vituperative venom, was launched upon the British public. It had the desired effect. The sentiments of the people received a shock; their political views, influenced by such a production from the pen of the "Grand Old Man," became seriously divided; the Government was rendered helpless; the opportunity for the vindication of right and justice, for the security of the peace of England, of Europe, of the world, and the protection of British interests became miserable sacrificed. The Emperor was led on to war, and

"Slaughtered hecatombs around him bled."

And still Mr. Gladstone had the audacity to give the Midlothians to understand that if the Government of Lord Beaconsfield had taken his advice "not a drop of blood would have been shed."

I stated in my letter to Mr. Gladstone that "under a continuation of his policy of confidence in Russia, the Russians will be at Herat within three or four years, and, casting the veil of deception over Persia on the one hand, and over the Afghans on the other, and rendering them their devoted allies, a move will be made upon India. And with their own 100,000 and more Russians; with more than that number of the Khanate hords; with their Afghan and Persian auxiliaries; with the warrior tribes within our own limits stimulated to disaffection by Russian intrigue; with the confidence of the masses and the faith in the sepoy army in British might undermined, there can be no hope of our being able to hold India."

It will be seen from the following extract from the Home-ward Mail of the 30th of June last, that disloyalty in the Punjab is already in a state of fermentation:—

The Punjab Times says:—The advance of Russia towards India is being more and more closely watched by our countrymen day after day, and her most recent achievements have created no little stir among those who interest themselves in political questions. If war should ensue between the two great Powers now standing face to face, the tide will in all probability set in from the frontier, towards the Punjab, and we shall then be placed between two fires. One of the most important points in the discussion, concerning this province, is as to what our eventual fate will be should the British be defeated, and turned out bag and baggage to make room for a successful rival. It is impossible for us to avoid asking ourselves whether we should, as a nation, be better or worse off if placed under Russian rule than we are at present. So far as she had advance up to this date, Russia does not appear to have caused herself to be regarded as an oppressive Government; on her line of march she has established and maintained order, and at the same time has, under control, left the internal social systems of the countries she has annexed very much to the people themselves, and as she found them; without forcing upon the populations her own peculiar forms. This has unquestionably been a wise policy, calculated to induce contentment; to encourage peace; and to lead to general prosperity; and although a tribute is exacted, we do not hear complainings of its being burdensome. Can the British Government say as much in regard to the possessions it has acquired in the East? There is no reason why it should not be in a position to do so, if it chose to lay itself out to remove existing causes of complaints. Instead of throwing thousands upon thousands upon the world without employment or means of existence, would it not be more humane and wiser to reduce the salaries of the higher officials from the top to the bottom, and to lower the terrible burden of charges incurred to maintain the Secretary of State's red-tape establishment?

In the Daily Telegraph of the 3rd instant is a letter from

b In this respect the conduct of the Russians in Central Asia has been the reverse of the proselytising efforts which followed their conquests in Europe; there they were unsparing in their use of fire and sword of Cossack whip to bring about conversion; but in Central Asia these instrumentalities have been abandoned in order that the susceptibilities of the people may not be excited; this, in itself, is strong evidence of the conquest of India being their object.

their correspondent at Cairo, in which it is said that there are "several European adventurers amongst the Mahdi's troops." Can they be any other than Russian adventurers engaged in "unofficial warfare" as had been the case in the Balkan provinces, and British complication and embarrassment their object, and the object of those who started the adventure?

In the Daily Telegraph of the 4th instant is a letter from their Vienna Correspondent, forwarding the following extract from a Russian paper, the Politische Correspondenz, and he says "the seizure of Merv was foreseen and predicted in Vienna some weeks before it occurred, and at a time when the Indian Department in London treated the mere notion of it with scorn." It runs thus:—

"The last news received from Central Asia state that the Ameer of Afghanistan has assumed a hostile attitude towards Russia, and even that he is arming, as there is reason to believe, against Russia. Nevertheless complications need scarcely be apprehended, as the Russian Government is resolved not to take exception to this provocation. Having adopted as a principle that according to existing treaties, they have only to deal with England in all questions affecting Afghanistan, it is with England alone that they are disposed to treat such matters. If Abdurhaman means to meddle it will certainly require no more than an appeal to the loyalty of the British Government to exclude the Ameer from the debate, and to keep him within bounds of that conciliatory policy of which England and Russia have given each other numerous proofs in the affairs of Central Asia."

The idea of Abdur Rahman, the protégé and late pensioner of Russia "arming against Russia" is monstrously absurd. He is in no intellectual destitution to entertain the thought of measuring conclusions with Russia. If he is arming, he is arming in collusion with the Russians, and in furtherance of their views, and the information contained in the Politische Correspondenz may be viewed as being the first blast of the gathering storm, which will flash a quiver through every heart in the realm, and exemplify the political folly and irrationality of the Government, in believing that Abdur Rahman's allegiance was to be secured by the grant of a "handsome" subsidy.

The disaster will prove inevitable if not warded off by war in Europe. To lose time in forming the necessary combinations would be veritable folly. To suppose that the Russians can be encountered on the borders of India is to indulge in a make-believe remedy, and to leave the nation in a state of ignorance which the coming catastrophe will brush away and open to conception the faint-hearted and cowardly policy of the Government, and the selfish motives by which it is influenced.

Of professions of friendship and good faith by the Czar, while on board the Pembroke Castle, there may have been an abundance; but Mr. Gladstone should remember that there will always be in the background, as there has always been, a goodly number of the "unforeseen" and "the unexpected."

Of all the duties in connection with life, that of Member of Parliament may be said to be the most sacred. They take upon themselves a solemn responsibility in undertaking the enlightenment of the masses. I hope I am indulging in no antithetic lament by venturing the observation that in the exercise of those duties, individualism becomes largely commingled and self made preponderant. Let Mr. Gladstone's case serve as an example. During his "Midlothian campaign" his declamations against war and his advocacy of the rights of down-trodden nationalities, were of the most fervid—the most hectic kind; but in every word he uttered, his own individuality—his I, I—were set forth with the greatest prominence, and were intended to portray the immeasurable superiority which separated him from Lord Beaconsfield; and during which "the hands off" and "the bag and baggage" denunciations were rendered historic. It suited Mr. Gladstone's purpose, and he gained his object. Judging from his speeches, the Egyptians, who were labouring under the most barbarous injustice in consequence of the Dual Control, and the exactions of the bondholders became inspired, with the belief of Mr. Gladstone would do them justice, and his accession to power was prayed for. After two years of weary waiting, the revolt became pronounced. Justice might even then have been done; but there was further delay. All hope of relief seemed barred. And driven to despair, the crisis followed; and fire and sword, and bayonet became immediately after, very plentifully meted out to them. This, too, suited Mr. Gladstone's purpose.

Great responsibilities, I beg to say, now rest upon Members of Parliament. The time has come when—sustained in their efforts by the solemn recollections of the great and glorious memories which, till within late years, have traditionally haloed Great Britain, and rendered her an object of international homage—they will, it is hoped, realize the necessity for their best and sustained efforts, in bringing about the result of safeguarding all that is nationally vital and dear to Great Britain.

I would further call attention to the critical fact of the Government being so absorbed in the Franchise Bill and the object of bringing in the proposed Redistribution Bill, as to lose sight of all else—of the Russian Advance of the peril to India, and of the disaster in which Great Britain would become involved by their possessing themselves of Constantinople and the Black Sea! These are grave facts, facts in respect to which they seem to be in a perfect state of unconsciousness! Are they are to be allowed to continue in such state, and left to be awakened by some fresh stroke of Russian success and British disaster and dishonour?

The Government of India is hastening on the railway from Sibi to Candahar. This is playing into the hands of the Russians. It is facilitating the means to enable them all the more easily to find their way into India.—I have the honour to remain, my lord, your lordship's very obedient humble servant,
C. FORJETT,

Late Commissioner of Police in Bombay.

NOTES ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884, BY THE EAST BENGAL LANDHOLDERS' ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER III. SECS. 6 TO 22. TENURE-HOLDERS. ENHANCEMENT OF RENT. There is a class of tenure-holders to be found in some parts of East Bengal whose tenures are of a peculiar nature. From time to time various permanently settled estates were put up to sale for arrears of revenue and purchased by Government. When the Government took possession of these estates it found that there were some tenure-holders in the mehal whose tenures did not date so far back as the Permanent Settlement but had been created subsequent to that date. In some cases Government collected the rents of the mehal under khas management for some time and then having made surveys and assessments let out the lands to the tenure-holders for a definite term at a jumma far above their original rent. The jumma put upon these tenures was generally based upon the gross assets making an allowance of Rs. 10 per cent. as collection charges and Rs. 10 per cent. as malikana to the tenure-holders. In other cases the tenure-holders were never dispossessed but settlement was made with them on the above principle after survey and assessment. These settlements were renewed from time to time though not at rents adjusted at the time of the first settlement. Subsequently these khas mehals were sold by Government at public auction and were purchased by persons other than the tenure-holders. These purchasers evicted or tried to evict the aforesaid tenure-holders. The litigation that followed these acts or attempts has generally been decided in favour of the tenure-holders. The High Court has generally held that these tenure-holders have by the above mentioned indulgence of the Government got a status in the mehal and that though they could have been altogether ousted by the Government as auction purchaser at a Revenue sale, yet they having been retained in possession or subsequently put into possession of their tenures at an enhanced rent, their tenures have not been avoided altogether but that they have permanent tenures with variable rents. When the Government made settlement with these tenure-holders it did not make any contract as to the principle on which their rents were to be assessed in future; it simply made arrangements for a definite term which were to come to an end after the determination of the prescribed period. There have also been cases in which no allowance was made to tenure-holders expressly by the name of malikana. In both these classes of cases difficult questions often arise as to the rate of rent payable by them to the subsequent purchasers of the mehal and as to the rate to which their rents are liable to enhancement. Formerly section 8 of Reg. 5 of 1812, now repealed, which provided the allowance of 10 per cent. as profit to such tenure-holders together with a reasonable allowance for collection charges covered the cases of such tenure-holders. The existing law has no definite provision bearing on such cases. At the present time the Courts generally decree enhancement to the full extent allowing the tenure-holders collection charges at the rate allowed by Government as also the extra allowance received either as malikana or by any other name.

It is submitted that the present Bill does not make any definite provision to cover such cases but leaves the law in the same indefinite state that it has been in since the repeal of the above mentioned Regulation V of 1812. When distinct provision is intended to be made in the present Bill to cover all possible cases of enhancement in respect of all classes of tenures, it is submitted that clear provisions like those in Reg. V. of 1812 should be enacted so as to cover all conceivable cases. It is very doubtful whether Sec. 7 of the present Bill will properly and adequately meet such an object. The word customary used in Sec. 7 will be a fruitful source of great difficulty to the landlord. The same difficulties that have to be met with and surmounted in proving a custom will stare the landlord in the face when a customary rate will have to be proved.

Sub-section 3 of Sec. 7 should fix a maximum limit of profit that may be allowed to tenure-holders. The maximum limit of profit at 30 per cent. under Sub-Section 3 of sec 21 of the Bill of 1883 was rather hard on the landlord. Clause C of sub-section 3 of sec. 7 which requires the Courts to regard the "risks of collection" to be incurred by the tenure-holders, adds only an item of indefiniteness with regard to the adjustment of their rents. Such vague expressions are productive of no good but of contentions most difficult to be satisfactorily dealt with. When the landlords cannot expect to claim any indulgence with respect to the stringent provisions of the sunset law even when the source of their income is stopped either by flood or famine, or by drought or agrarian disturbance, when no considerations are made by Government towards them on the ground of "risks of collection" although admittedly no facilities have yet been given to the landlords to collect their rents, why then should such considerations be shown to mere middlemen who are neither bond fide cultivators nor proprietors of land?

Sub-section 4 is not based on fair principle. "Fair and equitable rent" in such a case is an indefinite expression. In the cases contemplated by this sub-section, the rent to be calculated should be the rent payable by ordinary or at most occupancy ryots to a tenure holder for similar lands with similar advantages in the vicinity. Sections 8, 9 and 10, which limit enhancement to double the amount of the rent previously paid vesting the Court with a discretion to allow a period of five years for the full fruition, by yearly instalments to be settled by the court, of an enhancement decree and further imposes a period of ten years as the shortest interval between any two consecutive suits for enhancement, are very objectionable as general propositions meant to govern all cases and all classes of tenure holders. Why these middlemen tenants should have these indulgences is not very clear. These restrictions on enhancement, even if they can be defended with some show of reason and fairness in the case of occupancy ryots, can hardly be defended when applied to the cases of tenure holders. The tenure holders as a rule collect the rent from their tenants and make a profit out of these collections. Nobody grudges to allow them to have that profit but why should they be allowed to retain by way of right an extra sum, simply because the landlord did not keep their rent always running in the highest level attainable. Why should the landlord suffer because he allowed the tenure holder to hold over for some time at a very low rate of rent? There is no hardship in the case of these tenure holders at all, if they are asked to pay up the landlord's just share after full allowance is made for their share of the profit. Why then should there be a gradual increase in their case? As these provisions restricting the limit of enhancement of tenure holders rent have been embodied in the sections relating the enhancement of the rent of occupancy ryots, with this difference only that the latter restrictions are more stringent, it is submitted that the remarks that will be made under those sections against the general principle of these limitations, may be taken in consideration in deciding the justness or otherwise of the restrictions imposed by these sections on the enhancement of rent of the tenure holders. At least an exception should be provided to sections 8, 9 and 10 in the case of such tenure holders as have been mentioned above and also in the case of those that hold their tenures under a contract which allows them only a prescribed percentage on the gross collections. In the case of such tenure holders it would be most unjust to curtail the right of the landlord to the full assessment simply because he has been very indulgent and neglected to trouble the tenure holders even now and then by insisting rigorously on his strict legal rights. No such exception is asked to be made in favour of persons whom the Bill will directly convert into tenure holders or who just stand a chance of an elevation to that class under the gradual operation of the Bill when passed into law.

There is nothing objectionable in Section 11 when applied to these tenures which are recognised at the present day as permanent and transferable. But if the Legislature means to classify tenants who hold more than 100 bighas of any kind of land for any purpose and who have been subletting the whole or a part of those lands, as tenure holders and promote other classes of tenants to these grades, it is submitted that the provision contained in this section relating to the general power of sale gift and mortgage given to all permanent tenure holders is most objectionable.

Again tenures which are only heritable but not transferable are rare in the country. There are also very old tenures which by the conditions of the contract creating them are not transferable. Even these tenures are made transferable by one sweeping provision contained in this section 11 and the condition of non-transferability which was embodied in the contract say even twenty years before this Bill was made is swept away and made illegal by section 12.

The unfairness of these provisions is apparent. If the landlord knew that he would not be able to make such a contract to protect himself, very likely he would not have created such a tenure at all. To make such conditions in a pre-existent contract null and void and to take the landlords by surprise and to cut off the reversion of the tenure to the landlord on failure of heirs by allowing the last owner to transfer the tenure, against the implied or even the express conditions of contract creating it, can hardly be said to be just. It is not unknown that when at the time of the creation of a tenure heritability only is given or a restriction is imposed on its transferability the landlord forsakes a part of the bonus which he would otherwise be entitled to in full. Under such circumstances to secure to the middleman a right for which he did not pay and which the landlord would not have yielded even for a consideration must be said to be subversive of his proprietary right.

The phrase "a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act" used in section 12 will be productive of misapprehension and dispute. The Bill does not and cannot give an outline of the principles which may guide the court to determine what conditions are consistent with its provisions. It is doubtful whether such conditions as are not forbidden by the Bill can be said to be consistent with its provisions.

Again, the wording of the section is such, that the onus of showing that a particular condition solemnly agreed upon by the tenant, is consistent with the provisions of the Bill, appears to be very unfairly thrown upon the landlord. The just and fair principle is that where an admitted condition is sought to be nullified as being illegal, the party who wants to get over such condition on such plea should substantiate it.

THE NATIVE ARMIES IN INDIA.

THERE can be no question, we should suppose, but that the native armies of India are only barely adequate to the task they have to perform. In ordinary times, that is, in those times when small frontier expeditions, or the suppression of some turbulent chief, alternate with the ordinary garrison duties of peace-time, the natives armies of India are sufficiently strong for the work that has to be done. But the Afghan War showed that a prolonged campaign beyond the frontier would very heavily tax the strength of the native army, and that it became at last a very difficult matter to provide any reliefs.

For many years past responsible and irresponsible writers on the thousand and one subjects which require attention in the Indian army have directed public notice of solving for India the problem which has been for so many years a burning question among the army reformers in England and on the continent. Many schemes have been propounded for the application of a system of reserves to the native army. These propositions have frequently been placed before our readers in one form or other, and we do not intend at this moment to make any special reference to them beyond saying that the ideas have hitherto taken no practical form, and that, except in the raising of regiments to a somewhat higher strength in time of peace by the simple and economical expedient of reducing a number of corps and distributing their men throughout the army, nothing has been done towards the creation of some means by which the native army can be increased in time of war. A proposition has, however, lately been put forward in the columns of an up-country contemporary upon which we feel bound to make a few remarks. In the journal to which we have referred there has appeared a series of extracts from the report of the Simla Army Commission of 1879, and in the first of these that was published there was a long extract giving the views of the Commission on the armies of the native States. The armed force of the native States aggregate, the Commission says, 381,000 men, of whom 69,000 are cavalry and 10,964 artillery, with 2,698 serviceable guns, but of which few are manned and horsed field guns. Passing by the statements made by the Commission in their investigation of the materials of which this great host is composed, the Commission recommend that the strength of these troops of native States should be kept as low as possible, that arms of precision should not be given, that their field artillery should be kept within the smallest possible limits, and that the contingents of the different States should not be employed or exercised together. The Commission considered that they should not be part of the Imperial Army, or of the reserves, and that they ought not to be brigaded with our troops or cantoned in British territory during time of peace. In short, the Commission thought that while these armed forces should be kept within limits, they might be employed, as during the Afghan War, as contingents auxiliary to the Imperial army. The propositions made in the columns of our contemporary are that the men of the armies of natives States should be looked upon as reservists to be drafted into our own regiments in time of war. This scheme we believe to be wholly impracticable, and impolitic even if it were practicable. The whole is no doubt hedged in by difficulties, and the question of finding some means to increase the native army in time of war is certainly a very pressing one. But we venture to prophesy it is not to be solved by putting forward schemes which on the face of them bear the mark of the theorist. That this is the case in the scheme to which we have called attention is a statement which we think will be found justified when we come to investigate the details of the proposition submitted to the public. We shall hope to do this on an early occasion, because all these great questions, affecting the efficiency of the native army and the supremacy of British power in India, are matters which vitally concern the whole of the European community in this country, whose lives and fortunes, and the enormous interests of which they are the representatives, are absolutely bound up with the maintenance of the imperial strength in its military development.

THE ROORKEE RESOLUTION.

THE Indu-Prakash says:—

"We are not sorry to hear that the Secretary of State has withdrawn the famous Roorkee Resolution which has formed the theme of a great deal of not unnatural denunciation. Lord Ripon was, we think, fully justified in demanding its withdrawal, since it professed to benefit one class at the expense of another. The natives of India, we think it necessary to repeat over and over again, are not for measures of this kind. All they wish for is justice and fair play. But we do not think the withdrawal of the Roorkee Resolution will lead to much good unless the agitation is followed up and the abolition of the Cooper's Hill College secured in the interests of the engineering colleges in India. This is the question which deserves to be fought out by the natives and Eurasians alike, for both are equally interested in maintaining that the Government is not justified in patronising a college in England for the supply of engineering talent in India, when the latter country has talent of the sort more than enough for its necessities."

VICEROYS OF INDIA.

STRICTLY speaking, Lord Dufferin will be the eighth "Viceroy of India," not counting temporary holders of the office. Lord Napier and Ettrick, for instance, was acting Viceroy for more than two months after the assassination of Lord Mayo; but a well-understood if not clearly defined rule has always limited the duties of acting officials, especially of the highest rank, to the maintenance of the status quo. They are not expected to make history. The first "Viceroy" was Lord Canning, on whom that style was conferred in 1858; the first "Governor General of India" was Lord William Bentinck, who received the title by Act of Parliament in 1833. His predecessors at Calcutta were "Governors General of Bengal;" the first of them having been Warren Hastings, appointed under the Regulating Act. He governed from 1772 to 1785, and was succeeded by the Marquis Cornwallis, though more than a year and a half elapsed between the departure of the one Governor General and the advent of the other. During the interval Sir John Macpherson presided in the Council. "Lord Cornwallis," wrote Macaulay to Mr. Maovey Napier, who wanted an article for the Edinburgh Review, "is not an attractive subject. Clive and Hastings were great men, and their history is full of great events. Cornwallis was a respectable specimen of mediocrity. His wars were not brilliantly successful; fiscal reforms were his principal measure; and to interest English readers in questions of Indian finance is quite impossible." It is to be feared the last statement remains almost as true as in 1842.

Sir John Shore—afterwards Lord Teignmouth—became Governor-General in 1793; while in 1798 Lord Mornington entered on that brilliant administration, one reward of which, to his intense disgust, proved to be an Irish marquessate. "Anguish" was one of the teams he used in expressing himself to Pitt about his unlucky distinction. "And as I was confident," he continued, "that there had been nothing Irish or Pinchbeck in my conduct or its result, I felt an equal confidence that I should find nothing Irish or Pinchbeck in my reward." He signed in these words:—"Mornington (not having yet received any double-gilt Potatoe)" In spite of this fancied slight, Lord Wellesley's affection for Pitt continued undiminished to the last. On the retirement of the latter in 1801 the Governor-General offered to quit what he characterised as "the most lucrative, honourable, and powerful station which any British subject can hold," if by so doing he could render better service to his political leader. He gave another proof by the way, if such were needed, that a dandy can possess most of the unruly virtues. Certainly no one could govern a province or tie a cravat better than Lord Wellesley. He returned to England from the East in 1805, partly from choice and partly from disagreements with the Court of Directors on questions of imperial policy. The Duke of Portland—he who was twice Premier—begged that the place might be given to his second son, Lord William Bentinck, then only thirty years of age, but already Governor of Madras. Pitt, however, and the Directors decided to send out Lord Cornwallis a second time. The veteran died at his post a few months later; and a Ministry of All the Talents had to decide on a successor. Sir Philip Francis suggested himself in vain, but was offered the Cape; the Prince of Wales adding that if Francis would take the minor appointment, himself, on becoming Regent or King he would "send him on further." Ultimately the choice of the party fell on Lord Minto, who had acquired a high reputation as Viceroy of Corsica, an island which he thought England ought to have kept, and which was unquestionably satisfied with English rule.

After Lord Minto came Lord Moira, better known as Marquess of Hastings, whom somebody described as "the state-liest being on whom he ever set eyes." Indeed, one is tempted to think he may have been the true hero of a story which Lord Stanhope tells of the first Marquess of Abercorn. The nobleman in question having called on the Prime Minister, "Thank goodness!" exclaimed the latter when his visitor left, "he only wanted the Garter. I was afraid from his look that he came to ask my influence to get him elected Emperor of Germany." As Kenyon generously said of Mrskine, Lord Hastings had some right to entertain a good opinion of himself. Like Lord Dufferin, he seems to have been thought and to have been in truth fitted for nearly any post. He remained nearly ten years in India (1813-23), and was to have been replaced by Canning, who had made all his arrangements to leave England, and was actually at Liverpool bidding farewell to his constituents when the suicide of Lord Londonderry changed the position of affairs. Canning having accepted the Foreign Office, Lord Amherst (nephew of the illustrious soldier who completed the conquest of Canada) was despatched to Calcutta. After Lord Amherst came (in 1828) Lord William Bentinck, to verify the good old proverb about "him who waits." His term of office was distinguished by the abolition of suttee, and he otherwise showed himself an admirable ruler. A curious instance of the authority which could then be exercised by the Governor General is to be found in the fact that a Scotch doctor, a Jacobin and a freethinker, was compelled to go to church by positive orders from his Excellency. In March, 1833, Lord William sailed for England, leaving the government in the hands of Sir Charles (ultimately Lord) Metcalfe, who might well have been confirmed in the appointment. Unhappily, Lord Melbourne wanted it for Lord Auckland, who was First Lord of the Admiralty in a rather crowded Cabinet. The sequel is well known. India was not then governed directly from Downing-street; and for the series of disasters which grew out of the first Afghan war Lord Auckland, as Governor General, must be held largely responsible. Lord Ellenborough, who succeeded him, may have committed serious errors; but it must not be forgotten that the previous regime had made his task an incalculably difficult one. It was, in fact, this consideration which Sir Robert Peel urged with so much force in his defence of Lord Ellenborough in the House of Commons. But to pursue the theme is to neglect the sensible caution of Horace to Pollio, and to "tread on fires concealed by treacherous ashes." Although a soldier, Lord Hardinge (who replaced Ellenborough in 1844) was painfully anxious that his administration should be a pacific one; with the not unnatural result that he was chiefly engaged in the conduct of wars. The winter of 1845-46 is one of the most glorious periods in Anglo-Indian history: Moodkee, Ferozeshah, Aliwal, and Sobraon having all been fought and won within the space of less than two months. Lord Dalhousie was careful to make no proclamation of "peace principles;" though his first official words, uttered in 1848, indicated a firm rather than a warlike purpose. "We are," he said, "lords paramount of India, and our policy is to acquire as direct a dominion over the territories in possession of the native princes as we already hold over the other half of India."

The Viceroys who followed Lord Dalhousie are:—Lord Canning (1856-62); Lord Elgin (1862-63), who loved to say that "he and the Emperor of China governed half of the human race;" Sir John Lawrence (1863-68), of whom the story ran that Lord Palmerston met him by accident at a railway station and accosted him with the words, "Oh! Lawrence. I want you to go to India as Governor-General;" Lord Mayo (1869-72), Lord Northbrook (1872-76), Lord Lytton (1876-80), and Lord Ripon. —St. James's Gazette.

LORD RIPON AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

How rejoiced the English in India must be at the prospect of losing Lord Ripon we need hardly be told; and yet it may be worth while to print the following remarks, written by a prominent member of the European community in Calcutta:—

The Marquis of Ripon's retirement will be so welcome to Anglo-Indians, that few of them will be disposed to quarrel with them for delaying it so long. It will be regretted, however, that the telegram announcing the joyful news was not published in Calcutta at a time when it might have been greeted with an appropriate response. Had the officialdom now at Simla been present in its offices and its clubs on the Hoogly, what a scene of congratulation Calcutta would have been! "Of course, you mustn't go to Government House" was the first piece of advice tendered to every non-official among the new arrivals who swarmed into the Great Eastern Hotel and overran the boarding-houses in Chowringhee at the beginning of last season. The Czar, reflecting on the frost-bitten festivities at Warsaw, may know something of the mortification which Lord Ripon experienced in Calcutta during the whole of the period which followed his declared determination to force the Ilbert Bill into law. Only, in the Viceroy's case the feeling of animosity was more marked in his own fellow-countrymen. Lord Ripon seemed never to understand that it was his duty to create a bond of personal sympathy between himself, as representative of the Crown, and the Englishmen who are employed in administering the affairs of the Indian Peninsula. The military and civil officers who are compelled to bow themselves in the house of Rimmon often did so with manifest unwillingness. If I mistake not, it was either on the occasion of the Viceroy's landing at Madras, or during his progress to Hyderabad to assist at the installation of the Nizam, that, in order to provide a reception which should not be ludicrously meagre, all the military officers who were not on duty were desired to present themselves.

Among the residents of the capital, all through the period of the Ilbert Bill discussion, there was always, mingled with active antagonism, a sort of amused contempt of the man who could be so easily gulled by the glib chatter of a few Bengalee Baboos. Had Lord Ripon persisted in his headstrong course, it would have been almost impossible to have prevented some more or less scandalous scenes. The wildest methods of practically protesting against his betrayal of English interests were discussed; even such plans as forcing him into a fast launch lying in the Hoogly with her steam up, and then into an equally fast steam-ship privately chartered, and lying at the Sandheads; and so giving his lordship a trip to Java, or Japan. I mention these things to show how intense will be the feeling of relief in India caused by the announcement of the departure of a Viceroy who has shown so much genius for disgusting his fellow-countrymen.

Lord Ripon has never known anything of the sentiments of the Anglo-Indian population. His hospitality has been magnificent enough for those who accepted it; but he has never learned anything of his guests. With the exception of one or two men who had the faculty of formulating for legislative purposes his ideas for turning Bengal into an Oriental Birmingham, he has listened to no one. Fond of talking, with the proxy verbosity which might be just tolerated at a farmer's dinner, he always took care that his conferences should be monologues. Even with the natives, whose favour he has been so anxious to buy, he has, outside of the narrow circle of journalists and office-seekers, been regarded only with the half-contemptuous feeling bestowed upon a man who has evidently forfeited the regard of his own people. The native sentiment was exactly expressed, when the Duke of Connaught paid a brief visit to Calcutta, in a story said to be current in the bazaars—"The sahibs have put the Lord Sahib out of caste. And he sent for the Rajkumar (the younger son of the Queen) to come down from Meerut to put him into caste again. But when the Rajkumar came to Calcutta, and found that the sahibs would not eat with the Lord Sahib, and that he himself had to eat with a man out of caste he was very wroth, and then went back to Meerut, and came no more to Calcutta." The holding of the exhibition increased the dislike in which the Viceroy was held. No one who was present at the closing ceremony will easily forget the almost ludicrous figure of the Viceroy pouring out platitudes to which no one listened, until a soldier of the Cheshire Regiment standing on duty in front of the dais, overpowered by too much sun and the Viceregal eloquence, suddenly fell on the floor in a dead swoon.—St. James's Gazette.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

NATIVE OPINION ON THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT.

"THE LIBERAL."

COLONEL R. D. OSBORNE, than whom we know few warmer friends of the Indian people or more consistent enemies of that bureaucratic system of rule which is the bane and ruin of India, wrote some time ago to our local contemporary, the Statesman as follows:—"An independent member, who tries to interest Parliament in the state of India, solely or chiefly in the interests of the people of India undertakes an almost impossible task, as matters stand. No matter what Government is in power, Liberal or Conservative, its influence is dead against him, for, as I have repeatedly said, all Governments and 'all official personages having the honour to be,' are the natural and implacable enemies of justice, of free inquiry, of everything, in fact, which constitutes good Government. The present Government is a remarkable instance in point. How beautiful, how truly admirable were its sentiments so long as the members were out of office. Its ways were ways of pleasantness and all its paths of peace. . . . Well, when it is known that the Government is opposed to any particular course or inquiry, which an independent member desires to pursue, all right-minded members of Parliament side with the Government and go against the disorderly personage who shows such unseemly restiveness. And so it is that the agitation which begins and ends in Parliament is productive of the smallest utility. The Government of the day cares nothing at all for its intrinsic importance or justice. Right and wrong, justice and injustice are words, which have no meaning for 'members of Cabinets.'" We need go no further for an illustration of the truths insisted on by Colonel Osborne than the defection from our cause of Professor Fawcett, who had deservedly earned the honourable nickname of "Member for India," who had been even helped to the suffrages of Hackney by funds raised from the Indian people and who manfully stood up and consistently fought for their rights and interests, till he was muzzled with the office of Postmaster General under the present Cabinet, since when he has held a discreet, even though an enforced silence on those Indian questions, which he has so thoroughly mastered. Another and a better illustration is to be found in the whole history of Mr. Gladstone's present administration, which is a practical abnegation of all those grand principles of justice and righteousness, which he preached during his splendid Midlothian Campaign only to show how little value he sets on those principles while he has been holding the reins of power.

Colonel Osborne then continues: "And it is of vital importance that the educated and the energetic among the people of India should keep this steadily in mind. They have less than nothing to hope for from the Government or the India Office or from Parliament taken as a whole. The weight of all these bodies will be dead against them. It is to the people of England in the broadest sense of the term, that they must make their appeal. Nothing for the good of India can be done by any one here in England until the people of India take the field in person." In another letter received by the last mail, Colonel Osborne reiterates the same advice. Referring to a plan proposed by Sir Wilfrid Lawson and other members of Parliament to get Mr. Lalmohun Ghose into the House of Commons, our contemporary the Statesman observes:—"If a dozen competent Native gentleman can secure seats in the House, they will find at least a hundred members prepared to co-operate with them and a compact body of this kind will force 'India' upon the attention of the House, as Ireland has been so forced and with at least as much reason. If the people of India are wise, they will make every effort to get a few Native members into the House." We quite agree. Already, the House contains members representing almost every part of the British Empire except India; and it is time that India also were represented. Our countrymen should heartily unite with will and purse to hasten the hour, which will usher in those "good days" for India, that are always coming but do never come.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

His Excellency Lord Ripon has gone to Mahasu for a few days.

THE VICEREGAL COUNCIL.—At the meeting of the Viceregal Legislative Council held at Simla on Wednesday, the 20th August, the Hon. Messrs. Gibbs and Qu'nton, and the mover.

A large consignment of rifles and ammunition, lately received from England, is being sent to Cabul through the Khyber Pass.

It is not the intention of the Government just at present to fill up the vacancy in the Legislative Council caused by the death of Rai Kristodas Pal, Bahadoor.

RUNGPORE.—At a crowded meeting of landholders held here on the 15th ult., the amended Bengal Tenancy Bill was condemned as by no means an improvement on the existing rent law, but introducing complications calculated to create endless disputes and litigation between landlords and tenants, and threatening to disturb the existing rights of the zemindars, while at their expense it confers new rights on the ryots, inconsistent with the spirit of the terms of the Permanent Settlement, and it fails to provide for the speedy realisation of rent, which was one of the primary objects in the introduction of the Bill.

Mr. Behramji M. Malabari has sent us a paper written by himself on infant marriage in India and on enforced widowhood. Both of these customs he wishes to see abolished, and he suggests the formation of a large national association to endeavour to impress upon the people the advisability of getting rid of these two evils.—Englishman.

The weather has been hot and rain is much wanted. In Cachar the prospects of tea is good, red spider is gone, and blight is not increasing. The weather is warm. ## MADRAS.

ACCIDENT TO MAJOR GENERAL ROWLANDS.—We regret to record an accident to Major General Rowlands. The General was out riding on a spirited waler, and when opposite the volunteer barracks, the animal grew restive, and becoming unmanageable, threw its rider. General Rowlands again mounted, but was thrown again. We are, however, glad to state the injuries received were slight, although General Rowlands proceeded home in a carriage.—Bombay Gazette.

The Madras Mail is informed by Mr. Eugene Renaud that a telegram has been received at Pondicherry from Paris, stating that the 1st prize of Rs.2,00,000, or francs 500,000 fell to the lot of the owner of ticket No. 4,497,327 in British India.

The Secretary of State, in conjunction with the London Board of the Madras Railway Company, has sanctioned the extension of the South West line of the Madras Railway from Bepore to Calicut. The Madras Government telegraphed the sanction to the Collector of Malabar on the 19th instant. It is now believed that the work will be put in hand without any great delay, for the railway company are as anxious as the Government to have the line extended. The extension is estimated to cost Rs.12,82,000, and the line will be constructed by the Madras Railway Company as an integral part of their undertaking.

A curious coincidence, the Madras Times says, occurred at Calicut on Thursday last. Some gentlemen were dining with the officers of detachment of the Hampshire Regiment stationed there. Towards the end of dinner the subject of conversation was the regulation which requires each soldier to be supplied with twenty rounds of ammunition in his pouch. As one of the party made the remark that the regulation was dangerous, and put temptation in the way of drunken men to shoot themselves or others, the report of a gun was heard, and two or three minutes afterwards a sergeant came up with the report that a private had shot himself.

Some time since Mr. J. Mills, Inspector of Cattle Disease, Madras, made some experiments at the Saidapet farm, with a view to testing the efficacy of M. Pasteur's anthracine (vaccine). He found that the anthracine might with safety be imported and used in that country as a protection against anthrax, and he recommended that protective inoculation should be given a trial among army horses. The Madras Government have sanctioned a sum of Rs.1,000 to cover the cost of making further experiments at Saidapet on a more extended scale. Should the results prove satisfactory a further allotment will be made hereafter, but until the knowledge of the subject has been extended by experiment, the Government are not prepared to accept the charge of innoculating the cattle throughout the Presidency.

Another dacoity has been committed on the river in the interior. Five men, armed with guns and revolvers, attacked a boat and shot the boatmen dead, drove off the villagers, and escaped with their plunder.

Mr. E. W. Oates, executive engineer, British Burma, will shortly be transferred to Simla, where his knowledge of "Ornithology," will, we understand, be utilised in forming a catalogue of the birds of India, as he has already done of those found in this province.—Rangoon Gazette.

THE NEW VICEROY.

It has been so seldom of late that we have been able to speak with approval of any action of the present Government in Indian matters, that it is with no ordinary satisfaction we are able this week to record the very best and wisest appointment that Mr. Gladstone has ever made, in the nomination of the Earl of Dufferin to the important office of Viceroy and Governor General of India. It may indeed be said, without unfairness, that Lord Dufferin was so obviously and clearly the one man—among those to whom a Liberal Government was at all likely to offer the post—marked out alike by his genius and his achievements for the exceptionally difficult work that awaits him, that nothing but wanton perversity could have passed him over if he were willing to undertake the task. It is true that—with the possible exception of Lord Lorne, whose near relationship to Her Gracious Majesty would have appealed in an especial degree to that sentiment of personal loyalty which is so strong in the hearts of our Native fellow-subjects—there is probably no one who would have polled a single vote, if put into competition with Lord Dufferin for the voices of those who are best acquainted with the needs and requirements of the Indian Viceroyalty. Still, it is, as we have said, satisfactory to learn that the Government has, in this most important appointment, obeyed the dictates of reason and experience; and the Empire is to be congratulated on securing the services of the right man in the right place at a most critical moment.

There is perhaps no country in the world whose happiness and prosperity so largely depend on the personal character of its supreme ruler, as India. And this is especially the case just now, when the harvest of the last four years and a half has to be reaped. Distinguished alike as a statesman, as a diplomatist, as a writer, and as an orator, Lord Dufferin has had the rare good fortune to deserve and to retain the sympathies and the admiration of the best sections of both the two great parties in the British body-politic. Technically classed as a Liberal, he has ever shown himself free from the acrid narrowness, the lawlessness, and the strife-mongering of the modern Radical party. His famous speech at the Empire Club, read as a commentary on his administration of Canada and his diplomacy in the East, revealed the secret of his success, in his lofty appreciation of Britain's Imperial responsibilities, in his earnest determination to maintain unimpaired the heritage handed down to us from our forefathers, and in his manly belief in the glorious future of English rule. His appointment to the very onerous duties of the Russian Embassy, at the most critical epoch of our relations with that country, showed clearly enough what opinion had been formed of his character and abilities by that consummate judge, Lord Beaconsfield—and at the same time furnished the world with an admirable illustration of the fact (unhappily too much obscured of late) that the line which separates patriotic Liberals from patriotic Conservatives is little more than an imaginary and conventional one. Lord Dufferin is a living embodiment of the undoubted fact, that Liberals like himself, and Mr. Forster, and Mr. Goschen, and the Duke of Argyll, and Mr. Cowen, and many others whose names will readily occur to our readers, are in reality far more nearly allied to the party of Lord Salisbury and Sir Stafford Northcote, than they are to those Liberals, falsely so-called, who scuttled out of Kandahar, who surrendered to the Boers after Majuba Hill, who negotiated the Treaty of Kilmainham, who betrayed Bethell, and wished to betray Gordon. It would be difficult to name a single point of important divergence between the political opinions of Lord Dufferin and those of the front Conservative Bench; it would be still more difficult to name a single point of contact between the opinions of his lordship and those of Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Bradlaugh. Spite of the miserable legacy of discontent within, and danger from without, to which the new Viceroy succeeds, both England and India will view his accession to the Viceroyal throne with confidence and hope. We trust that, with the blessing of Providence, that confidence will be justified and that hope realised.

HOME NEWS.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs.15,00,000 in bills on India, and telegraphic transfers, were received on Sept. 9 at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—in bills on Calcutta, Rs.49,000, and on Bombay Rs. 10,000 at an average rate of 1s. 7½d.; in telegraphic transfers on Madras, Rs.3,00,000, at an average rate of 1s. 7½d., making a total of Rs.3,59,000. Tenders for bills at 1s. 7½d., and for telegraphic transfers at 1s. 7½d. will receive in full. Between April 1 and last night remittances for Rs.6,89,62,467 had been sold, realising £5,661,768.NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA.—The report of this company for the half-year ending June 30 last shows a net profit for the half-year, including £1,974 18s. 2d. brought forward, of £51,133 3s. 3d. The directors have declared an interim dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, absorbing £11,631 5s., placed £25,000 to the reserve fund, and carried forward £14,501 18s. 3d. The dividend will be payable on the 17th inst. Considering the general outcry in business circles, owing to the existing stagnation, it is satisfactory to see from the above dividend that in some departments, at least, prosperity prevails. We believe that the Anglo-Indian banks have benefited considerably during the early part of this year by the high rates of money ruling in India, and the low rates of discount on this side. The unfortunate failure of the Oriental Bank has also had the double effect of throwing business into their hands, and of reducing competition.

OBITUARY.

Telegraphic intelligence received in this country recently announces the death of Azam Samaldas Farmanandass, Dewan, or Minister, of the Bhavnagar State in Bombay. The deceased succeeded to his high position at the invitation of the present enlightened ruler of the territory, His Highness Maharajah Takhtsingjee, K.C.S.I., about five years ago. He steadily pursued the progressive policy which had been prevailing in the State for some time previously. Indeed, he himself had a prominent share in its inauguration; for from a very early period of his career he had served in its administration in different capacities, and about fifteen years ago, on the nomination of a joint administration during the minority of the present chief, he was called upon to act in the judicial and other departments of the State in co-operation with the British member of the administration. Consequently, when the charge of affairs was transferred from the late venerable Minister, Mr. Gowreesankar, C.S.I., to the deceased, he found himself especially fitted to foster and elaborate measures which were set on foot with a view to promote the well-being of the people and cultivate the resources of the State. The result was that year after year the Government of Bombay expressed their approbation of the management of affairs in Bhavnagar—a compliment which has often been ratified by the Secretary of State. Mr. Samaldas's death is an irreparable loss to the State, at the present especially; for the relations between his master and himself were marked by an extent of confidence and cordiality which is rare between the princes of India and their native Ministers, which, moreover, as the results in this case showed, was justified, and which it would not be easy to reproduce. The deceased, besides being a clever, sagacious, and moderate administrator, had a reputation for Persian and Sanskrit scholarship, and gave promise, if he had not thus been cut off prematurely, of securing a place before long among the most conspicuous Indian statesmen of modern times.

THE INDIAN WHEAT HARVEST OF 1884.

THE Revenue and Agricultural Department of the Government of India have issued a memorandum recalling that in a resolution of March last the Department attempted to determine the area ordinarily placed under wheat in British India and the Native States, and to estimate the outturn in an average year. The broad conclusions arrived at were that the total wheat area in India is about 26,000,000 acres, of which 20,000,000 acres are in British India and 4,000,000 in Native States. The total yield in a fairly good year was put at 135,000,000 cwt., or 30½ million quarters, giving an average outturn of 9 1-3 bushels per acre. Since the conclusion of the year's harvest, reports have been received from the chief wheat-growing provinces as to the comparative area and outturn of the crop of 1884. The information may be thus summarised:—In the Punjab the harvest in the south-eastern division, known as the Delhi and Hissar territory, has been very indifferent, and in some of these districts is described as a complete failure on unirrigated lands. But in the central and northern portions of the province, both the acreage and yield have been above the average, and this has more than counterbalanced the deficiency in the south-east. On the whole, the yield in 1884 may be estimated as above the average. The average area is given in the Government of India's resolution as 7,000,000 acres, and the average yield 9.3 million quarters. The yield for 1884 may therefore be put at 10,000,000 quarters. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, which in the Government of India's resolution is shown to come next to the Punjab in respect of wheat area, the area under wheat in 1884 appears to have been fully up to the average. The yield, however, was somewhat short in many districts, owing to the deficiency of the autumn and winter rains. Estimating the area at 6.2 million acres, and allowing for indifferent crops, the outturn for 1884 might be put at 7.5 million quarters. The average yield per acre in these provinces is probably somewhat larger in ordinary years than in the Punjab. In the Bombay Presidency the yield per acre is reported to be generally above the average. The acreage appears to have been up to the average except in Scinde, where, however, the yield was average. The area ordinarily under wheat in the Presidency is about 1.6 million acres, and on this basis the probable yield this year is 2,000,000 quarters. In the Central Provinces the harvest has been excellent, and the outturn is put fully fifteen per cent. above the average. The acreage also was in excess of the average. In the resolution referred to the average area is put at 4,000,000 acres, but the yield per acre is ordinarily less than in Northern India. Taking into account the excellent character of the harvest and the breadth of land under crop, the outturn in 1884 should not be less than 5,000,000 quarters. The four provinces from which reports have been received should thus yield a total 24½ million quarters. Reports have not been received from Bengal, Berars, or the wheat-growing Native States of Rajpootana and Central India. But enough is known to anticipate that the total wheat outturn of India this year comes up to the average of 30½ million quarters. It is difficult, perhaps impossible, to estimate how much of this is available for export. In the calendar year 1882 the export was 15,000,000 cwt., and in 1883 it was 22½ million, and this without any effect in raising prices. It may, therefore, be inferred that with a good rainy season following an average wheat crop, so as to secure the autumn harvest, at least one-fifth of the wheat harvest can be spared for export without materially enhancing prices. As regards existing stocks, it was remarked in the Government of India's resolution that in consequence of the low prices ruling in Europe the export for the quarter ending December last had greatly contracted, and that the continued cheapness of wheat in India indicated the existence of considerable stocks. Since January the wheat exports have been moderate, the total quantity exported for the six months ending the 30th of June being 5,960,000 cwt., against 10,990,000 cwt. in the corresponding months of 1883. The export in April was 637,000 cwt.; in May, 1,422,000 cwt.; and in June, 1,857,000 cwt. The total export for May and June was 3,280,000 cwt., against 6,166,000 cwt. for those months in 1883. Wheat prices in the chief up-country markets are slightly lower than at the beginning of the year, and in the resolution referred to above, it was shown that the prices ruling in January, 1884, were lower, in spite of the large export in 1883, than they were in 1882.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—Business in the market for bar silver has been extremely quiet, but the price remains at 50¼d. per ounce, while only a purely nominal quotation was obtainable for Mexican dollars. Indian and the Hong Kong exchange rates are unaltered, but the Shanghai quotation is ¼d. higher, at 5s. 1¼d. Rupee Paper shows no change, and transactions in that security have been limited.

TUESDAY.—The position of the silver market is unchanged. Bars are still quoted at 50¼d. per ounce, with only a very limited business, and it is again impossible to give any other than a nominal quotation for Mexican dollars. Supplies of both kinds of the metal are, however, expected at the end of the week. Exchange rates from the East and Rupee Paper are unaltered.

WEDNESDAY.—The exceptional demand for bar silver which enabled those who had any amounts to dispose of to get 50¼d. per ounce has been supplied and the price has to-day receded to 50 11-16d. This is about on a parity with the price paid for transfer remittances to the East, but very little, if any, business seems to have been done, as the arrival of a fresh amount of bars is looked for. Mexican dollars are also very scarce, but no actual price is obtainable for them. Indian exchange rates are unaltered, the Hongkong quotation has advanced to 3s. 9¼d., and Shanghai remains at 5s. 1¼d. Rupee Paper is still quoted at 82¼ 83 and 80¼ 80½ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents, respectively.

THURSDAY.—Bar silver has again been quoted at 50 11-16d. per ounce, but very little business was reported. So far there is no quotation to be given for Mexican dollars. Eastern exchange rates and the prices of Rupee Paper are all unaltered.

FRIDAY.—Only a very small amount of business was done in bar silver at 50 11-16d. per ounce. There was, however, a good demand for Mexican dollars, but as the consignment by the French packet just announced at St. Nazaire cannot be received until the early part of next week, no actual price for the coined metal is as yet obtainable. Rupee Paper and all the Eastern rates of exchange remain as they were.

SATURDAY.—The silver market shows no change of any kind, Indian and China exchanges are also unaltered, and Rupee Paper remains at 82¼ 83 for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80¼ 80½ for the Four per Cents.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

MONDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's Indian and Ceylon tea auctions, comprising only 2,947 packages, passed with spirit, and last week's quotations were fully maintained. 240 chests Java tea sold at satisfactory rates. At the China sales only 2,200 packages green teas were catalogued, which generally sold at firm prices. Business on the private market has been very restricted.

COTTON.—The market is steady and unchanged, except American futures, which closed about 1-32d. in sellers' favour. The sales since Friday amount to about 1,200 bales, including Tinnevely, 5½d. to 5¾d.; Western, 4¼d.; Northern, 4 15-16d.; Bengal, 3¾d. to 4 3-16d. Forward delivery, American, November-December, 5 61-64d.; February-March, 6d. for middling l.m.c.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—According to the B Bill of Entry the amount of tea ex warehouses on which duty was paid in August, was 15,040,023lb., in addition to which duty payments on 182,781lb. were made direct and to the inland revenue. Up to the 31st ult. the total duty payments this year had been on 114,927,509lb. During August the exports and stores came to 4,478,770lb., making a total for eight months of 29,325,902lb., and the amounts sent coastwise to 2,619,835lb., bringing the figures for eight months up to 19,523,798lb. The China auctions to-day comprised 11,158 packages, of which 10,941 sold without reserve. The catalogues represented a very miscellaneous collection, but prices as a rule were unchanged. The Indian sales were again small, only 2,474 packages new season's being offered, all of which sold at steady rates. Teas under 1s. per lb. were in strong demand. Some invoices of Assam tea of exceptionally good quality were well competed for, and realised high prices. To-day's sales were again small. 11,679 packages were printed, but several breaks were sold previous to the auctions. The tone of the sale was flat, and prices in many instances were in favour of buyers. The private contract market remains very dull.

SUGAR.—There has not been an increase in the demand, but fair, grocery crystallised Demerara at auction to-day brought advanced rates by 6d. to 1s., ranging up to 25s. 6d. to 26s. The total business in West India is 329 casks, 5,000 barrels and bags beet.—The Clyde telegram shows a quiet market for pieces.

COFFEE.—Supplies to-day consisted chiefly of Costa Rica, which only partly sold at about last week's rates. Good to fine ordinary, 47s. to 50s. 6d.; middling, 57s. to 58s. 6d. 1,815 bags offered, 510 bags Guatemala withdrawn. 106 casks, 38 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon sold—middling, 62s. to 67s.; bold 80s. to 85s. 15 half barrels Mocha, bought in 82s. 500 bags Rio partly sold, ex quay prices, 41s. 6d. to 43s. 6d. per cwt. The Dutch Trading Company's sale for the 17th inst. will be 431 casks, 102,277 bags.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The Indian and Ceylon auctions comprised 4,230 packages. Prices all round were very firm, and especially so for teas of fine quality. 3,692 packages were sold without reserve at the China auctions, including 1,036 packages scented, 3,349 packages new season's redleaves, and 300 half-chests second crop Ningchow, which sold for 10d. per lb. Red siftings and broken leafs passed at from 4¾d. to 6¾d. per lb. Old season's Kaisows (first crop) sold for 7d. to 8d. per lb., and Souchongs at 10d. per lb. Prices generally show no quotable alteration, though the tendency was in buyers' favour.

SUGAR.—There have not been any reported sales of West India, but yesterday about 400 casks Barbados sold; also 3,000 bags crystallised Trinidad, at 16s. 6d.; 200 tons cane jagghery, at 8s. In the Clyde market pieces are better, and prices rather hardening. Beet, for prompt shipment, firm, at 12s. 6d. German. Forward quiet.

COFFEE.—A flat tone and some of the 217 casks 64 barrels and bags Plantation Ceylon had to be bought in. Prices rather lower. Low middling to middling sold at 62s. to 67s.; rather bold to fine bold at 75s. to 87s. Twenty-three cases 1,425 bags, East India partly sold, medium grayish to bold color at 62s. to 87s. 6d.; Mysore at 77s. 6d. to 87s. 6d. 117 half-bales Mocha bought in at 92s. 117 bags Columbian partly sold at 47s. 6d. to 51s. per cwt.

SPICES.—The sales to-day went flatly. There were not any nutmegs offered, and the market is very firm. Penang black pepper to arrive has sold at 6¾d. 260 bags white in the auctions withdrawn. 1,040 bags Cochin ginger part sold at 1s. to 2s. advance. Small broken to fair rough, 46s. to 50s. 6d.; fair washed, rather small, 51s.; part cut small to medium, 56s. to 60s.; bold, 75s. to 76s.; two lots good bold cut, 81s. per cwt. Pimento is 1-16d. to ¼d. lower, part of 1,822 bags selling at 2¼d. to 2¾d. Seven cases mace bought in, 1s. 3d. per lb.

SAGO.—In auction 381 bags part sold—medium, 11s. to 11s. 6d.; small dull, 9s. to 9s. 6d. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo of Bassein off the coast sold at 7s. 9¾d. ex quay, Liverpool.

THURSDAY EVENING.

TEA.—From Messrs. Hawes and Hertz's Fortnightly China Report:—"The improvement quoted in our last has not been of long duration. Since the 30th ult., when it became apparent that events in the East had only very temporarily interrupted shipments from Foochow, the general inclination to buy as suddenly stopped as it had arisen about a week before. The market since has been dull and drooping for all grades, which had been favourably affected by the previous rise. Dealers' stocks are reported to be even smaller now than they were before the late excitement, so that any fresh occurrence in China which would create a general belief of a serious interruption of supplies would again make itself immediately felt in the open market. Black leafs under 9½d. per lb. have received ¾d. to ¾d. per lb.; grades above, up to 1s. per lb., are again difficult of sale and show easier and less regulated rates. Pekoe flavoured and Ningchow teas, from 1s. 3d. up to 1s. 9d. per lb., have been in better demand for home trade and export, and prices are steady and firm. In second crops the lower sorts have been selling at from 8½d. to 10½d. per lb. Some transactions in fine medium to fine have passed at from 1s. 2d. to about 1s. 4d. per lb. Lowest closing quotations for common black leaf tea 7d. per lb. Red leaf have been in plentiful supply ex recent arrivals, and closing rates show a decline from the highest point of ¾d. per lb. for siftings, a fall of ¼d. per lb. for common leafy kinds. Sayunes and Parades; better grades sell heavily and show generally easier prices. Finest Chingwos and Parkings have been more frequently dealt in at pr. y rates. Souchongs are in fair demand at from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 5d. per lb. Lowest closing quotation for common red leaf tea, 7½d. per lb. The demand for Russia has been considerable, chiefly for Ningchows and Pekoe flavoured teas, at from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 8d. per lb. Flowery Pekoes—Arrivals have been small, but transactions are on a very restricted scale. Old teas.—Many holders have taken advantage of the higher range prevailing for a new season's common sorts, and over 7,000 packages have been offered and sold at auction. The better grades, at from 6¼d. to 7½d. per lb. for red, and 7d. to 8½d. for black leafs show nearly 1d. per lb. improvement on rates which were ruling at the commencement of August, but common kinds have advanced but little. Lowest quotations for common red leaf, 5¼d. per lb.; for black leaf, 5¾d. per lb."

SUGAR.—There have not been any transactions of importance on the spot, and the market is flat. A cargo of 850 tons Java off the coast cold at 16s. Beet for prompt shipment easier, and quiet in other positions. In the Clyde market a steady demand for refiners' produce at yesterday's rates. M. Bertrand Silz-w.r.te from Paris, on the 10th inst., as follows:—"We have had cold and rainy weather during the last eight days, and the reports from the manufacturing districts are rather unfavourable. Saccharine richness of the beet has much diminished, and has not been compensated by the augmentation of the weight which was expected. This has occasioned numerous demands, and important transactions have occurred at prices gradually advancing about fr. 1 50c. per 100 kilos. Each day's temperature has its importance and influence on the market; thus, as the weather of to-day promised a change for the better, abundant offers have reappeared, and the advance of the last few days has been in a great degree lost."

COFFEE.—The public sales to-day were rather large, including 278 cases 2,430 bags, East India, 243 casks, 20 tierces, 21 barrels, 134 b gs Plantation Ceylon. Prices irregular, but a large proportion sold, and fine qualities bought steady prices. Low middling to fine middling Plantation Ceylon went at 62s. to 72s. 6d.; rather bold to fine bold at 76s. to 94s. 6d.; medium grayish to fine bold colory Neilgherry at 61s. 6d. to 88s.; Mysore at 60s. to 99s. 6d. 3,957 bags Guatemala had to be withdrawn.

RICE.—Two cargoes of Rangoon gold at 7s. 8½d. to 7s. 9d., Continent.

FRIDAY EVENING.

TEA.—At the Indian auctions yesterday, 7,092 packages were offered, and nearly all sold. Prices were rather irregular, owing to the large number of samples to be valued, and in some cases broken teas and Souchongs under 1s. per lb. passed rather easier. Pekoes and broken Pekoes maintained late values. The China sales comprised 6,499 packages, viz., 1,900 black leafs, 3,480 red leafs, 849 greens, and 270 scented teas. The sale passed steadily, the black leafs in some cases showing rather firmer prices, at from 8½d. per lb. to 10½d. per lb. The private market yesterday and to-day has been very quiet indeed.

SUGAR continues flat. Crystallised Demerara by auction went easier, at 18s. to 21s. The week's business in West India is 1,316 casks, 11,500 bags, &c. 1,079 bags Natal bought in, 10s. 6d. to 11s. 6d.; 1,154 bags 130 barrels Maracaibo, 7s. 6d. to 8s.; 1,280 bags Bengal part sold, 8s. 6d.; 333 baskets native Penang bought in, 8s. to 8s. 6d. Privately low brown kinds have sold, including 250 tons Penang, at 7s. to 8s. Some soft Madras at 8s. 6d., and Manila at 9s. 6d. Egyptian syrups 10s. 6d. per cwt. The Clyde market for pieces quiet, with prices tending in favour of buyers. Beet of the new crop lower.

COFFEE.—The public sales have gone flatly, and some of the Plantation Ceylon went at irregular prices, or 1s. lower for the week, but good and fine kinds keep steady. 419 casks 120 barrels and bags sold—middling to good middling, 64s. to 70s. 6d.; rather bold to fine bold, 76s. to 94s.; 222 bags East India, 52s. to 68s.; 22 packages Jamaica sold—good, 74s. 6d.; fine, 104s. 6d. to 117s.; 2,937 bags foreign went without alteration.

"MAN PROPOSES,"

A NOVEL IN THREE VOLUMES.

BY

MRS. A. PHILLIPS, Author of "Benedicta."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mrs. Phillips's new story is simple enough in its subject and construction to be deservedly called idyllic, and her power as a writer is shown by the manner in which the interest and action are steadily subordinated to the selected theme. The incidents are natural and affecting. Hagar's is a fine character, and its metal is tried and refined by a series of tests which cannot fail to secure for her the sympathy of all who make her acquaintance."—Athenaeum.

"There are many good passages in this novel, and excellent touches of character. It shows that the author is capable of work beyond the average."—Academy.

"This novel, in which there is a great deal to admire and very little to find fault with, is always well, and sometimes beautifully, written, and full of thought and feeling."

"The book is extremely taking, and there is a poetical strain in it that is as strange to modern fiction as it is taking."—Spectator.

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FOURTEENTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a voice of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

FIFTY-SEVEN.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF INDIAN DISTRICTS DURING THE REVOLT OF THE BENGAL ARMY.

By

HENRY GEORGE KEENE, C.I.E., M.R.A.S.,
Author of "The Fall of the Mughal Empire," &c.

"The author breaks new ground. He essays to inform us how the different districts in the North West were preserved from anarchy by their civil administrators during such a stupendous catastrophe as the revolt of the army, upon whose support social order, in a great measure, rested. The task involves stories of adventure and pluck, which never come amiss to the many readers who have relatives serving abroad; and these stories are given in picturesque language, with a conciseness precluding tedium, and in a tone throughout of the modesty which seems natural where duty is considered the first obligation, and courage the first attribute, of an English gentleman."—World.

"Mr. Keene tells how the civil officers in the districts kept or restored order, largely by their own individual influence, often by heroic exertion, and almost invariably with the loyal aid of native subordinates. He describes the events which occurred in some eight or nine districts of the North West Provinces and Bengal. His narrative is unpretentious in style, but it clearly shows that courage, firmness, heroism, and self-sacrifice were displayed among the members of the Indian Civil Service, as well as by the soldiers who stormed Delhi, relieved Lucknow, and avenged the crimes of Cawnpore."—Scotsman.

"This work claims our hearty recognition of its thoroughness. It gives us a most readable and trustworthy recension of the reports of eye-witnesses, always the most valuable to the student of history. It has a special interest from the fact that Mr. Keene was himself one of those district officers who honourably held their ground during those fearfully exciting times."—Literary World.

"Mr. Keene writes to give somewhat tardy honour where it is due—viz., to the civilian officers who, during the period of the Indian Mutiny, remained at their posts, and in many instances deprived of military aid, had themselves to raise and command levies for the protection of the district."—Morning Post.

"A volume which seems to us to break new ground, and to supply a want felt by those who have ever endeavoured to study the subject. . . . The matter is, for the most part, new, and it treats of incidents in themselves fairly entitled to attention, and calculated to excite interest. . . . The fights, the rides, and the surprises and the escapes are all related in picturesque language."—Home News.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, SEPT. 22, 1884.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Sept. 2; Madras and Allahabad, Aug. 31; Calcutta, Aug. 30.

WE are glad to learn, from to-day's Calcutta telegram in the Times, that the Native Press generally approves of Lord Dufferin's appointment. We are told by the same authority that this approval is by no means so uniform or warm as that of the Anglo-Indian papers; but we are confident that this fact is only significant as another scintillation of the unfortunate piques and jealousies of Lord Ripon's reign—which must, we fear, in the nature of things, cast their baneful shadows far on into the reign of his successor. The obliteration of these unhappy feelings will be, as we point out in our leading columns to-day, Lord Dufferin's first and toughest work.

THE Octroi Committee in Calcutta seems to have reported against the octroi scheme altogether, except in the case of petroleum oils. We would suggest that the tax on petroleum oils should be so differentiated as to give the oils of India and Burma some advantage over the cheap and bad oils of America. Such a suggestion will doubtless cause a wagging of beards and shaking of heads among economists of the old school—who nicknamed our one-sided system of free imports and taxed exports "Free Trade," and then fell down and worshipped the image they had set up. But this school—though still holding its own in England, where its doctrines are regarded by the many as too sacred to admit of question—is absolutely discredited in every other country of the world, including our own colonies, so it is time that our Indian Administrators began to endeavour, in such matters, to "clear their minds of cant."

THE Hon. Edward Stanhope, M.P., late Under Secretary of State for India, spoke at a crowded public meeting at Whitby last Monday in support of a resolution condemning the foreign and domestic policy of the present Government, and approving the action of the House of Lords on the Franchise question. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Stanhope warmly recommended Mr. Roper Lethbridge's candidature, with reference to Mr. Lethbridge's services in India and his knowledge of that Empire.

THE North Star of Darlington has the following notice of this meeting:—

"Whitby is one of the seats which the Conservatives will win at the next election; and the satisfactory meeting held in the Congress Hall last night may be regarded as one more nail driven into the political coffin of the sitting member. It was large, it was practically unanimous, and it enthusiastically endorsed the dictum of the speakers that the Government has been weighed in the balances and found wanting. It must grieve the heart of Mr. Arthur Pease when he thus hears of the enemy (as he will phrase it) sowing tares whilst he is away doing good somewhere else; but it is a way the enemy have. Only, in this instance, it is the tares that are being torn up; or (to change the simile) the truth is being told about many very shady transactions."

THE Yorkshire Gazette (York) says of the same meeting:—

"We have ascertained that there were at least 2,500 persons present at the great Conservative meeting in the Congress Hall, Whitby, on Monday evening. As a political demonstration the assembly was one of the most magnificent and imposing ever held in the borough, and as the meeting was practically unanimous, the significance of such an expression of public opinion can hardly be over-rated. Copies of the resolutions have been transmitted to the Marquis of Salisbury and Sir Stafford Northcote."

THE Indian Mirror continues to give telegraphic summaries of the proceedings of the various public meetings that are being held throughout Bengal in opposition to the Tenancy Bill. We give two of the telegrams:—

"BUNGPORE, August 15.—At a crowded meeting of landholders held here to-day the amended Bengal Tenancy Bill was condemned and viewed with alarm, as it is by no means an improvement on the existing rent law, but introduces complications calculated to create endless disputes and litigation between landlords and tenants. It threatens to disturb the existing rights of the Zemindars and at their expense confers new rights on the ryots, which is inconsistent with the spirit of the terms of the Permanent Settlement. It fails to provide for the speedy realisation of rents which was one of the primary objects of the introduction of the Bill.

"DINAGPORE, 17TH AUGUST.—An influential meeting nearly 100 landholders was held here to-day at the Rajbari, Maharajah Gria Nath Roy, Bahadur, presiding. The meeting recorded its strong disapproval of the principle of the amended Bengal Tenancy Bills, and resolutions to the following effect were unanimously carried:—'That the provisions of the Bill interfere with the solemnly guaranteed rights of the Zemindars, and are detrimental to the interests of both landlords and tenants, and calculated to disturb the long-settled relations between them by fostering endless disputes and litigation; that there exists no necessity for introducing in the Bill revolutionary measures for trenching upon the vested rights of the Zemindars, whilst they would not materially benefit the actual cultivators, but would eventually transfer the rights of property to a new class of middlemen.'

At Edinburgh on the 12th inst., Major Bailey, R.E., superintendent of forest surveys in India, and director of the Indian Forests School, delivered a lecture in the committee room at the Forestry Exhibition, his subject being "Indian Forest Surveys." Dr. Cleghorn occupied the chair. Major Bailey spoke of the necessity that existed for establishing a special board to survey forests, and stated that in India, between 1872 and 1883, there had been surveyed, and mapped out a total of 2,835 square miles of forests, the cost of surveying being from 3d. to 3½d. per acre. The maps were required principally to enable schemes of management or working plans to be prepared, these being necessary to regulate the working of all forests. There were many difficulties in the way of effecting the regeneration of Indian forests. Natural regeneration consisted in the gradual removal of the crop in such a manner as to promote the production of seed. Under favourable conditions, such as existed in France, that was comparatively easy; but it was not so in India, the work being rendered very difficult in consequence of the protracted droughts; nor could artificial regeneration be always successfully carried out. Another great difficulty with which they had to contend was the want of markets for the produce of the Indian forests. The prices for what was now considered inferior kinds of wood were so small that they would not pay the cost of conveying the wood to market, and in one district about 60 per cent. of the wood was allowed to lie and cumber the ground, preventing the seedlings coming up, and increasing the risks from fire. Forest fires were among the greatest enemies of the Indian forester, and to cope with them "fire lines," measuring in some cases 200 feet in breadth were cut through the forests so as to secure the isolation of the flames. A good deal of damage was caused to the forests in India by the grazing of camels, cattle, sheep, and goats, and it was found to be very difficult to deal with them. The goats were the most destructive, and ought, in the lecturer's opinion, to be excluded from all forests. Major Bailey went on to speak of the removal of timber by Government agency, or by the selling of standing trees, and pointed out the difficulties of exporting timber from the Himalayan forests. He concluded by recommending the preparation of working plans for all Scottish forests. The lecturer was, at the close, awarded a hearty vote of thanks.

THE Englishman says:—

"A letter dated 4th August has reached us from Kandahar. It states that there has been a heavy fall of rain over the city; the downpour lasted a day and a night, a number of ruined old walls were washed away, and one mud house, belonging to a Hindu, came to grief. Two women were killed in its fall, and one man wounded. There is a great deal of sickness in Dala; not a house, says one authority, in which one or two persons are not lying ill, but few of the cases have been fatal. News reached Kandahar that Aslam Khan, Nawab of Khilat-i-Ghilzai, who had fled, has been taken in Pashmul, a place on the road to Hazara. The tidings of his capture have been forwarded to Kabul. Five of the rifles which were sent on from Kandahar to Ferrah are reported missing. The subahdar, who could not account for their disappearance, has been brought in to Kandahar under arrest. It is stated that the Amir has presented the Hotuki chiefs who appeared before him in Kabul with Khillats. Amir Abdurrahman Khan has sequestered the property of Tola Ram Hakim at Kandahar, which consisted of a house, gardens, and land, and which was said to be of considerable value. Tola Ram, a wealthy Hindu, was Vizir and Hakim to Sardar Mahammad Sheriff Khan, Governor of Kandahar, during the time of Yakub Khan. Mahammad Sheriff, a relative of Yakub Khan, left Kandahar when the Amir was removed from Kabul. Tola Ram, who did not consider himself safe in Afghanistan after his patron had forsaken the country, and Abdurrahman Khan had succeeded to the throne, settled down in Quetta. The last news shows that his fears were well founded, and that the present Amir had not given up the intention of striking a blow at the late official of an hostile party. A report has reached us from Kabul that several Sahibs were coming to Kandahar, and that they will be escorted by three hundred men, native infantry. The first notice of course refers to Colonel Ridgeway and the members of the Demarcation Commission and as to the numbers and composition of the escort our authority could not possibly be well informed. But he evidently knows more about the Afghan side of the business, and he states that the Amir's troops, one regiment, will await the members of the Commission at Kandahar and escort them towards their place of destination.

THE Hindoo Patriot says:—

"It is especially gratifying to notice that there is a strong public feeling in favour of holding a Memorial meeting in honour of the late Rai Kristolas Pal. It would be a fitting acknowledgment of the unremitting devotion and unrivalled ability with which he served his country. Calcutta, however, is at this season quite empty, and the meeting now would be deprived of the presence of many of the high officers of State and other European gentlemen who would gladly join in such a demonstration. We think it well, therefore, that the projectors of the Memorial have made up their minds to defer the meeting till November next."

THE Indian Mirror says:—

"The vacancy created in the Travancore Judgeship by the appointment of Mr. Ramachandriar to Mysore, has induced His Highness the Maharajah of Travancore to appoint Mr. Krishna Swamy Rao, Subordinate Judge of Coconada Chief Judge of Travancore. It was stated that Mr. Ormesby would get the appointment as he worked for many years with success in the 'Model State.' But the Chief Judge of the Province has always been a Native, and the policy adopted by the previous Administration in this respect has been closely observed."

THE Liberal publishes the following telegram from Simla:—

"Simla August 16.—To-day His Highness the Maharajah of Cuch Behar is much better, fever is decidedly abating; our anxiety is becoming less and less every day, alarming symptoms have all gone. Progress is very favourable. The Maharani was free from fever on the morning. Raj Kumar is convalescing satisfactorily. Dr. McConnel starts to-day. Viceroy, Lady Ripon, Commander in Chief, Lady Stewart, Sir Charles and Lady Aitchison, Mr. Rivers, Thompson, Sir Frederick Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Ilbert, and many other of the Maharajah's friends, Native and European, are inquiring daily about his health. Maharajah's mother and Dewan arrived here from Cuch Behar, and found their Highnesses doing better than expected. May they soon recover by God's grace."

THE Indian Mirror says:

"We are glad to learn that Babu Manic Lall Dutta, the Gilchrist Scholar for the present year, will soon leave Calcutta per s.s. 'Rowena' for England to study Arts, and most probably for the Bar. He is a promising young gentleman of only 19 years of age, his academic career was highly creditable to him. We have no doubt as to his success in the present undertaking, and wish him God speed."

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Marke, corrected up till Saturday August 30:—

"We have to report an active week in our freight market, and a fair amount of tonnage has been taken up, chiefly sailers, a goodly number of which have found employment at previous rates. Our unfixed tonnage is all the better for it, but we have had at the same time many arrivals, and the total to-day stands several thousand tons over that of last week. Steam tonnage has been rather neglected and quiet, and low rates had to be accepted by the loading steamers for filling up."

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, Sept. 2:—

"Honorary Captain W. Wood, Assistant Engineer, Public Works Department, Bombay; Mr. Henry Gardiner, Assistant Registrar of the Madras High Court, Original Side; Dr. James Schutz, late Civil Surgeon, of Fattchepore; Major G. J. Coulson 3rd B. m'ay Regiment. N.I."

THE forthcoming number of the National Review will contain a very important article on "Redistribution," by the Most Hon. the Marquis of Salisbury, K.G.

THE Indian Daily News says:—

"When the history of the Ripon Administration of India comes to be written, its worst blot will be its subservieny to English interests or demands. Not content with finding an opportunity of helping Mr. Gladstone to tide over the Egyptian difficulty by the payment to the War Office of a singularly convenient million, the Government has hit upon a new electioneering dodge, and desires to take up the value payable parcels post in the interest of the English tradesmen. The Home Store account increases, Cheshire benefits by the reduction of the duty on salt, and Manchester by the reduction of the duties on imported cotton goods and now a new effort is to be made to conciliate English electors to the party whose policy towards India may be summed up in the one word, 'promises.'"

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 20th ult., are as follow:—

"Rain fell in varying quantities in all districts of the Madras Presidency, and except in a few places where the drought continues, prospects have much improved. In Mysore there has been very little rain again, and the condition of the standing crops is critical; sowings have also been retarded, owing to the deficiency of rain. In Coorg there has been a fair amount of rain, and prospects are on the whole good. In the Bombay Presidency moderate showers fell in most districts, but the rainfall is insufficient in parts of the Deccan and Southern Mahratta country, where, in some places, the young crops are suffering from drought. In the Berars and Hyderabad the rainfall has been slight, but the crops are doing well. There was rain generally throughout the Central India States, but more is wanted in several places. In Sutna over 13 inches fell during the week, and the town of Rewah was flooded and sustained considerable damage. In Nowgong also the total rainfall has been very great. In the Rajputana States the rainfall of the week under report was slight, and more is wanted in Sirohi, Harowti, Ajmere, Jeypore, and Ulwur. In the Central Provinces the rainfall has not been so heavy as that hitherto recorded; there have been occasional breaks, allowing weeding and ploughing, but a longer break is still required. Good rain has fallen in all districts of the North West Provinces and Oudh, and crop prospects are generally excellent. In the Punjab there was slight rain in a few districts, but prospects continue good. There was heavy rain in the Assam district, over 18 inches being registered at Sylhet."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE following is from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Sept. 21:—

"The idea of establishing county responsibility in regard to procuring civil employment for Reserve soldiers, which, as I mentioned last week, has been warmly taken up by the Indian military authorities, has led to a suggestion to dispense with the agency of the Gospel discharge depot, and distribute time-expired and invalid soldiers returning from India directly to the counties in which their homes are situated. It is proposed that their deferred pay and savings bank balances should be remitted to the depot centres nearest their place of future residence, and their discharge papers completed there. Soldiers returning in the troopships would thus be grouped according to counties, and on landing would be sent straight to the depot centres. They would thus escape the very serious temptations to which they are now exposed, and would reach home under conditions creditable to the service. It is thought it may be possible in arranging to distribute invalids direct to their counties to insure the comfort of home associations to sick soldiers immediately on their arrival, and, in the case of those married, to place their families at once under the care of relatives and friends, avoiding the necessity now existing for special charity to relieve the families of invalid soldiers detained at Netley.

"The Commander-in-Chief is understood to attach the greatest importance to this subject, and to consider that some such scheme is absolutely essential for keeping up the proper strength of the British Army in India. Sir Donald Stewart also believe esprit de corps and the general efficiency of the Army would be increased by making first appointments of consideration that they should be connected with the county from which the regiment is recruited. It is a noteworthy fact that the 2nd Battalion Royal Warwickshire Regiment, now quartered at Calcutta, which is essentially a regiment recruited from the county of Warwick, has not a single officer in any way connected with the county.

"Another break has occurred in the rains, and the reports from some districts of Bengal are again gloomy. There does not appear to be any danger of general scarcity in the province, though severe local distress may be felt. According to the last report Burdwan prospects are very dubious, Tubna wants rain very badly, Sarun requires rain urgently, while in the Sonthal Pergunnahs good rain can alone avert a partial failure of the crops. Relief works have been opened in Beerbhoom, which so far is the worst district, and 2,500 people are employed. Orders have been issued to commence the earthwork of a section of the proposed Bengal Nagpore Railway lying between Sitarampore and Parulia to afford employment to the distressed people in that tract of country.

"The committee recently appointed to consider the desirability of establishing an outroi in Calcutta have reported that it is not desirable, owing to the inequality of incidence and difficulty of levying in such a city as Calcutta. The committee, however, recommend an increase of the trade license duty, also a special tax on kerosine oil of two annas a case, and an increased duty on tobacco.

"A Bombay paper has lately stated that a committee is about to assemble to consider the question of restoring Gwalior Fort to Scindiah. It is hardly necessary to contradict a report so palpably unfounded.

"The subject of theosophy, in the absence of topics of more general interest, has occupied a large share of the attention of the Indian Press and public during the past week. It has been brought prominently forward by the publication in the Madras Christian College Magazine of a correspondence alleged to have passed between Madame Blavatsky and a Monsieur and Madame Coulomb, who appear to have been followers of her, but who having fallen out with the sect, have placed the letters in the hands of the editor of the magazine. These letters, if genuine, certainly prove Madame Blavatsky to be a consummate impostor, who, with the help of Coulomb, imposed upon the credulous by ingenious trickery. The so-called astral body of the Tibetan Mahatma Koot Humi is described as a crafty arrangement of bladders, muslin, and a mask, while the wonder-working skrine at Madras is said to be a mere conjurer's cabinet. The theosophists indignantly declare the letters to be imprudent forgeries, and state that the Coulombs were expelled the society, and have taken this means to revenge themselves.

"What might have been a serious raid on the frontier district of Hazara has been checked by prompt action on the part of a subaltern. Nearly 2,000 Ohgarzai tribesmen gathered on the slopes of the Black Mountain on the 10th and threatened the village of Ghanian in the Agrore Valley. Their first attack being repulsed, they withdrew to a neighbouring spur, where they were followed by Lieutenant Barret of the 5th Goorkhas, with 100 Sepoys, some villagers, and police. He attacked and utterly routed the enemy, who outnumbered him by twenty to one, and chased them several miles. A body of troops ordered from Abbottabad were stopped on their way on the news of Lieutenants Barret's brilliant little victory.

"The Native Press generally comments favourably on Lord Dufferin's appointment to the Viceroyalty, but its approval is by no means so uniform or warm as that of the Anglo-Indian papers.

"QUETTA, SEPT. 20.—The Afghan Agents have arrived at the Helmund and are communicating with Colonel Ridgeway, at Nushki. They are collecting supplies and co-operating heartily.

It is practically settled, we understand, that the long-talked of School of Musketry for the Bengal Army, will be started next spring, probably at Dugshai.

PURE INDIAN TEAS.—Two kinds (both very good), at 2s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per lb., are sold at the Pure India Tea Depot, Ennerdale-road Richmond. The superintendent (Lieut. Col. MONEY, the Author of the standard work and prize essay on "Tea Cultivation and Manufacture in India"), who is a large producer, sells at the above low prices 25 per cent. below usual ones because no middleman's profits are inserted. ### NOTES ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884, BY THE EAST BENGAL LANDHOLDERS' ASSOCIA- TION.

CHAPTER III. Continued.—As to the consistency or otherwise of a condition with the provisions of the Bill take the following instance:—A Hindu landlord creates a tenure in favour of a Mohamedan tenant and it is provided that no cow should be killed or allowed to be killed on the land and that in case of a breach of this condition the tenure-holder will be liable to ejectment. What is to be said of such a condition? Is it consistent with the provisions of the Bill?

With reference to the above, it would be proper to consider the effect of clause a. of section 31 and clause b. of section 58. Both these clauses allow the tenant to use the land as he pleases provided he does not by any of his acts render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy. Now slaughtering cows can never be said to render the land unfit for tenancy; rather, on the contrary, it may be argued that the blood and bones of the animal acting as manure on the soil would improve the land and render it the more fitted for cultivation. But such an act would not only be most repugnant to the feelings of a Hindu landlord but would according to the tenets of his religion make him liable to expiation. And yet such a condition may not be deemed to be consistent with the provisions of the Bill.

To curtail the freedom of contract and the means of enforcing them by such vague expressions, leaving the parties to grope in the dark, is anything but fair. The general principles of the law of contract and the valuable rights and privileges of the landlord should not be hedged and fettered in the anxiety to protect the interests of the tenants.

The above remarks apply with greater force in the case of ryots and therefore it is submitted that the phrase above alluded to which has been used in section 12 as well as in clause b. of section 23, clause ii of section 31, and clause b. of section 58 may be so modified as to make a condition void only when the same is expressly forbidden by the provisions of the Bill.

While on the subject of private contracts, it is proper to state here once for all, that the present Bill has in many places embodied provisions which giving retrospective effect to its stringent clauses set at naught legal and fair contracts of long standing. This is not only unjust and unfair in general but is in the present case fraught with positive mischief, in that the application of new provisions with a retrospective effect to the old state of things would deprive the landlord of his vested legal rights and privileges without substituting any adequate return for their loss.

REGISTRATION OF TRANSFER OF TENURES.

SECS. 15 to 22.—Although there seems to be no substantive provisions for the registration of the transfer of shares of tenures in the above sections, yet section 21 assumes the registration of the transfer of shares and thereby indirectly authorises their registration. But at the same time there is no saving clause as is found in Act VIII of 1869 under which the Zemindar is not bound to recognise any division of the rent of a tenure. This omission is likely to create difficulties and raise vexed questions. On the other hand, Sec. 18 may be said to provide indirectly that when a transfer even of a share is registered, the landlord will have to look to the transferee only for the due payment of the rent of that share. It is very likely that the present Bill means only to compel the landlord to recognise the transfer of the entire tenure as far as the rent question is concerned. But without the above mentioned saving clause there remains room for a doubt. And in these matters the room for a doubt is always objectionable. While on the subject of the registration transfer of tenures, it may not be out of place to make some observation on the definition of the word transfer. The word "transfer in the present Bill is defined to include sale, mortgage, and gift. But transfer as defined in the Transfer of Property Act has a wider meaning; it includes under that Act also leases. The present definition is therefore ambiguous. It does not limit the meaning to sale, mortgage and gift only and therefore may be said not to exclude leases. It would be better to do away altogether with the word transfer from the Bill or to define it so that it may only mean sale—voluntary or by court and gift. If it be allowed to include also mortgage, then the use of the word in the sections relating to registration of tenures would not only compel the landlord to register even simple mortgages of tenures but may also create other difficulties.

CHAPTER IV.—This chapter is very objectionable. It creates a new class of tenure holders never recognised or even known in the country. Failure on the part of the landlord to rebut the presumption raised in favour of the ryot under sub-Sec. 2 of Sec. 64, will elevate an occupancy ryot into a tenure-holder and thus secure to him certain distinct rights and privileges not enjoyed by other occupancy ryots. This elevation will go on from time to time to the detriment of the interests of the landlord. What is the principle on which this promotion is based and what are the advantages to be gained by the inauguration of this system and classification, it is not easy to determine. On the contrary, the ryot at a fixed rent or rate of rent will be a peculiar class of tenant. He will be a tenure-holder with respect to the transfer of and succession to the tenure, but remain a ryot in all other respects such as the realisation of his rent. His holding or tenure will not be liable to summary sale and his crops will be liable to distraint. The landlord will not be entitled to claim a right of pre-emption in the case of transfer of his tenure. Thus the status of this class of tenants will be a bundle of inconsistencies, and create unnecessary complications and invidious distinctions between two classes of occupancy ryots which it would be hard for the ryots themselves, for whose benefit all these pains are being taken, to understand.

SEC. 23. CL. b.—This clause gives an undue advantage to ryots at a fixed rent or rate of rent. It has been stated that they are merely a class of occupancy ryots. Why then should they not also be liable to ejectment for reasons mentioned in cl. i. of sec. 31. If these ryots are allowed to render the lands they hold unfit for the purposes of the tenancy without any penalty for doing so—it would not only encourage them to do so to the detriment of the landlord's interest in the land but will also tempt all other ryots who have done such acts to set up false claims at holding at fixed rent. The exemption of this class of ryots from suffering the consequences of their unlawful and mischievous acts cannot be defended on any ground whatsoever.

CHAPTER V., OCCUPANCY RYOTS, GENERAL SECS. 24 TO 31.—The provisions relating to the "settled ryots" are most objectionable. They make very many novel encroachments on the landlord. It has often been said by high authorities that Act X of 1859 by creating a class of tenants under the name of occupancy ryots had invaded the then recognised rights of the landlord. Yet compared with these provisions it can safely be said that the injury done by Act X of 1859 is indeed very small.

(1.) Under Act X of 1859 the payment of rent was a condition inseparable from the acquisition and maintenance of the right of the occupancy. The present provisions ignore altogether the necessity of such a condition.

(2.) Act X of 1859 gave right only to the specific land which had been held or cultivated by the ryot for a period of twelve years continuously. The "settled ryot" of the present Bill is required only to have held some land or other in a particular district or estate for a period of twelve years and then he is endowed with a peculiar attribute on account of which he is capable of creating a right of occupancy in his favour in every piece of land that he may get hold of either of, the same village, or of the same estate.

(3.) Sec. 7 of Act X of 1859 saved the terms of written contract against the acquisition of a right of occupancy. But sec. 210 of the present Bill by one sweeping clause (cl. a) nullifies all such contracts, i. e. makes all conditions against the acquisition of a right of occupancy void ab initio.

(4.) Under Act X of 1859 it was the ryot who had to prove that he had acquired a right of occupancy. The present Bill, on the contrary, creates a presumption in favour of the ryot, which it will be for the landlord to rebut, or in other words, it will be for the landlord to prove in every case in which any ryot may choose to set up the plea of any occupancy right, that the ryot has not been holding the land in question or any part of it for twelve years. This is undoubtedly a preposterous proposition. It sets all the principle of the law of evidence at naught, imposes the burden of proving a negative on the shoulders of the landlord and allows the person who alone is capable of showing most satisfactorily how he has made up the required twelve years, to remain at ease; and requires the landlord who may be an auction purchaser of a few years' standing, and therefore quite incapable of hunting out the antecedents of a particular tenant before he came into contact with him, to ferret out and disclose the past life and career of his opponent tenant. The failure to prove such an absurd item is inevitable—and the result is that every ryot who may choose to call himself a settled ryot is likely to succeed in obtaining a verdict in his favour.

It is not easy to determine what object will be gained by this half and half measure, how it will "tend to simplify litigation"—and what are the state of things in the Lower Provinces the existence of which warrants such a presumption. The presumption does not cover the whole ground of the acquisition of the right of occupancy as enunciated in the present Bill. The plea of the ryot may be that although he has not held the specific plot or any other part of it continuously for the period of twelve years yet he is a settled ryot of the village or the estate the land of which may be in dispute. In such a case the presumption is worse than useless.

BURMA, August 4.

The Governor-General of India has at length decided that although British Burma cannot at present have a university it shall have a college. Those who have watched the educational policy of the Government of India and the attitude of the educational officials may be interested to know that the two questions which, for about a year, have agitated British Burma have at length been settled. The Imperial Government have decided in favour of a controlling body, something like the London School Board in composition, but appointed by nomination and not election. Until 1881 the control was purely administrative, and vested in a State department, consisting of a director of instruction and a very limited body of inspectors and deputy-inspectors. In that year the Government recognised the rights of the natives and the services of the missionary bodies by creating a provincial board called the Syndicate, with the Judicial Commissioner and the Roman Catholic Bishop as president and vice-president, and a number of Burmese and of professional gentlemen as members. The director and the other paid officials had also seats at this board. All the others gave their services without pay. The Viceroy has now determined to incorporate the board, so as enable it to hold and invest property; and has offered a further gratifying testimony to its success in determining, contrary to the advice tendered by paid officials, that the college now to be created in Rangoon shall be placed under the management of this board. Burma appears to be the one province of the Indian Empire to which the epithet benighted might justly be applied. It has not yet produced, as we some time ago pointed out, any student capable of attaining to the B.A. degree. Only five or six have even succeeded in passing the first examination in Arts. There is no local school of medicine, and such native medicine as exists is a compound of empiricism and a belief in charms and enchantments. Many women are killed after child-birth by the roasting and other unheard-of ill-treatment to which they are subjected. The Judicial Commissioner, who is the highest legal authority in the country, has repeatedly deplored the gross ignorance of law exhibited by both advocates and judges. Lord Ripon, on his visit to Burma, expressed his regret at a public dinner at the slow progress made by the official department in respect to female education.

The present Chief Commissioner of British Burma has made a considerable effort to improve and quicken educational matters, and the Syndicate, almost as soon as it was created, took steps to remedy the defects of the Government department. It created a law school, and selected two of the best men at the bar to give lectures. It created a free library, and well supplied it with the best books of reference. It organised and simplified all the public examinations, and at the desire of the Government and the Judicial Commissioner it instituted periodical examinations both for the public service and the legal profession, thus performing duties similar to those of the Civil Service Commissioners and the Inns of Court. It promoted a movement, set on foot by well-to-do natives, to supply funds to endow scholarships for the higher branches of education and for the promotion of learning generally. But Mr. Crosthwaite, the acting Commissioner during Mr. Bernard's absence on leave, discouraged the project. He informed the Syndicate Board that they had no legal power to hold property, and the result was that many would-be founders of scholarships refrained from giving them money, and the Judicial Commissioner, Mr. Jardine, revoked an offer of Rs. 10,000 which he had made in response to a like offer of the Bishop of Rangoon for scholarships, to be open to all students and without regard to creed or caste. The board protested against the policy of Mr. Crosthwaite, but to no purpose, and no further action was taken until he took his departure. Some months afterwards an influential deputation waited on Mr. Bernard, and requested a final answer from him. The result is that the Syndicate Board will receive some sort of a charter of incorporation, which will give it a locus standi in the eye of the law.

The debates which have from time to time taken place at the board throw light upon the way in which certain Government officials are disposed to deal with private efforts in the matter of education. Mr. Crosthwaite had proposed to the Supreme Government to create a college and place it under the Director of Instruction. The Government, however, refused its assent to this, and urged that the expense ought to be borne in part by those classes seeking to participate, and suggested that some local body should be invited to establish the new college, the Government offering a subsidy in aid for a term of years. Acting on the Viceroy's suggestion, Mr. Bernard invited the Syndicate to close with the offer; but his own subordinate officer, the Director of Instruction, still held out and insisted that the college should be under his sole control and direction. The president of the Syndicate, Mr. Jardine, was strongly opposed to this, and took occasion to point out that any arbitrary interference meant the exclusion of all the missionaries who were known to be the actual pioneers of education in Burma; furthermore, that an illiberal, uncalled-for demeanour on the part of any one would lead to bitter jealousies and bickerings, such as is going on in Belgium at the present moment. He could not see why the director should desire to oust the whole of the religious and unpaid body of the Syndicate, all of whom were known to have the cause of education at heart. It is therefore a matter of congratulation that the Judicial Commissioner's views should have prevailed with the Viceroy, which will have the effect of retaining on the board the many excellent energetic missionaries who have taken so much interest in establishing a college for the promotion of the higher branches of knowledge. Any temporary opposition on the part of subordinate officials will be sure to give way. Now that the final decision of the Supreme Government has been made known, every member of the board, religious and secular, will vie with each other in the promotion of so good a cause. But it is only natural to suppose that had the clergy been compelled to vacate their seats they would have looked with some disfavour on the Government scheme, and this would have discredited it at the outset, in the eyes of the Burmese especially. The friends of education have been spared so unnecessary a humiliation, while all will be glad to know that the Government of India hope at no very distant day to go a step further and incorporate the Syndicate Board into a university of Rangoon, thus giving full effect to the advice we ventured to offer some time ago on this highly important question.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION.

THE Afghan Frontier Commission has at length started from Quetta. Sir Peter Lumsden, according to the telegrams we publish this morning, has also left Tiflis and is now on his way to Baku. Little has been heard of the views and intentions of the St. Petersburg Cabinet with respect to the matter, but, from ingenuous utterances of the Russian Press, we might almost infer that they regard it, so far, with comparative indifference. If the reports current respecting the composition of the Russian Commission be correct, it is clear that the Czar's Government have been troubled with no such scruples as prevented the British Cabinet from selecting acknowledged experts to delimit the Ameer's Kingdom. Russia will be represented by one officer skilled in devising frontiers in Asia, and by another who is not only deeply versed in the science of Central Asian politics but is an adept at the manipulation of tribesmen to the requirements of Russian policy. It is no reflection on the capacity of Sir Peter Lumsden to say that in point of special knowledge of the undertaking before him he is by no means equal to the officers who have been suggested as the representatives of Russia. This fact may be of great importance, inasmuch as the two parties approach the task with very different views. Our object is to lay down what shall be a permanent frontier; and doubtless the present Government would willingly yield on a good many points to secure this very desirable end, even at the expense of the Afghan ruler and his people. But Russia has no real interest in putting a limit to her career of conquest. It would be no more than judging her by past experience to assume that, with or without the open cognisance of the Government of St. Petersburg, loopholes will be carefully maintained in order to 'harass' us with a Central Asian question whenever it suits her convenience or the exigencies of her policy in other parts of the world. Moreover, the existence of frontiers has really very little influence on Russia. In this matter she has frequently appeared to be liberal. She was positively generous in her dealings with Persia, but everybody knows now that the activity of Russian agents is not in the least affected by the line formally traced from the Caspian to Baba Durmoz. She has professed herself equally anxious to settle the limits of Afghan territory; but what reason have we to suppose that the invitation which Lord Granville so incautiously accepted was offered entirely in 'our' interests. The probability is that it was not, and that Russia had her own purposes to serve in asking us to follow her into the desert on the frontier-sketching excursion. Assuredly it is no part of her plan to shut herself out from further enterprise in the direction of India; and as this is unquestionably the aim and object of Sir Peter Lumsden's mission, a diversity of views on the principle of the scheme is inevitable.

But it is not necessary to analyse the secret motives of Russia in order to question the expediency of the proceeding to which we are now committed. The perils are sufficiently apparent to dispense with references to the occult policy of Muscovite statesmen. The English Government, in their anxiety to rid themselves of responsibility in Afghanistan, unwisely surrendered indispensable safeguards; to compensate for these they now rashly incur onerous obligations. Mr. Gladstone, at Edinburgh, the other day, took credit for diminishing the force he found on the Indian frontier. There is an apposite proverb about the deceptiveness of unfinished work; but, apart from that, it would be an instructiveness computation to estimate the force and expenditure which will be required to sustain the arrangements proposed by the Government, in order to replace the abandoned policy of their predecessors. We have frequently pointed out that no frontier will be respected which is not efficiently policed. The Ameer's authority and resources are unequal to the task, and, if our reputation for courage and good faith is not to be hopelessly sacrificed throughout Asia, we must, directly or indirectly, undertake the burdensome duty ourselves. But what interest have we in maintaining an imaginary line across the desert from the Tejend to the Oxus, or what means have we of doing so? Our sole pre-occupation should be to protect India from assault. To this heavy responsibility Mr. Gladstone's policy has unwillingly added the Protectorate of Afghanistan up to such points as Sir Peter Lumsden and his colleagues may suggest. The foremost of living native Indian statesmen—Sir Madhava Rao—in a remarkable pamphlet recently published, has explicitly condemned this undertaking. "The whole policy of the thing," he asserts in his vigorous style, "is so preposterous that it is a matter of wonder that any one is found to seriously advocate it." Assuming, possibly, that a Government so frequently the victim of misplaced confidence, might contemplate another error of that description, he warns English statesmen that Afghanistan is too barbarous and treacherous to be trusted for a moment in the interests of England, she would only be too glad to join Russia in any work of war and plunder. "Go not," he adds, "far beyond the frontier in reliance on the friendship of Afghanistan. Let the material defences be on the frontier itself." As for the mission of Sir Peter Lumsden, Sir Madhava bluntly affirms that though the proposed demarcation "may have its uses in minor ways, it would be utterly useless to stop Russia." No severer criticism on the policy of the present Government has appeared than the brochure of this able and distinguished representative of the natives of India. His scheme of policy and defence coincides in every particular with the project of a "scientific frontier," the value of which Mr. Gladstone's Government have learned to appreciate too late.

The cardinal difficulty remains after we have exhausted conjecture as to the chances and fortunes of the joint mission in the wild tracts of the borderland. Assume that the arduous yet fascinating labours of the surveyors and diplomatists are over; that during the years—whether they be two or three, as the more hopeful, or ten or twelve, as the more experienced critics assert—every channel that breaks the surface of the desert, every height that relieves the monotony and may serve as a landmark for the future has been duly mapped; that the botanist has completed his collections of specimens of the flora, and the political officer mastered au fond the proclivities of the clans on either side of the projected boundary. Imagine that the convention has been duly signed and put away for record with all the apparatus of accompanying charts and plans. What will have been achieved? Simply this, that a boundary will have been registered. That is a very different thing from creating a frontier; vastly different from taking guarantees that it will remain inviolate. To defend the line of the Hindoo Koosh would be a serious thing; but it would be intelligible. To fall back behind the Indus and announce that we would make it our first line of defence would be wretched policy, but every one would know what it meant. But to delineate something on a map, a boundary on paper which has no distinct counterpart in Nature, and to make solemn announcement that we are determined to ward off trespass, that is an enterprising vague, and, in its vagueness, all but visionary. Yet it is, apparently, the task to which the engagements concluded by the Government have committed us. If in this dubious and ill-defined borderland which now intervenes between the Cossack outposts, and the limits which Abdurrahman regards lightly as the proper sphere of his ambition, some disturbance should arise—some fresh incident in the long series which has drawn the Muscovite on from Orenburg to the walls of Sarrahkhs—the matter will be one for grave concern at Calcutta. The Viceroy will have to determine as best he may whether the aggression was unprovoked, and having decided this—without a particle of trustworthy information—he will have to settle how he is to give effective aid in repelling the attack. Nay, if the Ameer had been wanting on his part in respect to us; if he failed to subordinate wholly his external relations to our views, the Russians may, as far as our pledges go, march on without let or hindrance to Cabul or Candahar. Considering that the tribes which sparsely people the wilds are robbers by instinct and nomads by descent, it is easy enough to surmise what constant pretexts for action an ambitious Commander on the Muscovite side may have. But even if the wrong with which the Ameer is threatened be palpable, the question will still remain as to the means by which we are to vindicate his rights. A distant frontier would require garrisons; but what forces must be squandered if we are to hold a mere line against all comers? It is not the habit of Liberals to think much about external affairs; but if they think at all about the elements of the situation on the Afghan frontier they may realise to what responsibilities the Statesmen who, above all things, abhor, responsibility are now committing the country.—Standard.

It is expected that General Annesley, Adjutant General of the Bombay army, will return to his post in the autumn.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c

THE VICEREGAL COUNCIL.—At the meeting of the Viceregal Council on Wednesday, the 27th ult., the Panjab Validation of the Decisions Bill was passed.

Mr Ilbert introduced the British Burma Gaming Bill, explaining its sections and the principles he had kept in view in framing the measure. Mr Barkley argued that the effect of Section 2 of the Bill, which declares that the game of Ti shall be deemed a lottery within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, would be to give rise to different local interpretations of the same law, each of which would be authoritative in a particular province. He suggested the consideration of the point by a Select Committee, and the desirability of taking the opinion of the Chief Commissioner and the local authorities on it. Mr Ilbert said the point would be duly considered, explaining that he had already expressed his willingness to drop the section if necessary. The Bill, he explained, only extended to Burmah, and its effect was not to put an authoritative interpretation upon the Penal Code, but merely to make certain kinds of games, when carried on within a particular area, an offence within certain sections of the Penal Code. The Bill was not intended to affect the interpretation placed on the law by the Courts in other parts of British India. Mr Ilbert obtained leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Burma Steamboilers and Prime Movers Act 1882, and the Council adjourned for a fortnight.

TEA NOTES.—Lakhimpur reports tea doing well, with hot weather.

Tea prospects are improving in Kamrup. The weather is unusually hot. In Nowgong the weather has been hot and dry. Tea is doing well. The prospects of tea are good in Cachar. Blight is confined to very narrow limits. The weather is warm. Tea is backward in Sib agar. Cholera has reappeared here and there; cattle disease prevails slightly, and hot and dry weather has been the rule. From Sylhet the news is, more rain wanted for tea. The weather is hot, and irrigation is being resorted to for the paddy crop. Rain is badly wanted in Goalpara (Dhubri) for tea and Sal dhan. The weather is very close and sultry, and fever and cholera prevail. The news from Darrang is, weather hot and dry; rain urgently needed. Everything is backward. Tea is doing fairly well on the whole, but Mangaldai gardens are very much behind hand.—Indigo and Tea Planters' Gazette.

General Hardinge, the Bombay Commander in Chief, who had a fall last week in the hunting field, is making favourable progress towards recovery.

An attempt is being made to raise a subscription for defraying the expenses of Mr Lalnohun Ghose's candidature for an English constituency at the next election. He has telegraphed out that he has a fair prospect of success if £1,500 can be raised.—Indian Daily News.

Competitive examinations for vacancies in the Secretariat offices of the Government of India are in future to be held at Lahore and Allahabad as well as Calcutta.

It is said that Mr. Joubert carried away from Calcutta, as the fruits of his labour in connection with the Exhibition, 20,000rs. We hope that the sum was much larger.—Times of India.

The Maharajah of Cooh Behar, who is just convalescent, had a very narrow escape on Thursday morning. His house in Chota Simla has suffered considerably from the heavy rain, and the ceiling of the room in which he was lying fell in.

THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.—The zamindars' agitation against the Bengal Tenancy Bill still continues, each Sunday witnessing a meeting in some central station at which resolutions are passed condemning the revised measure. Last Sunday the Maharajah of Hutwa presided over a meeting at Chupra, at which it was unanimously resolved to oppose the Bill as being subversive of zemindari rights and prejudicial to the tenants' interests; and it was further agreed that concerted action with the Central Committee of the Constitutional Association and the Behar Landholders' Association should be taken without further loss of time.

The Government of India in the Survey Department are about to present a piece of plate to Mr. Perry, an Assam planter, in recognition of his services to Colonel Woodthorpe's survey party on their expedition into the Dapha country last cold weather. Mr. Perry, from his dealings in the rubber trade, was, it is said, the only European who knew anything of the tribe, and his local knowledge and influence were invaluable to the explorers.

The Civil and Military Gazette says:—"We heartily congratulate Mr. Hensman, Special Correspondent of the Pioneer in the late Afghan campaigns, on the somewhat tardy acknowledgment of his services at the hands of the Government. He is to receive the Afghan medals with three clasps and the bronze star of the Cabul-Kandahar march. This, we believe, is the first occasion on which medallic honours have ever been granted to a war correspondent, unless for some special service apart from his particular duties. The exceptional circumstances of Mr. Hensman's case would have justified an even more striking departure from the rule."

In consequence of the abandonment of the Gomal Force of the 40th Expedition, the officers of the Panjab Frontier Force, whose leave had been curtailed on account of the expedition, will now be allowed to enjoy the full period.

On rough estimates the indigo brokers calculate the Bengal crop at from 16,000 to 17,000 maunds, and the Behar crop at 37,000 maunds.

On the Honorable H. J. Reynolds becoming a member of the Council of the Lieutenant Governor in November next, probably Mr F. B. Peacock will succeed him at the Revenue Board, and Mr W. Edgar, C.S.I., be appointed to act as Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Judicial and Political Departments.

We learn that Baboo Ashutosh Mookerjee, B.A., and Moulvie Sye Shamsul Huda, B.A., have been declared respectively the first and the second Tadore medallists for the year. Baboo Ashutosh Mookerjee stood first in the last B.A. examination, and was justly termed by the Vice-Chancellor as the senior wrangler of the year. He is also a member of the London Mathematical Society. Both the medallists, we learn, are students of the second-year Law class of the City College. — Indian Statesman.

The Lahore paper says:—"Our readers will doubtless remember that, as far back as the winter of 1879-80, it was in contemplation to send a force to punish the Waziris, more especially the Mahsud section. In 1882 a force was despatched, and the result was supposed to be "eminently satisfactory." We took hostages and imposed a fine—to be paid in instalments. So far, so good. But what happened? Last winter, as the tribe had been behaving well, and a portion of the due had been paid, His Honour, Sir Charles Aitchison, in his clemency remitted the remainder, and set the hostages at liberty. Now for the result. A part of the Zhob Valley Force cannot proceed along the route fixed for it, because of our friends the Mahsud Waziris. So much for diplomacy and clemency. After all, was not the old-fashioned zabardast policy more satisfactory more satisfactory, and more understood of the people?"

Major Sourindro Mohun Tagore advertises in the Calcutta papers that he is prepared to dispute, at his own expense, teachers to teach the singing of the Bengali translation of the National Anthem which he has made.

The Bengal Government proposed recently to establish a Science and Art Department in connection with the Calcutta Museum. The latter institution being an Imperial establishment, while the effect of the scheme would be to bring it under the provincial Government, the proposal had not, so far, met with favourable reception by the trustees of the Museum. The proposal has, a Calcutta contemporary believes, the support of the Supreme Government, and though at present under abeyance, will probably be revived for further discussion on the return of the Government from Simla.

A correspondent states that Sir Charles Aitchison, though much better than he was, is still far from well, and needs complete rest, which he may possibly be compelled to take.

Ibrahim Khan, assistant superintendent of police, who was sent with a special message to the Ameer, has returned to Peshawar. He is the bearer of a reply which is considered to be of a satisfactory nature as regards the Delimitation Commission. Ibrahim Khan was well received by the Ameer and his officials en route.

The Ameer has a short, sharp, but very effectual punishment for coiners in his dominions. A short time since several goldsmiths were discovered uttering false coin at Kandahar. They were seized, tried, and condemned to have their hands struck off.

Dr. Brown, Principal of the Medical School, Lahore, proposes to start a nursing class of European ladies and European and Eurasian women, in connection with the Mayo Hospital. The ladies interested will be expected to contribute a small subscription, which will be expended in scholarships for the encouragement of the poorer members of the class. Dr. Brown has done a good thing.

As usual at this season of the year, the business of the Calcutta Small Cause Court is largely increased. The number of suits now inscribed in that Court averages about 245 daily, and is likely to increase further as the ghera holidays approach.

The first Municipal election has taken place at Benares. There are 2,600 electors, and of these 1,400 voted; 18 gentlemen were elected—2 Europeans, 15 Hindus, and 1 Mahomedan. The Europeans elected are Dr. L. zarus and Mr. Symthe.

It is reported from Peshawar, the Lahore papers says, that Mirza Ghulam Ahmad, Sultan Aslam Khan, and Khan Bahadur Khan, have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to join the Afghan Boundary Commission.

The rumour regarding an intention to appoint Mr. Ryland to a Judgeship in the Calcutta Small Cause Court, to which a temporary appointment has recently alluded, appears somewhat improbable, unless the appointment is made for a few months only, as that officer, who has obtained a year's extension of his period of service, will retire very soon. Of the retirement of Baboo Koojoo Lal Bannejee, Mr. S. T. MacEwen, as we had already mentioned, is to be the second Judge, and Mr. Scone the third. Mr. Jones is to be the Fourth Judge.

Most of the Commissioners under the Government of Bengal have sent in their reports on the Rent Law questions submitted to them by Mr. Rivers Thompson. The papers will not, however, be sent to the Government of India until complete. So far as is known, it is said the replies are favourable to the main outlines of the Bill as submitted to the Divisional authorities for their comments. In the best informed circles at Simla, it is now regarded as doubtful whether the Bill can become law during Lord Ripon's term of office. It is said, however, that an effort will be made to pass it through the Council the next cold season.

The number of estates under the management of the Court of Wards of the North West Provinces, during last year was 129, having a gross income, from a less source, of Rs. 38,01,487. In the course of the year seven estates were taken over and an equal number released. Of the whole, 85 estates belong to minors, 13 to disqualified females, 1 to an idiot, 8 to lunatics, 2 to persons otherwise incapable of managing them, and the remainder to persons disqualified by Government.

The Municipality at Saharanpur proposes to borrow Rs. 50,000 on the security of the Municipal income; this amounts to Rs. 55,952, of which sum the interest payable is not less than Rs. 48,920. The Rs. 50,000 is required in five instalments, payable on 1st October next, and on the same date on succeeding years. Whilst the loan is being raised up, only the interest will be charged. But from October 1, 1889, an amount of no less than Rs. 6,000 will be paid annually until the loan is liquidated.

In the event of the scheme for locating the Military Department permanently as Simla—which is still under the consideration of the Secretary of State—being disapproved, a proposal has been made to afford permanent quarters to at least a portion of the establishment in the hills. In anticipation of the sanction of Government to this proposal, the Finance Department has been asked to decide whether the assistants who will have to reside at Simla throughout the year will be entitled to extra hill allowances under the rules.

Owing to the gross misconduct and disobedience of some boys of the Presidency College towards one of their Professors, which resulted in a great row at the Presidency College, recently, the Principal of the Institution has rusticated one boy for twelve months, and suspended the whole class of third year students, with a view to maintaining discipline, until the decision of the Director of Public Instruction, to whom the case has been reported, is known.

At the Government Botanical Gardens at Saharanpur and Musoorie success is reported to have been attained in acclimating all the common European vegetables, with the exception of the cabbage and brussels sprouts. On the 5th June last year, a hurricane did previous havoc in the Saharanpur Garden, completely destroying the fruit crop, and uprooting or irretrievably injuring many of the fruit trees. The same storm, it will be remembered, unroofed the barracks at Roorkee.

MADRAS.

At a meeting of the Senate of the Madras University on the 28th ult., it was decided to appoint an assistant registrar on a salary of Rs. 200, rising by annual increments of Rs. 20 to Rs. 300.

The Madras Mail understands that the French have made Pondicherry on the Coromandel Coast, and Mahe on the Mahabar Coast of India, coal depots. Two barges have been erected on the beach of Pondicherry, and a steamer brought the first supply of coals a few days ago. It is expected that French war vessels will soon arrive to replenish their supplies at these two French ports.

The rates for the conveyance of cotton on the Madras Railway, which the trade has always complained of as being very high, are, a Madras contemporary learns, to be reduced. The traffic manager finds that, in spite of the greater distance from Bombay, Madras, and other cotton-producing centres, the material is taken there instead of being brought to Madras, on account, it is believed, of the prohibitive rates for its conveyance on the Madras Railway.

Mr. Gant Duff has very properly called attention to the enormous expenditure on stationery in the Madras Presidency. In reviewing the working of the Central Stationery Depot, he remarked that there could be little doubt that much wasteful extravagance prevails in many quarters. Year by year the cost of stationery and printing is mounting up, and the minister calls for careful and personal attention on the part of the head of every office. His Excellency believes that large savings would result if heads of offices were themselves to look into the stationery accounts of their offices.

THE INDUSTRIAL ARTS OF INDIA.—We learn that the local Government have applied to the Secretary of State for the services of an expert capable of making an exhaustive and intelligent survey of the arts and industries of Southern India. A census of the different manufactures of the Presidency is now in progress. This is in connection with the promotion of the industrial arts of India. — Times

INDIGNATION AT BENGALORE.—A indignation meeting was held at the Mayo Hall, on the 26th ult., protesting against the action of the Municipal Corporation in entertaining an animal in the hall of the Honorary Secretary of the B. K. Society to take over the hall of the Society's building. Great indignation is expressed at the high-handed proceedings of the Military.

PRIVILEGES.—Mr. Justice Kearn gave judgment in the case in which Captain Miny claimed Rs. 30,000 in Secretariat of State for damages and losses caused by reason of the plaintiff being dismissed from office, on the 20th ult. The Judge held that the Government's action was privileged, and that His Excellency exercised the sovereign power with which he was invested. The case must therefore be dismissed. But as he remarks on Mr. Miny's petition, "we are a liberty-loving people, and the costs would not be allowed to the defendant."

APPREHENDED SCARCITY IN MYSORE.—It is rumoured that the extension of the Tumkur line has been stopped in consequence of an impending famine, owing to failure of the rains in these districts. It is also said great reductions will take place in all departments of the State, if no further loan from Government is obtained.

The Rev. Mr. Taylor, of Ootacamund, met with an unfortunate accident the other day. When seeing some friends off by the mail tonga, he cautiously stood too close to one of the horses, and the animal, flushed out, kicking him in the arm. It was feared that the bone was fractured, but the result did not prove to be so serious.

BOMBAY.

During the month of July 43,011 bales of cotton valued at Rs. 38,28,798 were shipped from Bombay.

Surgeon J. B. Barry, A.B., M.B., and L.M., has been appointed Acting Assistant Civil Surgeon, Poona.

The Government of India have, we believe, sanctioned the recommendation of the local Government to receive payment from the Municipality for the purchase of the plot of ground near the G. I. P. Railway terminus for the new Municipal Hall during the year 1888, and not before. It will be remembered that the Municipality purchased from Government six thousand square yards of land at Rs. 15 per square yard for the purpose of the new Municipal Hall.

By consent of the Nizam's Government and with the approval of the Resident at Hyderabad, a lottery in aid of a Roman Catholic convent at Chubbighan is to be held at Hyderabad shortly. The lottery will consist of 100,000 tickets of one Government rupee each. Sixty-five per cent of the amount realised will be appropriated in prizes. There will be one prize of 20,000rs., one of 10,000rs., one of 5,000rs., and three of 1,000.

It is proposed to present a piece of plate to Mr. Gifford, M.P., for the University of Dublin, "as a mark of the high appreciation of his services generously rendered in a noble, fully, and temperately bringing the many grievances of the Indian Medical Service before the House." Several surgeons have already subscribed 50 s. towards the fund, and Messrs. Grindlay, Groom and Co. advertise that they are willing to receive further subscriptions from medical officers of the three presidencies.

A desperate affray took place at a small village near Verawal in Kattywar on the 19th ultimo, between a detachment of the police of the Joonagur State under the command of Colonel Scott, the First Assistant Political Agent, and a body of Mekranis. A number of men were killed and wounded on both sides.

The 1st Battalion Royal Irish Regiment left Bombay on the 28th ult., by the transport Hankow for service in Egypt.

A large and influential meeting of natives was held in Bombay on the 30th ult., under the presidency of Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, to adopt a petition to Government praying for the raising of the limit of the age of candidates for the Civil Service.

There has been a heavy decline in Bombay cotton mill shares owing to the unfavourable advices received from China.

THE BOMBAY ICE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—At the meeting of the directors for the half year ending June last, the report of the directors for the half year ending June last was submitted, and was the occasion of a rather prolonged passage at arms between Mr. J. R. Duxbury and Mr. C. H. B. Forbes. The report referred to the destruction of the ice factory by fire in May last, by which the total loss was assessed at Rs. 1,09,472-14-4; but of this, Rs. 81,348-12-7 had been recovered from insurance companies. A sum of Rs. 8,982-14-6 was expended in bringing ice to Bombay from other parts of the country, and although it was sold at two annas per pound, it did not cover the cost. Mr. Duxbury said the working charges were very excessive; and that the directors' fees were very large, and he protested against Mr. Forbes, who was the secretary and agent of the company, having a place on the board of directors. Mr. Forbes in reply said, that with regard to the directors' fees being very large, such a complaint was never made by Mr. Duxbury when he was on the board; and as regarding the commission, no other company with such a capital paid so little. The directors' report was eventually adopted unanimously, Mr. Forbes promising to accede to Mr. Duxbury's request that in future it should be explained in the report to whom commission was paid. A dividend of 5½ per cent., being at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum, was declared.

The Bombay Town Council has decided to expend Rs. 1,07,295 in raising the dam at the Tulsi lake, which is one of the chief sources of the water supply of the city.

The Bombay Town Council and Corporation have under consideration a scheme for erecting cholera and small-pox hospitals in various parts of the town. Pending a complete estimate of the financial position of the Municipality the Town Council has sanctioned a grant of Rs. 13,100 to be devoted to the erection of one of the hospitals proposed.

BOMBAY UNCOVENANTED SERVICE FAMILY PENSION FUND.—The report of the Fund for the year ending March 31, 1884, read at the annual general meeting of the subscribers held recently showed that during the year the capital was increased by nearly Rs. 75,000, made up of interest and deposits. The funded capital stood at Rs. 7,87,200. During the year 34 new subscribers were admitted. Their number on March 31 stood at 497. The number of widows stood at 77, drawing pensions aggregating Rs. 1,971 per month. Mr. J. F. Vaz was re-elected secretary and treasurer for a further period of two years.

It is becoming a common practice for natives who wish to enjoy special opportunities for learning a profession, and so establish themselves in life to appeal to the public for subscriptions. Thus, we find a Hindoo apothecary, who, "has been some years in charge of a dispensary in Bhownagur on Rs. 100 a month," making an appeal, through the medium of a Bombay native paper, for Rs. 4,000 to enable him to visit America and study Homoeopathy. The paper which puts forward the petition says "Rs. 4,000 more, and Bombay may have a well-qualified Homoeopath, who is ready to devote himself to the cause of humanity."—If well paid for it, we suppose.

BURMA.

RANGOON.—A daring dacoity was committed in the town on the 23rd ult. Thirteen men armed with dahs broke into the house of a wealthy native, and escaped with a booty of five thousand rupees.

On Monday, the 25th ult., three of the clerks belonging to the office of the Town Superintendent of Police made a successful raid upon a gambling hell in the Lammadaw division. They arrested five Chinamen and seized a large quantity of gambling apparatus, cards, amusements, &c.

The Rangoon Gazette has heard from Messrs. Colquhoun and Scott, who had reached Bangkok, but were compelled to return to Hongkong in consequence of the Lung-ooa affair. Mr. Colquhoun had gone to Foochow, whence he intended proceeding to Shanghai. Mr. Scott has purposed attempting correspondence from the Chinese side if he could obtain permission.

The Chief Commissioner of British Burma has recently been making inquiries with a view to early action regarding the reported increase in crime in that province. In 1883 the number of cases returned as true amounted to 33,784, showing an increase of 3,639 on the previous year. These figures include non-cognizable cases and also cases taken direct to court without the intervention of the police. Of these cases, 28,800 or 85·3 per cent., were brought to trial. The proportion is almost exactly the same as the corresponding proportion of the previous year. In the work of the courts there was a marked increase in 1883. The number of original cases disposed of increased from 26,230 to 29,838, and of persons under trial from 41,630 to 46,739. Of the total number of persons under trial 17,870, or 38·2 per cent., were acquitted or discharged and 27,399, or 58·6 per cent., convicted. These figures are a very slight improvement on those of the previous year. If the number of persons released on appeal and revision be reckoned, the proportion of acquittals is raised to nearly 40 per cent.

In the final official report on the cyclone which swept over Arakan in May last, it is roughly estimated that, including the indirect action on trade, there was an actual loss of not less than fifteen lakhs of rupees. This, however, was borne by middlemen and traders, who, though deserving of sympathy, are independent of Government aid. The loss of life amounted to forty-nine persons; of whom eighteen were carried away by a tidal wave and ten drowned in a boat; the remainder were killed in various parts of the country by accidental causes produced by the cyclone. The effects of the cyclone were felt over an area of 5,000 square miles.

In consequence of the deficient rainfall, a very bad harvest is expected in Upper Burma; and British Burma, it is said, will be called upon next year for a larger supply than ever of paddy and rice. Whole villages in the interior are reported to have been deserted, the inhabitants having migrated to British territory.

News from Upper Burma reports that a disastrous affray has occurred between the Burmese and Chinese inhabitants of Bhamo. Some of the Governor's men had entered the Chinese temple, and a quarrel ensued, when the Celestials shut the door to punish the offenders. The Governor being informed of the occurrence, sent troops and ultimately brought cannon against the door, the discharge killing friend and foe alike. The Chinese ultimately fled to Kachen hills in body, vowing speedy vengeance. As the Chinese inhabitants were the stoutest defenders of Bhamo when lately attacked by the Kachen tribes, it is believed that Bhamo will be speedily destroyed, and Theebaw's authority in that quarter abolished entirely. It is reported further that the Chinese temple at Mandalay (query, Ameerapoor) has been razed to the ground.

It is reported from Mandalay that a party of Italian engineers in the King's service is to be sent to explore and map the country between Burma and Tongking; also that the Burmese Government has agreed to place every possible obstacle in the way of the British opening out a trade route with Yunnan via Bhamo.

A fresh outburst of dacoity has occurred in Mandalay. The premises of the Royal Secretary were audaciously looted. The neighbourhood of the city is again disturbed. A rich Governor has been despoiled of everything, and mercilessly killed. The troops are unavailing. The collections of the revenue are stopped.

The price of rice is exorbitantly high. The people are openly seeking outside intervention. The King is offering three per cent. per month for money loans, but without success.

THE NATIVE STATES OF INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE TIMES."

SIR,—Considerable attention has been attracted to a series of papers recently contributed to the Times, sketching in masterly fashion, the history, present condition, and military resources of the principal native States of India—Scindia, Holkar, and Baroda, among the so-called Mahratta States; the Nizams, Bhopal, and Bhawalpur among the Mahomedan. It is to be hoped that the writer, in the same careful, conscientious, and readable form, will deal seriatim with other and minor Indian principalities, and thus produce what in the aggregate will be really invaluable precis for the public use. The writer has drawn special attention to the large and fairly equipped armies maintained by Scindia, Holkar, and the Nizam, and to the consequent diversion, at huge cost, of a large portion of the British Army to watch over and keep those native armies under control. Every one must agree with him that it is inconsistent with their loud professions of loyalty to the British Crown that native States, dependent on British protection—situate, as are Gwalior and Indore, in the heart of British territory—should maintain large armies, and should devote their attention to the accumulation of large hoards of treasure, rather than to the good government and development of their country; and it indeed irritating to reflect on the vast expense of the counterbalancing British brigades, on the apparent waste of British treasure which could be so profitably devoted, and, indeed, is so much needed for railways, education, and the like. But I am unable, and I doubt if any Anglo-Indian of recent or lengthened experience in India will be able, to agree with your correspondent and others who, like him, insist that the remedy is simple, and the duty of the Indian Government clear. As a matter of fact, we know that no more difficult Indian problem exists, and as yet little has been accomplished towards its practical solution.

That the British Government, being paramount, should insist simply on the disbandment, or at least a substantial reduction of the armies of native States, and then proceed proportionately to reduce its own garrisons of observation at Gwalior, Mhow, and Secunderabad, may seem at first sight, but only to those unacquainted with India as it is, a very practical method of dealing with the difficulty. The impolicy, if not the impossibility of such vigour, or rather spasmodic action, becomes apparent when the history of the rise of British power, of the gradual settlement of native States, and the present condition of those States specially alluded to are carefully and dispassionately considered. Hyderabad, for instance, is in a very different position from the great Mahratta States, while the Government of the Nizam has the highest claims on our generosity and forbearance.

The time, the opportunity for such a policy with the Mahratta States passed away, or, as many think, was thrown away with the great Indian Mutiny, and can never arise again unless furnished by over rebellion or flagrant misconduct on the part of the native rulers themselves. Bhopal perhaps excepted, the great native States may be termed the cesspools of India—"rubbish is shot" there. In those States the Dacoit, the highwayman, the few remaining Thugs, the poineer who plies his fiendish trade in Thaggee fashion, find refuge or take sanctuary. (See State papers recently reproduced in the Times.) To these congenial courts resort discontented or turbulently-disposed persons, many of good families in our own territory. In their native armies, or hanging on to them will be found most of what remains of the old predatory spirit of the Pindaree—that peculiar restless craving for military display and warlike adventure which cannot brook the strict discipline of the British regiments. Whether it is better, I ask, that these outlets should exist, that we should keep under our hand, collected within easy reach of superior force, the inflammable material of the Deccan, than that it should be scattered far and wide among our own peaceful villages, there to smolder, and spread crime, disorders and disaffection? Civilisation from without, from our own provinces and the very will of the people generally, is slowly but surely drying up the margin of these cesspits and narrowing the area left to barbarism and disorder. But many years, and those years of uninterrupted peace, must pass before it will be prudent to shut down or sit upon the only safety valves that now exist. In the meantime I grant that we must be idle, and that while the process of reclamation is steadily proceeding from without, disinfection within may be, should be, much more largely enforced. For this we want a strong Government at Simla, a strong Viceroy, and for this, it seems, we must wait awhile. A much sterner attitude should unquestionably be assumed by the Supreme Government towards those native princes whose military administration and display, if not openly, is certainly covertly hostile to us. We know well the Viceroy's agents on the spot, men picked for their fearlessness of responsibility—do not slumber at their posts. They know what is going on around them, and assuredly they do not leave Simla in ignorance. We know that men like Lyall, Lepel Griffin, and Bradford are not weak, and that their advice can never be hesitating. Whatever of weakness or over-tenderness exists, Simla, "the Viceroy in Council," originates it. The English Press can do much to help. The mere discussion of these questions in the Papers will encourage and stimulate the powers that be, will strengthen the hands of our political officers, and teach the native States wisdom and moderation in their military aspirations. I cannot see why the erection of fresh ordnance foundries, the creation of new batteries of artillery should not be peremptorily forbidden. The "Viceroy in Council" might cause Scindia to be plainly told that teaching 60,000 of his people the use of arms he is guilty in spirit if not in letter, of a breach, a flagrant breach of his engagements, which limit his army to 6,000 men; and he should be allowed a reasonable time within which to mend his ways, and, failing to do so, there are many points in which he is vulnerable. He could very easily and speedily be made to feel that he was in disgrace—the "cold shoulder" is not digestible by the Oriental stomach. Let Holkar be told that his progressive rack-renting of his people is regarded with extreme disfavour. Let Scindia, Holkar, and the Gaikwar (who, however, is no longer and can never again be a military power) be informed that while their territories lack good roads, are scarcely touched by railways, and notorious as the home of Dacoits and all evil-doers, their steady accumulation of treasure may render them objects of suspicion, and is at best evidence of the reverse of enlightened government. Let the Nizam be firmly and patiently exhorted to persist in reducing his still overgrown irregular levies, and let the immigration of Arabs and other mercenaries be peremptorily stopped.

Above all let the "Viceroy in Council" be more discriminate in the bestowal of honours, often ill deserved, rarely well merited, among the chief native Courts. Let the Government of India take more notice in this way of the smaller rulers, who merit far more reward than they have heretofore received. Whatever loyalty was shown by Scindia, Holkar, and other principal native princes has been fully, some think too highly, rewarded. It by no means follows that because those now living are G.C.B.'s or G.C.S.'s their successors shall inherit such honours, or that they shall be regarded as the appanage of their rank among native princes. Let it be known that those who follow will have to earn their honours and to give proofs by steady, good government of their right to distinction. So with their "Dewans" or Prime Ministers. My Indian contemporaries will understand my illusions in deprecating the systematic landation of one Dewan, who revels in the propoundment of theories on every and very conceivable subject, yet leaves his master's capital a dunghill studded by a a few pretentious buildings, and points with exultation to the cash piled up in his treasures! of another Dewan, ever boastful of his independence and broad views, who nevertheless aided his master complacently in piling fresh burdens on his people, content to see life and property insecure and criminals flock to his "Raj" as a holy shrine.

The Government of India can have no difficulty among the lesser states of finding examples of enlightened government and steady progress persisted in for years by native chiefs and rulers, hitherto inadequately noticed, if noticed at all, in the annual distribution of honours at Simla. Rajpootana can point to several cases in point; the Deccan and Southern Mahratta Sirdars furnish several instances, such as the Vinchoorkar and the Kunndwar chiefs; while in Kolapore the Regent Abba Saheb of Kagal, good fellow that he is, follows steadily the example of Rajah Rajaram. On the eastern coast there is the territory of the Maharajah of Vizagram, on the south-western coast the admirably governed Principality of Travancore, but in Kattiawar especially is to be found a knot of chiefs, mostly vying with each other in progress and good government. Pre-eminent among them is the Thakur of Bhownagar, Sir Taktisingi, ably seconded by his Dewan, Mr. Samueldass, a Dewan of the old school, unacquainted with the English language, yet keenly alive to everything tending to good government and development. Here is a tributary State by no means the wealthiest of the group, which has already contributed £600,000 out of about £825,000 towards the Bhow-nagar-Gondal Railway, and has volunteered to contribute further to extensions of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway, in which education is pushed on, justice is performed, life and property as safe as in any British district, with the result that the trade of the port and the State has quadrupled in four years, and native capital been attracted in abundance for the establishment of cotton spinning mills and presses and other industries. It was this chief who recently endowed the Northbrook Club with £10,000, and who has headed with the sum of Rs. 50,000, the guarantee of the Bombay Exhibition Fund. In this State and others following its example the chiefs will be found never hoarding, but always expending their revenues in public works and in everything calculated to develop their States' resources. These are the native rulers upon whom we can depend, whom the Government of India should lose no opportunity of patting on the back, of honouring, and holding up as examples to the backward princes who claim independence.

I earnestly hope that your late contributor may be induced to complete his labours—to take up and deposit as it is each native State of importance in India. Still more earnestly do I hope that the discussion to which his first papers have given rise may not die out, but may be continued by abler writers than myself. Thirty years' varied Indian experience, with personal knowledge of many native States in India, and a hereditary liking and sympathy for the people and the country are my only claims to the right of addressing you.—Yours faithfully,

INDIAN MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

(Bombay Government Gazette, Sept. 2.)

Surgeon R. Shore, I.M.D. has been ordered to proceed to Quetta, for duty with the Zhob Valley Expedition.

Mr. E. Hutton, Presidency Pay-master, Calcutta, has accepted the captaincy of the Post Office Company, Calcutta Volunteer Rifles, which was getting in a bad way lately, and hopes are entertained that under his management the company will soon regain strength and efficiency.

As the pilot vessel Chinsurah, which has been ordered by the Bengal Government to be sold, is not likely to fetch a good price, the suggestion has been made by the Marine authorities that the brig should be converted into a head-quarters for the Calcutta Naval Volunteers, with an office, a store-room, and an armoury on board.

The regiments for service in India arrive in the ensuing trooping season as follows:—The Highland Light Infantry on the 29th October, the 3rd Dragoon Guards on the 27th November; the 1st Battalion East Surrey Regiment on the 14th January 1885; and the 2nd Battalion Royal Irish Regiment on the 25th January, 1885. The four batteries of Royal Artillery will be the first to arrive on the 21st October, one for Bombay, one for Madras, and two for Bengal.

It has been finally settled that the following troops will comprise the Zhob Valley Field Force:—One squadron each from the 1st Bombay Lancers, 10th Bengal Lancers, and 5th Punjab Cavalry; 9-1 Northern Division Royal Artillery; half of No. 1. (Kohat) Mountain Battery; 4th and 10th companies Bengal Sappers and Miners; a detachment of the 1st Madras Pioneers; the 2nd Battalion North Staffordshire Regiment; 2nd and 3rd Bombay Native Infantry; 1st and 45th Bengal Native Infantry, and the 4th Punjab Infantry. The troops will march from Quetta via the Kowas Valley and Smalan to Dukhi, where the whole force will rendezvous.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, SEPT. 22, 1884.

ANOTHER MONSTER MEETING IN BEHAR, TO PROTEST AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

The following important telegram has been received in London to-day, dated Chupra, Behar, Sept. 22:—

"Monster meeting held yesterday (Sunday) at Chainpore, the ancient seat of the Chainpore Zemindars in Sarun, Behar. Resolutions condemning the Rent Bill as revised in Select Committee were unanimously adopted. Babu Chandraraj Prakash Narain Singh was the President of the meeting."

Not a week now passes without one or more of such meetings as this. We have no doubt that their significance will not be thrown away on Lord Kimberley and his Council; and we earnestly commend the resolutions, always unanimously carried, to the attention of Lord Dufferin.

LORD DUFFERIN'S FIRST WORK IN INDIA.

It is told of one of the ancient kings of the Jews, that his first care after his accession to the throne was to repair the breaches which his father had made. The task which will demand the earliest attention of Lord Dufferin on his arrival in Calcutta will be one of exactly this nature; and it is not the least of his many high recommendations for the important office he is about to fill, that both by temperament and by experience he seems to possess exactly the qualifications requisite for this delicate and supremely difficult work.

Other problems, it is needless to say, of the utmost gravity, also await his careful consideration. Since the retirement of Lord Lytton, the astounding rapidity of the Russian advance, and the cynical candour with which the Russian intentions have been revealed by the late General Scobelev and others, have combined to force a new departure in frontier politics even on the most timorous of Radical Governments; and the Afghan Boundary Commission, notwithstanding all the folly and perversity with which it has hitherto been dealt with, will give the new Viceroy an opportunity and a point d'appui of which he will not be slow to avail himself. Our relations with Upper Burma, and with some of the Native States within our own boundary—notably Hyderabad—have been notoriously awaiting the advent of a man at the head of Indian affairs with an intellect capable of dealing with them. The great question of Famine Defence will have to be considered anew; for the wise and far-seeing settlement of it made by Lord Lytton's Government has long ago been upset by its spendthrift successor. How we are to rehabilitate the discredited rupee—how we are to make up for the opium revenue when the Pease party in Parliament ultimately succeeds in robbing us of it—how we are to increase the all-important educational grants without increasing the taxation of a heavily-burdened population—how we are to satisfy the just aspirations of the educated natives for extended employment in the Civil Service—how we are to export the wheat that lies rotting in Upper and Central India, without subjecting it to such exorbitant transit charges—how we are to deal with the recommendations of the Army Commission, and with the armies of the Native States—these are only a few out of the many urgently pressing questions, that Lord Ripon has neglected for the sake of his fanatical Radical experiment. All these problems, we venture to predict, will be dealt with by Lord Dufferin in a spirit and with a vigour very different from those of the present doctrinaire régime of "much talk and little wool." Take, for instance, the question that we regard as of all others the most really momentous for the future prosperity of India, that of the extension of education. Lord Ripon has spent lakhs and lakhs of rupees on the salaries of very highly-placed, very able, and very costly Commissioners; but we doubt whether he can now, after all this huge expense, show one school or college the more, that would not have existed without this enormous outlay—and he certainly has not given us the slightest inkling as to how we are to keep pace with the progress of the age, and to produce in larger numbers the Rajendralalas, the Kristodases, and the Madhava Rao of the next generation. Take again the question of the extended employment of natives; we had a huge flourish of trumpets over a three-months officiating appointment of a Native Chief Justice—but what else? And even where Lord Ripon has screwed up the energy or the pluck really to take up an important question of this kind—as, for instance, in the case of the silver-plate duties, and again in the case of the Egyptian war-charges, so cruelly imposed on India by Mr. Gladstone's Government—has he possessed sufficient influence or sufficient resolution to carry out his own convictions? Not in one single instance!

All these questions, and others of equal weight, already over-due, will have to be considered before long by Lord Dufferin. But we trust that his first care, as we have said, will be to repair the breaches made by his predecessor in the social fabric of India. Our thoughtful contemporary, the Indian Spectator, last week published a paragraph concerning the strained relations between the English and the Native Press of Bengal, which will be read with deep pain by every well-wisher of India—pain all the more acute because it is impossible to doubt the substantial accuracy of the melancholy account. Nothing could more strongly accentuate the mischief done by the miserable Ilbert Bill, and its enduring character, than the way in which some of the best friends of India are habitually treated in one or two of the journals of Bengal, otherwise by no means illiberal or ungenerous. And even greater harm in the way of stirring up envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness between the zemindars and some of their own fellow-countrymen, their own flesh and blood, has been wrought by that still more iniquitous measure, the Bengal Tenancy Bill. It is true that in Arrah, and probably in many other districts, the ryots have had the good sense to understand who are the true friends and who are the false in this matter—and have honestly come forward to say they will have none of Mr. Ilbert's "bribery to commit fratricide." But even where the ryots have remained stanch, it is impossible to doubt that many of their mistaken or interested friends have allowed themselves to be persuaded, by Lord Ripon's inflammatory proposals, into a feeling of deadly hatred and covetousness against the propertied classes. The present social state of Bengal, brought about by Lord Ripon's wanton folly, could not long continue without the most serious consequences. To remedy it will be at once Lord Dufferin's most solemn duty and his most honourable work. We are confident that the new Viceroy, with the blessing of God, will bring home with him, on his retirement, a rich harvest of great achievements; but we trust that his highest glory will be the crown of the peacemaker, and that he will be able to restore to Englishman and Indian, to landlord and tenant, and to all the other classes whom Lord Ripon has been setting by the ears, that friendliness and that harmony which prevailed so conspicuously at the time when Lord Lytton gave up the reins of empire.

HOME NEWS.

CHOLERA INVESTIGATIONS IN INDIA.—Dr. D. D. Cunningham, Professor of Physiology and Pathology in the Calcutta Medical College, has been appointed, in conjunction with Surgeon-General J. M. Cunningham, Sanitary Commissioner for the Government of India, to make investigations into the origin and contagious character of cholera. This inquiry has been decided upon as the result of the investigations and discoveries of Dr. Koch and the German Cholera Commission during their late visit to Calcutta. Dr. Cunningham will resign the chair of Pathology at the Medical College, though he will continue to hold that of Physiology. The Overland Mail observes that it has long been considered a reproach to the Government of India that in a country, which has been recognised for years as the home of cholera and other infectious diseases no attempt has been made by the Government to encourage any general system of investigation on scientific principles into the causation of these diseases. Now, however, that it has been shown that a foreign Government can send, at its own expense, a deputation of scientific men to India to investigate the origin of diseases that may at any time effect all the countries in Europe and in other parts of the globe, the Government of India seems to be awaking to the necessity of taking some steps in the same direction in its own behalf. The gentlemen who have been selected for the work are such as to inspire complete confidence in the thoroughness and probable usefulness of their investigations.

CHOLERA INVESTIGATIONS IN INDIA.—We are informed that the Secretary of State for India has deputed Dr. Klein and Dr. Henage Gibbes, from this country to conduct a scientific investigation in India into the nature, origin, and mode of propagation of cholera. Dr. J. M. Cunningham and Dr. Douglas Cunningham will be associated with the English delegate, but the latter will be perfectly untrammelled in their method of inquiry.

GOVERNMENT SCHOLARSHIPS FOR NATIVES OF INDIA.—We have already intimated that the object of Professor Monier Williams's recent visit to India was to submit to the Government at Calcutta a proposal for the establishment of six Government scholarships for deserving natives of India (one for lower Bengal, one for Bombay, one for Madras, one for the North-West Provinces, one for the Central Provinces and one for the Punjab) to be attached to the Indian Institute at Oxford, which will be opened for work in the course of next October term. Professor Williams proposed that each scholarship should be of the annual value of £200 a year, and should be tenable for three years, but that the holding of such scholarship should be made conditional on the scholars passing the Oxford University examinations and obtaining satisfactory certificates of progress and conduct from the curators of the Indian Institute at the close of every term. Furthermore, Professor Monier Williams proposed that the scholars should be selected from those who had passed the best "First Arts" examination at the Indian Universities, but that they should not be allowed to proceed to England without passing a medical examination and giving unexceptionable proof of high moral character. The proposal was accepted by the Governor-General of India in Council, and was submitted for approval to the Secretary of State for India in Council. We are now able to announce that Lord Kimberley has sanctioned the establishment of the six scholarships asked for by the Oxford Bodley Professor of Sanskrit, but preference is to be given to statutory civil servants who are desirous of passing a probationary period in this country, and the scholars are to be allowed to reside in any institution connected with any University in the United Kingdom which provides supervision of conduct, and enforces residence within definite local limits, and is approved by the Secretary of State for India.—Times.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders for Rs. 15,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Sept. 17 at Bank of England. The amount allotted was—in telegraphic transfers on Calcutta, Rs. 11,00,000, tenders at 1s. 7½d. receiving in full. Between April 1 and Sept. 16, the total sales of drafts had reached Rs. 6,91,21,467, realising £5,690,937.

THE COAL FIELDS OF BENGAL.—Mr. F. de la Touche, of the Geological Survey of India, has written a report on the Langrim coal field, which is situated in the south-west Khasia hills, Assam. Mr. De la Touche says the coal-bearing rocks are exposed over an area of nearly eighty miles, and he thinks there is a large amount of coal available within a short distance of the plains. Limestone is also to be found in many parts of the country, and after being quarried in the cold season is taken down to Sunamganj on the Surma River, where it is burnt in holes in the river bank, reeds being used as fuel. The lime is finally taken to Calcutta, but an interval of two years elapses from the time the stone is quarried until it is sent to market. It is suggested that if the coal on the spot were used in properly constructed kilns a great saving of time and expenditure would be effected.

INDIAN RAILWAY.—The extension of the Madras Railway from the present terminus at Beypore to Calicut has been sanctioned at an estimated cost of 1,30,000 rupees.

THE NEW INDIAN FRONTIER WAR.—The Zhoob Valley Expedition, which is to march to-morrow (the climate being temperate compared with that of the Indian plains) will number nearly 4000 combatants of all arms, including the North Staffordshire Regiment and contingents from some of the best cavalry and infantry regiments of the Native Army. Supplies have been arranged for along the old cart route from Quetta to Thul-Chotiali and neighboring chiefs have agreed to supply the column with 1500 camels. The Zhoob Valley—or Long Valley, as the name means—is nearly 100 miles in length, and averages twenty in breadth, and being well watered and irrigated, produces wheat, millet, maize, and fodder in abundance, so that anxiety with reference to the continued supply of the British-Indian Expedition against Shah Jehan may be dismissed. The Zhoob Valley is populated by the Saruns, one of the seven Kakar tribes which, though at present at feud with each other, agree in claiming descent from the same Jewish family as Saul. Although this genealogy is very mythical, the Kakars have an unmistakably Jewish cast of countenance, and, unlike the clans by whom they are surrounded, they display an Hebraic instinct and aptitude for trade. As many as 6,000 or 7,000 of these traders are stated to come down to Herat annually, the chief commodity in which they deal being saffron. But the saruns of the Zhub Valley are at odds with all their neighbours, and are a source of serious trouble to frontier officers, owing mainly to the imperious and ambitious character of their chief, Shah Jehan; and this sole defier of the British Government in Southern Afghanistan, and the ruler of a country which he boasts has never been defiled by the step of the Feringhee, is now about to experience the inconvenience of his imprudent insolence and audacity. At the same time, Shah Jehan, the "King of the World," is a foe not to be despised, and Brigadier General Tanner will require to conduct his march with the utmost wariness, at least, until the mountaineers are disabused of the belief that their chief possesses the mystic power of causing the guns of his enemies to emit water instead of bullets.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—The demand for bar silver is not active, but 50 11-16d. per ounce continues to be quoted; the £40,000 which is being brought by the Galicia from Chili not being due for a few days. On the other hand, the inquiry for Mexican dollars for China has been very strong, and some portion of the recent remittance realised as much as 50½d. per ounce. One reason why such a good price was paid to-day was that a large proportion of the consignment of coins per Ville de St. Nazaire had been sold to arrive, the actual amount to be ultimately offered being small. This, coming on the top of a keen Irish demand as is shown by the above particulars of some silver, both bars and coins, which has just been shipped from America to Shanghai, made the market for dollars very firm, the last price obtained being higher than was anticipated at the close of the week, when business was, to a very great extent, suspended pending the receipt of the remittance which was then on the way. The Hongkong exchange rate is firmer at 3s. 9¼d., but other Eastern exchange quotations are unaltered. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper is now quoted less the half-yearly interest at 83¼ 83½, and the Four per Cents. are very inactive at 80 80½.

TUESDAY.—Fine bar silver is still quoted at 50 11-16d., and Mexican dollars at 50½d. per ounce, but very little business seems to have been done to-day, as all available amounts were disposed of yesterday. The Eastern exchange rates are unaltered, and Rupee Paper remains at 83¼ 83½ for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80 80½ for the Four per Cents.

WEDNESDAY.—There has been a demand for bar silver to-day on account of the Spanish Government, and the price has hardened to 50¼d. per ounce, at which there were no sellers. The quotation for India was also rather above that obtainable during the last few days. The £40,000, however, which is being brought by the Galicia from Chili will not be received in London for a day or two, and of that consignment a fair amount is said to have been already sold to arrive. Mexican dollars are very scarce, but the price remains at 50½d. per ounce. Indian exchange rates are again quoted at 1s. 7 13-32d., and the China rates, together with Rupee Paper, are also unaltered.

THURSDAY.—The Indian banks, knowing of the existence of the Spanish demand for bar silver, bid for some amounts this morning at 50½d. per ounce, and eventually bought some parcels at that price, the market being firm at the last. The Chilean remittance of £40,000 per Galicia, being expected a Liverpool late to-day, will be on the market to-morrow. Mexican dollars remain at 50½d. per ounce. To-day is a holiday in Bombay, and the markets in Calcutta will be closed to-morrow, while the Doorga Poojah holidays, affecting both Presidencies, will begin on Wednesday next the 24th, and last till October 4. There is no change in the exchange advices received from China, and Rupee Paper is still quoted at 83¼ to 83½ and 80 to 80½ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. respectively.

FRIDAY.—The balance of the silver bars brought by the Galicia, which had not been sold to arrive, was disposed of on Indian account to-day at 50¼d.; Mexican dollars also remaining at 50½d. per ounce, with no business. In fact the supplies of both bars and coins have been exhausted, and at the above prices the market was firm in each case. The Indian exchange rates are quoted at 1s. 7 7-16d., but there has been a holiday in Calcutta to-day. There is no alteration in the China quotation. Rupee Paper closed at 83¼ 83½ for the Four-and-a-Half and 80 80½ for Four per Cents., showing no change.

SATURDAY.—The existing demand for bar silver coming on a very poorly supplied market has made the tendency very firm, and 50 13-16d. per ounce was offered to day. Mexican dollars remain nominally at 50½d. Indian exchange rates are firm, but China quotations, as well as Rupee Paper, are unaltered.

Furlough for twelve months has been allowed to Lieutenant A. C. Yate, Bombay, S.C. Wing Officer and Quartermaster 27th Regiment N. I.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TUESDAY EVENING.

SUGAR.—The first estimates of the beet supply this season give a large increase on last. The dulness of the market has increased. German 88 per cent., closed at 11s. 3d. in all positions. The business in West India since Friday is 146 casks, 800 bags, including the public sales. 2,496 bags Mauritius, 2,594 packages Natal, and 1,871 bags Penang were chiefly bought in above market value. A cargo of Porto Rico refining quality has sold at 12s. 9d. per cwt. for the United Kingdom. In the Clyde market a quiet tone, and pieces rather easier.

COFFEE.—The public sales have gone slowly. 680 bags East India went to 68s. to 81s. 6d. for rather bold Mysore, and 69s. to 70s. for bold Coorg. Other kinds chiefly bought in. 76 half-barrels Mocha sold cheaply, at 79s. for mixed long berry. 2,025 bags foreign, small part sold, Guatemala, ordinary mixed to fine ordinary greenish, 44s. 6d. to 47s. 6d.; gray, 49s. to 55s. per cwt.

TEA.—To-day's China auctions, which comprise a total of about 5,550 packages Congou (chiefly Foochow teas) and 5,350 new make and scented teas, passed generally with a flat tendency; better grades of Foochow teas distinctly in favour of buyers. At the Indian auctions, consisting of 4,419 packages, the business was less animated, 213 packages of Ceylon tea sold at about previous rates. A sale of 785 packages Java tea passed at about former prices for all but Pekoes which ruled firmer. To-day's sale was small, only 11,500 packages being offered. About 4,000 packages consisted of scented teas. The Congous were chiefly red leaf kinds, which passed at decidedly easier rates. The private market is unchanged. About 1,000 packages are advertised for to-morrow.

COCOA.—West India unaltered; 1,795 bags Trinidad chiefly bought in above value, a small quantity selling 70s. to 78s. for mixed to good red, 81s. to 83s. for fine; 277 bags Grenada all sold—common to fair 63s. to 68s.; fine, 74s. 563 bags Ceylon went easier—medium, 66s. to 70s.; good 74s. to 77s.; 465 bags Samana half sold—58s. 6d. to 63s.; and 100 bags Carupano sold cheaply, at 78s.; Guayaquil dull—968 bags bought in, 74s. to 80s.; 138 bags Caracas, at 66s. to 89s.; and 120 bags Surinam, at 75s. to 79s. per cwt.

RIC.—Since last Friday two cargoes of Bassein, off coast, or due, have been sold at 7s. 6¼d. and 7s. per cwt. for the Continent; and a so two cargoes Necrarzie at 7s. 3d. per cwt., same terms.

SPICES.—Pepper in good demand and advancing. Singapore black 7¼d., and to arrive 7 5-16d. Singapore white, on the spot and to arrive 10¼d.; Cassia Ligna is higher.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The Indian auctions comprised 4 1-7 packages Indian and 139 chests Ceylon teas. Prices were irregular, but more firmness was apparent than at yesterday's depressed sales. At the China sales 8,086 packages sold without reserve at irregular and generally rather easier rates. Red leaf siftings and broken leafs passed at 4¼d. to 5½d. per lb.; common Congou at 6d. to 6½d. per lb.; packings, 7¼d. to 8d. per lb.; Panyons, 10d. to 10½d. per lb. Good common to fair second crop black leafs, 8¼d. to 10¼d. per lb. Privately business continues to be on the most restricted scale.

SUGAR continues in a depressed state, and no business has transpired in West India. Beet has sold down to 11s. for October-December. In the Clyde market quotations of pieces show a decline of 3d. to 6d. since last Friday, the market being weak.

COFFEE.—The Dutch sale was at an irregular advance on valuations, but at August rates to the above for current qualities. In our market no change has occurred in Plantation Ceylon or East India, the former bringing full rates and the tone being more steady. 169 casks 54 barrels and 108 of the former sold low middling to middling grayish, 60s. to 61s. 6d.; good to fine middling, 68s. 6d. to 74s. 6d.; fine bold, 88s. 6d. to 94s. 6d. 168 casks 2,188 bags East India—good medium to fine 101s. 6d. to 92s. 178 half-barrels Mocha brought 83s. to 86s. 509 bags Costa Rica, 48s. to 57s. 6d. per cwt.

SPICES.—At the public sale 26 cases Penang brown nutmegs went at a further advance of 1d.—60s to 66s at 3s. 5d. to 3s. 7d., 95s to 83s at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d., smaller 1s. 6d. to 1s. 10d. A few cases Penang made sold rather dearer at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d. Black and white pepper firm at the advance by private contract. A few lots of Tellicherry black sold at 7¼d., and 298 bags Singapore white at 10¼d. per lb. Very little Cochua ginger sold, but that showed 2s. to 4s. advance on last sales rates—cutting, 42s.; washed, 50s. to 56s.; cut, 60s. to 67s.; mixed bold, 73s. to 75s. Jamaica also dearer at 56s. to 73s. Japan sold at 43s. per cwt. Pimento rather easier, a small quantity selling at 2¼d. to 2½d. Zanzibar cloves have been sold privately at late terms; a few lots on auction sold at 5d. to 5½d. per lb.

SAGO quiet. Small grain by auction sold 11s. to 11s. 6d.; medium, 13s. per cwt. Common flake tapioca rather easier at 1¼d. to 1½d. per lb.; fine held firmly; medium pearl sold at 12s. 9d. to 13s.; and red at 11s. 6d. Bullet bought in 13s. to 13s. 6d. per cwt.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that there has been little change to report in the markets since the last mail, the home trade restricting operations to immediate requirements, and the low level of quotations does not create any speculative feeling. The satisfactory result of the harvest should lead to more demand from the country, but at present there are few signs of the reaction which many anticipated in the autumn. Great depression prevails in the sugar market, the first estimate of the beet supply this season pointing to a supply of 2,550,000 tons for all Europe, or 190,000 tons above the output of 1883-84. Sales have been made at 11s. to 11s. 3d. for German, 81 per cent. f.o.b., prompt and October shipment, or lower than yet quoted. West India Muscovado kinds have lost all the recent advance, now ranging from 9s. to 13s. per cwt. The Dutch Trading Company's sale of coffee yesterday showed a better result than was generally looked for. Prices were very irregular, although in most cases over valuations, including good ordinary Java at 27½c. to 27¾c. against 26¾c. to 27c. in August. There has been no alteration for the better in this market. Fine descriptions obtain extreme rates, but the full supplies of East India and Costa Rica have further depressed quotations for other qualities. Ceylon cocoa is again slightly easier. Rice cargoes off the coast have been more readily saleable. Tea continues inactive, the chief business being in public sale. Common to fair grades of Congou show a decline of fully ½d. per lb. from the highest point attained last month. The Indian market opened weaker and at rather easier quotations, but closes with a better tone. There has been some increase of business in spice. Cassia Lignea sold largely during the last three weeks from 26s. upwards, and latterly 29s. per cwt. was paid. A public sale of cinnamon is advertised for the 29th inst. Black and white pepper rather dearer. Nutmegs have further advanced, also Cochin ginger.

TEA.—From Messrs. Hawes and Hertz's fortnightly report:—"Indian.—Nearly 36,000 packages have been catalogued during the fortnight. In spite of the heavy daily sales, prices were well maintained during the earlier part of last week, but the excessive number of samples to be valued, and the general disposition of importers to effect immediate sales, eventually caused a weakening in prices for most kinds. Sou-chongs and broken teas, under 1s., show a decline of about ½d. per lb. Medium Pekoes and broken Pekoes are difficult of sale except at a reduction. Fine liquoring Pekoe Sou-chongs, as well as the finest grades of Pekoe and broken Pekoe, though in more abundant supply, still meet with good competition and fairly maintain values. A considerable quantity of Darjeeling tea has been offered, but met with little attention, the quality being poor, and very slow prices having to be accepted to effect sales. The fine qualities are unchanged. Ceylon.—The latter arrivals have mostly shown improved quality, and been well competed for at firm rates. Java.—Business has been confined to two sales—in all 1,022 packages.—ex s.s. Princess Wilhelmina and Gelderland. On the 8th inst. a small invoice of Tjikembang of excellent quality, resembling fine Neilgherry tea in cup, sold well—viz. Pekoe, 1s. 4¼d.; broken Pekoe, 1s. 2d.; Pekoe Sou-chong, 1s. 0¼d.; Sou-chong, 10½d.; Congou, 9¼d. per lb. On the 16th inst., Nan-geong Sou-chong brought 8d. to 8¼d.; Pekoe Sou-chong, 11d.; Pekoe in boxes, 1s. 5d.; flowery Pekoe, 2s. 5d.; broken flowery Pekoe 2s. 3d. An invoice of Dramagas, of indifferent quality, sold at Sou-chong, 7¾d.; broken Pekoe, 9½d. to 9¾d.; Pekoe, 1s. 2¼d.; flowery Pekoe, 1s. 6¾d. per lb. On the whole, common Sou-chongs, Congous, and broken teas, have sold rather in favour of buyers, but finest grades and even-leaf Pekoes and Pekoe Sou-chongs are in good competition, the latter kinds going mostly for export."

SUGAR.—A dull and declining market. During the two days 480 casks refining West India have sold at 61s. to 1s. under last week's rates. A cargo of Java sold, the price not given out. Beet has further declined closing 11s. for October-December. In the Clyde market pieces have sold at rather firmer rates. M. Bertrand Silz makes the following remarks in his circular, dated Paris Sept. 17:—"The tendency of the market has been entirely reversed the last few days and prices have day after day become lower. It is true, there were occasionally some signs of an improvement. For instance, yesterday at the half-monthly liquidations for September engagements, 21,000 bags were tendered and taken up immediately. This influenced the market for a rise of 50c., which was quickly lost. The fine weather, the continuation of unfavourable reports of the English market, as well as the hope of a superior crop to that of last year in Germany and Austria, have kept buyers back and induced offers, thus reducing the prices of prompt by 1½. 25c. per 100 kilos; say 6d. per cwt., while forward delivery has been effected to an even greater extent."

SUGAR.—Beet is again lower, having sold at 10s. 9d. to 11s. October December shipment, and the market closed flat. "MAN PROPOSES."

A NOVEL IN THREE VOLUMES.

BY

MRS. A. PHILLIPS, Author of "Benedicta."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mrs. Phillips's new story is simple enough in its subject and construction to be deservedly called idyllic, and her power as a writer is shown by the manner in which the interest and action are steadily subordinated to the selected theme. The incidents are natural and affecting. Hagars is a fine character, and its metal is tried and refined by a series of tests which cannot fail to secure for her the sympathy of all who make her acquaintance."—Athenaeum.

"There are many good passages in this novel, and excellent touches of character. It shows that the author is capable of work beyond the average."—Academy.

"This novel, in which there is a great deal to admire and very little to find fault with, is always well, and sometimes beautifully, written, and full of thought and feeling. . . . The book is extremely taking, and there is a poetical strain in it that is as strange to modern fiction as it is taking."—Spectator.

"A very readable story."—Standard.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."
A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION
OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FORWRIGHTLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

COUGHS, COLDs,
 ASTHMA,
 BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances defying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See The Times, July 13th, 1884.

IS THE GREAT SPECIFIC FOR CHOLERA.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, LONDON, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient. Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states "2 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA." From S. & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. T. DAVENPORT, London.

DEAR SIR,—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-estimated medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa, and the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surpassingly controlling power. J. T. DAVENPORT, 20, Russell St., W.C.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, Life Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in NEURALGIA, GOUT, CANCER, TOOTHACHE, RHEUMATISM.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a liquid medicine which assuages PAIN OF EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep, WITHOUT HEAD-ACHE, and VIGORATES the nervous system when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC, PALPITATION, Hysteria.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—The IMMENSE SALE of this REMEDY has given rise to many UNSUBSTANTIAL IMITATIONS. Be careful to observe Trade Mark of all Chemists. In 1/4d, 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. SOLE MANUFACTURERS, J. T. DAVENPORT, 20, Russell St., W.C.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, Sept. 9; Madras and Allahabad, Sept. 7; Calcutta, Sept. 6.

THE Calcutta telegram in the Times to-day brings news that ought finally to settle the fate of Mr. Ilbert's Bengal Tenancy Bill. The highest judicial authority in India, the Chief Justice of Bengal, has published a Minute in which he once more slays the slain. He shows that this most iniquitous Bill, if passed into law, will "ruin or seriously injure a large majority of the zemindars"—that it will be "scarcely less injurious to the cultivators"—that it will be "inconsistent with the good faith of the British nation"—and that it will be "not only unjust but impolitic, as tending to substitute middlemen for the existing zemindars."

SIMILAR opinions have been set forth day after day and week after week, in the columns of every journal that is acknowledged as possessing any authority on the question, ever since the unhappy Bill was introduced into the Legislative Council. Similar opinions have been recorded by nearly every Commissioner in Bengal, and by a large majority of the Bengal Judiciary. They have been reiterated in this country by the highest legal authorities, such as Lord Bramwell, and by politicians of every hue of party politics, such as Lord Stanley of Alderley, Lord Fortescue, and Lord Wemyss. Ex officials who have spent their whole lives in the study of the various phases of this question, and in the actual work of revenue administration, from the most junior posts to the highest, that of member of the Board of Revenue, have joined to urge Lord Ripon to desist from his schemes of revolution and anarchy. Hitherto, all has been to no purpose; and up to the present moment the Viceroy and his Abdiel, Mr. Ilbert, have shown no sign of submitting their imperious wills to the unanimous verdict of knowledge and experience.

UNDER these circumstances, the hopes of India are centred in Lord Dufferin. We believe that the coming Viceroy has so much true courage, that he is not likely to go in for that mock-courage which consists in setting up one's own fads as infallible, and then defying all the arguments of practical experience. And for this reason we regard it as a most fortunate thing that Sir Richard Garth's minute should have appeared at this critical moment.

THE Chief Justice of Bengal is justly indignant at the disgraceful methods of political warfare employed by the present Government; and strongly objects to such "poisoned weapons" as the scurrility and abuse with which judicial opinions are received, if they happen to be honest, and to be unfavourable to the Radical views of the Ministry. But here at home we are rapidly getting accustomed to the lowered standard of political morality which is the most striking feature of the Midlothian era. The fate of the Chief Justice of Bengal in India is only parallel to that of the House of Lords in England. The Chief Justice, in the course of his official duty, is called upon to record his honest and conscientious opinion on a pet project of Lord Ripon's—the opinion happens to be unfavourable, and the Chief Justice is forthwith lampooned by Lord Ripon's Chief Secretary. Here in England the House of Lords, in the course of its official duty, is called on to vote upon a legislative project of Mr. Gladstone's—its verdict happens to be unfavourable, and forthwith the Prime Minister starts an agitation which may end in the abolition of the Lords altogether; while Mr. Thorold Rogers, M.P., calls them arboreal apes, whose fittest place, of abode is the Divorce Court. That is how we live now; so Midlothian has willed it—and it is no use for Sir Richard Garth, or Lord Bramwell, or any one else, to kick against the pricks. At the same time, the Chief Justice of Bengal will, we believe have the sympathy of every decent man in England and India. Nor can we wonder altogether at his disgust. At the time when he left England for India, most of us would have said that a speech like Lord Hartington's on the High Court Judges, and incidents like those of the famous "garbled telegram," were alike impossible in English public life.

SIR DONALD STEWART is to be congratulated on the spread of a movement in India analogous to that which has provided us with "Commissionaires" in England. The idea is expanding into one that may provide us with an efficient Reserve for our Native Army; and in any case, it seems certain to bring forth very good fruit indeed.

WE trust that the improvement in the opium revenue will continue, and enable Lord Dufferin to ride over the flood of extravagance to which he will succeed. But what will the Pease party say to this in Parliament? If it had only been a Tory Viceroy who was thus piling up the sales of opium, the world itself would not have contained the speeches that would have been spoken, and the books that would have been written to denounce Tory depravity.

ADMIRAL of the Fleet, Sir Thomas Symonds, who has on several occasions favoured this journal with his views on Navy mismanagement, is now surely avenged of his Radical adversaries. In the matter of navy reform and extension, Saul is among the prophets; our Radical contemporary, the Pall Mall Gazette, has put itself at the head of a movement which cannot but result in the restoration of our naval supremacy, and the carrying out of the views so perseveringly advocated by Sir Thomas Symonds.

AN interesting discovery of particular value in the engineering world is just announced in the form of a new motive power. The discovery is due to the inventive genius of Mr. Edwin Sturge, who has patented its mode of application. It is claimed that for all purposes of light locomotion, or for driving light machinery it will eventually displace steam. Private experiments of Sturge's New Motive Power has proved very satisfactory, and arrangements are being made to give it a public trial.

THE following letter has been addressed to the Editor of the Farming World on the subject of the Bengal Tenancy Bill:—

"SIR,—As you have been good enough to fully report from week to week in your columns the arguments for and against this bill, perhaps you will find space for this. The Select Committee admits that the rule, so far as regards the acquisition of the status of a settled ryot and the right of occupancy, remains unchanged. But, if the Government had inquired into the matter it could have been proved by the ryots themselves that they do not like to allow men of another village to acquire rights of occupancy in their own village. A resident cultivator could never acquire rights of occupancy beyond the limits of the village in which he lived. Sir John Shore defined a resident cultivator as any one who cultivated the land in the village in which he lived.

"Will the Government, in giving the right of occupancy to a stranger in the way contemplated by the Tenancy Bill, also give him all the rights belonging to a resident ryot, or, in other words, will the ryots of one village who can come within the definition of settled ryots of another village, with the right of occupancy, acquire also the rights of fishing, pasturage, the right of performing Id Namaz and Pujas in the village of their statutory or theoretical residence? I need scarcely mention here the amount of jealousy with which the villagers look upon each other when they come to interfere with these rights. If we go through the sessions records of Eastern Bengal, it will be seen that most of the serious riots have originated from causes connected with fishing, grazing of cattle, and boat races in the month of Srahon. The right of transfer, combined with the provisions relating to the acquisition of the right of occupancy, will afford a great stimulus to the turbulent Farazee Mussulmans of Eastern Bengal to break each other's heads.

"If the mode of acquiring right of occupancy as provided by the bill may create inconvenience in exceptionally large estates, will it not a fortior cause greater inconvenience in exceptionally small estates scattered all over the district or districts? A theoretical measure conceived in utter ignorance of existing circumstances can never stand the test of reason and justice.

"Chapter 2 of the Bill and Sec. 37 affords to occupancy ryots the privilege of converting their holdings into tenures whenever it suits them. To-day a man is an ordinary occupancy ryot, to-morrow he can create himself a tenure holder by sub-letting a portion of his holding or more than half of it. See Sec. 37 and 5. So it will be seen that every ryot holding more than a hundred begahs of land can become a Patneedar whenever he may choose to become so. He can also create undertenures, and the undertenure holders can also create sub-tenures, and the sub-tenure holders may create fourth tenures and so on, and this privilege is not only given to ryots holding more than a hundred begahs of land, but ryots sub-letting more than half of their holding have been empowered also to create all these sub-tenures. What a beautiful device our rulers have adopted to put restrictions on sub-letting. Then the explanation attached to Section 37 provides that a person who has been converted into a tenure-holder does not cease to be so by reason of the portion of his holdings sub-let ceasing to be more than one-half of his holding; so it will be seen the principle of the Hindu law, 'once vested, cannot be divested,' has been applied to these tenure-holders also.

"We cannot really understand what meaning our rulers intend to convey by clause 4, section 35, which runs thus:—'In the case of gifts made by Mahomedans nothing in this section shall apply to a gift to a person within the prohibited degrees.' What are we to understand by the words 'within the prohibited degrees?' Do they mean persons who cannot marry each other, or who cannot be heirs to each other?"

"A VICTIM OF THE TENANCY BILL."

The Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected up till Sept. 6:—

"A fair amount of business has again been done in our freight market since last mail both in steam and sailing vessels, but we cannot report any improvement in rates, which remain much the same as before. For November-December loading sailing vessels are holding out at 35s. for Dundee; shippers are, however, not eager to charter at this figure. Our unfixed tonnage stands at 46,000 tons to-day."

We take the following on the Calcutta Indigo Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Market Report:—

"We have now the pleasure to hand you the figures of last crop made up, and giving a total of Factory Mds. 159,388. We also give the detailed estimates of the various Zillahs of Lower Bengal which come out rather more than we expected a fortnight back, the closing returns from Bhagulpore and Purneah being rather in excess of the estimates previously sent. As regards Behar, the final returns of first cuttings lead us to expect that our estimates of 37,000 maunds will be fully realised. As regards the Khoontees, the season is so late that we find it impossible as yet to get sufficient estimates to enable us to say with any degree of certainty what the returns are likely to be. In some parts, more especially in Champaran, good rain has fallen and prospects have improved, but in other places, and more particularly in Chuprah, good general rain is still much needed. The reports both from the Benares Provinces and the Doab are much to the same effect as those we printed in our last, and we find it impossible as yet to give any idea as to what the outturn for the season is likely to be. At present we do not think it will fall short of that of last season."

The same firm gives the following on the Calcutta Tea Market:—

"Since our last issue, dated 23rd August, two series of auctions have been held—viz., on the 28th ultimo and on the 4th instant. At the former sale rates were irregular, but there was a good demand. Competition for all kinds this week considerably increased, especially for teas 'for price,' say under nine annas, and though we made no quotable rise, the market was decidedly firmer. We have this season noticed a great irregularity in the quality of some breaks, and we think something might be done to ensure the even quality of teas invoiced as one break. The present system of packing appears to be defective, and though we are not in favour of keeping teas in bins, we are of opinion that, before finally firing, the teas might be bulked; any expense incurred would be more than recouped by a higher price, as when three or four chests come down entirely different to the remainder of the break, they rarely realise their full value. This is therefore a matter equally to the advantage of both seller and buyer; the planter gets for a large break more than for a small one (small breaks being always somewhat neglected), and buyers prefer to bid for a larger break, trusting that it will realise a higher price. The London demand by latest telegrams is reported as good, but so far we have heard authentically of no speculation (as reported here) in consequence of the disturbance in China. Reports from gardens generally are more favourable, but the quality is scarcely up to the average of the past few years."

The Times of India gives the following obituary till departure of the mail, Sept. 9:—

"H. H. Nooroodin Shah, second son of H. H. Aga Ali Shah, the head of the Khojas; Mr. Feranda B. Chatterjee, barrister-at-law, Calcutta; Mr. J. W. Oughterlony, of Oughterlony Valley, Neilgherries; Mr. E. N. Overbury, C.S., District and Sessions Judge of Salem; Surgeon-Major Mark Anthony, M.D., A.M.D., Fatehgar."

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

"Rain has fallen throughout the Madras Presidency, but the fall has been a light one, and more rain is wanted in almost every district. There has been slight rain in Mysore during the week, but the condition of the standing crops is still poor or precarious. In Coorg there was good rain, and the coffee and rice crops have been much benefitted. Light rain fell throughout the Bombay Presidency (except Sind), but more is wanted for the young crops, which are withering in parts of Poona, Ahmednagar, and Kaladgi. There was no rain in the Berars, and in Hyderabad the fall was light; but the condition of the crops continues good. There was good rain generally throughout the Central India and Rajputana states, and prospects are good. In the North Western Provinces and Oudh good rain is again reported from all districts, and a break is now needed. The crops are in excellent condition. In the Punjab rain fell in most districts, but more would be beneficial, especially in Hissar and Sirsa. Prospects generally are good. Rain fell throughout the Central Provinces and prospects are fair. Good falls of rain are reported from the Assam districts. At Cachar the river has risen 40ft. over the usual dry season level, owing to the heavy rain which has fallen in the hills. In Bengal the rainfall of the week has been generally light, and more is still wanted in many places. The latest report of the Meteorological Department, dated 28th instant, states that rain continues heavy along the west coast. No rain is reported from Punjab, except in Mooltan and Simla, and none from Behar or Chota Nagpur, Sind, Rajputana, and the Carnatic. In other parts of the country rain has fallen everywhere, though in the Central Provinces the fall is partial. Harvesting continues in some districts in Madras. The condition of the standing crops in some districts in the Bombay Presidency is unsatisfactory, owing to insufficient rainfall; the cotton crop has been attacked by blight in Hyderabad. The kharif sowings have been nearly completed in Punjab, and preparations for the rabi are in progress there in the Central Provinces. In Bengal, unless heavy rain falls shortly, the prospects of amum will, it is reported, be much affected. Harvesting of aus and jute continue, but the outturn where completed does not exceed 12 annas. In Assam agricultural prospects are on the whole good. The public health is generally good; but cholera and small-pox prevail sporadically in several districts. Prices are generally stationary, except in the North-western provinces and Oudh, where they show a tendency to fall."

TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

The following is from the Calcutta correspondent of The Times, dated Sept. 28:—

"An important contribution to the Rent Bill controversy has appeared in the form of a minute by the Chief Justice of Bengal, Sir Richard Garth. He begins by saying that the subject is one of such vital importance to the agricultural community that he feels bound in justice to them to express an opinion upon it. Had he consulted his own wishes only he would have preferred to say nothing. There was a time, he goes on, when the opinions of High Court Judges, however adverse they might be to those of Government, were invariably treated with respect. He is sorry to say this is not so now. He then refers to a previous minute of his on the same bill, and to the Court's letter on the Ilbert Bill. The former, he remarks, was made the subject of a bitter and scurrilous libel by one of the secretaries to the Government, without Government showing any signs of disapproval. The latter, a document issued by the High Court in its judicial capacity, was described by Lord Hartington in the House of Commons as having no judicial authority and as the offspring of partisanship. It would, he adds, be better for Government not to consult the judges at all unless they really desire honest advice, it being hardly fair to consult them if their advice is to be received with favour or disfavour as it may be more or less in accord with Government policy. He then proceeds to examine the provisions of the Bill at some length, and concludes by warning Government earnestly against a policy which will ruin or seriously injure a large majority of the zemindars and will be scarcely less injurious to the cultivators, which will be inconsistent with the good faith of the British nation, and which will be not only unjust but impolitic as tending to substitute middlemen for the existing zemindars.

"A scheme which it is expected will have a very good effect on the future of the Indian Army is in contemplation at headquarters. It is proposed to establish agencies in the Punjab, the North-West Provinces, and Oude for providing pensioned native soldiers with lucrative employment. It is felt that a decided re-action has set in against the purely competitive system of appointment to subordinate positions in the Government departments, and it is believed that the introduction into the railway and other services of natives of approved character and loyalty, who have done good, faithful work in the army, will commend itself to the majority of the respectable natives, whose interest it is to support the British Government. It is thought that after fifteen years in the ranks the sepoy would still be fit to bear arms when occasion demanded, and also to perform certainly ten years' more good service in civil employment.

"The Commander in Chief and the Government cordially approved the suggestion, and many local administrations have pledged themselves to support the movement by instructing their executive officers to help native soldiers of good character in procuring employment. The rate of pay in the native army is already below the ordinary rate of wages for labour, and the soldier has only a small pension to look forward to. It seems obvious that to maintain an efficient native army it is necessary to make the service more attractive. Inquiry has led to the belief that there would be no difficulty in obtaining any number of recruits if it were generally known that old soldiers of good character were certain of honourable treatment and of being held eligible for civil employment, and, once the scheme sanctioned, there would be every prospect of the formation of a standing reserve, which in time of need could be utilised to hold the railways and lines of communication, thus setting free large bodies of troops for service in the field.

"The Commission appointed to inquire into the performance by the Calcutta Corporation of its sanitary duties is now holding daily meetings and inspecting the worst parts of the town. The latest phase of the controversy between the Government and the Corporation is the administration by the Lieutenant Governor of a severe rebuke to the chairman for the manner in which he has conducted its correspondence. Mr. Thompson also censures the Corporation for nominating as its representative on the Commission an outsider who holds a laborious office under Government. He points out that the Corporation should have named one of its own members, but he will permit the gentleman in question to serve on the Commission, although he cannot relieve him from his ordinary official duties.

"The opium revenue for August is considerably better than was expected; it exceeds the estimate by Rs. 10,30,230. For the five months ending with August the excess is over 30 lakhs of rupees.

"The alleged exposure of theosophy continues to attract much attention. The theosophists indignantly declare that it is a device of the Christian missionaries to throw discredit on their sect. They say that the letters purporting to be written by Blayatsky are a clumsy forgery, and that Monsieur and Madame Coulemb are persons unworthy of any credit. To this the editor of the 'Christian College Magazine' retorts that he thoroughly satisfied himself by inquiry of the genuine nature of the letters he published, and that they form but a small part of a vast mass of evidence in his hands which is absolutely convincing and quite independent of the personal veracity of the Coulembes.

"What might have been a serious accident has occurred at Bombay Arsenal. Some old warlike stores exploded while being loaded on a barge. Luckily no great damage was done and there was no loss of life, although there were some narrow escapes. The barge took fire, but was promptly towed out of harbour and sunk. A court of inquiry is sitting.

"The Zhob Valley Expedition began somewhat inauspiciously, forty-nine men of the North Staffordshire Regiment being sent back from Kach invalided. The head of the force is expected to reach the rendezvous at Duki on the 30th.

"There are no further details regarding the outbreak at a gaol at Mandalay, save that troops were called out and that 300 persons were killed before order was restored. A general feeling of uneasiness prevails in the city.

"The Mengwoon Prince is still at Pondicherry."

NOTES ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884.— BY THE EAST BENGAL LANDHOLDER'S ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER V. Continued.—Act X of 1859 never allowed a ryot who had left his holding without making any arrangement for the payment of his rent to come back and claim the same at any time within three years. The courts from the time he left the same have always looked upon such acts as amounting to abandonment or relinquishment of the holding. The present Bill not only allows the ryot to get back into possession even in such cases (Sec. 96) and not only causes a substantial loss to the landlord in such cases but allows the ryot even to count the period of his absence to make up his twelve years.

The following illustrations will show the justness of the above remarks.

First take the case of a settled ryot. On the 5th of Baisakh a settled ryot of Village A but who resides on the land of a different landlord in Village B leaves his holding in Village A and ceases to cultivate the same. For almost one year, i. e. down to the close of the current agricultural year the landlord must wait and see what the ryot means to do. He cannot enter upon the land and let it out to anybody else or bring it into cultivation himself. Then arises the question whether the landlord can even after the close of the current agricultural year let out the land in the above case Sec. 96 says that the landlord can do it when the ryot has voluntarily abandoned his residence and has ceased to cultivate the land. In the case supposed the ryot had not abandoned his residence at all. He is still residing where he was. How can Sec. 99 then cover such a case? Taking for granted that this section covers also such a case the landlord was to go to the expense and trouble of publishing the notice required by Sub-sec 2 of Sec. 96 which there is no body to repay. The year's rent also is well nigh lost. If the former ryot had cultivated the land the rent might have been realised by distraint. After the abandonment and after it has been let out to another ryot, the holding cannot be sold for the arrears.

Take another case.

The landlord enters upon the land and lets it to a third party and publishes the required notice. The ryot does not stir for about two years and then files suit. The landlord, having been very much annoyed, contests the suit and more than a year and very likely two years elapse before the case is finally decided. So by the time the ryot recovers possession by executing the decree, five years elapse from the time the ryot left. The landlord has to remain in suspense for three years and then give up the land and pay the costs of the suit in the bargain.

Then again, the fact that the ryot will be able to recover back his land if he should sue within three years and the chance of any new ryot, who might be induced on the land and would surely be dragged into the suit against the landlord, losing his labour and costs of cultivation not to mention costs of suits, will all conspire to keep away all right thinking people from taking lease of and cultivating such lands and thus the landlord will be left either to cultivate the land himself or to let it remain fallow and without any return.

As Sec. 96 has been referred to it would not be out of place to state here that Sub-sec. 7 of Sec. 26 coupled with Sec. 96 will give even to the non occupation ryot a right to remain away from the land for a year and a half before he makes up his mind as to whether he should sue to regain the possession of the land which he under no circumstances should be allowed to do. Why should he even be allowed to sue for possession after having voluntarily abandoned his holding and why should the landlord wait for one year for his return without having been paid the rent in advance; and lastly why should he be allowed to count this period of his neglect to till the soil to complete his twelve years? Can there be anything more unjust and one sided than this provision which brings about a result so disastrous to the landlord?

RESTRICTIONS ON TRANSFER.

So much has been said on this question from time to time by representatives of both the landlord and the ryot's interest that the question may be said to have been argued threadbare and any attempt to put forward any further argument would be a mere repetition. Yet as some of the restrictions proposed by the Bill of 1883 have been omitted from the present Bill it has become necessary to say something with regard to matters detail.

Under the Original Bill of 1883 the landlord had a right to buy up at a fair price the holding even in the case of bequest when the bequest was in favour of a person other than the legal heir (section 55 of the Bill of 1883.)

Again when the ryot made a gift of his holding in favour of a person other than the landlord, the landlord had a right under the Bill of 1863 (section 54) to buy it up if he chose at a price to be fixed by the court.

These restrictions have now been done away with. It is submitted that it would be most prejudicial to the interests of the landlord if no rights be reserved to him to annul, transfer, or buy up holdings in cases of bequests or gifts made to persons other than heirs.

The effect of allowing transfer of occupancy rights to take place unreservedly has been so disastrous in the Sonthal Pergunnahs (vide Resolution on the administration of Civil Justice in the Sonthal Pergunnahs; Calcutta Gazette, July 23, 1884) that no argument is needed to be able to see clearly what the consequences would be in Bengal, were such practice legalised.

Section 35 of the present Bill reproduces, with some minor alterations, the provision of section 54 of the original Bill regarding the service of notice on the landlord after registration of the deed of gift. Of what use will this provision be if there remain no clause under which the landlord may object and claim to annul the gift or purchase the holding. The meaning and object of sub-Section 4 of Section 35 is not clear.

RESTRICTIONS ON SUBLETTING.

Section 37 of the present bill has been framed with the object of restraining (1) non-agricultural classes from buying up occupancy rights and (2) subletting by occupancy ryots. In order to gain the above object it has been provided that when an occupancy ryot will sublet more than half of his holding he will be converted into a tenure-holder. Not a tenure-holder out and out, but one having some incidents of tenure proper attached to his tenure.

The first question is whether the status of a tenure-holder is so disadvantageous as to deter the nonagriculturist from buying up any occupancy holding and secondly to deter the occupancy ryot from subletting.

The only disadvantage threatened is the liability of the holding to summary sale for arrears. Now is it a disadvantage at all? If it is, all permanent tenures are liable to this disadvantage. An ostensible advantage of a summary sale to the landlord is the saving of a little time. An occupancy right is made saleable under a decree of a court. In case it is converted into a tenure it will be liable to be sold on a simple petition. But if the tenure-holder contests the demand the collector will have to raise issues and decide the question as much as the civil court would have to do in case of a suit (section 198). The ryot has an advantage under the summary procedure. He is not harassed so much under this as by a civil suit. His cost is much less than what he has to incur in the civil court. And lastly, whether he defends or not, the ryot is liable to the landlord for much less cost in case of sale by the collector than in the case of a sale by the civil court. All these are advantages to be gained by the ryot in case of a summary sale. What then is the fear which is likely to deter non-agriculturists from buying occupancy rights or occupancy ryots from subletting?

The proposed conversion of a ryot into a tenure-holder is advantageous to him in more ways than one.

- (1) He is no longer liable to distraint for rent.
- (2) He can be ejected for having used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy.
- (3) He can transfer his tenure without having to take the trouble of observing the preliminaries provided by section 32 and without any apprehension of any claim to preemption by the landlord which enhances the value of his tenure as it ensures security to the purchaser. From the above it will be clearly seen that Sec. 37, instead of gaining the object and acting as a deterrent, will on the contrary encourage subletting and purchases by non-agriculturists which the bill proposes to guard against.

Instead of such imaginary checks if it were simply provided that in cases of subletting by occupancy ryots after March, 1883, the portion so sublet was to revert to the landlord and that the relationship of landlord and tenant between such sublessee and his lessor should cease, except in the cases mentioned in clause a of Sec. 37, it should stop subletting altogether and effectually check non-agriculturists from buying up occupancy rights.

That the restriction provided by Section 37 will be altogether an unwelcome provision is apparent on the face of it. It is provided that the holding is to be deemed to be a tenure when it has been so registered under any Act that may be passed for the purpose. Now, the question will be whose duty or interest it will be to have the tenure registered. The landlord does not gain anything by the conversion, rather loses some of his rights. Hence it will never be his interest to have it registered. If the conversion be deemed disadvantageous by the ryot he would not do it. The sublessee no doubt has a prospective hope of acquiring a right of occupancy. But being under the influence of the occupancy ryot and standing the chance of being ejected and troubled by his lessor, he would not, before the perfection of his title, take the trouble and bear the expense of having his lessor converted into a tenure-holder.

Then again various questions will arise in order to determine whether the ryot has sublet more than half of his holding. An occupancy ryot may have more than one holding. He may be taking lands from time to time and subletting parts of the same. So that the quantity of land which represented more than half the holding in any given year might be under that proportion the next year. In this way cases might arise where it would be a matter of considerable difficulty to determine the period of time at which the line ought to be drawn to find out whether more than half the holding has been sublet.

ANOTHER LITTLE WAR.

TO-DAY there starts from Quetta an expedition of some four thousand British and Indian soldiers to reduce to a state of proper docility no less a potentate than Shah Jehan, "the King of the World." It is true that this title is somewhat more extensive than his dominions. For his kingdom, as he pleasantly and somewhat grandiosely calls it, is only the Zhob Valley, which measures about 100 miles from end to end, and fifteen miles at its widest part. The soil of the valley grows millet excellently well; and goats, being of a thrifty and nimble kind, find sustenance on the enclosing hill-sides, while the millet and the goats together suffice to support the King of the World and his nation. They are descended, so to say, from Saul, the son of Kish, but like the rest of the Afghan hill-tribes who claim the same exalted genealogy, their chronology is very defective, and they put back the date of the Hebrew monarch before the Flood, and like the haughty MacTavish, explain the absence of their ancestors from the Ark by saying that they were well-to-do folk, and kept a house-boat of their own. However this may be, Shah Jehan and his people are prodigiously proud of themselves, and have entered upon a war with Great Britain with a light heart, for not only do they consider themselves in an ordinary way a match for the Anglo-Indian army, but their chief claims to have a special advantage over Sir Oriel Tanner, who commands the expedition against him, which is this, that he is able, from certain magical secrets in his exclusive possession, to turn the contents of the British cartridges into water. So he has assured his followers that they need be under no apprehension. The worst they need fear is a good ducking. For though the volleys of the English soldiers may descend upon them literally in "showers," the consequences of going into action will be nothing more serious than a pelting rain-storm. Such exalted pretensions, however, do not prevent these valesmen from engaging in trade, and it is a peculiar fact that their favourite merchandise should be asa foetida, and it is from the transport of this drug of outrageously evil savour that the King of the World derives his royal revenues. Whether as a last resource—when he finds that his recipe for liquifying the contents of cartridges is defective—Shah Jehan will employ his stores of asa foetida in that species of warfare in which the Chinese are reported to excel remains to be seen. But if he were to barricade the valley with bad smells, and entrench himself behind ramparts of abominable odour, delivering his assault, as it were, upon the noses of the Anglo-Indian contingent, and, relying, as the skunks do, upon his odious personality to evade reprisals, he might perhaps, protract the campaign a little longer than if he were to concentrate his hopes upon the miraculous deliquescence of rifle bullets.

Not that this ludicrous confidence in magical powers suffices of itself to make the Zhob expedition ridiculous. Far from it. Not so long ago we were at war, at the opposite corner of India, with the Nagas, whose tactics were altogether regulated by the flight of red cocks, and whose strategy was dictated by the manner in which medicine men puffed little reeds. They fought by omens, and made their military dispositions according to augury, confiding the fortunes of war to rufous poultry, and hazarding battle upon the fortuitous direction of grass stems. Yet they bothered our regulars so completely that nobody really knows how the campaign came to an end. At any rate, the Nagas were in no way conquered. They surrendered, it is true, and submitted to every circumstance and expression of defeat. But it would be interesting to know what they have actually paid in the way of indemnity or tribute. It could not have been much more substantial than the barrels of dew which the Moon folk paid to the Sun-folk, or the five hundred oyster shells which the Men-in-the-Whale had to annually render to the Salt-Fish-People. Everybody knows that when the Lilliputians defeated the Blefusudians, the latter solemnly promised by an international treaty to abstain for evermore from breaking their eggs at the little end—and this was about as much as the satisfaction which Lord Ripon got out of the Nagas, all their superstitious nonsense notwithstanding. Another illustration of the success of supernatural pretensions over the more orthodox formalities of war may be found, if that were needed, in the recent triumph of the False Prophet of the Soudan. The forces sent against him have proved inadequate to cope with the followers of a man who has the authentic impress of his divine mission stamped upon various parts of his body, and statements to the same effect in Arabic miraculously imprinted upon his finger-nails. So that even though this King of the World, who deals in asa foetida may ridiculously suppose that he can suck the lead and gunpowder out of cartridges, there is no reason for looking upon him as a contemptible opponent. That such is not the view taken by those best qualified to judge—notably Sir Robert Sandeman, who accompanies the expedition—is evident from the strength of the force, 4,000 men with a battery and a half of mountain guns. For this unsavoury monarch is, after all, a Kakar-Pathan, and these men fight like fiends. During the Afghan campaigns they always extorted a certain measure of deference from our commanders, embarrassed at the time with other enemies, and constituted, perhaps, the most serious menace to Sir Frederick Roberts' gallant march upon Candahar. Sir Robert Sandeman, it is well known, has always, and most wisely, set a high value upon the absolute security of what is known as the Thull-Chotiali route, and an expedition in force along this valuable line of Indo-Afghan communication has met, therefore, with his most cordial support. The opportunity selected is an admirable one. For Shah Jehan, the Fifth-Monarch Chief, who emulates in a valley on the Beluchistan frontier the dignities of Persia, Assyria, Macedon, and Rome, has not only made himself obnoxious by his outrages upon peaceful caravans through his dominions, but has managed to embroil himself with all the other six clans, into which the great Kahar confederacy is divided. These, therefore, have promised to supply the expedition with provisions as it proceeds to the chastisement of their erring kinsman, while the ruler of Beluchistan sends with the force an auxiliary contingent of his own long-haired ragged little Brahuis, who must be completely charmed at the prospect of assisting in retribution upon Kakars who have made their lives a burden to them for centuries. On the whole, therefore, matters look rather serious for the King of the World. Sir Oriel Tanner, however, is far too discreet a soldier, and Sir Robert Sandeman too experienced in Beluchi and Afghan ways to underrate their foe, and they are marching therefore upon the Zhob or "the Long" Valley so thoroughly equipped and appointed as not only to secure from the expedition the utmost scientific and commercial advantages, but also to administer, if necessary, such sharp correction to this presumptuous chief as may make him contract his pretensions, and abate his predatory inclinations for the future. The force to be employed comprises one squadron from each of the following three regiments:—The 1st Bombay Lancers, the 10th Bengal Lancers, and the 5th Punjab Cavalry; No. 9 Battery Northern Division of the Royal Artillery, half of No. 1 Mountain Battery, the 4th and 10th Companies of Bengal Sappers, the 2nd Battalion North Staffordshire Regiment, the 2nd and 3rd Bombay Native Infantry, the 1st and 45th Bengal Native Infantry, and the 4th Punjab Infantry, and the whole constitutes, it must be confessed, a very effective and handy little expedition. Moreover a wing of the 1st Battalion North Lancashire Regiment will be stationed at Duki—Thul Chotiali—and there serve as a sort of reserve for the force operating in the Zhob Valley under General Tanner. Duki is some two or three marches from the railway terminus of Sibi, and therefore at the south-eastern entrance of the valley; and it is upon this point, that the expedition leaving Quetta to-day, and marching via the Kawa Valley, will concentrate, it is expected, about the 30th. The following appointments are made to the Staff of the force about to proceed into the Zhob Valley:—Sir O. Tanner, to command; Captain J. N. Walker, Bombay Staff Corps, to be Deputy Assistant Adjutant General; Lieutenant W. St. L. Chace, V.C., Bombay Staff Corps, to be Deputy Assistant Quartermaster General; Brigade Surgeon A. Bradshaw, to be Principal Medical Officer; Captain B. Reilly, Bombay Staff Corps, to be Commissariat and Treasury Officer; Lieutenant H. Parkin, Bombay Staff Corps, to be Assistant to the Executive Commissariat Officer; Captain G. Francis, Bombay Staff Corps, to be Transport Officer; Major W. Tomkins, R.E., to be Commanding Engineer; Captain C. Hoskyns, R.E., to be Field Engineer; Captain M. Martin, R.E., to be Assistant Field Engineer; Lieutenant F. Blyth, Bengal Staff Corps, to be Superintendent of Army Signalling; and Major H. Smyth, R.A., to be Provost Marshal.

For its main object the expedition has the opening up of a very direct route eastward from Quetta to the Indus. The Zhob Valley occurs in the very centre of this, the Thul-Chotiali and as disturbances are always occurring among the lawless tribes of Kakars who inhabit the country and who have hitherto misconducted themselves with an immunity that must have been very gratifying to them, a sharp lesson will probably have a very salutary effect. Not that the Kakar is an apt pupil in matters of public morality. It is inexplicable to this stalwart child of nature that anybody with a gun in his hand should be expected, on such abstract grounds as common decency, to refrain from taking a pot-shot at a travelling stranger who may have halted within range to rest his horse or camel. He sees no sense in such complicated codes of etiquette as would prevent a man, especially if he were anything of a marksman, from discharging his weapon into the thick of a casual caravan. For who knows, but that the result of such a shot might not be the stampeding of the beasts of burden, and a consequent dropping of merchandise, which the sportsman could afterwards go and pick up and take away? Or if it even only killed one man, the odds are the fellow would have something about him worth stealing. So the Kakar hates all your new-fangled notions about letting people go about their business quietly. He has not got any to go about himself, and does not see why anybody else should. The sale of his own asa foetida is quite a different matter. He and his clansmen get money by that. But as for these strangers—Beluchis, Brahuis, Afghans, Persians, and what not—he cannot see why, if they want to go to India, and do not like being "tumbled" from behind rocks, they do not go some other way. Not so long ago they looked upon Quetta, then a very weak outpost, as a sort of "Tom Tiddler's ground" where they could go and romp after their own atrocious fashion. They would prow about the cantonment on the chance of cutting a man's head off, in order to steal his turban, or retire to a convenient distance—so that they could turn and run to the hills if pursued—and take long shots at the bazaar. But Sir Robert, then Major, Sandeman, with his able lieutenant Mr. Bruce, began educating them. Their procedure was at times violent, as the Kakars said. For they would hang two men for having murdered one, or would even worry a whole village simply because some of "the boys" had thoughtlessly chopped up some camels, with a driver or two. And in time the effects became obvious. But nowadays, Quetta grown into an important garrison, is the most serious thing the Kakars have ever contemplated. Few of them have ever been further, probably, than Khelat, and the military importance of Quetta impresses them immensely. So they have withdrawn from public notice in the neighbourhood of the garrison, and, confirming themselves to their own native hills, keep their hands in by raiding upon each other. But as this interferes with the tranquillity of the frontiers of Beluchistan, and makes the direct trade route to India insecure, they are to be visited by an expedition, which, it is to be hoped, will, this cold weather, bring home to them very literally some sense of the duty of the Kakar towards his neighbour, and induce the King of the World to devote all his superfluous energies to the development of the trade of asa foetida, and leave strangers alone.—Daily Telegraph, Sept. 23.

SARAKHS.

NOT, so very much has been written about Sarakhs, the Syriac of the ancients, and a town reputed to owe its origin to Afrasyab of Persia, as to deprive of all interest the following account by M. Lessar, the Russian engineer, which appears in the official Central Asian Correspondence just published. At the least it will make it a matter of some difficulty for future Russian writers on the subject to deny that Sarakhs, the inhabited town on the west side of the Tejend, is a Persian possession. This is what M. Lessar has written:—

"Sarakhs is an extensively fortified place, occupied by one battalion (about 700 men) of Persian infantry. The fields and vegetable gardens are within the walls. The neighbourhood of Sarakhs was always the favourite marauding ground of the Merv Tekes, and the Persians dare not venture beyond the walls of the town. The commandant in his excursions to places five or six versts distant is accompanied by an escort of not less than fifty horsemen. The place is surrounded by high, thick walls and a deep ditch. Of course, the Tekes have never attempted to take Sarakhs; such a feat was never necessary. The soldiers of the garrison inspired them with no fears, as their warriors never ventured to proceed to the assistance of caravans, which were robbed with impunity under the walls of the town. The soldiers have such a dread of the Tekes that, fearing the darkness, they kindle fires during the night on the top of the watch-towers, of which there are twenty-four within the walls. The armament of the fortification consist of six old guns; the artillerymen are ignorant of their duties, they are never exercised or drilled, and since the construction of the fortress the guns have never been discharged. The bed of the Tejend at Sarakhs, or the Sarakhs Daria, is dry during the greater part of the year; its breadth is from one-quarter to three-quarters verst, and in some places even more. Generally speaking, the river contains water only after a heavy fall of rain or after the thawing of snow on the mountains. At such times, the lower course of the Tejend to the northward of Sarakhs is filled with water, as are also the artificial lakes, in which water is collected by the construction of dams for purposes of irrigation. Sarakhs is supplied with water, firstly, from wells inside the walls—water is procured at a depth of 20ft. (water is obtained at the same depth on the other side of the Tejend), and, secondly, by an 'aryk,' or canal, fourteen versts long, conducted out of parts of the Tejend in which water is always to be found. At a distance of sixteen versts from Dowhtabad dams have been constructed for the purpose of making the water flow into the 'aryk'; in this manner it flows in a narrow stream to Kale-No and Sarakhs."

THE DEFENCE OF ADEN.

THE outbreak of hostilities in the far East should quicken the attention of the English Government and also of the Government in India on the subject of the fortification of such points as Aden, Perim, Colombo, Hong Kong, and Trincomalee. We are glad to know that work has been commenced in earnest at Aden. The Royal Commission on the defence of British possessions and commerce abroad has done good by drawing in a practical way the attention of the English military authorities to a long and culpably neglected subject. Take Aden. It may be considered not only as a coaling station, but as an intermediate base for operations in the Eastern Soudan or in Abyssinia, and also as in some sort a place of refuge for cruisers or transports. It is a point, therefore, which should be so armed as to be protected from something far more formidable than a possible attack by a detachment of any enemy's fleet holding, or contesting the Indian Ocean. Colonel Crossman, in 1882, recommended the construction of two forts at the entrance of the harbour, in positions where they would command the approaches and protect the cantonments. His proposal would cost £235,000, and would require that the strength of the artillery branch at Aden should be about 575 men; where it is now only 214. The garrison would have to be strengthened by between three or four hundred men. The proposals of Colonel Crossman have been revised by Sir Andrew Clarke, probably, in virtue of his experience in Australia, the Straits, and India, the first authority of the day on questions of the defence and protection of such ports and such positions as Aden. Sir Andrew Clarke deputed Captain J. F. Lewis, R.E., to visit Aden, and then to go on to Simla with the revised plans for its defence. Captain Lewis fulfilled his mission with very great care, and has, we believe, been since employed to trace the new defences at the points selected. Owing to a modification of Colonel Crossman's plan, which, whilst retaining its main features, would render the works which he recommended more effective, whilst lessening their cost, the immediate outlay on Aden has been reduced to £94,300. For this outlay powerful batteries will be established armed with far-reaching ordnance, quick-firing artillery, and machine guns. Great credit is due to Sir Andrew Clarke for the way in which he has turned his local knowledge and the latest improvements in artillery to account; but the matter has become urgent. The works he designed should be pushed on without an hour's delay, [and should be completed as rapidly as possible. The cost of these works will, we understand, be divided between England and India; but to secure the speedy completion of the Aden defences, it would be as well if the Government of India sent to that place a strong detachment of Madras Sappers and Miners under a strong Engineering staff. Whilst the works are being pushed on, the material required from England could be shipped direct, so as to secure the least possible delay in the completion of Sir Andrew Clarke's plan. There can be no doubt that to make Aden safe is just now a matter of considerable urgency. Then, after Aden, the coaling station at Perim should be made secure against anything but a regular attack. Very great and very grave responsibility will rest with those through whose means delay may arise in completing the defences of these two important stages between England, and her possessions east of the Suez Canal.—Indian Daily News.

A BLOW TO INDIAN INDUSTRIES.

It is peculiar characteristic of Lord Ripon's administration to make endless professions of its anxiety to benefit India, whilst it does all it can to make large practical concessions to English interests. The reduction of the salt duty, though a benefit to India, puts a very large sum yearly into the pockets of the Cheshire salt manufacturers. Then, rather than disappoint Manchester, Lord Ripon makes a farce of free-trade principles, and abolishes all revenue duties on imports, whilst retaining an export duty on the one main staple production of the country. There is a yet more glaring instance of injustice. For years Mr. Herbert Cox, the Auditor of the India Office, refused to pass certain claims preferred against India by the War Office. The strangest result of Lord Ripon's administration is the estrangement between Europeans and natives. So long as these communities were friends, the financial policy of the Government was continually challenged and criticised. Taking advantage of the estrangement, which everyone must regret to admit does now exist, the present Administration has overruled the objections of the Auditor, and has agreed to pay the War Office two millions sterling. One million has been paid this year. What is the effect of this transaction? It has saved Mr. Gladstone from the necessity of asking for a large supplemental credit for his mistakes in Egypt, and has thus kept those mistakes from directly affecting the constituencies. It may be governing India from a party point of view; but it is not justice it is not creditable to the Administration, and, above all, it is not to the fame or good name of England that such things should be done. It is, in fact, far worse than the acceptance by the same Viceroy, with an expression of "gratitude" on behalf of India, £500,000 in full for a debt of £1,400,000 for India's service in support of Imperial interests in Egypt; worse too, than the sacrifice of her interests over the Afghan war account,—a sacrifice made on a deliberate falsification of Mr. Gladstone's promises. Then, we have another instance of Lord Ripon's cry for India and action for English party purposes. His statements about encouraging Indian industries and local enterprise are almost faultless as statements, but it would puzzle his most devoted and thorough going admirer to reconcile his action with these statements. The Home store account shows a steady increase in just those very items, which would mean an encouragement of existing Indian industries. Lord Ripon appears to have constantly before him the party duty of conciliating some English interests to the Cabinet at the expense of some Indian interests. Having saved the Government from going to the country for money for the Egyptian expedition; having conciliated Manchester and Cheshire, and the English manufacturers generally, it is now the aim of His Lordship to go lower and conciliate the large tradesmen by allowing the India Post Office to act as their agent on the lowest possible scale of commission,—a scale with which it is simply hopeless for private traders to compete. The excuse put forward for this course,—a course which, taken in the face of an approaching general election in England, must be regarded as having a bearing on that election—is that the Inland Parcels Post has been successful in India, especially during the past two years. What is a convenience to Indian purchasers and Indian suppliers to an extent which, after all, is yet but small is to be considered a proper convenience to Indian purchasers and London suppliers. There is a hint that English purchasers and Indian suppliers may be accommodated as a make-weight; but the true character of this new subordination of India to English party interests comes out clearly enough when it is recollected how contemptuously their lordships of the Treasury have declined to remove an iniquitous impost from Indian silver goods.

Lord Ripon has himself repeatedly deplored the absence of industries in India, and has pointed out that before the country can be deemed to be making satisfactory material progress, it must be to a larger extent than it is now self-supporting in all those things which go to satisfy its more common requirements. The way he would bring this about is to cripple trading enterprise by transferring Indian custom direct to London tradesmen, under conditions which would secure them against risk to an extent absolutely impossible to those who have to embark their capital in an Indian business. Lord Ripon would give the London tradesman freedom from a heavy rent, from agency charges, from money long outstanding, from bad debts, from changes of freight, from Indian taxes,—and in all these respects would give him an advantage. For fiscal purposes, England is, or ought to be, a foreign country to India; she occupies the place of the most favoured nation. If she be favoured in this matter the favour must be extended to the countries which have joined the Postal Union. No amount of plausibilities, no amount of wishing on the part of the Government of India, will prevent that result from coming about. It must therefore be taken up and considered when the proposal is discussed, which the Government of India has now put forward. But the change will not really be to the convenience of customers in India, for it will throw certain goods out of consumption in this country, and so make India absolutely and hopelessly dependent upon a distant supply. And this consideration leads us to the conclusion that the proposed measure must of necessity close up, or bring about the collapse of, the native tradesman. In fact, just as there was nothing to call for this new subjection of Indian to English interests, so there is nothing to justify it. It is a plain electioneering trick—and it is a mischief to India.—Indian Daily News.

SPRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

A DETECTIVE FORCE FOR INDIA.

A scheme for the organisation of a special detective police, elaborately worked out by Colonel Ewart of the Punjab Police has been submitted by the Punjab Government to the Government of India, and we have no doubt that the scheme, subject of course to modifications in unimportant details, will on the whole be favourably considered by the Supreme Government. It is notorious that serious and undetected cases of murder, plunder, and robbery, are largely increasing in extent; although it may be difficult to prove a general increase of crime by reliable statistics. Colonel Ewart complains that criminals largely and successfully employ the railways, post-office, and telegraph to facilitate their operations to evade justice, to secure their plunder and to transport their weapons of murder and spoliation into the heart of an unarmed population. He also complains that justice fails in its endeavours to convict; and professional murderers and robbers of whose guilt there can be no doubt are often discharged on points of faulty technical procedure and are again let loose on society. He thinks that the present police organisation is not sufficient to cope with the existing difficulties because of the constant reductions that have been made in the strength and pay of the police, of the want of continuity and co-operation between police forces of different districts, provinces and Native States, of the want of a special and efficient detective agency, and of the need of proper machinery for conducting important prosecutions. In order to bring the police organisation to a proper state of efficiency he proposes a larger expenditure on the police to be met partly by increased contributions from the railway and the postal departments, partly by saving in the employment of a cheaper agency than regular police where feasible, partly by the employment of telephones in large cities and partly by the free use of railways, telegraphs and post offices for police purposes.

under frank of competent authority. No increased money contribution would be necessary to be levied on telegraphs, railways and post offices if the free use of these departments were allowed to the police service. The object would be considerably attained by a proper re-adjustment in existing police charges. Colonel Ewart also suggests the formation of a special detective force well paid, strictly controlled, appointed, and promoted by merit, with an organisation extending over the whole of the railway system in India. The efficiency of such a service would be very materially enhanced by largely employing intelligent and educated native agency because, as has been rightly observed, the native has an unfailing instinct of the detective, especially where natives themselves are concerned. The Colonel's further suggestions are the appointment of special machinery for the prosecution of important cases, the appointment of a general conference of Indian police officers, and the deputation of competent officers to Europe and America to study improved police and detective systems in the countries visited. It would not matter in the least if the last of these suggestions were not carried into practice, supposing all the others were, and satisfactorily. It would be essential to the success of the scheme that it should be imperial, and not provincial. The estimated cost of the working of the scheme is not of a prohibitive character. It is set down at the comparatively modest sum of six lakhs, which ought to be forthcoming from the Imperial Treasury, considering the stake all over the Indian continent. We must admit we are somewhat struck by the novelty of the theory that the railway, post, and telegraph departments ought to contribute to the police charges, because forsooth, the Radmashes use them freely for their nefarious purposes. We, for one, do not very much care whether one particular department is called upon to pay or another, so long as the money actually wanted is forthcoming, as we hope it will. The inefficiency of the police is a fruitful source of complaint and the present disgraceful state of affairs should no longer be tolerated. We earnestly hope that the Government of India will give the scheme of Colonel Ewart all the attention that it deserves.—Hindoo Patriot.

THE ENGLISHMAN ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

We believe that the time is now approaching when we may look forward to the publication of the results of the various conferences which have met to discuss the Rent Bill. Pending the deliberation of those conferences this journal has paused in its criticism of the Bill. It was felt to be unfair to hamper with criticism, or with the slightest appearance of captious comment, a Government which, if it did not go to the length of appointing a roving Commission, did the next best thing to it by assembling conferences of the district officers of each division. It is not unreasonable to hope that a very full and interesting series of reports may again throw more light on this vexed question. To avoid any ambiguity, it is to be hoped, at the same time, that the opinions of officers on the main principles of the Bill will be definitely and clearly set forth. In the Bengal letter certain points have, to a great extent, been assumed as settled. It is desirable that a clear expression of opinion as to these points should be obtained from each Commissioner and district officer. This journal has all along opposed the Bill on the following fundamental points;—(1) The interference with the right of private contract (2) The violation of the compact entered into at the time of the Permanent Settlement. (3) The disastrous results to the ryot of free sale. (4) The encouragement given to subletting by the Bill. (5) The miserably inadequate procedure provided by the Bill for the recovery of rents justly due.

It is possible that officers who have not only once or twice given their opinions against the Bill on these points may have contented themselves with a criticism of the various sections of the present draft Bill. The opponents of the Rent Bill have a right to ask that the opinions of Commissioners and District Officers be taken on these points, and they are content to await the result, bearing in mind the celebrated doctrine that opinions are not to be counted but weighed. Silence on these points does not necessarily imply consent, and, in the report of a series of conferences which are supposed to have taken the place of a roving Commission, the omission of the opinions of members of those conferences on the main principles of the Bill would be like the omission of the Prince from the play of "Hamlet." The Englishman has all along advocated the appointment of a roving commission to inquire into the circumstances of each district, and to submit a report thereon upon which legislation would be based. We have the authority of a contemporary for saying that the Lieutenant Governor was himself in favour of the appointment of such a commission. It has unhappily not been appointed, and the public have been given the half loaf of the conferences, which we admit is better than no bread. It was understood, however, that the entire question was to be submitted to the consideration of these conferences, and that they were not to meet merely to discuss the sections of a draft Bill, assuming that the principles upon which the Bill was drafted were unreservedly accepted by those who met in discussion upon its provisions. It is one thing to consider that under certain circumstances certain clauses are the best that could be devised. It is another to assert that these circumstances do not exist, and that there is no necessity for their creation. For this reason we hope that the public will be put in possession of the opinions of the various officers who have lately met in consultation, not only as to the provisions of the Draft Act, but also as to the main principles underlying the Rent Bill. The opponents of the Bill do not fear the result.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

Major W. A. Browne, officiating commandant of the Calcutta Volunteers, in returning on Tuesday night from the inspection of the Eastern Bengal Railway Volunteers' new headquarters, was thrown from his dog-cart and broke his left leg. The Statesman complains of the "unworthy treatment" Mr. Joubert received at the hands of the Bengal Government in regard to the Calcutta Exhibition. The exhibition closed, as every one knows, in March last, and, according to the Calcutta paper, it is the statement of simple fact that in July—four months afterwards—the Public Works Department avowed its total inability to give Mr. Joubert any account of the expenditure which it professed to have made upon the buildings and other works connected with the exhibition.

It has been definitely settled that the Hon. Mr. H. J. Reynolds will shortly proceed on deputation to Simla in connection with the Bengal Tenancy Bill. Mr. F. E. Peacock will fill the temporary vacancy in the Bengal Board of Revenue, and Mr. Ware Edgar will officiate as judicial secretary.

Major Conway-Gordon has arrived at Calcutta and taken over the post of Manager of the Eastern system of State Railways, relieving Colonel de Bourbel.

Major W. A. Browne, the officiating Commandant of the Presidency Volunteers, while returning in a dog-cart on the 2nd instant, with Captain Thanner, Adjutant, from the inspection of the Eastern Bengal Railway Volunteers' new headquarters, was thrown when turning sharply out of Arrailar-road, and broke his left leg. Captain Thanner was also thrown, but having a hold of the reins escaped with a few bruises and abrasions.

News received from Captain Maitland, near Nushki, gives a most favourable account of the route which the Indian portion of the Afghan Delimitation Commission is about to take.

It is now decided that the site shall be removed from Garden Reach to Budge Budge, fourteen miles down the river.

The Bengal Government have, the Indian Daily News states, supported the proposal to add three judges to the bench of the Calcutta High Court. The matter rests with the Government of India, who will have to submit the proposal for the sanction of the home authorities. The matter is urgent, if the public interests are not to be sacrificed, and the court converted into a grievance of the first water. The arrears continue to accumulate, and, struggle as they may, it is simply hopeless for the judges to attempt to overtake their files. The current business increases those files faster than the judges can dispose of cases.

THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.—The opinions of various Bengal officers and others on the Revised Bengal Tenancy Bill are being forwarded to the Government of India as received. A large number have come to hand, and the opinion of the Bengal Government is shortly expected. The local opinions are said mostly to accept it as a foregone conclusion that it is the intention of Government to effect some legislation on the relations of landlord and tenant in Bengal, or to assume that legislation of this character is required and proceed to detailed criticism of the various questions dealt with in the Bill.

TENT-PEGGING TOURNAMENT.—An excellent movement has just been set on foot for the purpose of encouraging regimental tent-pegging. It is proposed to establish an annual tent-pegging tournament, open to all native cavalry regiments of the Bengal Presidency, to be held simultaneously with the Cavalry Polo Tournament at Umballa. The project is only in a tentative state as yet, but it is proposed to ask the Tournament Committee to superintend the tent-pegging also; to invite regiments to subscribe Rs. 50 each towards the purchase of a cup, to make the money prize of the winning team Rs. 240; and to limit the teams to eight competitors, two officers, British or native; to form part of each team. If all the Bengal Cavalry regiments subscribe the required sum, it will be possible to procure a cup of the value of Rs. 1,000.

UNFORTUNATE DEATH OF A NATIVE PEON.—The Calcutta correspondent of a contemporary, writing on the 31st ultimo, says:—A rumour, I am sorry to say only too well authenticated, has reached me of the unfortunate death of a native peon who was accidentally shot by one of a party of sportsmen in the Purneah district. The deceased at the time he was killed was seated at the back of howdah, and the bullet which caused his death came from the occupant of another howdah. With the meagre information at present at hand, it is difficult to account for the manner in which the accident could have occurred. The party at the time were out deer shooting, and the only reasonable surmise is that a stag must have broken back through the line and in the sudden endeavour to swing round for the purpose of a shot, the finger must have accidentally touched the trigger before the rifle had been raised to the shoulder. The untoward circumstance, as may be supposed, has brought the expedition to a sudden close. There will be, I presume, an inquest, and if necessary a judicial inquiry into the matter. Meanwhile, it is difficult not to sympathise with the author of the trouble. The peon unluckily is beyond the reach of help or comfort; his family, if he has any, will doubtless be provided for in some way by the unlucky sportsman, who, I believe, is one of the leading officials of the district.

On the 6th August the river rose 20' 6" feet above the lock-sill, and the Bank Canal running opposite to the Gontami branch of the Godavari in the south of the Ramachandra puram Taluk breached at Mallavaram and caused much damage; that part of the village of Pollanka which is between the two embankments was under water, but the villagers succeeded in escaping with most of their property. The river embankment at Mallavaram breached, and water poured into the canal; this caused the bank on the other side of the canal to breach, and some more breaches had to be made by the Delta Superintendent to relieve the canal.—Madras Times.

ANONYMOUS PETITIONS.—During the sitting of the Insolvent Court recently, presided over by Mr. Justice Kearnan, His Lordship observed that he had just received a letter by post regarding some insolvent's case, but to what case it referred to he did not know. The letter contained the following words: "May God bless Her Majesty Queen Victoria and may Mr. Justice Kearnan live for ever. (Laughter.) He is prayed for in every mosque." His Lordship added:—I notice that whenever there are Mahomedan cases before me I get such letters. The writers "take nothing by their motion." (Laughter.)—Times.

A RETROSPECT OF LORD RIPON'S ADMINISTRATION.

We heartily commend, to thoughtful men of all parties in India, and especially to our Native fellow-subjects, an exceedingly shrewd and able "unofficial retrospect" of Lord Ripon's administration, that appears in the October number of the National Review, from the pen of Mr. James Durie. We do not remember to have seen, until now, any writings on Indian topics by this gentleman; and he apparently writes mainly from a Bombay standpoint. His paper, however, shows a very close and accurate acquaintance with the nuances of Indian politics, as well as a warm and well-directed desire for the judicious advancement of purely Indian interests. We earnestly hope that the article will attract the early attention of our Indian contemporaries. A year ago the unfortunate Ilbert Bill controversy overshadowed every other topic of Indian interest; and in many parts of India, every other discussion was coloured, and often embittered, by the views of the disputants in regard to that particular question. But surely, a sufficient time has now elapsed since the close of that peculiarly unhappy quarrel, to allow of current political questions being considered, at least by men of intelligence and common sense, without this most misleading colouring. And for this purpose, we think Mr. Durie's paper is singularly opportune and valuable.

A good point, clearly brought out by Mr. Durie, is, that the natural allies of the Native leaders and pioneers in the great work of Indian political and social advancement, are the Anglo-Indians—and especially the non-official English in India. Much of the trouble and failure now admitted to have attended Lord Ripon's Viceroyalty has been due to the initial blunder of misapprehending this fundamental principle. Mr. Durie well observes:—

ceeding to power was to eradicate the 'baneful influence' of Anglo-Indians from the affairs of the East. The voice of experience and prudence was peremptorily silenced; traditions were set aside; remonstrances were ignored, and even suppressed; and a policy was devised on a basis of false analogy and sentimental aspiration. These proceedings commenced with the despatch of Lord Ripon, culminated with the appointment of a Parliamentary draftsman to the great post of Law Minister, and may be said to have been formally terminated at the commencement of the present year, when Lord Kimberley returned, and subsequently rejected, a recommendation of 'the Governor-General in Council,' which represented only the views of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert, that is to say, of the two gentlemen least qualified to offer an opinion on the subject under consideration. When the counsels of the responsible administrators of the Indian Empire were contumeliously rejected, it was not to be expected that the representations of non-official communities would be deemed worthy of attention. Indeed, during one of the numerous discussions that arose out of the Ilbert Bill controversy, it was bluntly intimated in the House of Commons that Her Majesty's Government did not consider the opinions of non-official Englishmen in India to be those which it was advisable to adopt. Doubtless the non-official community has since consoled itself for this discouraging announcement by the justifiable reflection that, in seeking counsel elsewhere, Ministers have not been so happy in their selection as they had led themselves to expect."

Mr. Durie well shows that this cardinal error, which has done so much during Lord Ripon's time to estrange our Indian fellow-subjects from their English brethren, is not of Indian growth at all; it has been imported into India, with other Radical doctrinaire "notions," from home. The origin, he observes, of some of the worst blunders of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert is:—

"The unfortunate error of supposing that in the public questions arising in India the line of political division always coincides with that of race. It is to this unhappy misconception that is due, in great measure, the periodic revival, from home, of sectarian and racial passions. As a matter of fact, however, the political regeneration of India is not operating on racial lines at all. In political and administrative matters, there is considerable friction between the official and non-official Englishman. The native is submissive to despotism; the Englishman resents it, and encourages his native colleague to do the same. A distinguished native politician once said to me: 'There would be no fear for local self-government if English colonies were scattered over India. Without the non-official English community we would never have had self-government, even in Presidency towns. You alone can stand up to Governments and bully officials and Governors, if necessary. Natives cannot be got to oppose the Government, nor even an official; but if non-official Europeans will take the lead, we will follow them up and give them our support.' Probably no man has stronger reasons to appreciate rightly our fellow-subjects in the East than the non-official European. The merchant, the manufacturer, or the lawyer, who, with no other aids than his own knowledge and intelligence, is engaged in daily competition with native rivals, will speedily learn to regard his competitors with tolerable respect. In Western India, at least, business has succeeded in pretty nearly obliterating racial distinction. European and native co-operate in forming a loyal opposition at the council board; merchant and dealer bargain daily on the cotton-green, and the best of the transaction is not by any means always to the 'ruling race; counsel argue on cordial terms of equality; and men of enterprise and capital lay their heads and their purses together, without a thought of each other's complexion. On some such neutral platform as this commerce had established an equality which, if not ideal, was sufficient for practical purposes. Suddenly the progressive movement was arrested, and Society seemed to have fallen backwards for a quarter of a century. The results of twenty-five years' conciliatory influences seemed to disappear in an instant; language was heard that had not been heard since the dark days of the Mutiny, and which, it is to be hoped, may never be heard again."

How true all this is, can only fully be appreciated by those—and there are many, both English and Indian, who have found the honest and patriotic efforts of a life-time, towards warmer and friendlier relations between the two equally loyal sections of Her Majesty's subjects in India, stultified and rendered nugatory by a single outburst of Radical folly.

Mr. Durie shows that Lord Ripon, if he has been unfortunate in what he has done, is still more to be blamed for what he has left undone. The Councils, Mr.

Durie points out, "are the greatest legislative shams in existence;" and Lord Ripon, instead of attempting to inspire them with a spirit of independence, has sedulously packed them with the most notorious sycophants in India—leaving poor Kristodas Pal to break his patriotic heart, and the Maharajah of Darbhanga to protest in vain against a system that placed the public opinion of Native and non-official India in a permanent minority of two in the Imperial Legislature! Mr. Durie well says, on this point—"The basis of the Councils might be enlarged, their deliberative functions extended, the non-official members (native and European) increased in number and elected by some sort of popular constituencies—municipalities, chambers of commerce, universities, and the like. There is no reason why Constitutional Government, somewhat after the system recently accorded to Jamaica, should not be applied to India. This question will, doubtless, attract the attention of Lord Dufferin."

But the most striking part of Mr. Durie's article is that wherein he shows that Lord Ripon, in the insensate pursuit of Radical fads, and in the mischievous desire to set class against class, has deliberately chosen to neglect all those useful reforms which were passed on his notice by the most enlightened section of Native Society. Mr. Durie says:—"Public opinion in India was ripe for legislation on this subject, on behalf of the widow, and of the rejected girl-wife? Mr. Ilbert was asked on his arrival to take these matters in hand; but he exercised his discretion." Now, it is a remarkable fact that, at the very moment when these words of Mr. Durie came under our notice, we had lying on our table an interesting and powerful paper by Mr. Behramji M. Malabari, the energetic and enlightened editor of the Indian Spectator, on "Infant Marriage and Enforced Widowhood in India," in which a very strong case indeed is made out for, at least some forward movement in these matters. Mr. Malabari's Notes, which are doubtless in the hands of most of our contemporaries, are modestly "submitted for consideration;" and our readers will readily understand that, in expressing our warm sympathy with their spirit and motive, and our general agreement with their author, we do not pledge ourselves to the support of proposals which obviously demand anxious weighing of consequences and most careful deliberation. But however that may be, the publication of these Notes, the proceedings of the National Indian Association, and the columns of the Native Press, afford ample proof of Mr. Durie's assertion that the Radical fanatics, who have been setting all India by the ears, have neglected the weightier matters of humanity and social progress. And this has been apparently for no better reason than a desire to see the hereditary zemindars of Bengal ousted from a position they have long held with advantage to the country and benefit to their tenants, in favour of a class of land-grabbers and money-lenders, whose only recommendation is that they can be taxed by Messrs. Ilbert and Co., without any fear of the Permanent Settlement, and to the same ruinous extent that has rendered necessary "Deccan Ryots Relief Acts" and "Jhansi Ryots Relief Acts," in other parts of India.

The Government of India have sanctioned the appointment of a paid Adjutant to the Oudh Volunteer Rifle Corps, and Captain H. O. Woodhouse, Wing Officer, 9th Bengal Infantry, has been nominated to the post by the Viceroy.

HOME NEWS.

PRISON POPULATION IN INDIA.—It appears that the total population of the Central Provinces of India for 1883 was in all 15,849, of whom 11,645 were convicts, 3,574 under trial, and 630 civil prisoners. Of these, 3,532 remained in prison at the close of the year. Compared with the previous year, there was a decrease of convicts and prisoners under trial to the extent of 908 in the former and 48 in the latter category, while civil prisoners increased by thirteen. The daily average of convicts was in 1882, 4,008, and in 1883, 3,741. With regard to releases on account of sickness, the Chief Commissioner found that the power had been misused, and has informed the Inspector-General of Prisons and all magistrates of districts that this authority was not intended to be used as a means of clearing the gaols of moribund prisoners, and so diminishing the death-rate; and that it must only be exercised when the magistrate of the district is thoroughly satisfied, on the report of the medical officer, that detention in gaol will lead to the death of the prisoner. The Chief Commissioner was also not satisfied with the manner in which gaol discipline had been maintained. He observes that the decline in gaol punishments shows that in some gaols at least discipline must have been very lax. The average cost per head of the daily average of 3,879 prisoners was Rs. 53, an expenditure which has increased under every head, except that of clothing.

OTTOMAN RAILWAY FROM SMYRNA TO AIDIN.—The report of the directors of this company for the half-year ended June 30, states that the receipts amounted to £100,188 as compared with £62,736 in the corresponding period of 1883; and the expenditure to £57,229 as compared with £35,844, the net profit being £42,959, as compared with £26,891. The net expenditure on capital account in connection with the Tireh branch, including interest on the debentures and discount on the Kuyujuk debentures purchased for the sinking fund, amounted during the half-year to £8,073. In consequence of the increased length of the Company's line, and the increased freight requiring to be carried, it became necessary, in the opinion of the manager, to add to the tractive power, and in view of this necessity, six new locomotives were ordered. These engines have been completed and all six have been sent out to Smyrna. The cost of three of these is included in the accounts, leaving the cost of the other three to be dealt with in the accounts of the current half-year. The council are they say unable to announce the termination of the negotiations for the new concession as approved by the shareholders at the meeting in September, 1883; but in the late advices from Mr. Purser, he informs them that his confidence in the satisfactory result of this matter remains unabated, and his opinion is that the settlement of the question cannot be much longer delayed.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders for Rs. 15,00,000 in bills on India and telegraphic transfers were received on Sept. 24, at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—In bills on Calcutta, Rs. 9,15,000; Bombay, Rs. 2,10,000; and Madras, Rs. 4,00,000, the average rate in all cases being 18.75d. Tenders at 18.75d. will receive in full. Between April 1 and September 23, the amount of remittances disposed of had reached Rs. 7,09,21,467, realising £5,820,937.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.—The directors of this company recommend an interim dividend for the half-year ended June 30, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum free of tax.

DELHI AND LONDON BANK.—The report of the directors of this company for the half-year ended June 30, shows an available balance of £12,106. A dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of tax, is recommended, £3,000 is to be credited to the doubtful debt account, and £666 carried forward.

CHARTERED MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LONDON, AND CHINA.—The directors of this company have declared a dividend for the half-year ended June 30 at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum; £40,000 has been added to the reserve fund, and £15,695 has been carried forward.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—The condition of the market for bar silver is unaltered, the tendency remaining firm. The price has again been advanced a little, there being a demand at 50½d. per ounce. Mexican dollars are nominally quoted at 50½d. Indian exchange rates are stronger at 18.75-32d., but the China quotations are unaltered, and Rupee Paper shows no movement.

TUESDAY.—The Spanish demand for bar silver has been so far satisfied that the brokers were unable to get the price which was paid yesterday. A small amount of business was, however, done at 50 13-16d. per ounce. No Mexican dollars are here, the arrival of a consignment by the Para being awaited. Meanwhile the price of the coins is nominally quoted at 50½d. per ounce. The Calcutta rate for telegraphic transfers is firmer at 18 7/8d., but the China exchange rates remain at 3s. 9½d. in Hongkong, and 5s. 1½d. in Shanghai. Rupee Paper has shown some slight improvement in value to-day, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. closing at 83¼ 83½, and the Four per Cents. at 80¼ 80½.

WEDNESDAY.—There is no change in the price of bar silver but a small amount has again been sold for India, Mexican dollars being still only nominally quoted at the last business price. No alteration can be reported in any of the Eastern rates of exchange. Now that the Doorga Poojah holidays have begun, business in Calcutta will be in a state of suspension for several days, while Bombay will also be affected to some extent. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper closed at 83½ to 83½d, and the Four per Cents. at 80¼ 80½.

THURSDAY.—Quotations in the Silver Market are unaltered, the amount of business entered into in refined bars being of no importance whatever. This was due, however, to the fact that all supplies of any moment had been recently taken off the market, there being still a demand for India at 50 13-16d. per ounce. It is still impossible to give any other than a nominal price for Mexican dollars, but fresh supplies of these, as well as of bars will be here in a few days. Eastern exchange advices show no alteration; and Rupee Paper is unchanged at 83½ 83½ and 80¼ 80½ for the Four-and-a-Half and Four per Cents. respectively.

FRIDAY.—The bar silver as well as the Mexican dollars brought by the Para have been sold for India and China at 50 13-16d. and 50½d. per ounce respectively. These prices show no change, and the market for both kinds of the metal was steady at the close. Indian exchange rates show no alteration, but the China quotations are rather easier at 3s. 9d. in Hong-kong and 5s. 1½d. in Shanghai. Rupee Paper has been firmer at 83½ 83½ for the Four-and-a-Half, and 80¼ 80½ for the Four per Cents.

SATURDAY.—Dealings in the Silver Market were very limited. Prices of bars and Mexican dollars are unaltered, and there is no variation in any of the Eastern Exchange rates or rupee paper.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

MONDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The China tea market privately has not recovered from the depression which hung over it last week. Only about 2,000 packages green and scented teas were offered at auction and sold without reserve at about last week's quotations. The Indian sales were unusually small, viz., 7,565 packages, which passed slowly, at prices often in favour of buyers.

HOPS.—Messrs. Woollaton and Son report that consumers very generally continue to display great caution, and are wonderfully unanimous in their determination, to limit their purchases as far as possible, not being satisfied that present prices are sufficiently low, and consequently values again rule in their favour, where sales are effected, though the majority of growers still refuse to offer their hops at current rates. Very few really high-class goldings are as yet on offer. Continental and American markets are reported easier. Worcester Fair on Friday last was well attended, and a good quantity of the local growth changed hands, most samples being of fine colour and fair quality.

RICE is easier. Since Friday a cargo of Necranzie sold at 7s. 1½d. per cwt. for Antwerp.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day's China auctions comprised 12,644 packages, which were sold without reserve, viz.:—3,360 packages N. S. black leaf, 4,385 red leaf, 3,692 scented, 797 boxes new makes, and 410 half chests old season's Congous. The sales passed heavily, and often prices were in favour of buyers. N. S. black leaf, first and second crops, show no change at 10½d. to 11½d. per lb. for first crop fair quality; good common to fair second crop, at 8d. to 10d. per lb. Red leaf generally, but Kaisows, Panyous, and Soo-moos specially, at from 8d. to 10½d. show distinctly lower rates—viz., good common to medium, 8d. to 10½d.; siftings, 4½d. to 5½d. per lb.; common leafy red leaf, 6½d. to 6½d. per lb.; good common Souchong, 9½d. to 9½d. per lb. New makes in boxes, 9d. to 11½d. per lb. Foochow S. O. Pekoes mark a further decline in values at from 9½d. for common broken leaf kinds, and 10½d. to 1s. 1½d. for good common to medium. The Indian sales were small compared with those of yesterday—viz., 3,511 packages. Prices were generally rather firmer. Business by private contract continues to be on the most restricted scale. 12,645 packages were printed for to-day without reserve, but a few breaks were disposed of previous to the auction. Prices generally show no change on those ruling last week. Old season's red leaf sold at 5½d. to 6d. per lb., and old season's black leaf at 6½d. per lb. New red leaf brought from 9½d. to 11d. per lb.; and black leaf from 7½d. to 11½d. per lb. Souchongs, 9½d. to 9½d., and new make Congous, 9½d. to 11½d. Notwithstanding the moderate extent of the public sales the private market remains in a most stagnant state.

SUGAR.—The market is very flat. Since Friday the sales of West India amount to only 172 casks, chiefly crystallised Demerara; 200 tons Madras Jagghery sold in Liverpool at 8s. The small supplies at auction to-day were nearly all bought without bids. Beet dull, at the lowest quotations of last week. In Clyde goods a quiet market, with prices in favour of buyers.

COFFEE.—There have not been any public sales to-day, and the market is quiet by private contract.

COCOA is without change and the supplies very light. By auction 401 bags Grenada sold at 62s. to 75s. for common to fine; 72 bags Ceylon, chiefly at 70s. to 74s. per cwt. for fair to good. A few lots Jamaica and Colombian bought in or withdrawn.

RICE dull and again easier. The resale of a cargo Rangoon, 1,420 tons, is reported, at 7s. 7½d. per cwt. London.

SPICES.—Further business has been done in Singapore white pepper at 10½d. per lb. Market also firm for black.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

SUGAR.—The business in West India to-day has been confined to 1,200 bags crystallised St. Kitt's at 14s. 6d. per cwt., and the market is very flat. In the Clyde market a fair trade passing at yesterday's decline. Beet is inactive, and prices without change.

TEA.—The China auctions to-day comprised 6,350 packages, viz., 1,928 packages black leafs, 2,738 red leafs, 536 green, and 1,101 scented teas. The black leafs consisted entirely of second crops. Shantams sold at 7d. per lb.; good common to medium blacks, at 8d. to 9½d. per lb.; red leaf siftings, 5d. to 5½d. per lb.; common to medium red leafs, 6½d. to 9d. per lb. Green teas generally, but specially the lower grades, passed flatly at easier rates. Scenteds unchanged. The absence of business by private contract is still very marked. At the Indian sales 3,395 packages were offered, which still passed without alteration in prices.

COFFEE.—At the public sales the supply consisted chiefly of foreign, viz., 2,630 bags, and a few parcels only sold at about the former prices for Guatemala and other Central American, the former bringing 46s. to 50s. for good to fine ordinary, and New Grenada 51s. to 54s. 700 bags palish colour washed Rio sold at 50s. to 54s.; 548 bags Coorg were bought in, excepting a lot or two bold color, which sold at 84s. per cwt.

SPICES.—At the public sales few changes transpired. Small Penang nutmegs went fully 1d. dearer, at 1s. 11d. to 2s. 3d., medium sold at 2s. 8d., and bold at 3s. 6d.; 55 packages mostly finding buyers, and 47 packages West India, 1s. 7d. to 2s. 7d.; two cases Penang mace sold, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d.; 26 packages Singapore bought in, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. 1,856 bags black and 1,317 bags white pepper chiefly bought in, a few lots fair white selling at 10½d. Cochin ginger supported the advance of the previous week, and the greater part of 534 packages found buyers—small hard to fair rough, 49s. 6d. to 52s.; small mixed washed, 54s., part cut; small old import, 55s. 6d. to 58s.; medium, 65s. to 66s. 6d.; a few lots bold scraped, 90s. to 112s. 209 packages Jamaica sold—low common to medium, 47s. to 62s.; fine, 48 to 48 11 per cwt. Zanzibar cloves firm, and 799 bags part sold at 5 7-16d. to 5½d. 1,799 bags Pimento went chiefly at 2½d. to 2½d.; a lot or two, 2½d. per lb.; but some was bought in. 3,000 boxes Cassia lignea sold at the advanced rates of 29s. to 29s. 6d., a lot or two 30s., and 500 boxes were bought in at 31s. per cwt.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson states that the markets being fully supplied have not experienced any improvement, and so are entirely devoid of animation that prices in several cases again show weakness. The extraordinary low value of sugar fails to restore confidence on the part of the trade, the transactions being of limited extent, with an entire absence of speculative feeling. Some further slight decline has been accepted upon both cane and beet, the latter selling to-day at 10s. 7½d. to 10s. 9d. per cwt. for German, October shipment, l.o.b. Coffee remains dull and unsettled. At the public sales, consisting chiefly of foreign descriptions, a fair proportion of the quantity brought forward sold, Costa Rica barely supporting previous quotations. Plantation Ceylon and East India have sold slowly, except the fine and bold qualities. Reports from the Continent and New York do not advise any improvement in the markets. Good ordinary Java in Holland quoted 27¼ cents. Nothing of interest has transpired in cocoa. A few small parcels Ceylon have found buyers at the late reduction. Tea continues extremely flat, and at the public sales common to fair grades of Congou sold as low as before the China news was received in August last. The quantity of Indian by auction has been very large, with an easier tendency towards the close, especially for fine Pekoes. Cassia lignea has recovered 3s. to 3s. 6d. per cwt. from the depressed rates accepted last month. There is less inquiry for black and white pepper. The public sales of cinnamon on Monday next will comprise about 1,400 bales. Small Penang nutmegs have advanced 1d. per lb. Ceylon cinchona has met a steady demand, fine qualities being rather dearer.

TEA.—From Messrs. Hawes and Hertz's Fortnightly China Report:—"Public sales have comprised the large total of about 67,000 packages. Black leafs.—Lower sorts have, especially during the latter half of the fortnight, been very difficult of sale. The improvement quoted for the fine medium range is well maintained, with fair inquiry. Increased arrivals of second crops have not been well received, and realised 7½d. to 8½d. for good common to fair, 9d. to 10d. per lb. for small leaf medium Ningchow, and 10½d. to 11d. per lb. for medium to good medium Kintucks. The few parcels of fine medium meet with very little inquiry. Lowest closing quotation for common black leaf tea, 6½d. per lb. Red leafs.—Lowest grades have suffered a further decline, and are now on about the same level as before the rise. Good common are again somewhat easier. Chingwos, Panyons, and Seumooos have been pressed for sale chiefly at auction, and show a decline of nearly 1d. per lb. for the fortnight. Finer grades have been in very small request. In Souchongs only a limited business has been passing from 11d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. Lowest closing quotation for common red leaf tea 6½d. per lb. The demand for Russia has moved almost exclusively in prices from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 9d. per lb. Latterly good common grades are meeting with some demand from this quarter. Flowery Pekoes.—About 150 chests have arrived, but all bids have been refused, as the strong statistical position of the teas induces holders to wait for improved prices. Scented teas have been mostly disposed of in public sale. Canton Pekoes are easier at 10½d. for good common to 1s. 1d. for medium. Capers have entirely lost the improvement noted in our last, common selling from 7½d. to 9d. per lb., good common to medium 9½d. to 10½d. per lb. The finer grades also show weakness. Foochow Pekoes have been freely offered at auction and privately, are difficult of sale, and mark lower rates at 11d. for good common to 1s. 1½d. for medium. Finer qualities are scarce and prices firm. New Makes.—A few sales in low common at 7½d., 9d. to 10½d. per lb. for good common to medium. Good medium 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. Green Teas.—Ping Sueys are unchanged in value. Moyunes have been more plentiful and are generally easier, more particularly for the lower grades. The private contract market shows no improvement, business being on an extremely limited scale. Further sales by auction 'without reserve' took place to-day, and about 8,800 packages passed very heavily and in many cases at a distinct decline on the rates ruling early this week."

SUGAR.—Continued depression, and there has not been any business done in West India to-day, but a few sales are reported in Penang, including native at 7s. for low quality. Beet has sold a shade under 10s. 7½d. to 10s. 9d. October delivery. In the Clyde market pieces have met a steady sale at barely yesterday's prices. M. Bertrand Siz has issued the following, dated Paris the 24th inst.:—"Since our circular of the 17th inst. nothing has occurred to alter the weak position. Temperature remained favourable to the new crop. This kept buyers back, and led to offers which could only be placed at fresh important concessions; prompt as well as forward deliveries have consequently undergone a fresh reduction in value."

COFFEE.—The chief portion of 3,086 bags Costa Rica sold, prices being often 1s. lower. Good to fine ordinary, 47s to 49s. 6d.; middling, 54s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; good, 62. 6d. 557 bags New Grenada, 50s. to 52s. 377 cases 889 bags East India, chiefly common, in small lots, went at very low prices, from 52s. 6d. to 72s. A lot or two fine bold Caorg Mercara brought 93s. to 95s., medium being bought in at 62s. to 63s. per cwt.

RICE.—There has been more steadiness in the market.

SPICES.—White pepper rather firmer.

FRIDAY EVENING.

SUGAR.—The sales of West India for the week have been 30 casks 1,940 barrels, prices showing little change. To-day the few parcels of sugar by auction were chiefly withdrawn; a few lots crystallised Demerara sold at 19s. 366 baskets native Penang bought in at 7s. to 8s., and 1,907 bags crystallised at 16s. to 17s. Privately, several parcels native sold during the last two days at 6s. 9d. to 7s. 3d. per cwt. Beet has sold at 10s. 6d. to 10s. 9d. forward delivery, or 3d. to 6d., lower than Friday last.

TEA.—No sales have been held to-day, and, with the exception of a few small export contracts, very little business has been effected by private contract. Yesterday's public sales of China teas represented 8,825 packages. The sale dragged through slowly, prices in many instances being lower, but specially evident in the second crop black leafs, which sold at from 7d. to 9½d. per lb., making a decline of about 1½d. per lb. for the week. The Indian auctions comprised 6,915 Indians, 771 Ceylons, and 631 J. vis, making a heavy total of 8,217 packages. The Indian teas sold irregularly, but, considering the quantity offered, without much change in values. Ceylon were generally of good quality, and, like the Javas, sold well, meeting with brisk competition. From Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's fortnightly Indian Circular:—"During the fortnight under review upwards of 41,000 packages have been offered at public sale, nearly all being new tea. The auctions opened at the beginning of last week with a quiet tone, at rather low rates for the inferior qualities of each class, while the best teas were well competed for, and, as a rule maintained their value. This week, with increased pressure of supplies, quotations for nearly all kinds have ruled in favour of buyers, and a decline of 1½d. to 1d. from the rates obtainable a fortnight ago has been established upon all but special qualities between 9d. and 1s. 4d. per lb. For good teas between 1s. 4d. and 1s. 10d. prices are somewhat irregular, but not generally lower, except for Pekoes; while the finest over 2s. per lb., a decline of 1d. to 3d. must be quoted, the fall being most marked upon fine Pekers. The latest imports are mostly satisfactory from Assam, although some already show a decided falling away from the quality of the first invoices. Cachar and Sylhet growths vary, some being superior and others very disappointing. The Darjeeling teas, unfortunately, with hardly an exception, confirm the reports as to the bad effects of blight and drought, and their want of flavour has caused prices to fall to a lower level than has been known for Darjeeling tea for some years past. Trade has once more become quiet in the country, and the China market shows increased depression for all fine Congous, which, of course, affects Indian, more especially in the lower qualities. So far this month deliveries are satisfactory."

COFFEE at the public sales to-day showed irregularity. Common and palish kinds are in many cases 1s. to 2s. lower for the week. Fine and bold coffee continue to realise high prices. 258 casks 105 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon sold—low middling at 54s. 6d. to 57s. 6d.; middling grayish to coloury at 62s. 6d. to 66s. 6d.; good middling at 69s. 6d.; good to fine bold at 80s. to 99s. 6d. 853 bags East India sold—medium to bold at 65s. to 96s. 162 packages Mocha bought in, long and short berry, at 92s. 2,198 bags foreign about half sold—ordinary to fine ordinary Guatemala at 45s. 6d. to 50s.; low middling at 52s. to 54s.; Central American at 45s. 6d. to 53s.; Honduras at 48s. 6d. to 50s.; and Mexican at 46s. 6d. to 49s. per cwt.

RICE—No further sales have been made to-day.

PEPPER—The market is firmer.

Her Majesty's troopship Himalaya, Captain Henry St. Leger Bury Palliser, arrived in Bombay harbour on Saturday from Devonport, which port she left on the 28th June, Kingstown 30th, Madeira 5th July, St. Vincent 11th, Table Bay 30th, Simons Bay 1st August, and Duaban 5th. During the voyage she experienced fine weather with light and favourable winds; and there were no casualties. She brought Surgeon Major H. S. K. Muir, three men, one woman, and two children of the A. H. Corps. Owing to the late arrival of the Himalaya, the embarkation of the 2nd Battalion East Surrey Regiment is postponed to the 10th instant. The regiment will arrive in Bombay on the 9th and 10th inst., instead of the 7th and 8th inst.

Surgeon-Major Anthony, A. M. D., has died from cholera at Fateburgh, in the North-West Provinces. Dr. Sloggett from Meerut has arrived and taken medical charge of the soldiers and sepoy stationed there. Dr. Jameson, Superintendent of Jails, has charge of the European civil residents, while Assistant Surgeon Ram Resick Pal attends to the other civil duties.

An Umballa correspondent telegraphs that the last of the 11th Bengal Lancers told off for escort duty with the Afghan Boundary Commission left at 5 p.m. on Wednesday under Colonel Prinsep and Lieutenant Beatson. The Artillery band played them out. The horses were in excellent condition; the men were eager and in good spirits. Many people were present at the station, including several ladies.

Careful inquiry into several complaints recently made regarding the blank ammunition manufactured under the Morris system has resulted in showing that the defects are due either to want of sufficient care in the manufacture, or to the fact of the machine being worn. Instructions will, therefore, be issued by the Director General of Ordnance that Civil Chief Master Armourers, at their annual inspections, shall pay particular attention to the state of the implements at each station; but His Excellency the Commander in Chief desires that officers commanding corps, in whose charge these implements are, will do everything in their power to ensure the system of supervision and examination of work as laid down in Army Regulations, India, Vol. III, Equipment, Appendix, XXXII., being effectively carried out.

A telegram from Umballa, dated the 28th ult., says:—The Committee of which Major Kirby, of the Cheshire Regiment, is president, and Captain Irving, of the Army Pay Department, is member, has been ordered to assemble at Jullunder to investigate and report on the claim of the Pay Department against the 2nd Devonshire Regiment.

The Bangalore Spectator says:—The public must be prepared to hear more of the transfer of the Military Accounts Department from Madras to Bangalore. The project is not abandoned. We have good grounds for believing that the authorities are about to secure, if they have not already secured, a large building in the civil and military station of Bangalore for the purpose.

Officers compulsorily retired from the Royal Artillery will be entitled to a refund of their subscriptions to the regimental band fund, for such unexpired portion of the year in which they retire as may exceed three months and upwards.

"MAN PROPOSES."

BY

MRS. A. PHILLIPS, Author of "Penultima."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mrs. Phillips's new story is simple enough in its subject and construction to be deservedly called idyllic, and her power as a writer is shown by the manner in which the interest and action are steadily subordinated to the selected theme. The incidents are natural and affecting. Hagar's is a fine character, and its metal is tried and refined by a series of tests which cannot fail to secure for her the sympathy of all who make her acquaintance."—Athenaeum.

"There are many good passages in this novel, and excellent touches of character. It shows that the author is capable of work beyond the average."—Academy.
 "This novel, in which there is a great deal to admire, and very little to find fault with, is always well, and sometimes beautifully, written, and full of thought and feeling. The book is extremely taking, and there is a poetical train in it that is as strange to modern fiction as it is taking."—Speculator.
 "A very readable story."—Standard.

LONDON: W. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, Waterloo place

Three vols., 8vo., with portrait, £3 4s.

HISTORY OF CHINA.

BY

DEMETRIUS CHARLES BOULGER

Author of "England and Russia in Central Asia," &c.
 (Third and concluding Volume, containing Events of the Present Century, is now ready.)

"Mr. Boulger has accomplished a difficult and laborious task with very considerable success."—The Times.
 "Now that the book is completed, and we are able to compare it with other English works of the same kind, it is only fair to say that as a book combining comprehensiveness of view with considerable detail of narrative it is the best of its kind in our language. The student in public libraries will hardly be able to find a trustworthy work containing so much information placed so ready to his hand as does this one."—The Standard.

"Whoever desires to follow in great detail the history of the four decades of European progress in China, subsequent to the signing of the Treaty of Nanking in 1842, including the Taiping rebellion in all its phases, and Gordon's campaign, which in effect decided its fate, cannot do better than read this third volume."—Spectator.

"All this is brought out plainly enough in Mr. Boulger's latest volume, in which is traced with minute accuracy the whole course of our intercourse with China during the present century. Mr. Boulger has now finished his task, and has produced beyond comparison the best history of China we possess. The narrow limits within which he has been compelled to confine a theme so vast and multitudinous have obliged him to omit much which every historian would delight to dilate upon. But as a compendium of the political history of the Empire it is excellent. The proportions are well kept, accuracy is as far as possible attained, and the style, with the exception of some few instances of hasty writing, is lucid and flowing."—Saturday Review.

"The events of the eighty-five years embraced in the third volume are of general interest to the world and to Englishmen in particular. As there narrated they form an instructive chapter on Oriental affairs, and to all those who may wish to become better acquainted with Chinese politics and the position of Englishmen in the Far East we cordially recommend Mr. Boulger's work."—Athenaeum.

"Mr. Boulger's 'History of China' is a monument of patient industry, the like of which does not often come within the purview of the modern reader. Though we may be disposed to traverse some of his statements of fact, and some of his conclusions, we do so with the respect which an able and conscientious writer always commands."—Observer.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; and that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FORTNIGHTLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is especially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five COCKLE'S PILLS, will never fade from my memory; and a friend of mine, who passed through the same district many months afterwards, informed me that my fame as a 'medicine man' had not died out, but that the marvellous cure was even then a theme of conversation in the bazaar."

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

So commanding and unique was the political position in Bengal held by our deeply-lamented friend, the Hon. Kristodas Pal, that at the time of his premature decease, the loss to the empire seemed absolutely irreparable. Not that there is any lack of able and trusted leaders of the nobles and gentlemen of Bengal; on the contrary, much of Kristodas's great influence was due to the absolute confidence in his abilities and loyalty felt and avowed by the great territorial chiefs, and by the other leaders of Native Society—by such representative men of mark as the Maharajah of Darbhanga, the Maharajah Sir Jotindromohan Tagore, and Dr. Rajendralala Mitra. But the difficulty was, to find one who, whilst enjoying the full confidence of the national leaders as Kristodas did, could also give the leisure, the literary and political ability, and the energy requisite for the purpose of bringing all this influence to a focus. And this difficulty has been happily solved by the selection of the Hon. Peary Mohan Mookerjee, the able and accomplished son of "the Lord Shaftesbury of Bengal," Babu Joykissen Mookerjee, the well-known and venerated Zemindar of Utterpara. He will, we understand, take Kristodas's place both in the British Indian Association and in the Viceroy's Legislative Council; and all our readers who are acquainted with Bengal society will agree with us that no better selection could possibly have been made.

THE telegram in to-day's Times from its Calcutta correspondence gives a brief summary of one of the most important State Papers ever published in India—the Despatch of the Government of Bengal to the Government of India, enclosing and commenting on the local Reports on the Bengal Tenancy Bill. The full text of these Reports will be looked for in this country, as in India, with the keenest interest. Meanwhile, Mr. Thompson's despatch, even in the brief form of a telegraphic summary, throws a flood of light on the subject. We think it a fortunate thing for the Empire, and for the credit of the British name in India, that Lord Dufferin will have the opportunity of studying these important documents in full, in consultation with the responsible authorities at the India Office, before proceeding to take over charge of his high office.

It has all along been admitted in these columns that the general support apparently accorded by Mr. Rivers Thompson to the principles of the Bill, has given to this mischievous measure its chief element of strength. We have not concealed our opinion that this support was more apparent than real, and that much of its apparent force was due to accidental circumstances, such as the regretted illness of Mr. Thompson, and the consequent temporary prominence of his eccentric and Radical secretary, Mr. Macdonnell.

We reserve for next week any detailed criticism on the summary of the despatch that is telegraphed by the Times correspondent. But two points we may note as obvious on the most cursory perusal. The first is, that the principle of this Bill receives no support from the majority of the officers consulted. The second is, that the modifications in the Bill proposed by Mr. Thompson, and stated by him to be adjudged necessary by "the undercurrent of agreement" that is perceptible throughout the local reports, go very far, indeed, towards establishing the full contention of those who have opposed the Bill in England. For instance, the most objectionable clause of the Bill—that introducing Free Sale—ought to be entirely abrogated, according to the Bengal Government, for Behar, and to be limited by a most important and far-reaching restriction in Bengal Proper.

In our leading columns to-day, we endeavour to make clear to our Indian readers Mr. Gladstone's method of dealing with the adjustment of the Afghan and Egyptian war-charges between the Home and Indian Governments. For such audacious "cooking" of accounts, as it seems to us, it would be difficult to find a parallel in English history. It may perhaps remind some of our readers, of the very remarkable figures that were telegraphed home from Simla, purporting to be an analysis of the official opinions on the Ilbert Bill; but it ought to be remembered that, in that case, the figures "got altered" in course of transmission, somewhere in the Mesopotamian desert.

Is the logical faculty absolutely denied to Radicals, quâ Radicals, by a merciful Providence? This is what the London correspondent of the Western Morning News—one of the cleverest journalists in England, when not frenzied by party-spirit—says of Sir Richard Garth's recent Minute on the Bengal Tenancy Bill:—

Sir Richard Garth, Chief Justice of Bengal, is not a reformer. On the contrary he is a Tory of a stubborn type. But he is in the way to help on important changes in the administrative system in India. A constitutional plan under which the measures of a Government are submitted to the public criticism of State officials not holding political positions, but who at the same time are violent partisans, can only be mischievous. What the Viceroy needs is an official who will be responsible for the legal correctness and practicability of measures submitted to his Council. Sir Richard Garth, the Chief Justice of the Presidency, should exercise this function. He is supposed, one presumes, to occupy a position similar to that assigned in law to a Pretorian prefect. But instead of being the custodian of legality he shows himself, in such outbursts of vexation and dissatisfaction as that he has vented with regard to the Rent Bill, the veriest partisan. In all the Presidencies the position of the judges is a difficulty, and the difficulty arises, where it has arisen, not from their strictness as lawyers but from the strength of their personal prejudices and their immoderate partisanship. Where governing is so delicate an art as in India it ought not to be in the power of a Sir Richard Garth to discredit the Executive.

Now is it not evident, on the face of it, and apart from all possible differences of opinion as to the merits of the Tenancy Bill, that the Chief Justice of Bengal, being asked his opinion on that Bill by Government—being (as the correspondent himself says) also in a way "the custodian of legality" in India—looking on the Bill, just as Lord Bramwell and every other conceivable "custodian of legality" looks on it, as what Lord Tennyson and Mr. Gladstone would call "red ruin and the breaking up of laws"—is it not evident that the Chief Justice could not, by any possibility, do otherwise than express his "vexation and dissatisfaction?" But the correspondent's last sentence lets the Radical cat out of the bag. "It ought not to be in the power of a Sir Richard Garth to discredit the Executive." Just so. It is the old Cromwellian spirit—"Take away that bauble." Whether it be a House of Commons that "discredits the executive" of a Cromwell, or a House of Lords that withstands the dictatorship of a Gladstone, or a Chief Justice of Bengal that protests against the Viceregal despotism (in a sham Council) of a Lord Ripon—the remedy for "the chosen of the people" is always the same—"Take away that bauble!"

We have received by to-day's mail advance-copies of the "Theosophist" correspondence, which has appeared in the Indian Statesman (and in part in some other papers), and has created so much sensation throughout India. The correspondence is certainly of a most astonishing character, and highly entertaining withal. We hope to be able to publish it in extenso next week; meanwhile, we give one letter as a specimen, with the comments of the writer in the Statesman:—

In the next letter, we find her at Ootacamund, mingling with the highest society, and on a footing of intimacy with Major-General Morgan, the President of the local branch of the Theosophical Society. Here is how she provides for his theosophical nourishment and edification,—her specific for what she herself calls 'turning the General's head.'

"Vendredi.

"Ma Chère Madame Coulomb et Marquis.

"Voici le moment de nous montrer—ne nous cachons pas. Le Général part pour affaires à Madras et y sera Lundi et y passera deux jours. Il est Président de la Société ici et veut voir le shrine. C'est probable qu'il fera une question quelconque et peut être se bornera-t-il à regarder. Mais il est sur qu'il s'attend à un phénomène, car il me l'a dit. Dans le premier cas suppliez K. H. que vous voyez tous les jours ou Cristofolo de soutenir l'honneur de la famille. Dites lui donc qu'une fleur suffirait, et que si le pot de chambre cassait sous le poids de la curiosité il serait bon de le remplacer en ce moment. Damn les autres. Celui là vaut son pesant d'or. Per l'amour de Dio ou de qui vous voudrez, nemanquez pas cette occasion car elle ne se repètera plus. Je ne suis pas là, et c'est cela qui est beau. Je me fie à vous et je vous supplie de ne pas me décevoir car tous mes projets et mon avenir avec vous tous—(car je vais avoir une maison ici pour passer les six mois de l'année et elle sera à moi à la Société et vous ne suffirez plus de la chaleur comme vous le faites, si j'y réussis).

Voici le moment de faire quelque chose. Tournez lui la tête au Général et il fera tout pour vous, surtout si vous êtes avec lui au moment du Christophe. Je vous envoie un en cas—e vi saluto.

Le Colonel vient ici du 20 au 25. Je reviendrai vers le milieu du Septembre.

A vous de cœur,

LUNA MELANCONICA.

J'ai diné chez le Gouverneur et son premier aide-de-camp. Je dîne ce soir chez les Carmichaels. Elle est folle pour moi. Que le ciel m'aide!

Friday.

"MY DEAR MADAME COULOMB AND MARQUIS.—This is the moment for us to come out—do not let us hide ourselves. The General is leaving this for Madras on business. He will be there on Monday, and will remain there two days. He is President of the Society here and wishes to see the shrine. It is probable that he will put some question, or perhaps he may be contented with looking. But it is certain that he expects a phenomenon, for he told me so. In the first case, beg K. H., whom you see every day, or Cristofolo, to keep up the honour of the family. Tell him that a flower will be sufficient, and that if the pot breaks under its load of curiosity, it would be well to replace it at once. Damn the others. This one is worth his weight in gold. For the love of God, or of anyone you please, do not miss this opportunity, for we shall never have another. I am not there, and that is the beauty of the thing. I rely on you, and beg you not to disappoint me, for all my projects and my future depend on you—for I am going to have a house here where I can spend six months of the year, and it shall be mine, for the Society, and you shall no longer suffer from the heat as you do now, if I succeed).

"This is the proper time to do something. Turn the General's head and he will do anything for you, especially if you are with him at the same time as Christophe. I send you a possible requisite [lit. an 'in case of' (a letter from the Mahatma in case the General should want a reply)]—and wish you good-bye.

"The Colonel will be here from the 20th to 25th. I shall return about the middle of September.

"Heartily yours,

"LUNA MELANCONICA.

"I have dined with the Governor and his principal aide-de-camp. This evening I dine with the Carmichaels. She is mad after me. Heaven help me."

Some of this language is not very intelligible, and certainly not very nice. But the fairest interpretation of it yields the following conclusions:—(1) That "phenomena" are dangerous and that the General is to get as few of these as will suffice. A flower from Koot Hoomi may be enough. (2) That if his curiosity should grow by being fed, he must not be balked. An "occult" letter is apparently sent by post to be ready for this contingency. It is quite possible that Major-General Morgan travelled down the Ootv ghat in the mail-tonga that carried the letter destined by Koot Hoomi for his edification. (3) That the "others" so cavalierly dismissed are probably the native supporters of the movement, the value of whose testimony to phenomenal occurrences is but lightly esteemed.

SOME months ago it was decided by the Government of India to obtain as correct statistical information as possible regarding the different castes and occupations of the natives in the different provinces of India. The inquiry was, we believe, first suggested by the Government of Bengal, and Mr. H. H. Risley, who had assisted Dr. Hunter most efficiently in his compilation of the Gazetteer of Bengal, was first appointed to the duty. For some reason or other with which we are not acquainted, Mr. Risley was relieved of this duty, and returned to his substantive appointment, in April last, of Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal. It appears, however, now that the special inquiry so far as regards Bengal was to be resumed, and Mr. Risley has once more been selected as the officer who is to conduct the inquiry. Considering his experience in such matters, it is doubtful whether a better selection could be made amongst the ranks of the junior civilians.

CHANDA SINGH, the blind student of St. Stephen's College, Delhi, is a prodigy. He cannot read or write, but possesses such a strong memory as to be able to repeat all his text-books by rote, be it English, Persian, or Urdu, and can work out sums in arithmetic with remarkable rapidity. The uncommon intensity of his mental powers is evidenced in his ability to multiply any number of figures by another equally large. At the last University Entrance Examination he was subjected to a viva voce examination by order of the Director of Public Instruction, Punjab, and he stood twenty-seventh in the list of successful candidates. On the recommendation of the Director of Public Instruction and the Syndicate, the judges of the local Chief Court have allowed him to appear at its Law Examination. History affords us with a few such wonderful instances in ancient times. It would be pleasant to see a blind advocate strenuously advocating the causes of his clients before the Bench of the Punjab.

THE following Simla telegram appears in the columns of a local contemporary, regarding the attendance of Civil Surgeons on gazetted officers:—

In supercession of the present arrangements regarding the attendance of Civil Surgeons on Uncovenanted Officers by which all such officers who are gazetted are entitled to the medical attendance of Civil Surgeons, it has been decided that Uncovenanted Officers, whether gazetted or not, who draw Rs. 250 monthly pay, will in future be entitled to such attendance. The only exceptions to this ruling will be probationers, appointed under statutory Civil Service rules, and Assistant Superintendents of Police, who, though drawing less than Rs. 250, will still be entitled to the personal attendance of Civil Surgeons.

Why should the junior Deputy Babu and the probationary Munsiff be excluded?

The Statesman says:—

The friends of Dhuleep Singh in this country dissuade him strongly from his purpose of returning to India. They are well acquainted with the somewhat wild views the prince cherishes, and they act wisely, we think, in counselling him not to leave England. He is bent, it seems, upon returning to the Sikh faith, and holds that there is nothing incredible or untenable by an educated man in the grunth, which he declares to be quite consistent with his profession of a sort of Deism. He is, moreover, under some dream that the reign of the Queen-Empress, who has always been most gracious to him, is threatened by some danger in India not very remote, in which his services may be of great moment to Her Majesty, but that he can render them only by resuming his character as a Sikh prince and the true leader of the Sikh nation. The prince, seldom, we believe, goes to Court, affirming that he cannot afford it nor to live at Elvedon, so as to receive guests and return the attentions paid to him. He attended the funeral of the Duke of Albany, we are told, when the Queen sent for him to her private apartments after the ceremony, and had a long conversation with him. He seems to be in a morbid state of mind, and has lately had printed a large volume containing the evidence recently collected in this country as to his estates and property, with his personal recollections of the Punjab and of his early education. If the Government were wise, we think it would relieve him from the anxieties which we fancy his straitened circumstances bring upon him, and which tend, no doubt, to make him morbid.

THE Englishman has the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market corrected up to Saturday, Sept. 13:—

We have had an exceptionally quiet week in our freight market considering the time of the year, but there are various reasons for this state of affairs. The first is, that the wheat trade has entirely collapsed; secondly, seeds are scarce and dear; and thirdly, the jute crop is not only late, but is now reported not likely to be anything near as large as was generally supposed. Steam freights have given way half-a-crown all round during the week, and the market is flat. In sailing ships hardly any business has been done. Our unfixed tonnage has increased again, and stands at 54,000 tons. Owners generally are holding firm, and hope for better rates later in the season.

The Times of India gives the following obituary till the departure of the mail, Sept. 16:—

Dr. John Stewart Torrie, Surgeon-General to the Government of Goa; Lieutenant Edmonds H. Mullock, 1st Battalion Royal Irish Fusiliers.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

The reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 3rd instant are as follows:—

Rain has fallen throughout the Madras Presidency, but except, in Malabar it has been insufficient in all districts. In Mysore, agricultural prospects have been somewhat improved by the rain, which fell during the week under report, but in the eastern half of the province the outlook is still very unpromising. Heavy rain still continues to fall in Coorg. There was good rain in all districts of the Bombay Presidency, and agricultural prospects have been much improved. In parts of Poona, Nasik, Sholapore, and Dharwar more rain is still required for the crops. Rain has fallen throughout the Berars and Hyderabad, and standing crops are in good condition. General rain is reported throughout the Central India and Rajputana States, and agricultural prospects are generally very favourable. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh good rain has again fallen in all districts; in some places the fall has been excessive, and a break would be beneficial. There was a fair amount of rain in most districts of the Punjab, and crop prospects are good. Rainy weather continues to prevail in the Central Provinces, where a break is necessary to permit of weeding and ploughing. In the Assam districts there was good rain during the week, and the prospects of standing crops and of tea are good. In Bengal agricultural prospects are fair, but the rainfall is still insufficient, and more is wanted for transplanting of rice. The last report, dated 4th inst., of the Meteorological Department, states that rain is reported from Assam, Bengal (except Behar and Orissa), the Central Provinces, Central India and Rajputana, and the west coast; that elsewhere there is little or none reported; and that in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh it has almost ceased. Harvest operations continue in a few districts of the Madras Presidency. In the Bombay Presidency the kharif crops have been injured in parts of the Upper Sind Frontier by excessive rain; sowing for the rabi has commenced in places. The kharif prospects in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Punjab are good. Weeding and transplanting are in progress in the Central Provinces. In Bengal the transplanting of aman is backward, owing to insufficient rain; and in many districts the young plants are reported to be suffering. Harvesting of bhadoi and of aus and jute are in hand. Cholera is reported from most provinces, and fever is very prevalent in places in Bengal. Prices are generally stationary with local fluctuations, or exhibit a slight tendency to fall.

THE INDIAN AND COLONIAL EXHIBITION IN 1886.

(From the Pioneer Mail.)

A formal invitation has now been received by the Government of India from the Secretary of State inviting the co-operation of the Indian Government in the Colonial Exhibition which is to be held in London in 1886. A Royal Commission has been appointed for the general conduct of affairs under the instructions of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who is the originator and patron of the project. The South Kensington authorities are understood to take the lead in the Commission, and Sir Cunliffe Owen and Mr. Purdon Clarke will be the prominent officials in connection with the Indian Courts. The India Office has placed at their disposal the services of Mr. Royle, who successfully managed the Indian Court at Amsterdam. Invitations will, it is understood, be communicated at an early date to Local Governments whose co-operation and support will be invited. The experience which was gained at Calcutta will doubtless be now found of considerable advantage, and the Bengal Government may be congratulated on having given officials in all parts of India the first real opportunity they have had of becoming personally familiar with the arrangements necessary for a successful exhibition of Indian products and manufactures. The question had been raised, as we lately anticipated, whether the collections in India should be made with or without official aid, but the counsel naturally prevailed that nothing can be done without the District Officer, upon whose hardworked shoulders much of the work will inevitably fall. It is understood, however, that a collection of products has been organised and classified in the Revenue and Agricultural Department under Dr. Watt, the officer in charge of the Economic Court, the completion of which in the Central Office will relieve local officers of some of the troublesome work which Exhibitions have hitherto entailed, while it may be hoped that the measures advocated by the Art Conference at Calcutta in January last may have done something towards making the collection of art-wares and manufactures a less difficult matter.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

THE following is from the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, dated Oct. 3:—

"The Ameer has recovered, and has resumed his public duties. He has issued a proclamation to his subjects announcing the appointment of the Boundary Commission, and urging the people to cordially assist the English Commissioners in every way. The proclamation was read at a general parade of the troops and in the principal mosques of Cabul.

"The troops sent from Candahar to Herat have quarrelled with the Cabul regiments previously sent.

"Orders which had been issued directing the collection of the Herat revenue in money have been cancelled, and the system of payment in kind has been restored, being convenient both to the Government and to the people, and measures are being taken to stock Herat with supplies."

A total failure of the crops has occurred in one police division of the Beerbhoom district, which has an area of 100 square miles. Extensive relief measures have been started, and some expenditure will be necessary. Timely rain has done much good in all other parts of the province.

The following is the usual weekly telegram of the Times correspondent, dated, Calcutta, October 5:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal's last despatch to the Supreme Government on the Tenancy Bill, begins by stating that a large mass of reports has been received from district officers and others, many of which display a knowledge of the country and an impartial sympathy with all classes worthy of the highest praise. Mr. Thompson then expresses his pleasure in feeling that there are but few points in these reports on which he finds himself not in accord with the views of the majority. The new evidence, he says, is interesting as impartially reflecting every shade of opinion in the controversy, and remarkable for the proof which it affords of the necessity, not only for legislation on the tenancy question, but also for legislation in the general direction of the Bill. Even its opponents admit the necessity for an improvement of the existing law. There is, of course, much difference of opinion on matters of detail; but through all these variances the Lieutenant-Governor perceives an under-current of agreement as to what ought to be done, though the way to do it is not always clear.

"It may be noted that the language of the despatch is here very guarded. It might be inferred on a hurried reading that a majority of the officers had expressed approval of the principle of the measure. A more careful examination, however, shows that their opinions on its principle were not asked for, and that the agreement noted is rather as to the manner in which, granted the principle, the details should be worked out.

"After this general preface, the Lieutenant-Governor proceeds to a discussion of some of the reports, and expresses his own views at great length. The despatch concludes with the following summing-up of Mr. Thompson's proposals on what he describes as undoubtedly the most important subject which has, since the days of the Permanent Settlement, occupied the attention of the Indian Government:—

"These proposals are—first, to modify the presumption as to fixity of rent by requiring proof of such fixity for twenty years before the passing of the Bill; second, to abandon the proposal to convert into a tenure-holder a ryot who sub-lets more than half his holding; third, to recognise the right of the free transferability of occupancy holdings in Bengal proper, but to leave matters in Behar to be regulated by custom, as at present; fourth, to omit the pre-emption clauses, and to substitute a system of compulsory registration, with notice of transfer to the landlord; fifth, to give the landlord in Bengal proper a veto on transfer if the purchaser be not agricultural; sixth, to recognise the principle that, in the absence of reason to the contrary, the courts shall regard a rise in the prices of staple food and grain as entitling the landlord to an enhancement of rent; seventh, to fix the percentage of enhanced rent at a definite proportion of the percentage by which the enhanced prices exceed former prices; eighth, to assign to enhancements on the ground of landlord's improvements a minimum limit of double the former rent; ninth, to abandon the provision for enhancement on the ground of a prevailing rate, experience having shown that no such rate exists; tenth, to abandon fluvial action, as a ground of enhancement, and to recognise freedom of contract regarding new alluvium; eleventh, to withdraw the arbitrary limitation on enhancements of rent on account of a rise in prices, and to allow contracts for enhancement out of court up to a maximum limit of 12½ per cent., and for a maximum period of fifteen years; twelfth, to withdraw the restrictions on freedom of contract respecting the initial rent of land lapsed to the landlord; thirteenth, to reintroduce the principle that the rent of the ryot shall not exceed one-fifth of the value of the gross produce, calculated in staple food and grain; fourteenth, to give the non-occupancy ryot a right to claim compensation for disturbance, up to one-fourth of the fair rental for each year of his tenancy; fifteenth, to withdraw the restrictions on freedom of contract with under-ryots, subject only to the provision that the under-ryots' rent shall not exceed in value 31½ per cent. of the gross produce; sixteenth, to strengthen the customary rights of ryots in Bastu land, by providing for the accrual of rights of occupancy in such lands; seventeenth, to make the action for preparing tables of rates dependent on the application of either party, and not on the discretion of the Government; eighteenth, to retain the present law of distraint, with sharper penalties for its abuse; nineteenth, to omit the section regarding Uthandi and Halhasili lands, and to regard both classes as subject to the ordinary incidents of ryotti land.

"With these amendments the measure will," Mr. Thompson considers, 'restore peace where unrest now prevails, and insure the growth of the prosperity and contentment of all classes of the agricultural community in these provinces.'

"There is no longer any doubt that scarcity, perhaps amounting to actual famine, is inevitable in the Nulhatti Thannah of the Beerbhoom district, over an area of about one hundred square miles. Extensive relief works have already been commenced, and more will doubtless be required, involving some expenditure. But the restricted area of the distress will render it easy to cope with, and it may be hoped that all loss of life will be avoided. The news from all other districts of this province, and from the threatened districts in other parts of India, is that the timely rain has done much good, and that there is a prospect of saving a fair portion of the crops.

"What was probably the most serious railway accident that ever happened in India took place early on Thursday morning, near Arranghatta station, on the Eastern Bengal State Railway. The mail train from Goalundo to Calcutta came into collision with a goods train going in the opposite direction. The engines and most of the carriages and trucks were totally wrecked. The European driver of the goods train and a native fireman were killed, and also a European child and several native passengers in the mail train. The driver of the mail received injuries from which he is not expected to recover. So far as is yet known, 14 persons were killed, and about 20 injured, some very severely. It is possible, but not probable, that more dead bodies will be found among the débris of the carriages. The cause of the accident is not clear. It occurred when the goods train was approaching a siding into which it was to be shunted, to allow the mail to pass; but it is not known how both trains received "line clear" at the last stations in which they had respectively stopped. The guard of the mail train, who escaped unhurt, states that when near Arranghatta the distant signals were all right, but the home signals were against him. He immediately applied the brakes, but too late to stop the train. This would seem to imply that blame rests on the station officials."

The following is from the Nushki correspondent of the Times, dated September 29:—

"The Afghan Frontier Commissioners have arrived here with a troop of cavalry. Several confidential interviews have taken place with Colonel Ridgeway. The result is satisfactory.

"The first échelon, consisting of 600 men, 230 horses, and 300 camels starts to-morrow under Major Durand. The second échelon, consisting of 530 men, 288 horses, and 300 camels, is under the command of Major Bax; and the third échelon, composed of 600 camels with the heavy baggage, with 50 infantry mounted on camels, is under Captain Yate.

"Colonel Ridgeway and the Afghan Commissioners start to-morrow, arriving at the Helmund with the cavalry on the 13th prox.

"The supplies in the desert are ample, and the water will be sufficient for the drinking requirements of men and horses, with the help of 6,000 jehans carried on camels, and provided no opposition occurs.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 1.—Later intelligence received here regarding the recent outbreak in the gaol at Mandalay states that, in order to quell the riot, the soldiers set fire to the building and fired upon the prisoners as they attempted to escape, killing four hundred and thirty of their number.—Reuter.

The following has been received from the Standard correspondent at Teheran, dated Oct. 2nd:—

"The English division of the Afghan Frontier Commission, consisting of Sir Peter Lumsden, Major Barrow, Mr. Stevens, Assistant Commissioner, Mr. Herbert, and the Nawab Hassan Ali Khan, interpreter, will leave to-morrow for Meshed. They will be escorted by forty Irregular Cavalry and accompanied by a Mehmandar.

"The Commissioners have met with great hospitality at the hands of the Shah during their stay in Teheran."

CALCUTTA, Oct. 2.—A railway collision has occurred on the Eastern Bengal Railway at Arranghatta, by which sixty persons were killed or injured.—Reuter.

THE MASS MEETING AGAINST THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

A grand and influential meeting of the landholders of the district of Shahabad took place under a spacious shamiana at the town house of his Highness the Maharaja of Doomraon, at 4 p.m. on the 31st August, to protest against the Bengal Tenancy Bill. About a thousand people were present at the meeting, and one of its special features was the presence of a strong body of ryots, who heard, with rapt attention, the proceedings of the meeting, which were, for the most part, carried on in the vernacular language of the district. There were present his Highness the Maharaja of Doomraon, Rai Jai Prokash Lal Bahadur Dewan, the Hon. Hurbans Sahai, Babus Busawan Sinha, Ragnunundon Proshad Sinha, Gouri Proshad Sinha, zemindars of Chowgoun, Babus Doond Bahadur Sinha, Sitaram Sinha, Ram Proshad Sinha, zemindars of Banged, Babus Takur Proshad Sinha, Kunjoehari Sinha, zemindars of Ghazlapur, Babu Saligram Sinha, Lalgovind Sinha, and Ramdhari Sinha of Mednipur, Babu Goddanu Sinha, zemindar of Rupsagar, Babu Moon Sinha, Babu Raman Sinha, Gya Proshad Sinha, Anibika, Proshad Sinha, of Pookli, Babus Baijnath Sahai, Bhogwan Das, Sikirchand, Shuraj Kunar, Shunkardial Sinha, Munshi Lal Narain, Bhoom Sinha, Mallunka Sinha, Rundhri Proshad, Tilak Sinha, Amir Sinha, Hitarain Sinha, Babus Bilas Behari, Kishondevaran Futeh Bahadur, Pukli Sinha, Sheo Parshan Sinha, Ramnarain Pal, Babu Jadunath Sahai, Bughuban Sahai, Shed Sarun Lal, Kailus Chundra. Mookerjee, Kautji Chutoor Bhug Sahai, Shyamalanand, Qazi Mohamad Zolun Alam, Sunt Proshad, Murshi Amiral, agent of the Maharajah of Benares, Babu Jugac Kishor Lal, of Durbhangah.

Babu Shunkar Dyal Sinha moved, and Babu Saligram seconded, and it was carried with applause, that his Highness the Maharaja do take the chair on the present occasion.

In opening the proceedings of the day, his Highness the Maharaja of Doomraon said:—Gentlemen, you are aware that the Bengal Tenancy Bill, as originally presented to the Legislative Council of India, had been referred to a Select Committee which considered the Bill during the last Calcutta sessions. The Select Committee submitted its report, on to which has been annexed some dissents. His Highness the Hon. Maharaja of Durbhangah writes one of these able dissents, and the other was written by the late Hon. Rai Kristodas Bahadur, whose untimely death has cast an universal gloom throughout the country. It was almost the closing scene of his life, and as almost his last work in life marks the ability, industry, and regard to the true interests of his country which he brought to bear on every question before him. Rai Kristodas thus complained of the position adopted by the Select Committee:—"The Committee commenced their sittings from the 21st November, 1883, and concluded their labours on the 13th March, 1884. They first met twice a week, and the members were required to give forty-eight hours' notice of amendments to be moved by them. From the 26th January, the Committee resolved to sit thrice a week, from 2 p.m. to 5 30 p.m., and notices of amendments were required to be sent in to the secretary the day before the meeting, and the amendments were circulated on the morning of the meeting. The new arrangement was proposed owing to the amount of work which remained undone, and also owing to the near approach of the Simla season, but I cannot refrain from remarking that, apart from personal inconvenience which it necessarily involved, it left the members scant time, scarcely ten hours, for the preparation of amendments, and six hours for their study, even if one gave his whole time to this work. I considered it my duty to protest against the arrangements, as it was neither fair to the individual members of the Committee, particularly to one in my position, being deprived of the opportunity of consulting those whose views I was understood to represent, nor to the momentous interests involved, but my protest was of no avail. The Committee certainly gave their best attention under the circumstances mentioned to the matters before them, and as far as I was concerned, showed me the utmost courtesy and consideration, but there was an unavoidable haste in disposing of momentous questions at the last moment, which could not but be regretted." These lines have a melancholy interest of their own, showing how the strain of work had told upon an already debilitated constitution, and it will for ever stand as a standing protest to the undue haste with which momentous questions affecting the gravest interests of the country have been disposed of at the last moment. The whole history of this great project of land law reform in this country is characterised by such undue haste. True the measure has now been before the Government and the Legislature in one shape or other for the last eight or ten years; but at what period, I ask, was any care taken to ascertain facts, to examine witnesses, to inquire as to the real requirements of the ryots, and to try the applicability of the various radical changes that are sought to be introduced? Hasty generalisations on imperfect data, untrue assumptions in place of facts, and unsound theories borrowed at secondhand without any regard to their applicability to the real circumstances of the country, and, above all, sentimentalism in lieu of judgment have always characterised the proceedings with regard to this great measure. Well, eight years was a long period for a patient inquiry, and even for the experiment on a small scale, on some of the Government estates, of the applicability of the provisions. The result of such an inquiry would have satisfied all parties, but an inquiry perhaps would have brought to light facts which would not have favoured theories. What is the course pursued even now? Though the Bill was not to be taken up for one whole year, and there was time to examine the facts of the case, and the applicability of the provisions, no such inquiry is deemed pertinent, and yet it will appear from the letter which the Government of India wrote to the Government of Bengal, on the report of the Select Committee, that the Government is not yet in possession of all the facts bearing on the question; and the Government of Bengal, in its letter to the Commissioners of Divisions, admits, on important points involved, that it is yet in want of sufficient light. But how is this sought to be rectified? Where is further enlightenment sought? Not, as one would suppose, in the economic condition of an agricultural village, but from the collectors of districts, who, ever since the transfer of rent suits from the Courts of Collectors to the Civil Courts, have nothing to do with the questions now at issue. Conferences have been held at the several centres of Commissioners' Divisions. What are the results of such conferences the public are not yet aware, and, as circumstances now stand, the Bengal Tenancy Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, will be taken up next sessions and perhaps passed into law, notwithstanding what we may say with regard to its provisions. Yet it behoves us not to sit quiet. The Government has left to the meanest of its subjects in this country freedom of expression, and, in a question of this kind, when our rights are vitally affected, when we do feel that our rights are being taken away notwithstanding the solemn pledge given by a previous Government, binding its successors for all time to come, when we apprehend mischief all around, to ourselves and to our present body of ryots, we must speak out till the last moment. The Bill, as originally presented to Council, has undergone material changes, but its cardinal principles remain unchanged. The principal objections to it may be thus summed up. First. It trenches on the rights guaranteed to the zemindars by the Permanent Settlement. Second. It touches freedom of contract. Third. In conferring extended rights on ryots, fixity of tenure, freedom of sale, and right to sublet, it will result in sweeping away the present body of tenants and to introduce middlemen, tenure-holders on one hand, and rack-rented under ryots on the other. It will thus revolutionise the existing agricultural interests of the country. Fourth. It will lead to costly and ruinous litigation at every turn, and, while it affects the power of distraint, it affords no facilities to the zemindars for the recovery of their just rents. I will content myself by saying a few words on each of these points, but I will not detain you long with what I have to say. Perhaps the strongest objections against the Bill are the first and third in the above series. They, in fact, sum up all objections. The Bill takes your rights as vested in you by the Permanent Settlement, and, in conferring them on the present body of ryots, paves the way for their extinction. A 13 annas property is to be carved out of your 16 annas zemindary property for the occupancy ryots, and this 13 annas property, from the nature of things, will not long remain in the hands of their present possessors. Gentlemen, you are told that this 13 annas property never belonged to you; but has it been made out in the course of this long discussion that the Indian ryots ever enjoyed the three F's to the fullest extent? Transferability never attached to their holdings by right, and fixity of their tenure was only a creation of the other day. Gentlemen, freedom of contract will be denied to you and to your ryots, and you will not be permitted to do what you like best with your own. Nay, in certain cases your right to manage your own affairs will be taken away; but I am anticipating the subject of the resolutions that are to follow, and, without taking up more of your time, I call on Babu Shunkar Dial Sinha to move the first resolution.

Babu Shunkar Dial Sinha, of Vesat, moved the first resolution:—"That while the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Bill are subversive of the rights guaranteed to the zemindars under the solemn pledge of the Permanent Settlement, they are, at the same time, prejudicial to the interests of the present body of their tenantry."

The Hon. Hurban Sahai seconded the resolution. He said:—Before you you have got his Highness the Maharaja of Doonraon, who boasts of such illustrious ancestors as Maharaja Vikramaditta and Maharaja Bhoje, and whose ancestors came from Ujein and conquered the Cheroes, the aborigines of this land. During the ascendancy of the Hindoo Raj his Highness's ancestors ruled supreme, and were the real proprietors of the soil. During the time of the Muhammadan reign they continued to occupy the same position, subject to the payment of something in the shape of tribute. During the time of the British supremacy they were admitted to the Permanent Settlement, with a view to consolidate them and support the British Government. At the time of the Permanent Settlement a great portion of this district and other districts of Bengal were covered with jungle, and on the faith of the solemn pledges of Government, his Highness's ancestors and other zemindars laid out a large amount of capital in reclaiming the jungle and inducing ryots to settle on the land. Gentlemen, is it not ridiculous and absurd to hear that, according to the notions of the politicians of the present age, the Maharaja's ancestors and other zemindars are not considered to have been the proprietors of the soil in the proper sense of the term, but to be mere collectors of the rent? The first resolution just moved embraces primarily the question of what is technically the three F's. It has been over and over shown, by reference to the early law and weighty opinions thereon, that right of occupancy was merely the statutory creation of Act X. of 1859, and that ryoti right was never transferable except under custom, as the case of Guzartha ryots of Shahabad that the amount of rent was, until the enactment of Act X. of 1859, a matter of contract. The Bengal Tenancy Bill now proposes to improve on Act X. of 1859, and to make right of occupancy easier of acquisition, to attach the incident of transferability to occupancy rights, and to limit enhancement even in cases when such enhancement is not allowable under Act X. of 1859. Or, in other words, to use the words of his Highness the President, to carve a thirteen annas property for occupancy ryots out of the present 16 annas proprietary interest of the landlords. Thus, the provisions are a clear invasion of the rights vested in the zemindars by the Permanent Settlement. But will these provisions benefit the ryots? It has been conclusively shown by our brethren of the district of Sarun, at their meeting only a few days ago, by reference to weighty opinions, and still more weighty facts, that the tendency of the provisions about transferability, and ryots' power to sublet, being to introduce middlemen (Mahajans) on one hand, and rack-rented under ryots on the other, and the safeguards proposed against this dangerous tendency being insufficient, and it being in the nature of things impossible to place such safeguards, it is not at all wise and expedient for the welfare of the present body of our tenantry to confer on them these rights. I will not trespass on your time by reiterating the arguments used on that occasion, as most of you must have read, in the published proceedings of the Chuprah meeting, the interesting speeches on this occasion about this point. I will, in a few words, explain to you the first, so far as it touches on the welfare of our present ryots, and the agricultural condition of their provinces. You all know that, in many agricultural villages, the ryots divide themselves into two classes, Dahi or resident, and Pahi or non-resident. The Dahi ryots, who come up, in some measure, to the definition of Khodkast ryots of old, are yet scarcely able in many villages to cultivate the area, and the landlord, however unwilling he may be to take to that course, has to settle some of his lands with Pahi ryots. These Pahi ryots are the tag-rags and bob-tails of their own villages, who have in most cases no credit with their own landlords, and who, for want of anything better, try to make out a livelihood by the precarious cultivation of a season. The cultivation is always lad, and to have a small margin of profit must always be on low rents. The Pahi ryot can therefore neither satisfy himself or the landlord of whom he holds, and he neither cares for right of occupancy, nor the landlord cares to give it to him. In fact, a fixture of such a ryot, in the long run, tells upon the agricultural prospects of a village. These lands, hitherto unavoidably in the occupation of the Pahis, furnish a good margin of cultivation for the increasing number of Dahi cultivators, and within the last few years, we know, how when the weavers and nonias formerly manufacturers found their occupation gone, they have betaken themselves to agriculture in their own village, and supplanted the Pahi ryots. I now come to the subject of enhancement. One of the objects of the present legislation is said to be to afford greater facilities to the landlord to enhance rent when rent is properly enhanceable; but one has only to compare the proposed provisions of the Bill with the law as it stands now, to find that the proposed provisions, instead of affording greater relief, will take away from the present right of landlords. An occupancy ryot's rent can be enhanced either by private contract or by suit in Court. At present there is no limit to the rate of enhancement when the enhancement is made under contract. Even it is not required to be in writing registered. Under the proposed law the rent of an occupancy ryot cannot be enhanced by contract unless the contract is registered, and the following rules will apply:—

- (1) The rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than four annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the ryot.
- (2) The contract must fix the rent for a term of at least seven years.
- (3) If the enhanced rent exceeds by more than two annas in the rupees (12½ per cent.) the previous rent, the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least 15 years.
- (4) The registering officer must, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and the ryot entering into it acts as a free agent.

All these provisions and limitations are new, and take away so much from the hitherto recognised rights of landlords. While the ryot is to be at full liberty to deal with the world around, even to the extent of selling himself out, he is to be considered in a state of pupillage in his dealings with the landlords, and even after the contract had been signed by him it will yet remain with the registering officer to set him free.

Judicial enhancement being placed on a better footing than enhancement under contract, the landlords will find it more to their interest to resort to law than to come to amicable settlement with ryots about rent. Thus the effect of these provisions will be to foster useless litigation. As for enhancement by suit in Court, on a casting of accounts it will be found that advantages given to the landlord are nil. The matter has to be considered in two aspects. 1st. Grounds of enhancement. 2nd. Extent of such enhancement. As to the grounds, we have in place of the two following grounds, viz., that the rate of rent paid by such ryot is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of ryots for land of a similar description, and with similar advantages in the places adjacent, and that the value of the produce of the productive powers of the land has been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the ryot, four grounds under the proposed law, viz:—

(a.) That the rate of rent paid by the ryot is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy ryots for land of a similar description, and with similar advantages, in the vicinity.

(b.) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple crops in the locality, or at the usual market.

(c.) That the productive powers of the land have been increased by an improvement effected by or at the expense of the landlord.

(d.) That the productive powers of the land held by the ryot have been increased by fluvial action.

The first ground, therefore, remains the same, with some verbal alteration of no importance. The second ground of the present law it is proposed to split into three. In place of value of the produce, which included cheap food crops and also valuable products, it is proposed to limit it to the price of staple crops, and if staple crops are defined to mean only cheap food crops, the restriction under the new ground will be greater. There is no reason why a rise in the average prices of other and more valuable produce should not be held to be a valid ground for the increase of rent. In place, then, of productive powers of the land increasing otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the ryot, we have "the productive powers of the land having been increased by an improvement effected by or at the expense of the landlord, and such increase being caused by fluvial action." As the hon. Maharaja of Darbhanga in his dissent points out:—"There are cases when the value of the lands improves through other causes than those contemplated in this Bill. Such cases might be rare and perhaps difficult to prove, but there is no reason why their existence should not be provided for."

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Babu Basawan Sinha, of Chowgoon, moved the second resolution as follows:—"That while no facilities are given to the zemindars for the recovery of their undisputed rents, and for the enhancement of rents in cases where the rent is enhanceable, the procedure for survey, measurement and settlement, will lead to costly and ruinous disputes. That some of the provisions will be unworkable, or, even if worked, will work to the serious detriment of the interests of ryots and zemindars."

Rai Jai Prakash Lal Dewan, seconding the above resolution, said:—"Section 210 of the Bill provides for a number of cases when the operation of the Act will come into force notwithstanding any contract to the contrary. One of these cases relates to the acquisition of the status of a settled ryot, and of the occupancy right; in other words, in making a settlement with your ryot you cannot bind him by a contract that he is not to acquire the status of a settled ryot on your land. Now sometimes you would let a ryot have lands at a very easy rate of rent if it be for a term, but in view of this provision, will such consideration be shown in any case? Sometimes, when you have got a piece of land in your own compound, or in front of your house, for which you have no immediate use, you would let it to a tenant for a number of years, with the stipulation that you will have it back when required. Would you do so with the present provision of the law before you? You would rather allow the land to lie fallow, or remain a jungle for a number of years, than let it pass from out of your hands. Will the ryot gain by such a provision as this? Another case relates to the incidents of the occupancy right specified in Section 31. Now suppose a landlord, and I am glad I need no supposition, for there are such landlords in numbers, were, with each settlement of new ryots in his village, to confer on them the rights of occupancy, but at the same time to deny to these ryots right of transfer by sale, mortgage or lease, it would be perhaps admitted on all hands that he would thereby confer a great boon upon a body of tenantry, yet the restriction would be null and void under this clause; and will any zemindar, however considerate he may be, care to confer such rights on the tenants when such incidents will attach notwithstanding any contracts to the contrary? I need not here detail all the other cases given in that section. It is simply the upsetting of the doctrine of free contracts, political economy turned topsy-turvy. The interference policy is put forward with a vengeance. The only justification of the proposal I have heard is that the ryot is a weak, ignorant creature, under the all-absorbing influence of the zemindars, and the provision is necessitated by his condition. One would have thought that those from whom the proposal emanates should at least be consistent in this view. But they forget it as soon as they come to fix the relation of this weak and ignorant ryot with the world around. Does the ryot metamorphose himself into a strong and knowing creature when he comes to deal with his mahajan? If the influence of the landlord on the ryot and his doings is strong, is not the influence of the mahajan stronger? Yet the ryot will be free to act with this latter, sell and mortgage just as he likes, and with the utmost amount of freedom. All that our legislators care to do is to hamper the hands of the landlords and tenants in their relation to each other; while they leave the ryot to deal with the outside world just as he likes. But what are the facts in support of the justification? It is admitted that in many parts of the country, and the district of Shahabad is one, the ryot is not the weak and unresisting creature he is ordinarily represented to be. What justification then exists for denying the right of contract to the zemindar in their case? Well, this is only one view of this case; but what about the zemindary rights? The regulation expressly vests in him the power to let out his lands in any way he pleases, and will not these restrictions curtail in a great measure his vested rights? Gentlemen, you have heard of Warwick, the king-maker. The present Bill proposes to make ryots the zemindar-makers; and I will tell you how. If you will turn to section 73 of the proposed Bill, you will find that one of the cases in which the ryot will be entitled to deposit rent is, when a tenant entertains a bona fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent. Now the ryot himself will be mostly the judge of his bona fide doubt. He is dissatisfied somehow with the present regime in his village, gets some one to set up a stale claim, and straightway flies to the office in which rent is to be deposited, with a petition in his pocket setting forth the grounds of his bona fide doubt. The proceeding thereon is ex parte, and the ryot gets an acquittance for his rent, but the troubles of the zemindar begin. He finds a rival claimant whom the ryot has thus succeeded in setting up in the field, and he will be driven to a heavy lawsuit to establish his right if the officer with whom the rent is deposited does not pay the rent to him as the person entitled. In the meantime the ryots, in the name of the puppet zemindar of their own creation, most likely a pauper, will continue to enjoy the profits of the estate, and the chance will be small, indeed, for the zemindar to recover what is his own when he ultimately wins his case, and what is the principle underlying this proposed provision. It is thought that, in cases where there is a dispute regarding possession of an estate, there ought to be some safeguard to the ryot in discharging his liabilities for rent. But the facts do not warrant the insinuation of any such principle, for in cases of bona fide dispute, the first object of the litigant parties is to gain over the ryots, and to show them all manner of indulgence. A dispute in the proprietary right in an estate instead of endangering the ryot's right in any way, is advantageous to his interest; and the ryot is sufficiently protected by paying rent to the party in possession. Take then another case, and you will find what great power is proposed to be conferred on the ryots to disturb your proprietary possession, and this without any warrant in reason. Turn to section 102 and you will find that any one having an interest in an estate or tenure may invoke the aid of the Civil Court to appoint a manager for the estate on the grounds of—1st. Inconvenience to the public. 2nd. Injury to private rights. Now the grounds stated are in their nature very vague, and though all possibilities of injuries to private rights and prevention thereof are sufficiently provided for by our criminal codes, this unnecessary power, under which you can be at any moment deprived of the management of your estates, and these estates handed over to a manager appointed by the court, is given to the district judge under the Bill, and each individual ryot can move him to exercise such powers.

Babu Saligram Sinha, of Mednipur, in support, showed how injuriously section 73 of the proposed Bill will work, and virtually make the ryots the zemindar-makers.

Babu Lal Govind Sinha, of Mednipur, in support, likened the Government to a tree, and the zemindars as its roots, and said that if the roots are cut, the tree must perish.

Babu Jugalkishore, of Darbhanga, in support, spoke at some length of the cost and harassment of the various proceedings of surveys, measurements, and record of rights proposed under the Bill, both to the ryots and zemindars, and caused much amusement by giving a long list of fees and douceurs which will have to be paid to the amins. The resolution was then put to the vote and carried.

Babu Shyamaland, poddar and zemindar, moved the third resolution as follows:—"That the zemindars of Shahabad resolve to act in concurrence with the Central Committee of landholders of Bengal and Behar Constitutional Association, and Behar Landholders' Association, in representing their views on the Bengal Tenancy Bill." He said:—"Maharaja and gentlemen, we have assembled here to-day to consider a most important question, which vitally concerns us in every respect and calls for our particular attention during the present crisis. For the last few years we have been constrained to devote much of our days in considering the proceedings taken with regard to the Bengal Tenancy Bill. To our misfortune I say, Phoenix-like it has again come out of its ashes in the shape of the Revised Tenancy Bill, with no less fierce and injurious provisions than its predecessor. His Highness has already pointed out to the gentlemen, in his opening speech, some of the most objectionable features of the Bill. With the permission of his Highness I take up one of the most salient points in the Bill, and I propose to speak a few words regarding that point. I mean the transferability of the occupancy holdings. I believe by this time we are all aware what was the status of ryots in the olden times. Their rights were not at all transferable, and now, in proposing to make it transferable, the Legislature forgets that it will neither be good for the ryot nor the zemindar to have it so. It clearly trenches against the zemindar's rights, and it indirectly makes room for the substitution of the ryots by a number of middlemen. Thus the provisions proposed to be enacted to check this dangerous tendency will admittedly be insufficient.

Babu Kailas Chunder Banerjee, in seconding the resolution, said:—I apprehend much trouble both to the zemindars and ryots from the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Bill. One is at a loss to see why so much sentimentalism should be lost on the ryots, when the ryots do not themselves complain of their present position. If the provisions were properly understood, the ryots would be the first to cry, save us from our friends. The provisions were all prejudicial to their interests. What is the good of their having a transferable right, when we all know that with every change of season, with every occasion of marriage in the family the holding must go to the mahajuns. I say that in making the ryot's right more valuable than it is at present they are indirectly proposing to sweep the present body of ryots away.

Babu Kuntji said in support:—I object generally to the passing of the Bill on the following points:—First. The very object for which the Bill has been introduced into the Legislative Council under the sanction of the Secretary of State is not attained. The Secretary of State sanctioned its introduction for the simplification of procedure for settlement and recovery of rents. The procedure enacted by the present Bill is surely more ruinous to both the zemindars and ryots. Second. The zemindars are deprived of their many rights which they have enjoyed since ancient times for no fault of theirs, and no reason in adduced for this deprivation. By the deprivation of the rights secured to the zemindars the Permanent Settlement will be thus set at naught, and the general confidence placed in that regulation which they consider to be their Magna Charta will be lost. The people no longer will have any faith in the promises of the Government, and all the inconveniences and injuries attending such a state of things will be the result. Fourth. The Bill has the general effect of fostering litigation and discord between the proprietor and the ryot. Fifth. An amicable feeling is after continual litigation for several years, settling down between the zemindar and his ryot. Revival of the same antagonistic feeling will be specially ruinous to the ryots, and the friends of the ryot will have the mortification to see their cherished idea to be quite useless, because the benefits which they think they have secured for them will be more than compensated by a renewed feud between them. Sixth. The Bill has a general tendency for the creation of a middle man. The section which treats of transferability of tenure encourages transfers without the intervention of the zemindar. As I have already shown, before and after the British rule tenures in India were not as a rule alienable, and even after the Permanent Settlement a ryot's tenures, whether they were permanent or temporary, were not transferable. It has also been shown that Act X. of 1859 protected a ryot from eviction after twelve years of occupancy, except under certain conditions. Now, however politic and wise this provision might have been, it was a clear invasion of the landlord's rights as conferred upon him by the Permanent Settlement. Now, it may be asked, what is the justification for invading the landlord's rights? I think that no justification can be given which will commend itself to us. Therefore this provision is not only unpleasant and injurious, but also useless. No solid advantage would ever result to the general public from this provision in the present enactment. Seventh. I now proceed to discuss the question of enhancement of rent; the first ground for the enhancement of rent is badly worded, and a great difficulty arises from its ambiguous language. If a landlord, from leniency, or from hatred of litigation, allows an occupancy tenant to pay the same rates of rent and does not enhance them, it becomes in many cases impossible to raise them to anything like a fair standard. In my opinion the term fair and equitable should be construed in its commercial signification. Rent, according to Ricardo's theory, means the excess of the produce of the land on the margin of cultivation. Margin of cultivation is that for which the tenant only pays a nominal rent, i.e., for the cultivation of which an amount of expense is required which will equal the produce of the land. In all commercial countries this definition of rent is preserved, and the rent payable by the tenant is determined by the open competition. It seems a matter of surprise that this definition has not been thought fit to be retained in Indian enactments, on the simple ground that India is an agricultural country. I don't think that the classification of countries into agricultural and commercial is based on any scientific principle. Eighth. The present Bill proposes to be inoperative in courts of wards, and escheated estates and khas mehals, which Government manages in a private capacity. This invidious distinction should be received with great jealousy, and there can be no reason adduced why a portion of zemindary is to be managed in a peculiar manner. In the eyes of the law each class of zemindar should be treated on an equal footing.

The meeting broke up at 6.30 A.M., with thanks to the chair.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

MONDAY.—A large proportion of the bar silver brought by the Nios was sold to arrive, and the small balance was to-day disposed of for India at 50 13-16d. per ounce, showing no change. The nearest price for Mexican dollars is still 50½d.; but no business worth mentioning has been done since the consignment per Para was taken off the market. The Doorga Poojah holidays, which began in Calcutta some days ago, will last all this week; while in addition to this business has been suspended in Bombay to-day. China exchange rates are unaltered, and Rupee paper also is quoted at the prices current at the close of the week.

TUESDAY.—There is no alteration in the price of either bar silver or Mexican dollars, and business in the former has been very quiet. The exchange advices received from the East show no change in rates, and Rupee paper is still quoted at 83½ 83½ for the Four and a Half, and 80½ 80½ for the Four per Cents.

WEDNESDAY.—The bar silver brought by the steamer from Chili was available to-day, and found buyers at 50 13-16d. per ounce. There was no business in Mexican dollars, the quotation for which was quite nominal. Exchange rates from the East and Rupee paper still show no alteration.

The following letter refers to an alleged grievance of the small shareholders of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway:—

"60, Old Broad-street, E.C.

"SIR,—Minorities as a rule must go to the wall, but when their cause is just the advocacy of your powerful journal may prevent an act of gross injustice being committed. There are a few outstanding shares of £20 each of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway—in all, 12,000 shares—on which £5 has been paid. Some years ago holders of this class of shares were allowed to pay them up in full and convert them into stock. This power was exercised by the majority of the holders to such an extent that the Secretary of State ordered the company to withdraw the facility, as they had more than enough money for the requirements of the company. The remaining holders who were unwilling to pay up, or were unable so to do from absence from town or want of means, have been waiting patiently till the company was in want of money.

"At the meeting of the company on Thursday last the chairman asked the shareholders to authorise the borrowing of £200,000 on debentures, stating however that the holders of small shares had a great grievance. He adduced in palliation that there were only 345 holders of small shares, against 8,600 stockholders. The call of £15 per share would amount to £180,000, being just about the sum required for the company's works. The meeting agreed fairly unanimously that it was unfair to the small shareholders to keep them in the disadvantageous position in which they were accidentally left, and that it was unjust to call up the balance only when money became dead and the calling would not benefit them, and, now that money was cheap, to leave them in the lurch. The Great Indian Peninsula and the Madras Railway had acted fairly by their small shareholders, allowing them to pay up when the money could be utilised.

"When these shares were issued the condition made was that calls were not to be made more frequently than at three months' interval, and after giving the option for them to be paid up in full, without any notice of the circumstance that after a certain date the money would never again be received. The company now proposes to exclude the small shareholders from their undoubted rights. The Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi, like the Madras Railway, does not earn the guaranteed interest, so that the stockholders are not prejudiced by allowing their fellows to enjoy the same facility of paying as they formerly exercised for their own benefit. The question was adjourned for a fortnight for the Board to endeavour to obtain from the Secretary of State for India this act of justice. Surely if this matter is brought by you under the notice of the Indian Government it will never sanction an act of injustice, even if the gain be a couple of thousand a year? The chairman told the holders to sell out and pocket the premium, but this advice could only be followed in many instances at a sacrifice on the price paid for the shares. The company is now paying the Indian Government 4½ per cent. on the deficiency account.—I am, &c.,

"SAMUEL MONTAGU."

THURSDAY.—The market for bar silver has been extremely quiet at 50 13-16d. per ounce, while the quotation for Mexican dollars remains quite nominal. Indian and China exchange rates are still unaltered, and Rupee Paper remains at 83½ 83½ for the Four and a Half, and 80½ 80½ for the Four per Cents. The following replies to Mr. Samuel Montagu's letter in yesterday's article on the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway.—

"121, Fleet-street, E.C., Oct. 2.

"SIR,—In his sympathy for the small shareholders of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway, Mr. Samuel Montagu, in his letter published in your Money Article this morning, seems to have entirely overlooked the existence of another and a prior interest in the matter. As Mr. Montagu truly observes, 'The Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi, like the Madras Railway, does not earn the guaranteed interest, so that the stockholders are not prejudiced by allowing their fellows to enjoy the same facility of paying as they formerly exercised for their own benefit.' But surely the Indian taxpayer is prejudiced by a proposal which involves paying 5 per cent. for a loan which may be easily raised at less than 4 per cent., and the consequent gift of a bonus of upwards of 20 per cent. on the investment at the cost of Indian ryots. It is to be hoped, therefore, that even though the gain be only 'a couple of thousand a year' (which, as 'Ram Ohunder pays,' need not to be considered by the railway shareholders), the Secretary of State for India will resist what Mr. Montagu is pleased to call 'this act of justice.'—Very faithfully yours,

"CHAS. M'NAUGHT."

FRIDAY.—The market for bar silver remains very bare, and Indian buyers are still paying 50 13-16d. per ounce, some exceptionally small orders being executed at a slightly higher rate. There is nothing doing in Mexican dollars, and 50½d. per ounce is a purely nominal quotation for them. Exchange rates from the East and Rupee Paper show no change.

SATURDAY.—Yesterday's description of the market for bar silver holds good to-day. The price is firm at 50 13-16d. to 50½d., and there is so little in the brokers' hands that business continues very limited. No quotation for Mexican dollars is as yet obtainable, and fully a week must elapse before the consignment of coins by the French steamer can be available. The holidays in Calcutta are drawing to a close, and business will be resumed on Monday. The Bombay telegraphic transfer rate is quoted at 1s. 7½d., the China exchange rates remain at about 5s. 1½d. in Shanghai and 3s. 9d. in Hongkong. Four-and-a-half per Cent. Rupee Paper is a little easier at 83½ 83½, but the Four per Cent. again closed at 80½ 80½.

THE following is a further communication with reference to the affairs of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway Company.

"28, Threadneedle-street, E.C., Oct. 3.

"SIR,—We think we can supply Mr. Montagu with a still further reason why the shareholders of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway should be permitted to pay up their shares in full. It will, we believe, be found that when the shares were subscribed for there was an option given of 'paying up in full,' which option was some time afterwards withdrawn by the directors (acting doubtless under the instructions of the Secretary of State for India), and the shareholders (having, as we presume, regard for the pockets of the Indian ryots) tamely submitted to this decision. They were induced to do this by verbal assurances from the company that they would shortly require further capital, and that they would then gladly avail themselves of the amount remaining uncalled upon these £20 shares. We doubt if even to save the Indian taxpayer the estimated £2,000 (!) a year, it is worth the while of the Secretary of State for India to carry out his financial arrangements upon present principles.—We remain, Sir, your obedient servants,

"SHEPPARDS, PELLY, and Co."

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER COMMISSION.

It is very gratifying to learn that the Government of India has at last seen the necessity of strengthening the escort which is to accompany the Boundary Commission on its journey through Afghanistan. Such a decision is in accordance with public opinion, but it is to be regretted that this very important addition should have been decided upon at the eleventh hour. The immense extra work that will be entailed upon the various departments which will have to be indented upon to furnish adequate materials for the extra force is enough to drive the officials demented. Are the resources of the Commissariat sufficient to meet these requirements at once? Is the Clothing Department ready with the numerous great coats and uniforms which will have to be supplied? Is the Transport Department ready to furnish at a moment's notice, drivers, kahars, and other numerous servants, which must accompany the Commission? And we trust that due care will be taken that the followers will have sufficient clothing to enable them to weather the cold, which will be found very severe in December and January, in the Afghan mountains. Snow blindness will be one of the evils to be guarded against, and a pair of tinted spectacles distributed to each man in the force would be found of the utmost use. No doubt the bare idea of meeting a large body of warriors decorated with tinted spectacles is enough to raise a smile in the most solemn of faces, but for all that spectacles ought to be given to the men, and we trust that the Government of India has a sufficient stock in hand to be able to meet present requirements. There is no doubt that 200 cavalry was totally insufficient to protect a column of transport which will probably extend on the march to a length of five or six miles. Even of its present strength, the escort, which may be considered as equivalent to two squadrons of cavalry and three companies of infantry, is not overstrong for the duties that it will have to perform. The 11th Bengal Cavalry and the 20th Punjab Infantry are as fine and has soldierly a body of men as can be found in the native army, and they are sure to do credit to themselves through the anxious times they will have to meet.—Englishman.

SIR ALFRED LYALL ON THE REPORT OF THE EDUCATION COMMISSION.

SIR ALFRED LYALL has written an able letter to the Government of India on the report of the Education Commission, in the course of which the salient points of the report bearing on the North-Western Provinces and Oudh are clearly and forcibly discussed. Orders have been issued for the adoption of such of the recommendations of the Commission as Sir Alfred Lyall deems practicable and advisable to put in force at once; but in many cases the proposed changes are so considerable that before action can be taken it is necessary that a careful survey of the whole condition of public instruction in the Provinces should be made and further inquiry instituted into many of the matters brought to notice. That a further inquiry should be deemed essential before the Government can accept its recommendations does not seem to speak very highly of the success of the labours of the Commission, so far at least as the North-Western Provinces are concerned. Such an inquiry has been necessitated by the fact that the Government of these Provinces differ from the conclusions arrived at by the Commission about some very important points.

The number of independent indigenous schools conducted on the native method in the North-Western Provinces is larger than in any other part of Northern India. The Commission recommends that they should be treated as an integral part of the general system of education regulated or supervised by the State. The Government agrees in this view, and admits that the time may now have come for making an attempt to utilise these schools, but is doubtful as to the result, for they are said to retain their popularity mainly because their teaching is religious and denominational. It is, therefore, difficult to raise their condition as judged by official standards without destroying their distinctive character which gives them a special hold upon the affection and support of the people. The apprehension is, to some extent, well founded that when the strenuous efforts of the State are directed to the encouragement of elementary education, the consequence will be either that the indigenous schools which remain independent will suffer from State competition, or that following the Government lead they will merge into the departmental system, thereby losing their present distinctive character—a consummation which it does not appear to have been within the contemplation of the Commission. A recommendation which does not find favour with Sir Alfred Lyall's Government is that aided indigenous schools should be open to all classes and castes of the community because it would interfere with these institutions to a greater extent than is necessary or desirable; it would not be advisable in the North-Western Provinces at present to make such a condition a necessary preliminary to a grant-in-aid. This is also true of the indigenous schools of a higher order which chiefly impart instruction of a more or less religious character, and supported as they are by native gentlemen and noblemen they are not likely to apply for or be willing to accept State assistance on such a condition. That Government institutions of this order are very serviceable is illustrated by the case of the Benares College, which has done much to preserve and encourage high Hindu culture. The recent action of the Lieutenant-Governor in connection with the reopening of the Oriental classes of the college on a wider and remodelled basis, which we noticed some time ago, will very materially strengthen the policy in this direction. With regard to the principle that primary education be declared to be that part of the whole system of public instruction which possesses an almost exclusive claim on local funds set apart for education, and a large claim on provincial revenues, the Government points out that 84 per cent. of the Local, 74 per cent. of the Municipal, and 21 per cent. of the Provincial Funds, devoted to education, were spent on primary education in the N.W. Provinces in the year 1881-82. Regarding secondary education, it has been laid down by the Commission that the relation of the State to secondary education is different from its relation to primary education, in that the means of the latter may be provided without regard to the existence of local co-operation, while it is expedient to provide the means of the former only where adequate local co-operation is forthcoming and should be preferably on the footing of the grant-in-aid system. It may be remarked that of late years no new school for instruction in English has been established by State funds alone in the N.W. Provinces. This shows how steadily are the people of the country helping the educational movement; and if the public are ready to establish schools with a certain degree of State-aid, the State need not take entirely on itself the business of establishing them. But in the present condition of education and enlightenment of the Provinces, it would be imprudent to rely entirely on indirect means for secondary education, or to hold that if local co-operation is not forthcoming the State should decline to provide the necessary means, for secondary education is no less important for the advancement and welfare of the people than primary education. The only difference between the two classes is, that while primary education would die out unless maintained by the State, secondary education will require merely the grant-in-aid system for its support, because there is a demand for it, and the people can afford to contribute towards its expenses.

As regards Collegiate education the only alteration in the present system that appears advisable to the Government is that (a) grants to aided Colleges be fixed for a term of years, (b) that grant towards the purchase of books and apparatuses be formally recognised as allowable, (c) that Indian graduates be more largely employed as professors, and (d) that scholarships be established for distinguished graduates to enable them to proceed to Europe to pursue the study of some branch of mechanical industry. The last two heads will, without doubt, recommend themselves very favourably to our countrymen.

We need not stop to examine in detail all the points that have been raised. But we cannot help noticing at some length the observations of the Government of the North-Western Provinces on a very important question which, we are inclined to think, will be admitted by our readers as right in the main. The Commission recommend that an attempt should be made to prepare a moral text-book based upon the fundamental principles of natural religion such as may be taught in all Government and non-Government Colleges, and that a series of lectures on the duties of a man and a citizen should be delivered to each of the College classes. This project the Lieutenant-Governor is unable to support. However much we may deplore the want of a religious and moral training in our Colleges and schools, we cannot help agreeing with Sir Alfred Lyall in thinking that it is no part of the functions of a Government in India to draw up a code of morality and issue it officially for the instruction of pupils and students. A declaration or even a suggestion that the morality of the proposed Code was based on the principles of natural religion would be not unlikely to alienate all who profess a distinct supernatural creed, while the general principles and practice of ethics need no official demonstration. It is doubtful if it could be proved that among the students of our upper schools and colleges, there is generally to be found either ignorance of the commonly accepted moral code of civilised communities or an acceptance of principles contrary to that Code. We are very grateful to Sir A. Lyall because of his good opinion of our students, and his good opinion becomes all the more valuable at the present juncture when some of our Provincial Governors are unfortunately inclined to believe that our students are a most dangerous and unprincipled class. The proposal is in collision with the principles of neutrality, and might be misconstrued, especially in the North-Western Provinces, into an attack on all supernatural religions. It is also difficult to approve of an annual course of lectures on the duty of a man and citizen, however anxious we may be to see our students good men and good citizens, because possibly no two professors could be found who would agree as to what this duty consists in. Under these circumstances, the only effective course open to the Government seems to be that its duty should be confined to prescribe the best text-books on ethics and moral philosophy, and, if we may be permitted to add, to entrust the teaching to those who by their excellence of character and soundness of principles may bring to bear an amount of influence which no number of annual lectures on theoretical ethics and moral philosophy can ever be expected to do.—Hindoo Patriot.

(From the Civil and Military Gazette).

The Foreign Office will have to set to work to compile a new system of cypher. Their present cypher correspondence is managed by aid of a cypher dictionary, a very few copies of which were originally printed. We hear, however, upon good authority that the Russians have managed to get hold of one of these copies, so that the use of the system henceforth will be futile. The Russians are rather handy in turning their opportunities to account. Not very long ago, it may be remembered, some Russian officers visited one of our Torpedo hulks, and after their departure one of the copies of the Torpedo book, containing the details of the system of Torpedo defences of our chief ports—a strictly confidential publication—was missing, and was never recovered.

A report reaches us from native sources of the presence of two Russian officers in the neighbourhood of Chitral, in the north of Kafiristan. They are disguised, and are dressed after the manner of Badakshania, but they can be easily recognised. Our informant encountered them at Patrik, a place some four marches from Chitral, and found them engaged in making a survey of a portion of the Kashkar River. They are accompanied by a number of natives, and their object, it is said, is to cross the mountainous country to the borders of Kashmir. As to the fact that two Russian travellers are making their way through Kafiristan, there can be little doubt, for our informant, an intelligent and trustworthy native, travelled with them for some considerable distance. Nor is there anything improbable in the alleged object of their journey. If the Russians continue north along the valley of the Kashkar, and then strike east to the Yasin, one of the upper waters of the Indus, the journey to Gilgit is only some 200 miles, and presents no great difficulties. Except for the advanced season of the year, they might push on and visit Kashmir, and then return without anyone in India being much the wiser.

Miscellaneous.

JUDICIAL SEVERITY IN INDIA.—We have frequently had to comment on the magisterial practice of prefacing some very lenient sentence by remarks on the exceedingly grave character of the accused's culpability. "More revolting brutality has never come before us"—thus runs the usual formula—"and you are therefore sentenced to pay a fine of ten shillings or go to prison for seven days in default." In India, however, the reverse process appears to be adopted, and whenever a prisoner hears the bench make light of the offence imputed to him, he may well tremble at the thought of the punishment he is about to receive. "As the present charge is of a light trivial nature, the Court find a difficulty in passing a heavy sentence," said Mr. Justice Norris, lately, when presiding at the Calcutta Assizes, the case being one in which a native pleaded guilty to an act of petty pilfering. Two previous convictions, one in 1875 and one in 1881, of a similar sort were, however, proved, and the judge therefore passed a sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment. Are we to assume, then, that such a long term of incarceration does not amount in the opinion of Indian judges to a heavy sentence? Apparently so, for Mr. Justice Norris went on to warn the prisoner that another appearance in the dock "would involve very grave results; perhaps transportation for life." That, we presume, would be considered a really "heavy sentence" even by the Indian bench.

THE RUSSIANS AT MERV.—The Moscow Gazette publishes intelligence from Petro Alexandrovsk stating that the 17th Turkestan Infantry Battalion left there on the 25th ult. for Merv. The regiment will march as far as the town of Chardjui in Bokhara, along the banks of the Amu Darya, and thence through the Steppe. The whole distance of 750 versts is expected to be accomplished in thirty-two days.

THE POST OFFICE gives notice, that on and after the 8th inst., cardboard bearing designs stamped in relief, for modelling and other kindred purposes, may be sent to the several countries and colonies composing the Postal Union at the reduced rates of postage applicable to printed matter.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.—An examination for cadetships at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, will take place at the University of London, Burlington-gardens, W., by permission of the Senate, on the 2nd of December, 1884, and following days. The medical examination of the candidates will take place on the previous day at 109, Victoria-street, Westminster. The subjects of examination, the limits of age, and other conditions, will be those specified in the regulations issued with G.O. 116 of 1884. There will be 112 cadetships to be awarded, of which ninety will be for infantry, fifteen for cavalry, and seven for West India Regiments. Intending competitors must inform the Military Secretary before the date fixed for examination whether they elect to be considered candidates for cavalry or infantry. If within the prescribed limits of age they may return their names—(1) for both infantry and cavalry, expressing a preference for one or the other; (2) for infantry only; or (3) for cavalry only. Cadetships will be given to successful candidates, subject to the above limitation of numbers, in order of merit, in accordance with the election they have made. In the case of (1), viz., those who have returned their names for both infantry and cavalry, they will be taken for infantry or cavalry in accordance with the preference expressed by them. ## THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL BY THE LIGHT OF EUROPEAN STATISTICS.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Times this week supplies to that paper some valuable statistics that throw light on the treatment of peasants by usurers in those European countries where the principles of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert in this respect are in the ascendant. Where the relations between the peasants and the usurers are much the same as those that will be established in Bengal, between the ryots and the mahajuns by Mr. Ilbert's Tenancy Bill, it appears that there is almost internecine war between these two classes—the usurers everywhere evicting those peasants who object to rack-renting, and the peasants in their turn starting “anti-Semitic crusades” in the hope of getting rid at once of their creditors, and of the record of their debts. The Times correspondent writes:—

In Germany, by the operation of what Mr. Parnell calls “the sensible laws of the King of Prussia,” the usurer takes the place of the tax-gatherer. One of the strongest motives urged for the anti-Semitic crusade is that the Jew, no longer confining his operations to cities, now “sits a usurer in every village.” Farm after farm passes into his hands. Not being of an agricultural race, after extracting the last shilling he throws the farm back, a picked bone, into the gentile market.

It was stated also last year in the papers that 17,000 peasants had been evicted by usurers in Austrian Galicia in 1879. In the last generation the land laws were altered in favour of the peasants in order to prevent a rebellion. Now an equally loud cry is being sent up for laws against usury.

Even France, the Utopia of peasant proprietorship, has conspicuously failed in “rooting the peasant to the soil.” Mr. Richardson in his admirable work on the corn and cattle districts of France, states that the transfers of land amount to 600,000 yearly; also that in the central and eastern districts the labourer is far better off than the small proprietor, the artisan than either; consequently, the rural population is diminishing as quickly in fair France as in royal Meath; while of the number of emigrants from Germany, the Irish in America know more than they like.

Here we see repeated exactly what we all know has been going on in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. It is the same everywhere, and it is simply amazing that our Radical doctrinaires still cling to their exploded notions, and hope that what has so egregiously failed in Germany, in Austria, in France, and in Ireland, will nevertheless succeed in Bengal. After the publication of the recent Sonthal Pergunnahs Report, we are confident that Lord Dufferin will feel that it is absolutely impossible to persevere any further with this most mischievous Bill. We trust His Excellency will be warned, too, by the disastrous proceedings that led to the Deccan Ryots Relief Acts, and to the Jhansi Ryots Relief Act; and that he will refuse to permit the most prosperous province of India to be brought to misery and anarchy merely to gratify the morbid craving of two or three weak and misguided persons for sensational experiments in legislation.

MR. GLADSTONE'S BOOK-KEEPING BY DOUBLE-ENTRY.

THE arithmetical method employed by Mr. Gladstone, in dealing with the adjustment of war-charges between the Home and Indian Governments, is not one which we would recommend to a young man commencing a commercial life; for apart from its questionable morality it might lead him into scrapes. It seems—as we shall endeavour to show—to be based on a definite principle, that of omitting altogether the entries that tell against the present Government, and then making up for the omission by inserting twice over the entries that tell in its favour. In some recent speeches Sir Stafford Northcote and Mr. Clarke have endeavoured, with more or less success, to show that the Prime Minister has not been quite as candid or as accurate as he might have been in other portions of the comparison he instituted between the finances of his own Ministry and that of Lord Beaconsfield; and it may, perhaps, be said that those little differences of opinion may be expected to arise between financiers of rival schools. But for a full elucidation of that part of the subject which most interests Anglo-Indians we would commend to our readers the careful perusal of a tract by “Delta,” just published by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co., price 3d., entitled “Mr. Gladstone's New System of Arithmetic, Whereby Cocker and Colenso are Completely Superseded.”

We will quote the exact words of the comparison which Mr. Gladstone drew at Edinburgh on September 1st between his own finance and that of his predecessors in office. He said:—

But it is my duty, gentlemen, to say a word upon that subject, and to warn you to be upon your guard against the Tories. That you may be on your guard against them I will give you, with the utmost exactness, comparative statements which it is quite impossible for them to shake, and which I will convey to you in no very great number of words, avoiding all detail, lumping large sums of money, and making use of round numbers for the sake of greater simplicity and intelligibility. Gentlemen, in the four last years of the late Government the gross expenditure of the country was £329,000,000. In the four last years of the present Government—don't be alarmed, gentlemen—in the four years of the present Government the expenditure of the country has been £342,000,000. Apparently, on comparing the two Governments, our account is £13,000,000 to the bad. Let us look a little further into the matter. I must first of all deduct the expense of collection. You know we have vast establishments connected with the Post Office, and the Telegraphs, and so forth. To charge these as taxation would be absurd. I deduct, therefore, the expense of collection. I find that the two sums then are—the late Government 297½ millions, and the present Government 306½ millions. There are still 9½ millions remaining to the bad against us. Well, but I go further, and I deduct the debt we have paid off, because undoubtedly what you spend, what you give out of pocket in payment of debt, ought not to be reckoned as expenditure. Well, we have paid, as I have told you, £25,000,000 of debt against £11,000,000; and consequently, when we bring this into account, we are no longer to the bad, but we are to the good by the amount of 4½ millions. So, you see, we are improving a little on the comparative question. Well, now, besides that, you may recollect that, having a deep sense of the iniquity, as well as the folly, of the war that had been waged in Afghanistan at the expense of India, we asked Parliament, in mitigation of that gross and monstrous injustice, to make a present to India of 5 millions. Parliament agreed, and 4½ millions out of that 5 millions we have already paid. Adding that to the 4½ millions by which our charge fell short—I mean our voluntary charge, that which ought to be laid to our account—fell short of the charge of the former Government, then we come to stand 9½ millions better upon finance in the four years. So far, gentlemen, I have been dealing with matters of fact, and no man can shake one of the figures I have laid before you.

Now, the first thing that will strike those who have taken any interest in the important question of the adjustment of war charges between the Home and Indian Governments is the startling fact that we get here no mention whatever of the enormous sums charged—most unjustly, as we have always contended—on the Indian revenues for the cost of Mr. Gladstone's blundering in Egypt! The imposition of those burdens on India, and the consequent relief to an equivalent amount of the drain on the English exchequer, enabled Mr. Gladstone to slay his thousands in Egypt, without that penalty of a deficit in the national balance-sheet which is the provision devised by nature as a check on the bloodthirstiness of Radical Jingoism. And yet the Prime Minister, though affecting to give a most elaborate and complete account of the debit and credit sides of the account, with special reference to this question of the pecuniary responsibility of India, deliberately conceals the whole of the shady transaction by which a large proportion of the Egyptian war charges was imposed on the helpless, and vainly-protesting Indian Government.

But this is not all, nor even half, of the "smartness" of the Midlothian arithmetic. No entry at all is made of the sums squeezed out of India by a Liberal Government in order to kill Arabs who—according to Mr. Gladstone's own showing—were "fighting for their liberty"; but how about the war waged on the Indian frontier, immediately because of an insult to an Indian embassy, and indirectly for precisely the same objects as those for which India is now paying for a Quetta Railway and an Afghan Boundary Commission? Since that war was carried on by a Tory Government, it goes without saying that Mr. Gladstone regards it as an "iniquitous" and "foolish" one: so he claims to have "made a present" to India of 4½ millions sterling on account of this war. Strange to say, on referring to the "Statistical Abstract for the United Kingdom, thirty-first number, presented to both Houses of Parliament by command of Her Majesty, 1884," it will be found that the total amount paid on this account, included in the Gladstonian expenditure from which Mr. Gladstone is making such liberal deductions, is two and a-half millions. The remaining two millions, which the Prime Minister claims to be allowed to deduct from his expenditure, he obtains by taking credit for the remission of the loan which had been made to India! By this most amazing device he is able to take credit for this sum of two millions twice over—once by including it in the amount of debt paid off, and a second time by deducting it from his expenditure, though it had never been included therein! This, surely, is "book-keeping by double-entry" with a vengeance.

MR. GLADSTONE'S "PRESENT" TO INDIA.

IN commenting on the curious arithmetic of Mr. Gladstone's method of dealing with the adjustment of the Afghan and Egyptian war-charges between the Home and Indian Governments, we have not referred to that extraordinary obliquity of moral vision which can regard the vote of five millions on account of the Afghan war-charges as "a present to India." That grant—if there was any honesty at all in Mr. Gladstone's contention at the time, that England ought to share with India the responsibility for such wars—was nothing more than the bare fulfilment (and a very partial and shabby fulfilment, too) of the simplest demands of probity and good faith. In that case the five millions, so far from being a present to India, represented a very mean and inadequate settlement of England's share of the cost of the Afghan War.

Still less could the five millions be regarded as a present to India, if the Conservative contention was a true one that such a vote would turn out to be a disastrous one to India herself, and ought to be opposed by all true friends of India. If that contention was a true one the vote represented simply a treacherous attempt to bind India to a ruinous and one-sided partnership, coupled with an incitement to the British taxpayer to join in the Radical cry of "Perish India." And the sequel has amply confirmed this view of the case. A nice "present," truly! By that payment the Home Government pledged the Indian Government to the disastrous principle that India may be called upon to contribute towards the cost of any English war in any part of the world, as in Egypt, though the Indian Government has no voice whatever in the beginning or control of the war—a principle that is absolutely subversive of the Constitution, for it virtually frees the British Ministry from all responsibility to the taxpayers for the pecuniary results of their blundering. How pernicious to India this principle is, has been shown in the adjustment of the Egyptian war-charges. India has in this way already paid back no inconsiderable part of the ruinous "present." It is obvious that no Indian Viceroy can in future be responsible for Indian finance; for at any moment he may be unexpectedly called upon to provide huge sums for a war with which he has not the remotest connection, assessed by an irresponsible Power whose servant he is. And, on the other hand, it is equally obvious that no Indian Viceroy will in future—now that this evil principle has been established—have the same prudential inducements as hitherto, to abstain from a war that would disorganise Indian finance; for in the last resort he can always draw on the money-bags of the Home Government.

Perhaps the most inexplicable point about this statement of Mr. Gladstone's is, that it should have been made in Edinburgh, of all places in the world. India has been defined as "a country discovered for the benefit of the Scotch." Lord Salisbury the other day aptly referred to the strength and closeness of the ties which bind Scotland, in particular, to that eastern and colonial empire which she has inherited since she annexed England; and it is very certain that in no other part of the United Kingdom could an audience be found more interested in, or more intelligent about, Indian politics, than that one which Mr. Gladstone addressed. To represent to such an audience that a payment forced on the country by his own authority alone, and opposed by all Indian experts as most injurious to the future prospects of India, was a payment for which he ought not to be held responsible, and which, therefore, he must be allowed to deduct from his own expenditure when comparing it with that of the Conservatives, was a stroke of sublime audacity worthy of Mr. Gladstone's most contemptuous mood—a mood, we beg to say, singularly out of place in the capital of Scotland.

DEATH OF LIEUTENANT E. H. MULOCK.—Further particulars have been received concerning the death of the late Lieutenant Edmonds Henry Mulock, of the 1st Battalion Royal Irish Fusiliers, now stationed at Rawul Pindie, Bengal. The deceased officer, it appears, was shooting in the neighbourhood of Camp Tapa, on the Murree Hills, on the last day in August. He fired at a bear but missed the animal, which thereupon attacked and fatally injured him. Lieutenant Mulock had served with his battalion in the Egyptian war of 1882, and was present at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir.

Home News.

THE adjourned meeting of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway will be held at Gresham House on the 9th inst., at 1 P.M.

The half yearly meeting of the Delhi and London Bank will be held at 128, Bishopsgate-street on the 8th inst., at twelve o'clock. The report and balance-sheet which will be submitted to the meeting of the shareholders are of a very satisfactory character. The net profit realised during the half-year ended the 30th of June last amounts to £11,222 9s. 8d., which, added to the balance of £884 1s. 9d. brought forward from the previous half-year, gives a total credit to the profit and loss account of £12,106 11s. 5d. This sum the directors propose to appropriate by the payment of a 5 per cent. dividend on the half-year, which will absorb £8,440 12s. 6d.; placing £3,665 18s. 11d. to the next account.

GENERAL DILLON.—The appointment of Major-General Martin Dillon, C.B., C.S.I., to the command of the Lahore Division of the Indian Army will be generally recognised as a due reward for long and gallant service. General Dillon joined the 93rd Regiment as far back as the time of the first war in China, when that gallant corps was commanded by Colin Campbell, afterwards Lord Clyde. After the conclusion of the war and the signature of the Treaty of Naukin, the 93rd were placed in occupation of the Island of Chusan. After the restoration of that island, this regiment was removed to the Punjab, where it took a prominent part in the final campaign against the Sikhs. General Dillon was present at the great battles of Chillianwallah and Goojerat, and he also served in the campaign of 1850 against the frontier tribes. In the mutiny he also took a prominent part, serving as Brigade Major to the Oude Field Force from 1858 to 1860. He was severely wounded at the battle of Cawnpore, and was mentioned in despatches on the occasion. After the Indian mutiny he again went to China, being attached as Assistant Adjutant-General to Sir Hope Grant's expedition to retrieve the repulse at the Taku Forts. He was several times mentioned in despatches during the Pekin campaign. From 1865 to 1868 he was military secretary to the Bombay Government, and in the last-named year he accompanied the present Lord Napier of Magdala to Abyssinia, where he acted as his military secretary. For this campaign he was appointed aide-de-camp to the Queen—an honour which he resigned on being appointed in 1878 assistant military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief. His term of office in this capacity expired twelve months ago. General Dillon has gained a name as a courteous and excellent official as well as a gallant soldier. The family of Dillon is not only of great distinction in Ireland, but it has given some famous soldiers to the services of France and Austria.

AN extra meeting of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 15th inst., at 1 P.M.

THE half-yearly meeting of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, &c., will be held at 65, Old Broad-street on the 21st inst., at 1 P.M.

EMPIRE CLUB.—The Empire Club was taken over by the members on Tuesday last from Mr. Chinery, the proprietor, who will continue the general management.

EAST INDIA ASSOCIATION.—The Council of the East India Association meet at the end of the present month.

AN INDIAN REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.—An evening contemporary says:—"Lahore has subscribed 2,000 rupees towards a fund for defraying the election expenses of Mr. Lalmohun Ghose. If it were only possible to secure him a seat he would be an ornament to the British House of Commons, as everyone who has heard him speak will bear witness; but the difficulty is to find a constituency. It ought not to be difficult, for Mr. Ghose would do as well as many silent voting machines on the Liberal side; but a stranger's claims are hardly likely to be preferred before those of big local men. Lancashire is more directly interested in India than any other English county; is there no borough in Lancashire that could be persuaded to return an Indian fellow-citizen? This consummation is devoutly to be wished." Sufficient money having been subscribed to meet the probable expenses of Mr. Lalmohun Ghose's candidature, an English committee to promote the object is now being formed.

LORD RIPON'S SUCCESSOR.—The Earl of Dufferin will leave London on Thursday, November 6th, to assume his duties as Viceroy of India. He will travel from Charing-cross via Vienna and Trieste. At the latter place one of Her Majesty's ships will, it is expected, be in waiting to convey him to Bombay, where he will land. Lord Dufferin has accepted the invitation to the banquet in Belfast, and has fixed the 15th inst. as a suitable day for it to be held.

H.M.S. "SERAPIS."—The Indian troopship Serapis sailed from Plymouth on the 1st inst. for Bombay, after having embarked the 2nd Battalion Highland Light Infantry and drafts of various corps. The Serapis has a total contingent on board of 1,850.

COUNCIL BILLS.—The tenders for Rs. 15,00,000 in remittances on India were received on the 1st inst. at the Bank of England, that amount being allotted in telegraphic transfers on Calcutta at an average rate of 1s. 7-562d. Tenders at 1s. 7-9-16d. will receive in full. Between April 1st and September 30th the amount of remittances disposed of had reached Rs. 7,24,46,467, realising £5,944,843.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE.—The Secretary of State for India has just received from Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy, K.C.S.I., on behalf of the native community of Bombay, a memorial expressive of the signatories' regret and disappointment at Lord Kimberley's approval of the regulation regarding the maximum limit of age for candidates for the competitive examination for the Indian Civil Service. The memorialists submit that the limit of twenty-three years, which was fixed in 1853 by Lord Macaulay's Committee, was in every respect most suitable, inasmuch as, while it afforded a fair opportunity to natives to compete for the Indian Civil Service, it also enabled many Englishmen to present themselves for the competition after completing their course of study at the different Universities of the United Kingdom. The opinions elicited from a large majority of the officials consulted in 1875 by the Government of India on this question clearly point, as the memorialists submit, in favour rather of a high than a low limit of age. The maximum limit of nineteen years at last fixed in 1876 for candidates for the Indian Civil Service presents a striking contrast to the maximum of twenty-four fixed for the Civil Service in Ceylon, Hongkong, and the Strait Settlements. Even in England the limit of age for candidates for the Civil Service is twenty-four, and the memorialists submit that the conditions of the Indian Civil Service, especially having regard to the large powers which its members have to be vested with, even at the commencement of their careers, afford potent reasons why the maximum limit of age of candidates for that service should be as high as it is in England, Ceylon, and elsewhere. In order to afford the memorialists' countrymen the same facilities as are afforded to other classes of Her Majesty's subjects it is asked that the annual competitive examination, under the same tests as in England, should be held in India, at one or more centres, simultaneously with the examination in England, and the maximum limit of age restored to at least its original place—viz., twenty-three years. The memorialists do not object to the candidates being called on to stay for one or two years in England after success in the examination and prior to taking office in India. The memorialists venture to think that the modifications here suggested indicate the minimum of change necessary to put the regulations for the Indian Civil Service into a form which cannot be fairly open to the criticism which is now often levelled at the present regulations—namely, that they are made, if not deliberately against the just claims of the natives of India, at least in flagrant disregard of those claims.

OBITUARY.

Colonel Henry Francis, late of the 29th and 64th Regiments, died at Brighton a few days ago, after a long illness, aged 61. He entered the army as an ensign in 1843, became a lieutenant in 1845, and was promoted to a captaincy in 1853. In 1857 he served with the 24th Regiment in the Persian campaign, and he was also engaged throughout the Indian Mutiny, taking part in the defence of the Alumbagh, the action of La Martinière, the second relief of Lucknow, the defence of Cawnpore, and the actions of Kalee Nuddee, Kerkerouille, Bareilly, Shahjehanpore, Mahomdee, and Bunnai. For his services in India he obtained the brevet rank of major, and he became a brevet lieutenant-colonel in 1869, and a colonel in 1873.

Colonel C. H. Barnes, whose death from dysentery occurred at Cairo on Sunday, the 28th ult., entered the Royal Artillery in 1852, became captain in 1861, major in 1872, and lieutenant-colonel in 1878, obtaining the brevet rank of colonel in December, 1882. Colonel Barnes commanded two guns manned as horse artillery by volunteer officers and sergeants in the actions of Nembehaira and Sheerun, in Central India, in 1857. He was severely wounded, being shot through the right breast, at the siege of Neemuch in November, 1857, and received the thanks of the Bombay Government for his services on that occasion. He also served throughout the Oude campaign in 1858-9, when he obtained the medal, with clasp. When serving as a subaltern in 1855 in the citadel of Lahore, during an epidemic of cholera in which his battery was severely attacked by the disease, he showed so much devotion to his duty in attending to the men sick in hospital that the Commander-in-Chief in India posted him to the horse artillery.

Sir James Lumsden Seton, of Pitmedden, whose death occurred on the 28th ult., was the eldest son of the late Sir William Coote Seton, of Pitmedden, Aberdeenshire, by his marriage with Eliza Henrietta, daughter of the late Mr. Henry Lumsden, of Cushney, in the same county, and widow of Captain John Wilson, of the Honourable East India Company's service. He was born in 1835, and was formerly a lieutenant in the 1st Fusiliers, and subsequently held a captaincy in the 102nd Royal Madras Fusiliers. He served in the Pegu, Indian, and Abyssinian campaigns, and saw some active service with the Prussian army during part of the Franco-German War. The deceased succeeded as eighth baronet on the death of his father in 1880, and was married. According to Lodge and Burke, the baronetcy devolves upon his brother, Lieutenant-Colonel William Samuel Seton, of the Bombay Staff Corps, who was born in 1837, and married in 1876 Eva Kate St. Leger, daughter of Colonel Hastings Wood, C.B.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

A wing of the Worcestershire Regiment passed through on the 10th ult. by rail to Mooltan, en route to Quetta. The 1st Bengal Native Infantry passed through Lahore on the 10th ult. en route to Sibi, to join the Zhob Valley Expedition.

The Government of India have approved of the formation of a camp of exercise on a moderate scale, near Poona, in the month of January, 1885.

It is reported on good authority that unmarried school-mistresses of British regiments serving in India are likely to receive an increase of pay.

The march of the troops from Quetta for the Zhob Valley was postponed to the 20th ult. This necessitated a corresponding change in the date originally fixed for leaving Duki, from which place the force will probably now leave on the 5th October.

A decision has recently been issued by the military authorities according to the officers of the Ordnance Department in India, the advantages of the rule under which an officer promoted to a higher grade of a department which involves no change of duties, is entitled to the staff salary of the higher grade from the date of the vacancy which caused the promotion.

Two men of the A-4 Royal Horse Artillery died at Mhow on the 6th ult. of cholera. The symptoms appeared in the morning, and the patients succumbed in the afternoon. No more cases have occurred.

The Madras Government has ruled that officers in that Presidency should not ordinarily be called upon to pay as rent for Government buildings a sum exceeding 10 per cent. of their salary.

The Surgeon-General H.M. Forces in the Madras Presidency has been permitted to proceed on a tour of inspection to Port Blair, Hoshungabad, Kamptee, Seetabaldi, Raipore, Secunderabad, Bellary, and Bangalore.

It having been brought to notice that frequent delay occurs in remitting prizes for skill at arms to soldiers who have quitted India, the attention of officers commanding batteries and corps is directed to the matter, in view to the necessary steps being taken to prevent delay in future.

The subject, so much discussed and always left where it was, of giving the European soldier practically uncontrolled possession of his ammunition, is believed to have been submitted for the views of the officers of the British army throughout India.

The Bombay Government have decided that no horses are to be received for treatment at the cattle hospital about to be established in connection with the College of Science at Poona—the only exception being such animals as may belong to natives who cannot afford to pay for veterinary aid.

The Government of India have received semi official confirmation of the announcement made some weeks ago that Sir Thomas Baker would succeed Sir George Greaves as Adjutant-General of the Army next month. Private letters reaching India by last week's mail make no further reference to General Baker's state of health as likely to prevent the arrangement. Simla society has arranged to entertain Sir George Greaves at a dinner and a ball on the 22nd instant.

Under instructions from his Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, it is notified that non-commissioned officers transferred, either voluntarily or compulsorily, from battalions proceeding home from India in course of relief, should in all cases take rank and precedence in their new battalions in their respective ranks, according to the date of their promotion or appointment.

The following extract from a letter dated London, 29th May, 1884, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, to his Excellency the Governor-General in Council, is published for information and guidance:—"As I consider that an officer ordered to England should not be allowed, except on duty, to stop en route, I have decided that, when a longer time than necessary is taken to return to this country from India, the officer shall be deemed to be on leave without pay, so far as regards the excess time occupied."

The Madras Times says:—"It has been decided to bring back to the Presidency at the close of the Zhob Valley Expedition the 1st Madras Pioneers, who have, for some time past, been employed in making the road through the Bolan Pass to Quetta and thence into the Pishin Valley. The 4th Pioneers will then take their turn at frontier work on relief at Bangalore by the 1st. The families of the 4th will, on the move of the regiment, be sent to Trichinopoly and occupy the lines in Worriore, at present occupied by those of the 1st Pioneers. It had been intended to move the 4th to Palaveram, but, under the new arrangement, it has been decided that the 28th M.N.I., from Thyetmyo, should be brought to that station."

Government have, a contemporary hears, authorised the issue of firewood during the winter months (as a permanent measure) every year to the British and native troops serving in the Quetta district: the time and duration of each annual issue being left to the judgment of the general officer commanding. Camp ovens of a new pattern have been ordered to be made up for experimental purposes, on occasions of troops marching, and at camps of exercise during the ensuing winter. A supply will at the same time be sent to Madras and Bombay for a similar purpose, in view to the ultimate adoption of a standard pattern of field oven for general service in India.

An orderly-room sergeant is in future to be allowed, when on the voyage to and from India, to a wing of not less than four companies, or to mixed drafts of the same strength, or to three batteries of artillery. He will receive sixpence per day extra pay.

Her Majesty's troopship Himalaya, Captain H. St. L. B. Palliser, sailed on the 10th ult. for Suez, with the 2nd Battalion East Surrey Regiment, consisting of 25 officers, 5 ladies, 4 children, 2 warrant officers and their wives, 2 children, 862 men, 22 women, 37 children, and 8 horses.

An alteration in the mode of calculating the figure of merit of Volunteer corps has been ordered. The figure of merit by which the proficiency of a Volunteer Corps will be measured is the average of the individual firing, i.e., the total points divided by the number of officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who commenced the practice. The performances of officers are always to be included in the annual musketry return, and they are to be included when calculating the "percentage of extra-efficients."

The fixed establishment of the warrant grades of the Public Works Department under the Government of India has been somewhat reduced, and will stand as follows from the 12th June, 1884:—

Deputy Commissaries .....	2
Assistant Commissaries.....	2
Deputy-Assistant Commissaries .....	4
Conductors .....	19
Sub-Conductors .....	32

The excess is to be absorbed by making no promotion for the second vacancy that may occur in each of the three highest grades.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &amp;c.

It is regarded as practically settled that the Duke of Connaught goes home in April. His Royal Highness has just passed the lower standard in Hindustani.

Babu Peary Mohun Mukerjee is appointed additional member of the Viceregal Legislative Council.

The market price of opium has recently fallen to the extent of about Rs. 75 a chest.

The Financial Department have, it is stated, concurred in the recommendation for an increase to the Calcutta High Court bench. The matter now goes home to the Secretary of State.

The application by the Rev. Mr. Hastie to the Calcutta High Court for leave to appeal to the Privy Council against the decision of the Appeal Court in the Calcutta Mission Case has been refused.

A report has reached Simla from the India Office that when the Hon. J. Gibbs retires from the Viceregal Council in April, Mr. Carmichael, who recently retired from Madras, will succeed him.

The question of alteration of the rules for the appointment of Statutory Civilians is understood to be in course of active consideration just now, and a despatch conveying the views of the Government of India as to their amendment probably goes home shortly.

An addition to the fine buildings in Calcutta, in the shape of a handsome synagogue, built by Mr. Elias Ezra, in memory of his late father, at a cost of two lakhs of rupees, was opened at Calcutta on Thursday.

The appointment of the Earl of Dufferin as Viceroy in succession to the Marquis of Ripon has given the greatest satisfaction in this country.

The Viceroy's movements on the close of the Simla season depend on the date arranged for Lord Dufferin's arrival in Calcutta. Nothing, therefore, has yet been decided as to the course of the Viceregal winter tour.

On the 6th ult. a man was executed at Burrisaul in Bengal, and an hour afterwards a reprieve arrived.

A Marine Court of Inquiry, which has been sitting in Calcutta to investigate the circumstances attending the loss of the s.s. Madras in the Mergui Archipelago on July 11, has decided that the captain was guilty of imprudence and negligence, and has suspended his master's certificate for six months, granting him a mate's certificate in the meantime.

The health of the Maharajah of Cashmere does not improve. His brain is affected, and the approach of the cold season is looked forward to with considerable apprehension.

The defences of the Attock bridge are to be commenced this month.

The construction of the Sealkote-Jummoo Railway is to be commenced immediately. The funds for the work will be provided by the Cashmere State.

BOMBAY.

Serious floods occurred last week in Guzerat and other parts of the country. Railway communication was interrupted on both the main lines into Bombay, and the last outgoing mail steamer had to be delayed for twelve hours owing to the non-arrival of the mails from the North-West.

The 2nd Battalion East Surrey Regiment embarked on Wednesday in the troopship Himalaya for Egypt.

H.M.S. Briton arrived in Bombay on Friday from Suakim via Aden.

At Surat the river Taptee was flooded to within two feet of its height on the occasion of the great flood of last year. Fortunately, however, the damage done was comparatively slight.

A court-martial is shortly to assemble at Aden for the trial of a young subaltern of the Essex Regiment for assaulting his commanding officer.

The new Chief Justice of the North-Western Provinces, Mr. Petheram, will arrive in Bombay towards the end of next month.

The Maharaja Holkar passed through Mhow, on the 8th ult., in a special train.

MADRAS.

There were 171 deaths from cholera in Madras during the week ending the 5th inst.

A Jesuit College is being erected at Mangalore at a cost of upwards of a lakh of rupees.

The Madras Mail announces that a ticket-examiner on the South Indian Railway, Arcunum Branch, of the name of T. Mootoosawmy Pillay, being the holder of the ticket No. 02,643,750 in the Paris Lottery, has won the second prize of 200,000 francs, or, say, Rs. 96,000. A native of Cuddapah has won one of the eight prizes of 25,000 francs (Rs. 12,000), and several natives in Pondicherry have won small prizes.

Madras has been most unfortunate this year, and the bills of mortality have assumed alarming dimensions. When small-pox, which had prevailed in an epidemic form, had died out cholera made its appearance, and kept up the high rate of mortality. The epidemic now appears to be abating, and the mortality has been gradually decreasing since the 2nd inst. The deaths reported this month from cholera within the municipal limits have been:—Sept., 1st, 45; 2nd, 47; 3rd, 26; 4th, 29; 5th, 19; 6th, 17; 7th, 13.

BURMAH.

A telegram from Rangoon states that the wreck of the British India steamer Madras has been sold for Rs. 4,700. The hull is badly damaged, but the purchasers hope to profit by salvage of the cargo.

In Burmah dacoity appears to have assumed an epidemic form, and hardly a week passes without our hearing of fresh cases. A recent case in the vicinity of Rangoon recalls the palmiest days of brigandage. A gang of armed men, it appears, attacked a house, bound the terrified inmates, and carried off the housewife, together with booty to the amount of Rs. 700.

A Rangoon correspondent anticipates that if there is any truth in the report received by wire from Calcutta of the escape of the Mengoon Prince from Pondicherry and his forthcoming advent at Bangkok, we shall probably have some exciting news from Mandalay before the year is out. King Theebaw's rule, though not, he believed, as unpopular as most people in Lower Burma wish to make out, is not so firmly established with his people that they would be averse to a change. The crops have been bad for two seasons, and so many people have left for the British side that there is said to be a scarcity of both population and money; whilst the disturbances in the Shan States and the rising of the Kachins have not tended to popularise the present reign. The Chinese and Burmese are now said to be falling out, and there have been affrays between them both at the capital and Bhamo.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that although importers have made some further concession in prices, the produce markets remain very depressed, with large supplies offering. Most of the sales effected in sugar again show a decline, including low brown Eastern sorts at 6s. 9d. to 8s., Java cargoes at 14s. 3d. to 15s., and the finest French loaves at 18s. 6d. f.o.b., while beet, which rules the market, is at 9s. 10½d. to 10s., October-November shipment. Should anything transpire to reduce the immense outturn of the latter, a sharp reaction may be expected, as the price last year at the same time was 20s. 3d. to 20s. 6d. per cwt. At present, however there is no speculative demand. Rice has been inactive. In the tea market a dull tone prevails. Fine Congous meet with little inquiry. The common grades are unsettled and again rather lower in the public sales. Indian were steady during the week, but close flatly, as the importers have brought forward a heavy quantity at auction. The deliveries of tea are very large, and the stock in the United Kingdom shows a decrease of about 12 million pounds by contrast with last year's at same date. Supplies of coffee have been moderate, and the demand continues slow, with prices occasionally in favour of the buyers for common to middling Plantation Ceylon and Costa Rica. Receipts at the Brazil ports of shipment have for some time past been large, and the Dutch Trading Company's visible supply at the end of September was 813,900 bags, against 677,100 bags at the same time last year. The foreign markets are generally without life. All kinds of spice have become quiet. At the cinnamon sales on Monday a larger quantity than expected found buyers considering the weight of supply so soon after the previous series, but in some instances a reduction of about 1d. per lb. was accepted. Black pepper has sold for arrival at lower rates.

TEA.—To-day's sales of 8,800 packages passed flatly, but without material change on the rates, ruling at the beginning of the week. Black and red leaf Congous sold from 6½d. per lb.; siftings, 4½d. to 5d. per lb. The private contract market shows no improvement. The China auctions comprised 8,485 packages, which sold without reserve. Black leafs, at 6½d. to 9½d. per lb.; red siftings, 4½d. to 5½d. per lb.; common red leafs, 6½d. to 7d.; good common to medium Hankows, Kaisows, and Pekoe Congous, 7½d. to 11½d. per lb. The Indian sales were again heavy—viz., 6,689 packages Indian and Ceylon and 458 chests Java tea. The quantity of samples to be valued was again too large to be properly attended to by most buyers, and many breaks passed in favour of buyers, especially of the grades ranging from 1s. per lb. downwards.

SUGAR.—There has not been any further alteration in beet, which is quoted 9s. 10½d. to 10s. this and next month, and the market is flat. No sales in West India, and prices have a downward tendency. The Clyde market has been closed to-day. M. Bertrand Silz wrote as follows from Paris on the 1st inst.:—"Rates are with us more than $20 per 100 kilos. less than those at the same time last year, and, moreover, so great is the fall abroad that import pays, notwithstanding the surtax of 7f. which falls on European sugars introduced into France. Therefore the certainty of an inferior crop with us has no influence, and each week we experience a reduction in price, while the temperature continues to be satisfactory. The liquidation of September engagements takes place to-day; 44,000 bags are tendered, and the liquidation is not at present concluded."

COFFEE.—The market is flat, and common to palish kinds of Costa Rica lower. 3,294 bags, part sold, ordinary mixed to good ordinary, 44s. 6d. to 48s.; fine ordinary to middling, 51s. 6d. to 59s. 6d. Of 1,878 bags Guatemala, a good part found buyers at about steady rates—fair to fine ordinary, 46s. to 51s.; low middling to rather bold greyish, 52s. 6d. to 59s. 6d. 105 casks, 26 barrels and bags plantation Ceylon, part sold, at easier prices—low to middling, 57s. to 64s.; bold, 83s. 6d. to 85s. 249 casks 1,850 bags East India went heavily—medium pale grey, 53s. to 55s. 6d.; bold greyish to coloury, 64s. 6d. to 77s. 6d.; fine, 95s. per cwt.

RICE.—A cargo of Rangoon, 1,200 tons, sold at 7s. 9½d., ex quay, Liverpool.

SPICES.—The market for black pepper is quiet on the spot. During the week the business for arrival includes Penang at 6d. to 6½d. A few sales have been made in Zanzibar cloves at previous values.

JUTE.—Transactions are upon a most limited scale, and the market remains flat.

FRIDAY EVENING.

SUGAR.—The market has continued very dull to-day for cone refining and most other kinds, but beetroot has been steadier, with buyers of German 88 per cent., October at 10s., November at 10s. 1½d., f.o.b. The sales of West India reach about 350 casks, including a good portion privately at 9s. to 10s. 6d. for Muscovado. In the auctions grocery crystallised went with little inquiry, but fine qualities were steady; little done. The refined market has been inactive but without change, pieces being 6d. to 9d. lower since last Friday. Stoved goods are without alteration from yesterday. Martineau's cut loaf, 21s. Tate's cubes, 21s.; Duncan's cubes, 21s. per cwt. Dutch crushed is lower. No. 1 in bags, Amsterdam, prompt, 15s. 4½d., f.o.b. Foreign loaves unchanged; Say's 18s. 6d. f.o.b.

COFFEE.—The market is steady for good coloury qualities, but common sorts remain neglected. Trade slow. Messrs. Patry and Pasteur report:—"According to Messrs. Freudenberg and Co., the shipments from Ceylon for the season ending September 30 have been 16,000 tons, against 12,900 tons in the previous season. The accounts respecting the new crop are not favourable, and it is not likely to exceed much the crop of 1883-4. The Government Java crop is now estimated at 1,032,000 bags, but the private crops are not likely to equal those of last season."

COTTON.—A fair demand has prevailed, and the sales on spot include Tinnivelly at 4½d. to 5½d.; Salem, 4 13-16d.; Bengal, 4½d. to 4 3-16d. per lb.

JUTE.—Dull, and no business of interest to report.

SATURDAY EVENING.

WOOL.—At Berlin yesterday 2,012 bales Cape wool were offered at auction, and 1,508 bales found buyers. The competition was fair, and prices ruled about on a par with present London rates. Faulty wools and scoured wools were rather neglected.

THE FISH TRADE.—London Central Fish Market, Smithfield, Oct. 4.—Large supplies of fish. Trade rather dull. Prices:—Soles 1s. 2d. per lb.; slips, 10d. per lb.; lemon soles, 4d. per lb.; turbot, 10d. per lb.; brill, 8d. per lb.; cod, 4d. per lb.; plaice, 4d. per lb.; hake, 3d. per lb.; eels, 10d. to 1s. 2d. per lb.; conger eel, 4d. per lb.; fresh haddocks, 3d. per lb.; skate, 4d. per lb.; mackerel, 2d. to 4d. each; lobsters, 6d. to 2s. 6d. each; crabs, 3d. to 2s. each; dried haddocks, 2d. to 1s. each; fresh herrings, 6d. per dozen; whittings, 2s. to 4s. per dozen; Anglo-Portuguese oysters, 10d. to 1s. per dozen; native ditto, 1s. to 2s. 6d. per dozen; shrimps, 2d. to 3d. per pint; winkles, 2d. per pint; whelks, 1d. per pint; mussels, 8d. to 1s. per gallon; Digby chicks, 4d. to 6d. per bundle.

COLUMBIA FRUIT AND VEGETABLE MARKET.—East London, Oct. 4.—Fair supply of all kinds, with good demand. Heavy arrivals of potatoes. Prices low. Quotations.—Pears, 5s. to 7s. 6d. per bushel; apples, 2s. to 5s. per bushel; vegetable marrows, 2s. to 3s. 6d. per tally; cauliflowers, 2s. to 4s. 6d. per tally; cabbages, 2s. to 4s. 6d. per tally; scarlet beans, 1s. 6d. to 2s. per bushel; greens, 2s. to 2s. 6d. per pozen bunches; pickling onions, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per cwt.; large English ditto, 4s. to 5s. per cwt. ## THE DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS.

W. THORNHILL &amp; CO., Sole Agents.

The Reputation of the "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS," originally introduced into England by W. THORNHILL and CO., is now permanently established. The success of their enterprise has surpassed their most sanguine expectations. "DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS" afford the only instance hitherto attained of the absolutely perfect representation of the real diamonds by artificial means. These remarkable stones, by their purity and brilliancy, support comparison with diamonds of the first water, and are undistinguishable therefrom. They are infinitely superior in every respect to real diamonds of inferior quality. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS were exposed side by side with real diamonds of great value in the Paris Exhibition, 1878, and were awarded a Prize Medal and the highest recompense awarded to imitations. They attracted universal attention and admiration, and forthwith became much in vogue with the grande monde and elite of society. They are now worn at the Court balls, and upon all occasions in London, Paris, and St. Petersburg. They are invaluable for intermixing with and replacing pearls and other costly diamond ornaments. DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS can be worn at all times, even by day-light, with confidence and absolute security. They possess the penetrating brilliancy and lustre peculiar to real diamonds, and the concessionaires guarantee the surprise and pleasure of purchasers. The perfection thus attained is the result of investigations and experiments extending over two generations. The cost, nevertheless, of the DIAMANTE BRILLIANTS is about 1-300th that of real diamonds.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

A MAGAZINE THAT GIVES EXPRESSION TO THE PUBLIC OPINION OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing MONTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

 CHOLERA.

We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescribe and patient alike. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, SYMES & CO., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, LONDON, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, on doses generally sufficient. Dr. GIBSON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states: "9 DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME OF DIARRHŒA." From SYMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880.

DEAR SIR.—We congratulate you upon the widespread reputation this justly-esteemed medicine has earned for itself all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible form of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. J.T. DAVENPORT, 36, Russell St., W.C.

COUGHS,
 COLDS, ASTHMA,
 BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Dr. J. C. BROWNE (late Army Medical Staff) DISCOVERED A REMEDY to denote which he coined the word CHLORODYNE. Dr. Browne is the SOLE INVENTOR, and, as the composition of Chlorodyne cannot possibly be discovered by Analysis (organic substances decaying elimination), and since the formula has never been published, it is evident that any statement to the effect that a compound is identical with Dr. Browne's Chlorodyne must be false. This Caution is necessary, as many persons deceive purchasers by false representations.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR OF CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to. See The Times, July 15th, 1884.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

Our advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, September 26th; Madras and Allahabad, September 24th; Calcutta, September 23rd; Burma, September 19th.

We publish as a Special Supplement to-day the extremely important Minute recorded by the highest judicial authority in India, the Chief Justice of Bengal, on the Bengal Tenancy Bill as amended in the Select Committee of the Viceroy's Legislative Council. We trust that the English Press throughout the country will note the bearings of this valuable State paper, which ought to be decisive in settling the fate of Lord Ripon's ill-advised measure.

WITH reference to the extract from the Pioneer Mail in our impression of the 6th inst. respecting the Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886, we are informed that the statement that the services of Mr. Royle of the India Office have been placed at the disposal of the South Kensington authorities is quite incorrect. In fact, any announcements regarding the management of the Indian Courts are, to say the least, premature.

The Rangoon correspondent of the Times of India telegraphs the following account of the ludicrous position of the Moulmein municipality, which literally has got "the bailiffs in the house":—

The Municipality of Moulmein is in a highly distressed condition from want of funds. Mr. Addis, municipal engineer, who lately obtained a decree for five thousand rupees for wrongful dismissal, has attached the entire property, including a steam-roller. The office is closed.

THE week's telegrams from India, and the gloomy article in the Times founded upon them, ought to arouse the minds of the English people to the thickening dangers which threaten their Indian Empire. If anything could diminish the satisfaction with which the admirable appointment of Lord Dufferin is regarded by the friends of India, it would be the fear lest the general confidence in his undoubted wisdom and power should lull the British public into a false sense of security, and thereby weaken his lordship's hands when he ought to have the whole country at his back in adopting strong measures for undoing the mischief of the recent feebleness and strife-mongering. We have been so much accustomed by Mr. Gladstone to the national attitude which Lord Hartington would call, in the language of the prize ring, "going down to avoid punishment," that, perhaps, comparatively little excitement will be caused by the intelligence that "several British subjects," and a number of women—not to mention two or three hundred Asiatics of sorts—have been done to death by King Thebaw's troops at Mandalay in "a ruthless and indiscriminate massacre." But the Times article seems to show that, even though the British lion is still under the shadow of Majuba Hill, and requires more than all the indignities and atrocities of last week's cartoon in Punch to arouse him, still the language of the forcible resolutions of Saturday's mass meeting in Rangoon may possibly induce some little heart-searching, even in the breasts of the degenerate Englishmen who have been looking on with callous amusement at the disgrace of the English name in South Africa, and in every part of the world.

WHETHER the Times is right or wrong in assuming the chronic desire of the Rangoon people for the annexation of Upper Burmah, of one thing there can be no doubt; and that is, that in face of the eager aggressiveness of the French and other European rivals in Eastern Asia—and considering the undeniable truth of the fact set forth in the Rangoon resolutions, that the populations of Upper Burma, and of the British province of Lower Burma are absolutely identical in nationality, and that the tranquillity and prosperity of the two countries are intimately associated with, and bound up in each other, it must be impossible for the British Government to wash its hands of all the frightful suffering and anarchy that is going on at Mandalay. We do not insist on the point of the massacre of British subjects; for, with the dictatorship of Mr. Gladstone, the old civis Romanus sum days of Palmerston have passed away, and British subjects would probably, on the whole, prefer to be massacred outright, as in Upper Burma, rather than be cow-hided first and hacked to pieces afterwards, as in our colonies in the neighbourhood of the Prime Minister's "God-fearing" Boers. But there is always the probability, nay, the certainty, that the subjects of other European States will, sooner or later, share the fate, in Upper Burma, that a wiser or more powerful despot than Thebaw would perhaps reserve for the special benefit of Mr. Gladstone's subjects: and then, who is to say to France, or even Italy or Germany, "Hands off?"

If it were not a matter of such grave import, it would be amusing to observe how the despotic tendencies of the present Cromwellian régime—Cromwellian in everything but Cromwell's vigour and patriotism—crop up everywhere. We now learn that Lord Ripon has "rushed" the Punjab Courts Act through the Legislative Council in spite of the strong protest of the Senior Judge of the Chief Court of that Province; and the indecent haste is attributed in India to "the jealous dislike of a strong and independent judicial body which the present Government has so markedly displayed." Judicial independence in the Courts of the Punjab is as hateful to Lord Ripon as it is to Lord Hartington in the High Court of Calcutta, or to Mr. Gladstone in the House of Lords.

PRECISELY the same jealousy of independence in the Legislative Council is displayed in the rumoured veto, by Lord Ripon, of the reappointment of Mr. Thomas, as Madras member of that Council, by Mr. Grant Duff. The assertion, said by the Times correspondent to appear in the official communiqué on the subject, that "the reappointment of an official member would be unusual" is simply monstrous. The Times correspondent calls the statement "absurd," but it is far worse than absurd. Why, Mr. Bazett Colvin was reappointed and reappointed until he seemed a permanent member of the Legislative body. Almost the same might be said of Mr. Cockerell. The Times cites the cases of the present official members, one of whom is the almost acknowledged mouth-piece of the Viceroy in the Press, and the other is a warm supporter of the Bengal Tenancy Bill—both of whom have been reappointed. We have often alluded to the extreme state of degradation to which the Legislative Council has been brought by Lord Ripon's audacious packing—as in these cases, and when a magazine article in favour of the Tenancy Bill (as the late Kristodas Pal was never weary of pointing out) was sufficient to secure for its author a seat in Council—and again when the Bengal native members were carefully weeded out in the same direction. The votes of the Legislative Council, thus diligently prepared for by the Viceroy, have long been a disgraceful sham. But the debates, too, as well as the votes, will soon become a sham, if Mr. Thomas and all the rest of them are weeded out; and then the Government printers will be justified in stereotyping a form for the speeches of hon. members—"Jo hookum"—"whatever your Excellency is pleased to command."

THE Committee of the Tirhoot Landholders' Association have prepared a most valuable and exhaustive series of "Notes" on the Bengal Tenancy Bill as amended by the Select Committee of the Legislative Council. We shall take an early opportunity of reviewing these "Notes," which are the product of ripe experience and a thorough acquaintance with the subject. The general view of the Association in regard to the Bill may be gathered from the following scathing summary of the results which the members of the Association believe will follow its passing into law :—

It will prove a heavy drawback to the prosperity of the people affected by the Bill, which is just the reverse of the object the Government has in introducing the measure. It will revolutionise the existing relations between landlord and tenant, and introduce innovations quite unsuited to the ideas of the people, especially the agricultural population of Bengal; it will wholly destroy the amity and good feelings now subsisting between the parties, making the one a determined enemy of the other; will open a wide door to forgery and perjury and subornation of perjury; most injuriously affect customary laws and rights; and, what is worst of all, fetter freedom of contract which has hitherto regulated all dealings, not only here, in India, but in all parts of the civilised world; not merely between landlords and tenants, but all classes of the people.

It will be observed that Mr. Ram Dhary Sahai, the talented Hon. Secretary of the Association, does not reckon Mr. Gladstone's Ireland as included in "all parts of the civilised world."

The Indian Daily News has the following encouraging paragraph on Ceylon prospects :—

Ceylon planters expect to have splendid crops of Asiatic coffee this season. The market for Liberian coffee is so low as to be a discouragement to its growth. Tea is also looking well, and planters are anticipating a real revival of the Ceylon trade. They are not anxious for excessive profits, and think that an estate which can be made to yield 10 per cent. per annum is doing remarkably well.

The proprietors of the Whitehall Review have commissioned Captain C. W. White to write a series of articles on the present state of the army, the first of which will appear on Thursday next. The articles will be written for civilian readers, and will set forth the present condition of the army and the reasons which have militated against the successful working of the present military system. Captain White, we may add, is the author of the recently published pamphlets, "Our Military System: a Note of Warning," and "The Army and the Public: an Appeal to the Patriotic."

CAPTAIN BURTON having neither agent nor publisher for his forthcoming Arabian Nights requests that all subscribers will kindly send their names and addresses to him personally (Captain Burton, Trieste, Austria), when they will be entered into a book kept for the purpose. There will be ten volumes at a guinea apiece, each to be paid for on delivery. Subscribers may count on the first three volumes being printed in March next, and each copy will be numbered and vouchers kept. Captain Burton pledges himself to furnish copies to all subscribers who address themselves to him, and also undertakes not to issue nor allow the issue of a cheaper edition. One thousand copies will be printed; the whole manuscript will be ready before going to press in February, and the ten volumes will be issued within eighteen months.

MR. BORLASE's protégés, Mr. Foggo and the Raja Rampal Singh, have been dancing before Herod, in the hope of getting John Baptist's head in a charger. In other words, the "Indian Reform Association" has succeeded in planting a deputation on Lord Dufferin, to pray His Excellency to disestablish the landlords of Bengal; thereby carrying out, on the part of the Association, the compact with the truculent ex-President of the Farmers' Alliance, under which, as long ago pointed out in these columns, they would support Mr. Borlase's desire to ruin landlords, in return for sundry little Parliamentary favours from Mr. Borlase.

DR. G. B. CLARK makes an admirable chairman of the "Indian Reform Association," according to received Radical principles. His connection with India is veiled in the deepest obscurity; so on complex and difficult Indian problems he speaks with all the authority of the typical "man in the street." If he had only bethought himself, and taken with him Sir John Bennet, Mr. Schnadhorst, and Krao, the talking phenomenon of the Aquarium, as assessors on the Deputation to Lord Dufferin, the Viceroy-designate must have yielded submission at once, and promised to pass the Bengal Tenancy Bill in spite of the "prejudices" of Indian officials and Zemindars.

MR. MARTIN WOOD, as a veteran Bombay journalist, sensibly kept within his métier, and spoke with some authority on the "claims and interests of Western and Southern India." But did it not strike Lord Dufferin as a little odd that the Bengal Tenancy Bill, of all topics in the world, should have been put in the foreground by the "well-informed" chairman of a Deputation that did not contain, if the reports in the papers are accurate, a single person having any nearer connection with Bengal than the man in the moon, that of a distant observer?

AND this brings us to the most remarkable feature of this Deputation. Our correspondent, "Fair Play," who is a Bengal man, and an acknowledged authority of the first rank, justly complains of the dust thrown in the eyes of Lord Dufferin and the public, by the comments on the Tenancy Bill of such men as Dr. Clark. But the reports in the Daily Telegraph, and some of the other papers, state that the Raja Rampal Singh undertook to support the Tenancy Bill "from the landlord's point of view" as—a Bengal Zemindar! We cannot believe that the amiable and estimable Raja—whose eloquence is so well-known at Indian gatherings in London, and seems to have elicited from Lord Dufferin a sympathetic compliment—could ever have put forward such a monstrous claim as this; but we have looked in vain for a modest disclaimer in some of the papers whose reports have, in this way, most undoubtedly thrown dust in the eyes of the public. That the Raja could have claimed to speak as "a Bengal Zemindar" is, of course, inconceivable, seeing that he is neither a Bengal man nor a Zemindar. The worthy gentleman is a most respectable Oudh talookdar, possessing, we believe, a life-interest in some estates in Oudh, and therefore perfectly competent to speak on the land question in Oudh, which has absolutely no connection with, or bearing on, the land question in Bengal. But he has no more concern or lot in Bengal and the Bengal Tenancy Bill than Dr. Clark or any other man in the street. We are confident that the Raja must have explained this important fact to Lord Dufferin; but it is very unfortunate that his meaning was so imperfectly grasped by the reporters.

WE reproduce, in another column, a very interesting letter which has been addressed to the Army and Navy Gazette by Colonel Paske, on the Afghan Frontier Boundary Commission, as viewed by the light of General Skobelev's disclosures made shortly before his death. It will be remembered that Colonel Paske, as long ago as February last, mooted the subject of boundary delimitation, and the urgent need of our at last saying to Russia, in language admitting of no denial, "Thus far and no further."

WE take from the October number of the Journal of the National Indian Association the following items of personal intelligence, regarding our visitors from India :—

In the late Final Examination of the Selected Indian Civil Service Candidates, Mr. Mancherji Pestonji Kharegat, of Bombay, took the first place, with 3,036 marks. He also obtained the following prizes :—History and Geography of India, £30; Hindustani, £25; and Sanskrit, £45.

Mr. Tamiz Uddin Ahmid has passed the L.S.A. (London) Examination.

Arrivals.—The brother and the cousin of His Highness the Maharaja Gaikwar of Baroda. Mr. P. Narayenswami Chetti, from Madras.

Departures.—Mr. Jagodesh Chunder Bose, B.A., for Bengal. Mr. J. F. Kolaporewala, for Bombay.

The Echo has the following alarming paragraph on Mr. Wilfrid Blunt's article in the Fortnightly Review :—

In the new number of the Fortnightly Review Mr. Wilfrid Blunt has a paper upon race hatred in India, which deserves to be read by every Englishman who takes an interest in our Indian Empire. Mr. Blunt may have exaggerated here and there, but he is accurate in the main; and his conclusion is that if at the present moment any serious disaffection were to arise in the native army, such as occurred in 1857, it would not lead to a revolt only; it would be joined, as the other was not, by the whole people.

We do not for a moment believe that the effects of Lord Ripon's incompetence and folly are so deep-seated or so desperate as this account would lead one to fear. On the contrary, we are confident that Indian loyalty is far too real and abiding thus to wither under the blast of four years' misgovernment. That Mr. Gladstone has done India a most serious mischief by sending out Lord Ripon is, unhappily, too clear; but by his nomination of Lord Dufferin he has done his utmost to atone for the former frightful blunder.

THE Journal of the National Indian Association for October has, as usual, a considerable number of instructive and readable articles on current events connected with social progress and education in India. It continues its satisfactory accounts of the movements for the provision of "medical women" for India; and there are some valuable extracts connected with the higher education for women, on the Madras "Needlework Exhibition," and similar topics. There are also two capital reviews—one by General Macdonald, on Mountstuart Elphinstone's Life, and the other by Mr. J. B. Knight, C.I.E., on the delightful "Reminiscences" of an Indian official career, recently published by General Sir Orfeur Cavenagh.

The Englishman says:—

The Calcutta Tea Syndicate have recently addressed to the Government of India in the Agricultural Department a letter on the injury to which Indian tea is found to be liable after it has been packed for any length of time in the lead and wooden packing cases usually employed. According to one theory the damage is held to be due to the chemical action of certain kinds of inferior wood on the inner lead sheeting, and through it on the tea within. According to a second theory, the injury is to be traced to the action of the tea itself on the leaden sheeting. The result in any case is that where such chemical action is set up, the tea is injuriously affected. The evil has attained such serious proportions that the Tea Syndicate propose that a special officer should be deputed by the Government to make a thorough inquiry into the subject. The Syndicate are willing to bear a portion of the expense.

We take the following interesting paragraph from the Simla correspondent of the same journal:—

A Commission of a different character is now being arranged. Some time ago you announced that the Prince of Wales had written to the Viceroy inviting the Government of India to take part in the Intercolonial Exhibition to be held in London in 1886. An official invitation from the India Office has since been received, and arrangements are now being made for the suitable representation of this country at the exhibition. The Government will probably make a grant of five lakhs of rupees for the purpose, and a Commission is likely to be appointed to collect and take charge, in concert with the authorities of the South Kensington Museum, of the Indian exhibits. The composition of the Commission has not been settled as yet, but the officers mentioned as likely to be selected are Mr. G. C. Buck, as president, with Mr. Chisholm, representing Madras; Dr. Watt, representing Bengal; Dr. J. Grant, representing Bombay; Mr. Kipling, representing Upper India, as members, and Mr. C. S. Bayley, as secretary. Native princes and chiefs will be asked to supplement the efforts of the Government to make the Indian section of the exhibition worthy of the country. The opportunity will be a grand one for extending among Englishmen some elementary acquaintance with the manufacture and natural products of India, and Mr. Buck's department may be relied upon to make the most of it.

On the occasion of the Social Science Congress, held at Birmingham last month, there was, we understand, only one paper offered on an Indian subject; but although the writer had been encouraged to send it in, the Committee reported that they could not find space for it. So full were these scientists of parochial, domestic, and other dry-as-dust topics that they could not afford one short hour in which to throw a gleam of light on the social statics and trade difficulties of two hundred and fifty millions, or say two-thirds, of the whole of Her Majesty's subjects. We have spoken of the plethora of "domestic" topics amidst Mr. Shaw Lefevre's flock, and with good reason, for it seems now that the previous run in the Trade and Economy section, which might have been bestowed on the industrial and trade dynamics of British India, was devoted to the peculiarly economic topic of the morals of servant-maids. So it seems Social Science has its humorous side; though "the poor Indian," if "his untutored mind" ever hears of this sharp contrast between imperial and domestic interest, will quite fail to see the joke at his poor expense. It is only fair to mention that two or three of the managers—Professor Bonamy Price and Mr. Watherston—strongly urged that the Indian paper should be read; but then there was only half-an-hour left, and the triumphant Mrs. Kendal had swept off all but two or three of them, the votaries of the dismal science; so the servant-maids and their patrons had won long before India had chance of a start. Vox victis!

It may, however, be remarked that one subject, in which some folk suppose that India is interested, did get a turn; that was Bimetallism. But this taking topic for debate had a hard struggle for entrance. It required all the influence of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, a large majority of which hold by that "ism," to get a hearing. The London Committee of Selection, being mostly of the straitest sect of the orthodox economic school, would not, at first, bear of the heresy having a hearing even amongst its local votaries; but finally they were overruled, so that Mr. Turner read his paper on International Currency, to which the venerable but vivacious Professor Bonamy Price was put up to reply. He did his part with lively confidence; but, strange to say, his dogmas did not satisfy, especially when he tried to assure the audience that the price of gold is not fixed by the mint standard and rate. The Professor was answered, in a short speech of remarkable terseness and point, by Colonel A. Phelps—recently, and, we believe, still Commissary-General of the Bombay Army—who spoke with the authority derived from years of close observation of prices in India. Colonel Phelps also, with much dialectical skill, let light through the supposed armour-plated doctrines of British mono-metallism. But we suppose the London managers of the Social Science publishing department will find they have not space to spare for report of this very disturbing discussion.

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, September 26th:—

Mr. Henry Sankey, Bengal Civil Service, Assistant Commissioner in Burma; Prince Jewan Bukht, the last of the Moguls, a state prisoner in Burma; Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Thomas Harris, officiating commandant 22nd Madras N.I.; Lieutenant-Colonel John Finnis, wing commander of the 5th Punjab Infantry, temporarily attached to the 2nd Punjab Infantry; Mr. Homejee Cursetjee Dady and Mr. Dinanath Raghunath Khote, members of the Bombay Municipal Corporation; Dr. Sheik Hyder Cassum, Bombay Government Dockyard.

FROM MESSRS. W. MORAN AND CO.'S CALCUTTA INDIGO MARKET REPORT, we take the following:—

So far as our advices go, we are inclined to look for slightly more European indigo than was received last year, but the increase is too small to serve as any guide to native returns. Natives generally, say that owing to the poor yield the total will fall short of that of last year; but we still think that the increase of cultivation will counterbalance any shortness in the yield, and we do not look for a smaller total than that of last season. Altogether, in giving a probable total of about 164,000 maunds, we think we are putting the figures as correctly as they can be given.

WE take the following on the Calcutta Tea Market from Messrs. W. Moran and Co.'s Report:—

Prices, since our last, have gone rather in favour of buyers for all kinds of inferior to medium quality. The better classes, and all with good liquors, have been steady at former rates, though perhaps with rather less enquiry. The slight decline noticed is probably owing to a large number of packages offered, 30,878, of these, however, 29,470 changed hands.

THE Englishman gives the following account of the Calcutta Freight Market, corrected to Tuesday, Sept. 23rd:—

Our last report was dated the 13th instant. Owing to the alteration of our Mail days from Saturday to Tuesday, we have a period of ten days to report upon, and we are glad to be able to state that a little activity prevailed which has cleared our market of a fair amount of sailing tonnage. Owners have met shippers freely, six ships have been chartered for Dundee, four for the United States, one for London, and one for Mauritius. Our unfixed tonnage stands now reduced to 42,000 tons. Steam freights have been ruling very low, and poor rates had to be accepted in order to secure cargo, of which there is not overmuch offering.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following extra telegrams were received during the week from the Times correspondent :—

CALCUTTA, Oct. 7.—“The Madras Mail states that the Nizam's Government is attempting to concentrate a powerful force at Fort Golconda. This new brigade, as it is called, will number 22,000 infantry and 3,000 cavalry, picked from the existing irregular forces and officered by natives, to the definitely expressed exclusion of Europeans or Eurassians. A proportion of artillery is to be supplied, and the whole will be armed with breech-loaders.

“The truth of this rumour is doubtful, but the boy Prime Minister installed last February has shown so little wisdom in the conduct of affairs that it is quite possible he may be contemplating this crowning act of presumption and folly.

“The Zhob Valley Expedition has so far met with no opposition, and the health and spirits of the troops are good.”

CALCUTTA, Oct. 10.—“The Ameer of Afghanistan, on recovering his health, devoted the proceeds of the congratulatory offerings which were made to him to the construction of a road from Sherpur to Pamunar.

“He is much pleased with the British present of a portable engine, with the metals and equipment for two miles of a light railway.

“Abdul Kudas Khan, late Governor of Herat, has had his confiscated property restored to him.

SIMLA, Oct. 7.—“The Zhob Valley expeditionary force has arrived from Quetta at Duki, the rendezvous at the entrance of the valley.”—Reuter.

The following is from the Times correspondent, dated Quetta, Oct. 9 :—

“The leading echelon of the Afghan Commission is now 75 miles across the desert. The arrangements are working admirably, and the general health of the troops is good.”

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times correspondent at Calcutta, dated Oct. 12 :—

“The Punjab Courts Act, which has just been hurried through the Legislature, appears to give so little satisfaction that in the province comments are freely made on the haste with which it was passed, before the public had had time to consider the recommendations of the Select Committee. It is understood that Mr. Justice Plowden, senior judge of the Punjab Chief Court, wrote a strong protest against the measure, drawing especial attention to the danger of limiting the facilities for appeal in a province which possesses but an indifferent judiciary establishment. The Act, moreover, makes no provision to meet the crying want of the province—namely, that of the strengthening of the Chief Court; and it is openly asserted in many quarters that this omission is due to the jealous dislike of a strong and independent judicial body which the present Government has so markedly displayed—as witness its attitude towards the Calcutta High Court.

“Colonel Chapman, C.B., Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief, delivered a lecture at Simla on Friday last on the subject of the employment of Reserve soldiers of the British and Native armies. The Viceroy, who was present, spoke in support of the lecturer's proposals, dwelling strongly on the necessity for county organizations, each to aid in procuring work for the discharged soldiers of the county regiment, and describing the matter as one of national importance, which could only succeed if taken up by the general public.

“Mr. Thomas, the Madras member of the Supreme Legislative Council, has just completed his two years' term of office. A report has been going the round of the newspapers that the Madras Government had nominated him for a second term, but that the Viceroy had vetoed the nomination on the ground of his opposition to the Ilbert Bill last year. It is further stated that the appointment was then offered successively to Messrs. Garstin, Whiteside, and Wilson, of the Madras Civil Service, who all refused to accept the seat, if coupled with the condition that they must vote according to order. A very guarded contradiction of these allegations, bearing clear marks of official inspiration, has appeared in the home journals. This states that no nomination has yet been made, and therefore no veto has been called for, and that the reappointment of an official member would be unusual. This last statement is absurd. Two of the present official members—namely, Mr. Reynolds and Dr. Hunter—both commenced a second term last year, and many other instances might be cited. As it is well known that the Viceroy strongly resented the attitude of Mr. Thomas on the Ilbert Bill, it will require a much plainer contradiction to convince the public that the rumours are altogether unfounded.

“The letters on the armies of the Native States, which were lately published in the Times, have attracted much attention in India; and the Anglo-Indian newspapers are all but unanimous in urging that it is time the Government should take this matter into serious consideration. The rumour that the Nizam was forming a strong brigade at Golconda, which I recently telegraphed, lends additional force to the arguments of the Times on the subject. The letter in which your Singapore correspondent pointed out the defenceless state of that port has also given much food for reflection; his remarks being equally applicable to Bombay, Madras, Kurrachee, and Rangoon, all of which ports are practically at the mercy of a passing corvette; while Calcutta owes such safety as she possesses rather to the intricate navigation of the Hooghly than to military defences.

“The cause of the recent accident on the Eastern Bengal Railway continues to be a mystery, though the official report attributes the occurrence to disregard of the signals by the driver of the mail train. The driver died shortly after the accident, and is, therefore, unable to defend himself. A careful examination of the available evidence would, however, seem to point to confusion and blundering on the part of the Aranghaty Station officials; and it is clear that these men, all of whom are natives, were found quite useless from terror immediately after the accident. The newspapers comment severely on the reticence observed by the railway authorities, while their action in burying the dead in one large grave a few hours after the collision, and without awaiting the arrival of their friends, calls forth general reprobation. It is also stated that since the Government took over the railway in July, dangerous economies have been introduced, but the truth of this assertion is doubtful. A full public inquiry is urgently called for, and it is to be hoped that it will be held without delay.

“Relief works are now in full operation in Nulhatti Thannah, of the Beerbhoom district. Most of the able-bodied males are employed upon the earthwork for the new Bengal-Nagpore Railway, which lies close at hand. The Bengal Government and the district officials are fully alive to the emergency. The Lieutenant-Governor will probably visit the spot at the end of the month. Some distress may also occur in portions of the Gya and Burdwan districts; but any extensive suffering is improbable. The reports from all other parts of the province are favourable.

“Agricultural prospects are improving in Madras, except in the Coimbatore, Bellary, and Madura districts. Rain is also wanted in portions of the Deccan and the South Mahratta country.

“Owing to the heavy rain and the floating of the rivers near Umballa all communication with Simla, except by telegraph, was cut off for thirty-six hours last week. This gives another strong argument against the removal of the seat of Government to the hills.

“The Duke and Duchess of Connaught visited the Khyber Pass last week, going as far as Ali Musjid. They have now entered Cashmere. An enthusiastic reception has been accorded them wherever they have passed.”

CALCUTTA, Oct. 12.—“There are conflicting accounts of the origin of the massacre which it appears has been perpetrated in Mandalay gaol. One story is that the prisoners having heard that some of their number were about to be executed, tried to break out. Another is that a rising was instigated by some of Thebaw's Ministers, who had been coquetting with the Mengwoon Prince, and who desired an excuse for massacring certain prisoners who knew their secrets. Whatever be the truth of this it is certain that some kind of rising, real or pretended, occurred; and that the gaol was speedily surrounded with troops, who commenced a ruthless and indiscriminate massacre, showing no mercy either to sex or age. The number of victims is variously estimated at from 150 to 300, including the gaoler and several persons other than prisoners, and including also several British subjects, eleven women, three Chinamen, and two Burmese Princes. After the butchery the bodies were mutilated and exposed for two or three days, and the heads were paraded on poles through the city. It is stated that meanwhile the King and his Court were holding high festival over the event, and giving rich rewards to those butchers who could boast of the largest number of victims.

“The massacre has aroused a feeling of profound horror throughout British Burmah, and an indignation meeting was held at Rangoon yesterday. While, however, no one can avoid a sentiment of disgust at this fresh outburst of Thebaw's savage cruelty, care should be taken not to attach too much importance to the utterances which may fall from Rangoon speakers, as the community in that place, always eager for the annexation of Upper Burmah, is only too likely to use this incident as an argument in favour of this policy.”

LATER.

At the great meeting held in Rangoon yesterday to denounce the Mandalay massacre, many nationalities and creeds were represented, the Burmans predominating. The first resolution was :—

“That this meeting desires to bring to the special notice of Her Majesty's Government the misery and distress which the misgovernment in Upper Burmah, under its present ruler, culminating in the recent massacres, is entailing on the inhabitants of that country.”

The second was :—

“That, considering that this province of British Burmah has a population of the same nationality as Upper Burmah, and that the tranquillity and prosperity of the two countries are intimately associated with, and bound up in, each other, this meeting desires to urge upon Her Majesty's Government the absolute necessity of an immediate interference."

The third was:—

"That while this meeting has no desire to dictate to Her Majesty's Government, it is of opinion that immediate action is necessary, and strongly recommends the annexation of Upper Burmah, or failing this, that it should be placed in the position of a protected State, with a Prince other than the present ruler on the throne."

According to the latest reports the Zhob Valley expedition was progressing quietly and satisfactorily, and several of the neighbouring tribes had made submission.

EDUCATION IN INDIA.—The Rev. E. E. Jenkins, an ex-president of the Wesleyan Conference, is about to leave for India on an educational mission. His object, it is said, will be to inquire into, and report upon, the practicability of extending the Wesleyan educational system to the villages of India.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.—The next competitive examination for admission to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, will be held at the London University, Burlington-gardens, on the 2nd December next and following days. The medical examination of candidates will take place at 109, Victoria-street, Westminster, on 1st December.

On Monday Lord Dufferin had a long interview with Lord Kimberley at the India Office, afterwards calling at Downing-street, while the Cabinet was sitting.

THE NEW VICEROY OF INDIA.—A deputation from the executive committee of the Indian Reform Association had an interview with Lord Dufferin on Tuesday afternoon to explain the objects of the association, and to invite his attention prominently to the Bengal Rent Bill and the Indian Civil Service questions. Dr. Clark, chairman of the Executive Committee, explained the origin of the association, and its action on these two questions, memorials on each having been presented to the Secretary of State for India in Council. In reference to the Bengal Tenancy Bill, Dr. Clark referred Lord Dufferin to the various inquiries and reports on which the present measure was founded, especially to the report of the Commission appointed under Lord Lytton's Government, and completed soon after Lord Ripon's accession to office. On both these questions Lord Dufferin assured the deputation that he approached them with an unbiased mind, and was quite open to further information. The Rajah Rampal Singh bore testimony to the feelings of gratitude and goodwill that had been called forth among the natives of India by Lord Ripon's policy, and assured Lord Dufferin that it was in his power to foster those sentiments by pursuing a policy of justice and conciliation, and thus to unite both peoples in firm and loyal attachment to the Crown. Major Evans Bell advocated a policy of utilising, under Imperial authority, whatever military forces the native States possessed, instead of the present policy of "watching," which involved a large addition to the Imperial forces. Mr. W. Martin Wood expressed the hope that as Viceroy his Excellency would always have regard to the claims and interests of Western and Southern India. One of the chief difficulties in connection with India was the poverty of the masses of the population and the general impecuniosity of the country. To make any large reduction in the home charges paid by the Government of India might not be practicable; but he believed that every earnest Anglo-Indian statesman would constantly aim at lessening them, especially unproductive military charges so constantly liable to enhancement by pressure from the patronage and spending department in England. But there was one easy method of lessening the pressure of those charges, that was by the vigorous prosecution of productive public works by the cheap funds of Europe. In this way the amount of remittances would be lessened, and the funds being employed in India itself, industry would be stimulated and the condition of the people improved. Though extension of railways in India was a popular policy, he submitted that the great want of agricultural India was the storage of water and cheap inland navigation. For public works of this kind all the materials required were in India itself, and though railways could convey grain it was only water that could ensure growth of food supplies and protection from drought. Lord Dufferin expressed his cordial thanks to the gentlemen present for the information they had given him on so many subjects of interest connected with India, and said the occasion had been specially interesting to him, as it was the first opportunity he had had of observing the able and eloquent manner in which Indian gentlemen could express themselves on public affairs. He would not be expected to do more than assure the deputation that he should carefully study the various questions to which they had drawn his attention, with an earnest and conscientious desire to fulfil, to the best of his powers, his share of the responsibilities of this country towards India and her peoples.

THE half-yearly general meeting of the shareholders of the Delhi and London Bank (Limited) was held on the 8th inst. at the offices, Royal Bank-buildings, Bishopsgate-street Within, Mr. David H. Small presiding. In moving the adoption of the report, which proposed a dividend for the half-year at the rate of six per cent. per annum, the Chairman stated that since the last meeting six months ago there had been no marked change in the bank's affairs to call particular attention to. In common with others they much regretted the failure of the Oriental Bank Corporation, although the failure had not in any way diminished the confidence of the public in other Indian Banks. Major-General John Clarke seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

THE report of the directors of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company for the six months ended June 30, 1884, states that the gross receipts, inclusive of Government subsidies, have amounted during the half-year to £237,672 11s. 5d., against £213,729 4s. 5d. for the corresponding period of 1883, showing an increase of £23,943 7s. The working and other expenses (including £22,784 5s. 9d. for cost of repairs and laying of new cables and expenses of ships) absorb £66,658 18s. 9d., against £62,778 11s. 7d. for the corresponding half-year of 1883, leaving a balance of £171,013 12s. 8d. From this is deducted £2,002 17s. for income-tax, and £41,595 for interest on debentures and contributions to sinking funds, leaving £127,415 15s. 8d. as the net profit for the half-year, against £107,356 2s. 1d. for the corresponding period of 1883. Against this the directors have charged £22,767 17s. 7d. for the partial renewal of the Java-Australian (original) cable. One quarterly interim dividend of 1½ per cent., amounting to £31,250, has been paid during the half-year, and it is now proposed to distribute another of like amount, together with a bonus of 2s. per share, payable on the 15th inst., making a total payment of 3½ per cent. for the half-year, leaving £17,147 18s. 1d. to be carried forward.

Tenders for bills on all Presidencies at 1s. 7-9-16d. and above will receive in full, and for telegraphic transfers on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 7-9-16d. will receive in full.

INDIAN STAFF CORPS.—The Secretary of State for India having, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for War, approved of a limited number of probationers for the Indian Staff Corps being appointed annually from regiments serving elsewhere than in India, revised regulations on the subject have been issued. An officer serving in India will be eligible to become a probationer on the condition that he shall at the time of application have completed one year's actual regimental duty whether in or out of India, and that he shall at date of appointment to a native regiment have less than four years' service and not exceed 25 years of age. An officer of a corps serving out of India is eligible to become a probationer on the following conditions. He shall at the time of application have completed one year's actual regimental duty, or in case of officers of West India regiments, two years. He shall on the 1st of January of the trooping season during which he embarks for India have less than four years' service and not exceed 25 years of age. In either case the period of probation must be passed with native troops, and the date of joining a native corps will be the date of the appointment on probation. At the expiration of one year from date of joining a native corps the probationer, provided he has passed the higher standard examination in the native languages and the professional examination required under regulation, will be admitted to the Staff Corps.

SCINDE, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY.—The adjourned special meeting of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway Company took place on the 9th inst., at Gresham House, in connection with the proposed issue of £200,000 bonds, bearing 3½ per cent. interest, guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India. After an animated discussion between the Chairman and Mr. Sheppard, the meeting broke up in disorder.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

The Silver Market shows no change of any kind. Indian and China rates of exchange are also unaltered. The Rupee Paper remains at 83½ for the Four-and-a-Half per Cents., and 80½ 80½ for the Four per Cents. On Tuesday the Peshawur arrived with £2,352 in specie. The Silver Market remains quite bare of supplies, and although the quotation is still 50½d. per ounce, nothing can be had at the price. Mexican dollars are unchanged at 50½d. per ounce. The quotations for the Indian and China exchanges, as well as Rupee paper, are unaltered. Four per Cent. Stock was dealt in at 102½ 3½ ex. div., Three-and-a-half per Cents. at 106½ 7½, and Three per Cents. at 95½ 7½. In the Indian Railways the Bergal Central Shares receded ½ to 5½ ½.

On Wednesday there was no change in the position of the Silver Market; the price of bars remaining at 50½ per ounce. Mexican dollars have given way ½d. to 4s. 2½d. With the exception of the Shanghai rate, which is quoted a shade lower, at 5s. 1½d., all the Eastern rates are unchanged. Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Rupee Paper is easier at 83½ 83½, but the Four per Cent. shows no variation at 80½ 80½. The Kaiseri-Hind takes out £150,500 in specie, of which, £55,000 is in gold for Alexandra, and the balance in silver for Bombay and Calcutta.

On Thursday the quotations for bar silver remained unaltered at 50½d. per ounce, although the market was scarcely so firm as it was. There was a small business done with Mexican dollars at 50½d. per ounce. The Eastern Exchanges are weaker, Calcutta being 1s. 7 15-32d., Hongkong, 3s. 8½d., and Shanghai, 5s. 1½d. Rupee paper has hardened slightly, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. having risen ½ to 83½ ½, but the Four per Cents. are again unchanged at 80½ 80½.

On Friday the Shanghai rate for four months bills fell to 5s. 0½d. per tael, but the other Eastern rates of exchange are unaltered. Rupee Paper closed at 83½ ½ for the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. and 80½ ½ for the Four per Cents. Bar silver was quoted at 50½d. per ounce, although the market is quite bare of supplies. Mexican dollars have been again sold to-day for arrival at the last price—namely 50½d. per ounce. The result of last week's meeting has caused the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway guaranteed Five per Cent. Stock to fall 2. On Saturday the market for bar silver was flat, a few transactions having taken place at 50 13-16d. per ounce, being a fall of 1-16d. There was no business done with Mexican dollars. The Indian rates of exchange were weak, both Calcutta and Bombay being quoted at 1s. 7 7-16d., a reduction of 1-16d. The China rates unaltered. Rupee Paper was quiet and unaltered.

On Monday Rupee Paper was quiet, and closed rather easier at 83½ ½ for the Four-and-a-Half per Cents., and 80½ ½ for the Four per Cents. The Moselle, from the West Indies, has arrived with £21,413, and the Nepaul, from the East, with £4,758 in specie. The remittance of bar silver by the Royal Mail steamer was disposed of at 50½d. per ounce, a falling of 1-16d. Mexican dollars are unchanged at 50½d. per ounce, little business doing. Telegraphic transfers are reported weak from both Calcutta and Bombay, but show no change in quotation, the rate being 1s. 7 7-16d. Hong Kong is ½ lower, at 3s. 8½d.

On Tuesday the Mozart, from Buenos Ayres, arrived with £65,000 in silver, which was sold at 50 13-16d., showing a recovery of 1-16d. per ounce in consequence of a special demand. The quotations for the India and China exchanges, as well as for Rupee Paper, are unaltered.

NOTES ON THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL, 1884.—BY THE EAST BENGAL LANDHOLDERS' ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER V. (Continued).—ENHANCEMENT OF RENT.—Sections 39 to 50.—Often and often have hopes been held out to the landlords that facilities would be given them to enhance the rent of the occupancy ryots to a fair and equitable rate, which, on account of the unworkable nature of the provisions of Act X. of 1859, they (the landlords) have not been able to obtain. When the Hon. Mr. Ilbert introduced the first Bill in Council, he said "that the two main objects at which our legislation should aim are:—1st, to give reasonable security to the tenant in the occupation and enjoyment of his land; and, 2ndly, to give reasonable facilities to the landlord for the settlement and recovery of his rent."

He also said, in another place, that "Act X. of 1859 was a useful and beneficial Act, and if, as must be admitted, its working has not been successful on some important points, this failure is attributable not to any defect in the fundamental principles on which the Act was based, but mainly to defects of language and expression."

The Select Committee, to whom the Bill introduced by the Hon. Mr. Ilbert was referred, and who have taken the trouble of revising and recasting it in the present shape, also say in para. 31 of their report that "as regards enhancement by suit our object has been, while laying down rules which will be substantially just to both landlords and tenants, to devise a system which would avoid those elaborate and difficult inquiries, the necessity for which has made the present enhancement law an almost useless instrument in the hands of landlords."

Now the questions for consideration are:—

1st. Are the provisions contained in the present Bill substantially just both to landlords and tenants?

2ndly. Has the present Bill removed those obstacles and difficulties in the way of getting a fair and equitable rent in any way or to any extent?

The present Bill deals with the subject of enhancement under two heads, viz.: 1st. Enhancement by private contract; 2nd. Enhancement by suit.

The provision relating to the enhancement of rent by private contract is a novel one, and has no place in the existing law. No such suggestion appears to have been made in the Bill prepared by the Rent Commission. It is submitted that neither the wisdom nor the policy of this addition is at all clear. The ryots having a right of occupancy has a fixed tenure. It is admitted both by the Bengal Government and the Government of India that the ryots having rights of occupancy are far more numerous than those that have it not. It cannot be denied that the position of the ryots having occupancy rights is far more strong at the present day than it was even ten years before. Nor can it be denied that such ryots know and understand the privileges and security of their position better at the present day than they did even ten years before. Nor can any body ignore the fact that the occupancy ryot of to-day wields greater power to check the landlord's arbitrary acts than the latter has to harass the tenants. Nor does it admit of any doubt that the ryot of the present time is far more able than the landlord to dictate and enforce his own terms. The agrarian disturbances that have of late taken place in different parts of East Bengal show most unmistakably the spirit of combination which the ryots possess and which they can and do use with impunity against their landlords. Under such circumstances can it for a moment be conceived that the ryots will be imposed upon or forced to enter into any contract by undue influence? Why then these limitations as are provided by section 41 of the Bill upon private contracts? Terms of a private contract are based upon and determined by the nature of the supply and demand or the likelihood or otherwise of losing something more in any other way than what is given up by private contract. No such circumstances exist in the case of an occupancy ryot. He cannot be ousted even if he would not accept the terms proposed by his landlord. His rent cannot be enhanced theoretically even to anything beyond what is fair and equitable. After subjecting oneself to the delay, trouble, vexation, and costs of a lengthy litigation involving "elaborate and difficult inquiries," one has only one to a hundred chances of coming out successful in an enhancement case. What reason has the occupancy ryot to fear the landlord, what the risk or necessity which is likely to induce the occupancy ryot to enter into a contract so prejudicial to his interest as requiring the active intervention of the legislature to impose so many restrictions and limitations upon private contract for the settlement of rent? An occupancy ryot is not more helpless than a purdanaseen lady, nor is he a more likely person to be unduly influenced than is a debtor by his creditor. Nor does he stand the chance of being more deceived than a ward, who has lately arrived at majority, by his guardian. Nor is his relationship with his landlord one of greater active confidence than that of a client to his attorney. And yet the general principles of the law of contract are deemed sufficiently protective of the interests of such and like other persons. And then why cannot a ryot be left to avoid and annul any agreement which he may have entered into under mistake, misrepresentation, fraud, coercion, or undue influence. And then why should there be a special legislation in favour of occupancy ryots as a class, imposing stringent restrictions and limitations upon private contracts. The restrictions and limitations put upon private contracts at enhanced rates will undoubtedly drive the landlord to a suit for enhancement even in cases where he might have amicably settled the matter out of court. Take the instance of enhancement on the ground of prevailing rates. Even with the restrictions made by the Bill on this head, the landlord is entitled to get 50 per cent. increase by a suit. But by a private contract he cannot get more than 25 per cent. Take another instance; the landlord is entitled to the full benefit of the increase caused by improvements made at his cost or agency, and a court of law will decree him that. But if he were to make a private contract relating this very matter, he could not secure more than 25 per cent. over the rent previously paid to him. It is, therefore, submitted that such a provision, which necessarily drives the landlord to seek the assistance of the law court because he cannot amicably settle the matter out of it, however much he and his tenant may be desirous of doing it, is a most dangerous provision, subversive of all amity and good feeling between the landlord and tenant.

THE SCINDE, PUNJAUB AND DELHI RAILWAY.

At the meeting of this company on Thursday, the chairman, Sir William P. Andrew, effectually disposed of the misapprehensions which appear to have existed in the minds of some of the shareholders, in regard to the responsibility of the board for the method in which it is proposed to raise the capital now required. It seems to have been forgotten entirely that the boards of Indian railway companies are in a very different position to that of directors of ordinary joint-stock undertakings. Indeed, the contract with the Secretary of State provides for the appointment of a Government director on the board, who has the power of veto in all proceedings whatever of the directors. It was this ex officio director as representing the Government who vetoed the proposal that the money required should be raised by calling up the balance of the Five per Cent. shares, and the responsibility for that course and the proposal to raise the money by the issue of Three-and-a-Half Per Cent. Debentures rests entirely on the Secretary of State for India, and not in any way on the directors of the company. In order that there may be no doubt in this matter, we subjoin Sir William Andrew's concise statement of the case, and the reply of the Secretary of State for India to the appeal of the directors that the capital should be raised as the shareholders desired.

"On July 7, 1870, the Secretary of State for India authorised the raising of £2,000,000 capital guaranteed 5 per cent. interest. On Oct. 5, 1870, the company, at a public meeting, sanctioned the raising of the above. On November 14, 1870, shares were allotted in the usual manner, without any pledge, pro rata, to existing shareholders, leave being given to pay in full; this privilege continued from Nov. 14, 1870, to Feb. 27, 1871. On Feb. 15, 1871, an advertisement in the papers announced that the privilege would be withdrawn on and after Feb. 27, 1871, a circular to the same effect being sent to every shareholder on the register; this left out of the £2,000,000, or 100,000 shares, £216,540, or 14,436 shares, with £5 paid. Since the above date no call has been made on these shares, nor any sum received in anticipation of calls. In December, 1881, in answer to a question at a general meeting of the proprietors, the chairman said: 'I am afraid the Government will not allow a call to be made upon the £5 shares. They must call for money speedily, but I fear it will not be obtained in that way.' By desire of the meeting held on Sept. 25, 1884, an appeal was addressed to the Secretary of State for India, embodying the amendment which had been withdrawn by the shareholders in favour of a resolution moved by the chairman that the meeting be adjourned, pending a reply from the Secretary of State.

The following is a copy of the letter received from the India Office in reply to this appeal:—

"India Office, S.W.,

"8th October, 1884.

"SIR,—In reply to your letter, No. 2,445, dated 26th September last, I am directed to inform you that the Secretary of State for India in Council must decline, as heretofore, to sanction the raising of the further amount required by the Scinde, Punjab and Delhi Railway Company, by increasing the amount of Five per Cent. guaranteed capital, and that whatever is requisite must be provided by means of Three-and-a-Half per Cent. Debentures, as authorised by this office letter of the 4th of September last. I am, at the same time, to enclose, for information of your board, copy of a reply which has been made to Messrs. Sheppard, Pelly, and Co., who have addressed this office directly on the subject.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"(Signed)

"J. A. GODLEY.

"The Chairman, Scinde, Punjab and Delhi Railway Company."

—Railway News.

Some misapprehension appeared to exist at the meeting of the Scinde, Punjab and Delhi Railway as to the powers of the directors of guaranteed Indian railways. As a matter of fact, those powers are in some cases considerably modified by the supervision of the Secretary of State for India, and in the case of the Scinde company the contract provides for the appointment of an ex officio director, who has the right of veto on all proceedings of the board. This Government official, acting under the orders of the Secretary of State, vetoed the proposal of the directors to raise the new capital required by the calling up of the balance of the guaranteed five per cent. shares, and it was the Secretary of State who directed the board to raise the sum required by means of three-and-a-half per cent. debentures instead of by the more liberal method proposed by the directors, and they had, therefore, no choice in the matter.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

"ARMY AND NAVY MAGAZINE."

Perhaps the most important article of the magazine this month is that on the "New Russian Highway to Central Asia," by Mr. C. Marvin. If this is really a newly discovered route, it may be very valuable to the Russians, but it seems nearly coincident with, though it may be a little to the northward of the route followed by Lieutenant Shakespeare with Russian prisoners in 1840; and the Russians had certainly built a fort on the Mertvi Kultuk bay on the Caspian in 1834, which they afterwards allowed to fall into ruins, so it is marvellous to conceive that in the immediate vicinity of the fort there should be an excellent landing-place, and a first-rate route across the Ust Urt plateau, which was hitherto quite unknown. In "Ambushes and Surprises" Colonel Malletson describes the battle of Roucesvalles, where Charlemagne's army was surprised and destroyed in a defile of the Pyrenees. "Pepys as an Official" is continued. It is curious to note how at that time the British fleet was considerably outnumbered by that of Holland, a supremacy that required the expenditure of much blood and treasure to surmount. In the article on the "Federation of the British Empire" Mr. Morgan Fenwolf recommends the formation of a Zollverein, or commercial union, between Great Britain and her colonies, showing that this was the foundation of the unity of the present Prussian power. Colonel Hildyard gives an excellent account of the "Armed Forces of Morocco," and an account of "Formosa and its Coal Mines," by Lieutenant Shore, R.N., is another contribution on important questions of the day. Major King-Harman's "Notes on the Italian Army" will be found practical and minute, and at the same time interesting. The magazine closes with Mrs. Phillips's capital novel of "Man Proposes."

"THE WIT AND WISDOM OF THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD."

There are few authors or speakers who can successfully pass through the ordeal of being dissected and epitomised in a series of "elegant extracts." But Lord Beaconsfield was the greatest master of epigram that ever lived. Many of his pungent and pithy phrases have already become historical, and some of them have actually been so entirely assimilated by the national mind as to have grown into household words. Consequently, his style not only lends itself naturally to this "scrappy" treatment, but is never seen to better advantage than when its gems are thus picked out from their settings and allowed to sparkle without adventitious aids to their brilliancy. To the editor who has compiled the admirable selection from Lord Beaconsfield's writings and speeches, of which a new edition has recently been published by Messrs. Longmans, Green, and Co., the labour has evidently been one of love; and his difficult task has been most creditably performed. One of the most remarkable features of Lord Beaconsfield's wise and witty sayings is their comprehensive character; whilst they hit their particular aim to a needle's point they are often applicable to the whole of a genus. His sarcasms directed against the experimental sentimentalism of Radicals in England are equally applicable to their mischievous freaks in India. For instance, how could one better describe the policy of Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert than by saying that they look upon the Indian Empire as a model farm? We have seen Mr. Ilbert almost avowedly sowing little crops of communism, and socialism, and republicanism, and even rebellion and slavery (see section 41 of his Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bengal Tenancy Bill) as if in mere wanton curiosity as to what the harvest will be; and Anglo-Indians and Bengal zemindars alike could well sympathise at the present moment with the famous indictment of Mr. Gladstone's former Government—"For nearly five years the present Ministers have harassed every trade, worried every profession, and assailed or menaced every class, institution, and species of property in the country. All this they call a policy, and seem quite proud of it; but the country has, I think, made up its mind to close this career of plundering and blundering." The landholders of Bengal have not only been menaced, but they have been actually assailed in their property, their rights and privileges, their social status and dignity, almost (as the Maharajah Sir Jotindromohan Tagore observed) in their very means of subsistence, by the "plundering and blundering" of Lord Ripon's government. We have no doubt that this excellent volume of the wise and witty sayings of Lord Beaconsfield will find a hearty welcome in every library and every cultivated home of India.

SIR F. ROBERTS ON THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.—Speaking at the distribution of prizes at the Lawrence Asylum, Ootacamund, Sir Frederick Roberts, addressing the boys, advised them to become volunteers, if they did not enlist in the regular army. He said: "I am satisfied it is the duty of every European and Eurasian civilian in India to render himself capable of bearing arms, not only in his own defence, but in support of the Government when occasion may require, and for the protection of the many women and children who are scattered over the country."

GOVERNMENT FROM THE HILLS.—The Madras Government has, it is reported in well-informed quarters, received from the Secretary of State an expression of opinion about the impolicy of the annual official migration to Ootacamund, which will probably result in the issue of orders to the heads of departments to spend more time in the Plains.

On the 15th February, 1883, the plaintiff went to the circus pavilion to witness the performance, purchased a ticket, and took his seat in the gallery, which, through the defendant's negligence, being ill-constructed, toppled over, and the plaintiff broke his left leg. He was an inmate of the General Hospital for two months, and therefore lost one year's study at college and promotion. His Honour was of opinion that Rs. 1,000 would be a fair amount of damages, and awarded judgment for that amount, with costs and attorney's fees.

MR. LALMOHUN GHOSE AS A PARLIAMENTARY CANDIDATE.

A PARAGRAPH is going the round of the Press to the effect that "a Calcutta correspondent" announces that the opponents of the Ilbert Bill have determined to oppose Mr. Lalmohun Ghose if he should offer himself to any English constituency as a candidate for Parliament. We have no hesitation in declaring that this statement is a wicked and malicious invention, apparently designed for no other purpose than to keep alive the unhappy soreness caused by the Ilbert Bill controversy, which all true friends of India—Indian as well as English—are most anxious to see consigned to oblivion. This journal can claim to have been as fearless and consistent an opponent of the Ilbert Bill as any other from the very first; and if we had needed any confirmation of our dislike of that Bill, as a measure of intolerance and uncharitableness, it would have been afforded by the statement we are now denouncing. And yet, for our own part, we can only say that, so far from opposing Mr. Lalmohun Ghose on the absurd ground that he was an honest and outspoken supporter of that Bill, we shall gladly do what little we can to support Mr. Lalmohun Ghose, or any other equally competent Indian gentleman, whenever he presents himself to an English constituency as a free and independent champion of Indian needs and Indian aspirations.

We utterly abhor the notion that the wretched Ilbert Bill can possibly be regarded as a political touchstone even in India; and far less can it be so regarded in England, where what we urgently need is more light, more knowledge, more actual personal experience of Indian affairs, which qualifications—coupled, of course, with the obvious ones of honesty, loyalty, ability, and courage—are those for which we should anxiously look in our Indian candidates for Parliamentary honours, without regard to their opinions on such trumpery stuff as Ilbert Bills and the like. Of course, if our Indian candidate should make the egregious blunder of tying himself up so closely to any one of the three parties into which

English political opinion is divided—Tory, Liberal, or Radical—he will expect, if he be the man of the world and of affairs that he ought to be, to meet with exactly the same opposition that an Englishman would expect to meet with. We have, over and over again, urged on the consideration of our young Indian politicians the indisputable fact that, if they make this blunder, they will gratuitously handicap their efforts for the good of their country to an extent that will render all those efforts nugatory. An Indian gentleman, unless he wishes to make his task unnecessarily difficult, should come forward on a purely Indian platform; and on such a platform he would unite Tories, Whigs, and Radicals in his support, and would do honour to his constituency, and most valuable service to the Empire.

Whilst we have always strongly deprecated the importation of English party-spirit into any Indian question, we consider that it would be particularly unjust and illogical to base opposition to an Indian candidate in England on the ground that he had supported the Ilbert Bill. From the invidious way in which the Government put forward that miserable measure, and craftily played on the natural and proper self-love of the Indian community—probably, as Lord Stanley of Alderley once observed, with the Machiavellian object of sowing dissension among the natural defenders of the Permanent Settlement, so as to pass the Bengal Tenancy Bill—we have always held, and have often openly declared in these columns, that not one particle of the odium attaching to the Bill itself and its authors ought to be thrown on its Native supporters. When Lord Ripon and Mr. Ilbert loudly declared that their object was not to persecute the poorer classes of Anglo-Indians, but to elevate the Native magistracy from a position which Mr. Ilbert considered derogatory, mere fairness requires the acknowledgment that little or no blame can attach even to the most liberal-minded fellow-countrymen of the magistrates whose cause was falsely alleged to be at stake, if they failed to discern the trap into which they were invited to fall. At any rate, we trust we shall hear no more of the malicious falsehood to which we have alluded. We shrewdly suspect that Mr. Lalmohun Ghose, or any other efficient champion of Indian interests, will obtain much more solid support from those real friends of India who are not afraid of opposing even the Government itself in the cause of mercy and justice, than from sycophants who will shout for any proposal put forward by a Viceroy.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL ON THE TENANCY BILL.

In the telegraphic summary published by the Times of the Lieutenant-Governor's last despatch to the Government of India on the Bengal Tenancy Bill, we appear to be favoured with the ipsissima verba of the peroration, in which Mr. Rivers Thompson expresses his opinion that "with these amendments the measure will restore peace where unrest now prevails, and insure the growth of the prosperity and contentment of all classes of the agricultural community in these provinces."

It is with considerable regret that we find ourselves unable to concur in the Lieutenant-Governor's benevolent predictions. The amendments to which his Honour refers are no less than nineteen, as enumerated in the telegram; and he must be a very sanguine individual who can believe that nineteen amendments can be introduced into any legislative measure without exciting further controversy. The Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to allow that unrest now prevails; but as he does not explain amongst what classes this unrest prevails, we are afraid that he must allude to the landowners, who unquestionably feel much uneasiness regarding the proposed aggression on their interests. But the amendments offered are by no means calculated to allay their apprehensions or produce peace, except it should come through the ultimate annihilation of the landowners, according to the old maxim, solitudinem faciunt pacem appellant. As to the growth of prosperity and contentment among all classes of the agricultural community, the Lieutenant-Governor surely does not expect the landowners to be more content and prosperous in consequence of his amendments? And if he refers to the cultivating classes throughout the country he seems to have forgotten the testimony of his predecessor, Sir Ashley Eden, who emphatically declared that both in Bengal and Behar the prosperity and contentment of the cultivating classes had afforded him the greatest satisfaction. It is probably not to be understood that the recent discussions on the Tenancy Bill have so checked prosperity and contentment amongst the agricultural classes that it is necessary to revive their growth by stimulating and empiric measures. If this be so, the Government of Lord Ripon has indeed achieved a most questionable triumph.

It would be too great a tax on the patience of our readers if we were to attempt to deal in detail with all the nineteen amendments which the Lieutenant-Governor has proposed. We may first consider them en bloc, and see how they have come into existence. It will probably be in the recollection of our readers that at the end of the last Session of the Imperial Legislative Council in Calcutta, the Select Committee, who had dealt with the original Tenancy Bill, produced a much-revised draft of that measure, which was sent by the Government of India to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, with a copious letter of comment and instruction, requiring the Lieutenant-Governor to procure information and submit his opinion on many debateable points in the revised Bill. The Lieutenant-Governor, accordingly, after the manner of all local Governments, proceeded to consult his official subordinates; and the Divisional Commissioners, the pro-consuls who preside over territorial divisions containing many millions of people, were directed to ascertain the opinions of the district officials, and to report, with an expression of their own views, on certain specific points which were laid down for their guidance. It must be borne in mind that the Commissioners and district officers were not consulted on the general provisions of the revised Bill, or as to the necessity or expediency of amending the existing law; but they were tied down to certain questions and propositions, on some of which they had considerable reason to know the views which were entertained by the Lieutenant-Governor and his officious secretary, Mr. Macdonnell, so that those who desired to trim their sails according to the breath of higher authority might have no difficulty in following the lead suggested to them. But notwithstanding the delicate official pressure thus applied, it is satisfactory to find from the Lieutenant-Governor's own admissions that the new evidence, as he calls it, impartially reflected every shade of opinion in the controversy; and, through all the variances of opinion the Lieutenant-Governor is able to perceive an under-current of agreement as to what ought to be done, though the way to do it is not always clear.

Although the Lieutenant-Governor would thus have us to understand that the amendments, which he proceeds to formulate, are based on a consensus of the majority of the officers consulted, it is of importance to observe that the correspondent of the Times, in forwarding the telegram, is careful to warn us that the language of the Lieutenant-Governor's despatch is very guarded. "Although it might be inferred, on a hurried reading, that a majority of the officers consulted had expressed approval of the principle of the measure, a more careful examination shows that their opinions on its principles were not asked for, and that their agreement is rather as to the manner in which the details should be worked out." It is not very surprising that a considerable amount of unanimity of this description should be obtained from a number of what some people odiously call "loyal" officials, who are naturally anxious to please, and so far as may be to support the views of their Lieutenant-Governor. But whatever the opinions of the Commissioners may have been there is still grave cause for hesitation before we can accept the Lieutenant-Governor's present amendments as a complete or immediate solution of all the difficulties connected with the Tenancy Bill. It is impossible not to remember that the Lieutenant-Governor, and still more his secretary, Mr. Macdonnell, have laid themselves open to the most obvious charge of inconsistency and fickleness of opinion. Twelve months have not passed since we were confronted by both of these high officials, who were most urgent that the Bill in its original form, as introduced by Mr. Ilbert into the Legislative Council, should be immediately passed into law; and Mr. Macdonnell had the effrontery, due to his national proclivities, to threaten the landlords of Bengal that if they opposed the passing of the Bill they should find themselves not merely in peril of the reduction of their rentals, but that the cry of "No rent" might become familiar to the ryots of Bengal. Nevertheless, within the course of a few revolving moons, we find that both these gentlemen have so far seen the error of their former views that they wish us to accept, not their own pet original Bill, but the new Bill as revised by the Select Committee, subject to the nineteen amendments of which we have now received the outline. The telegram informs us that Mr. Thompson, in his despatch, has expressed his own views at great length; and it will certainly require some very powerful argument on his part before we can undertake to accept en bloc the amendments which he has now brought forward.

Turning to the summary of the amendments themselves, there is such a mixture of good and bad things that it is rather difficult to select even a few specimens for comment. It is good that the Lieutenant-Governor desires to omit the absurd and mischievous plan for converting a ryot into a tenure-holder if he sublet more than half of his holding. But it is ominous of evil that it is proposed to insist on a compulsory system of registration, which involves the creation of a new and expensive official machinery, and is calculated to introduce the most mischievous interference between landlord and tenant in supersession of their rights of private contract. It is well that the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to give some relief to Behar, by leaving the right of the free transferability of occupancy holdings to be regulated by customs as at present; but it is difficult to understand why a different rule should be proposed for Lower Bengal, although it is suggested that the landlord in Bengal may put a veto on a transfer if the purchaser be not agricultural. It may well be asked, what consideration for the ryots and actual cultivators is shown by such a provision as this? Why is the landlord to object to a solvent and moneyed purchaser who will pay the rent punctually, and will have the privilege and responsibility of extorting from the under-ryots rent not exceeding in value  $31\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the gross produce? It is with much regret that we see that the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to restore to the Bill the scheme for giving to non-occupancy ryots a right of claiming compensation for disturbance, when this most unwholesome and unnatural scheme had been struck out of the Bill by the Select Committee. We have given sufficient examples of the amendments now proposed by the Lieutenant-Governor to show that they are but little calculated to allay the unrest which now unfortunately prevails according to his Honour's own testimony. Undoubtedly, as Mr. Thompson observes, the Tenancy Bill is the most important subject which has occupied the attention of the Indian Government since the days of the Permanent Settlement; and it is much to be regretted that the practical experience and sound judgment which directed the counsels of the Governor-General in 1793 are so manifestly wanting in the legislative proceedings of the present day.

MISS ELLABY, M.D., Paris, started on Wednesday last in the s.s. Massilia, for Bombay, in order to assist Miss Pechey, M.D., in her practice amongst the native women of Bombay.

TEA GARDENS IN BENGAL.—During the year 1883 there were, according to the last report, some 297 tea gardens in Bengal, scattered over eight districts. The Darjiling and Jalpiguri districts in the Rajshahi Division claim by far the greater number of gardens. In the former there were 169 gardens, and in the latter 63. The Lohardagga district comes next with 30 gardens; Chittagong has 18, and Dakka and Hazaribagh have 12 between them. In the Chittagong Hill Tracts there are four plantations and Manbhum has one, about which, however, there is no information given. During the year under report, the total area occupied by these 297 gardens was 92,836 acres, of which 49,753 acres were actually under tea, and 43,083 acres represent the area taken up for planting, but not yet planted. The total outturn of tea amounted to 10,703,139 lbs., or an average yield of over 1,411 lbs. per acre of mature plants. The outturn from the 169 gardens in Darjiling was 7,628,825 lbs., or more than half of the total outturn of the province. The gardens in the Jalpiguri districts yielded a total outturn of 1,983,124 lbs. In Lohardagga the yield of tea amounted to 249,364 lbs. The six gardens in Hazaribagh yielded as much as 107,762 lbs. The Chittagong plantations yielded an outturn of 718,320 lbs. The yield from the Chittagong Hill Tracts amounted to 13,958 lbs., and the Dákká plantations gave an outturn of 2,536 lbs. The year was generally unfavourable for cultivation, and in several districts the outturn was below that of 1882.

AMERICAN AND INDIAN WHEAT.—A number of statistics have appeared in the American journals showing the imports of wheat into the United Kingdom from September 1, 1883, to March 31, 1884, and also showing how largely the export from the United States to England is falling off. During the period abovenamed the total export of grain from the States to Great Britain was 12,780,490 bushels, whereas in the corresponding period of 1882 it was 21,697,119 bushels. India, Russia, and Australia very largely made up the deficiency. The fact now remains that there is an increased surplus in America over 1883, while the crop prospects in Europe are good. Although as claimed by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce India is capable of supplying not only the wants of the United Kingdom, but of producing an unlimited supply, American wheat can be placed with a profit at a lower rate than Indian wheat can be sold in Mark-lane as a rule. The Indian railway system extends over 10,000 miles of track, and has scarcely penetrated the Central Provinces, which are the best adapted for wheat. Allowing a production for British India of 190,000,000 of bushels, to which require to be added 50,000,000 of bushels from the protected States, not a fourth can be exported, as the wheat cannot be got out of the localities.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

SATURDAY EVENING.

TEA.—Yesterday and to-day no public auctions have been held, and the China market privately continues lifeless; the article as shown by statistics is in a very good position. The largest Indian sales ever held on one day takes place on Monday, when 11,300 packets will be offered.

INDIAN TEA.—Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson state that upwards of 32,000 packages have been brought to auction during the fortnight ending the 9th inst., including 1,000 packages of Ceylon tea.

At the opening sales on the 29th ultimo, a better tone prevailed than at the close of the preceding week, and prices for most kinds showed a slight improvement, but later in the week the heavy sales and large number of breaks to be valued weakened the market, closing quotations being irregular and somewhat lower for all inferior qualities and for small parcels, which in times of free supplies are neglected by the dealers.

This week the auctions have been smaller—the recent heavy arrivals not being ready for sale—but competition has not been very brisk, buyers showing a disposition to wait for the large supplies which are coming to market next week. Comparing closing rates with quotations a fortnight ago, there is a decline of 3d. on the lower sorts of Broken Tea, Souchong, Pekoe, Souchong and Pekoe, other kinds showing little change in value, except the finer grades of Broken Pekoe, which are in demand at rather better prices.

It is estimated that all the imports prior to 1st October, amounting to 13 million lbs., have been brought to market privately or at auction, and that the arrivals since that date, 38,000 packages are unsold.

The deliveries during September, including Ceylon tea, were 5,699,000 lbs. as compared with 4,661,000 last year, making the total increase during the first four months of the season 2,560,000 lbs. The total for house consumption being 15½ million lbs. the proportion of Indian was, therefore, about 35 per cent. against 32 per cent. last year.

The latest estimates of shipments for the season are from 4 to 5 million lbs. higher than last year's total, which, if correct, will make the import for the twelve months ending 31st May between 68 and 69 millions, including receipts from Madras and Ceylon.

MONDAY EVENING.

TEA.—The largest sale of Indian teas on any one day took place to-day 11,365 packages being offered. The sale passed with unusual spirit, the bulk being sold at prices showing firmness all round. Of China teas, only a small auction of green teas has been held, without special change in prices. The private market remains motionless.

INDIGO.—From Messrs Patry and Pasteur's Circular:—"The total quantity declared for sale was 8,750 chests, of which 379 were not printed or withdrawn previous to the opening of the sales, leaving the total quantity to be offered 8,371 chests, consisting of 2,111 Bengal, Tirhoot, &c., 1,837 Oude and Plant Oude, 3,683 Kurpah, 572 dry leaf Madras and Vellore, 34 Bimlipitam, 1 Manila, 21 Kurrachee figs, and 112 sundries and sweepings. The sales which commenced this morning have gone off flatly throughout the day; the only kinds which met with a good competition were a few lots of coloury Oudes, which sold readily at from the last sale's rates to 2d. decline; while the ordinary and undesirable sorts, the bulk of which were sold without reserve, only found buyers at 4d. to 6d. under the rates of the last July sales. There were no Bengals in this day's catalogue. Kurpahs have met with a fair demand, the better sorts, of which only a few small marks passed the hammer, sold readily at from the last July rates to 2d. decline, and the ordinary and low found buyers at 3d. to 4d. under the last sale's prices. Only a few chests of dry leaf Madras passed the sale this day; 1,343 chests in all passed the sale this day, 375 chests being withdrawn, 205 chests bought in, and 763 chests sold.

TUESDAY EVENING.

TEA.—To-day 3,748 packages Indian and Ceylon, and 18,447 packages China teas were catalogued for public sale. The Indians mostly sold at steady prices.

INDIGO.—Second Day's Sale.—During the progress of the sale 419 chests have been withdrawn. 1,707 chests (including the above 419 withdrawn), have passed the sale this day. There is no improvement to report in the sale this day. Good sound shipping Bengals have met with a fair demand at par to 2d. discount, and the defective kinds at 3d. to 4d. decline, as compared with the last sale's rates; but Oudes and plant Oudes have again sold without spirit at the prices we quoted yesterday. We have no alteration to notice in Kurpahs, which have sold readily at yesterday's prices. Dry leaf Madras has not passed in sufficient quantity to test the market. Proprietors have bought in 420 chests, leaving 868 chests sold.

JUTE.—The market is flat. About 3,500 bales sold since Friday. RICE is extremely dull. A cargo of 1,274 tons, Bassein, off coast, sold at 7s. 3d. per cwt. for a near port, and a landed cargo of old Rangoon at 7s. 3d.

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing fortnightly (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion, in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally dulle and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheikh, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND SHIPPERS*OF THE UNITED KINGDOM,

BEING A GUIDE TO THE

Export and Import Shipping, and Manufacturing Industries of the United Kingdom, with theCOLONIES & FOREIGN COUNTRIES.THIS WORK gives a vast amount of information respecting the business carried on between the United Kingdom and the Colonies and Foreign Countries; showing the description of goods, and the amount thereof, exported to each Colony or Country abroad, the British Ports whence shipments are made, the MERCHANTS, FACTORS, and SHIPPERS at the various Ports and Towns in England, the Manufacturers of the Principal Goods exported, and the MERCHANTS AND OTHERS ABROAD WHO ARE IMPORTERS OR BUYERS OF BRITISH GOODS.It also gives complete information as to the various descriptions of goods, and the amounts thereof, imported from abroad into this country, with the names of the Merchants and Shippers, and also the Manufacturers at the Principal Towns of the various Goods imported.The Work is divided into three principal divisions, the first of which comprises the various Foreign Countries and British Possessions throughout the world to which British Manufactures are exported.Under each of these is given, first:—A Statistical Account of the Country, the Financial Position, Business Relations with this Country, with, in the case of Foreign States, the names of the British and other Consuls, the name of the Minister in this country, Consuls, Vice-Consuls, &c., at the various Ports and Places in this country; the PRINCIPAL BANKERS, the MERCHANTS, COMMISSION MERCHANTS, BUYERS OF ENGLISH GOODS, and the Manufacturers, &c., at the Principal Towns of the various goods imported; the various Ports in each country; also the Ports in this country whence Shipments are made; Tariffs, &c., &c.; a Tabular Statement showing the Exports from this country during the last three years; a List of the Merchants and Shippers in the various British Towns; List of Steamers and other Vessels sailing from the Ports; also a List of the various Manufactures that are exported from this country.The second division comprises an Alphabetical List of the Exporters from this country, stating the class of goods exported by them.The third division of the Work embraces the names and addresses of the actual Manufacturers, or Manufacturers' Agents, of the articles exported, describing as clearly as possible the specialities of each Manufacturer.The Times, September 20th, 1884."It is almost exhaustive as a guide to the shipping and manufacturing industries, both export and import, of Great Britain and Ireland."Daily Chronicle, September 12th, 1884."Merchants and manufacturers of all kinds will find the Directory a valuable guide, whether their interests are concerned in exports or imports."Daily News, September 17th, 1884."It abounds in information of the kind which merchants, manufacturers, and exporters are constantly in need of. Its scope, however, is not confined to the classes who in this country have business with the colonies and foreign parts, but includes also the principal merchants abroad, so that the book becomes a tolerably complete guide to the import and export industries of all countries with which Great Britain has any mercantile relation, and vice versa."European Mail, September 26th, 1884."In collecting the names of foreign and colonial firms
—a task of considerable difficulty, as will be understood consuls, many of whom have given personal testimony to the important service this Directory fulfils in com-

THE "VOICE OF INDIA."

INDIA.

THERE are in England large classes willing and anxious to do justice to India, but they find it very difficult to know how to act. They complain that Indian questions are intricate; that the opinions of official experts are contradictory; and that the people of India are dumb, and do not give expression to their needs. This defect is now remedied by publishing FOURTEENTHLY (in Bombay) a magazine somewhat similar in nature to Public Opinion in England, which provides a compendium of all that is most valuable in the native journals throughout India on the leading topics of the day. The Voice of India thus gives forth a clear sound, interpreting between the rulers and the ruled, and making known the true wishes and feelings of the Indian people.

The Magazine advocates no views of its own. It seeks only to reflect with care and accuracy the views set forth in the native press. The Indian people are naturally docile and conservative; and it will be seen that the writings thus brought before the English public are characterised by a knowledge of facts, and generally by practical good sense and moderation. No doubt grievances are from time to time being set forth; but it is a policy of prudence, no less than of justice to give these grievances a fair constitutional hearing. Accordingly, it is hoped that this publication will be subscribed for by Members of Parliament and other public men desirous of dealing with Indian questions, and that the facts thus brought together in a convenient form will be of value to journalists and other public writers. It is specially desired to bring the Magazine before the public in Clubs, Reading-rooms, Libraries, and Institutes throughout England, with a view to promote a sustained and intelligent interest in the welfare of our Indian Empire, comprising as it does 220 millions of our fellow-subjects.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1884.

Notes of the Week.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, October 3rd; Allahabad and Madras, October 1st; Calcutta, September 30th; Burma, September 26th.

THE week's telegram to the Times from Calcutta shows the Lieutenant-General of Bengal "clearing his decks for action," in view of the recent threatening of famine. Happily, however, the danger seems to be diminishing.

THE "growing power of France" in the neighbourhood of Burma is attracting general comment in the Indian Press, as further stultifying Lord Ripon's laissez faire policy at Mandalay. It will be a satisfaction to our Indian friends to find that the point has not escaped the observation of Lord Dufferin, who, in his speech last Wednesday, specially referred to the probability of our soon having a European neighbour on our eastern frontier in India, as we already have one on our North-West frontier.

THE assertion of the Indian Statesman that Lord Ripon has suggested the removal of Sir Richard Garth from the office of Chief Justice of Bengal would be as incredible (as "an act of stupendous folly"), as the Times correspondent thinks it to be, but for two facts. The first fact is, that our experience of Lord Ripon teaches us that he is all the more likely to do a thing because it is "an act of stupendous folly." And the second fact is, that Sir Richard Garth, in his Minute which we published last week, plainly gave the Government warning that he intends to be "at 'em" again if they persist with the iniquitous Tenancy Bill. Now, Lord Ripon does not like criticism. As the Times correspondent remarks, he has always shown himself "high-handed and intolerant of criticism." So to avoid this new criticism he is ready to resort to the worst methods of the most despotic days of the Tudors and Stuarts—those days before the time when the people of England found it necessary to insist that their despotic monarchs should not have the power to remove the judges quamdiu se bene gesserint.

WE deal in our leading columns with the alarming account that has been given to the world by the enterprise of the St. James's Gazette of the imminent dangers that threatens India on the North-West, as described by the most responsible officers of the Indian Government. The passage quoted by the Army and Navy Gazette—understood to be taken textually from Sir Charles Macgregor's Memorandum—runs as follows:—

I challenge any one to disprove either my premisses or conclusions. I hold that certain troops can arrive at certain places in certain stated times, and I challenge anybody to prove that they cannot. But, remember, I ask for proof. I do not want vague statements about impassable rivers, impracticable deserts, stupendous mountains, want of food, bad water, enormous distances, heat, invincible Sepoys, and enthusiastically loyal Indians. If any one does not agree with me let him show why and wherefore. If he can show me that no army ever has or ever can for some reason I know not of, accomplish one or more of the whole of the marches I have given, I will be glad to consider whether it is impracticable, or whether the point cannot be turned in some way. But if he only tells me the usual impossibilities, that Russia is too good to covet anything English, and least of all India; that she is bankrupt, and cannot feed her Army; that she will soon break up into a dozen States; that an invasion of India is beyond the imagination of a nineteenth-century Commander or the power of a nineteenth-century Army; or that it is too remote for us even to begin to think about it, I shall continue to raise my voice to point out what I believe to be a very formidable and near-approaching danger.

"THESE are words," the Army and Navy Gazette continues, "which may well be addressed to such an accomplished statesman and administrator as Lord Dufferin, who, on the eve of his departure on the mission in which all wish him 'God-speed!' has raised up his voice to express his entire confidence in the good intentions and pacific declarations of the able Minister to whose hands is entrusted the foreign policy of Russia in Europe and Asia." Our contemporary, in these words, is alluding to a very general feeling of disquietude that has been aroused by Lord Dufferin's reference to his friendship for, and belief in, M. de Giers, the Russian Foreign Minister, in the capital speech of Wednesday last at Belfast. But it is well known in the diplomatic world that it is not M. de Giers's influence which is hostile to us in Russia. That influence is very small indeed; and there is a vast overshadowing influence, against which, if we are not mistaken, Lord Dufferin's words were intended to strengthen the hands of M. de Giers.

WHEN Lord Dufferin announces to the world that he will co-operate most amicably with M. de Giers in arresting the extension of the Russian Empire towards the south-east—which extension he, Lord Dufferin, declares he knows to be so much deprecated by M. de Giers and the Russian Government—there surely can be only one meaning attached to these words. It is, we think, absolutely impossible to believe (as some, we fear, do) that these words indicate that Lord Dufferin has been "got at" by Mme. de Novikoff and Mr. Gladstone's "Cossack brigade"; or that the able administrator, in whom we all trust so heartily, is going to emulate the exploded follies of the "masterly inactivity" school, with whom one Russian promise outweighed dozens of hard disagreeable facts, such as the Khiva business, or the Embassy to Kabul. On the contrary, we hold that Lord Dufferin's words were, and were intended to be, a plain intimation to all whom it may concern, that the ostrich-policy of masterly inactivity has been cast aside at once and for ever; and that the Russian extension will be arrested at all hazards. Of course, with the friendly co-operation of "my friend, the Russian Foreign Minister," if possible. Rem, quomodo rem; suaviter si possis.

LORD DUFFERIN's masterly speech at Belfast is entirely worthy of the enthusiasm with which his appointment has been received. Its language is full of the Imperial instincts of the "proud and ancient race" to which he belongs. With the exception of the somewhat diplomatic reference to M. de Giers—the necessity for this reference and its bearings we have already explained—there is not a sentence that does not go straight to the heart of the reader. It will, we believe, inspire alike the English and the Indian subjects of Her Majesty with new confidence in Her Majesty's Government.

THE key-note of the speech is struck in the sentence in which the Viceroy-elect expresses the hope that his administration will be an eventful one, and that his name will not be heard of in England until he returns, bringing his sheaves with him in the gratitude of an Empire saved. We hope and believe that that sentiment will also be the key-note of his Excellency's policy. The land despairingly cries for rest—rest from the never-ceasing experiments of the doctrinaire legislator; rest from the ever-increasing demands of the tax-gatherer; rest for friends unnecessarily embittered against friends, for threatened classes, for plundered interests. And we are sure that the people of India will hear of their new Viceroy's restful aspirations with a huge sigh of relief, and with a hopeful satisfaction to which they have long been strangers.

NOR is it the "loyal zemindars"—a phrase full of significance in Lord Dufferin's mouth at the present crisis—or the industrious ryots alone, to whom Lord Dufferin's advent promises to bring a golden age of "uneventful" happiness and prosperity. The appreciative reference of the Viceroy-elect to the "enterprising European settlers," is both significant and satisfactory. And last, but not least, Lord Dufferin rightly and justly devotes a large share of his speech to the Civil Service of India. That Service has often been the object of the eulogy of its most distinguished fellow-countrymen. Even Mr. Gladstone, when he spoke of the necessity of "checking the Anglo-Saxon spirit of ascendancy," offered involuntary testimony to the courage and resolution of that Service, though by implication he grossly slandered its motives and character. But never probably has a well-merited panegyric been conveyed in truer or more graceful words than those used of the Civil by Lord Dufferin last Wednesday.

THE significance of the appointment of Mr. Mackenzie Wallace, as Lord Dufferin's Private Secretary, is hinted at in our leading article. For further hints, the reader may consult Mr. Wallace's Russia—the two well-known volumes, published by Messrs. Cassell—passim. Mr. Wallace is, like Mr. Gladstone, a friend of Mme. de Novikoff, and of many other distinguished Russians; but unlike the Prime Minister, he does not think it therefore necessary to view English interests through Russian spectacles.

THERE will be a soirée of the National Indian Association on the 31st instant. These soirées have grown to be recognised as the best and most successful réunions for Anglo-Indians and our Indian visitors; and it is expected that during the Viceroyalty of Lord Dufferin they will be more popular and successful than ever.

The robust good-sense of such journals as the Hindoo Patriot is not to be imposed on by the "hifalutin" nonsense of pessimists like Mr. Hyndman. Our contemporary writes:—

An insurrection, Mr. Hyndman believes, not of a mutinous army but of ruined people, is certain within the next few months or years. A gloomy picture indeed! Mr. Hyndman appears to be an alarmist of no ordinary type. There is a dash of truth, however, in all his fustian and tawdry rhetoric. But if we try to winnow out the chaff from the wheat very little remains behind to repay our trouble. This much we can assure Mr. Hyndman, that "an insurrection of a ruined people" is an event which is not likely to happen in our generation at least, and he need not, therefore, alarm peace-loving, quiet, sober people by painting in such hideous colours "the coldest and cruellest economical tyranny which has been since the days of ancient Rome."

THE Times of India has the following obituary till the departure of the mail, October 3rd:—

LORD DUFFERIN AT BELFAST.

Lord Dufferin was entertained at a banquet in the Ulster-hall, Belfast, on the 15th inst., prior to his departure for India, to undertake the duties of Viceroy. Among those present were many noblemen and gentlemen from the most distant parts of the country, including Lord Templetown, Lord de Ros, Lord Clanmorris, Sir Thomas Bateson, M.P., Mr. Justice Andrews, Sir E. P. Cowan, Viscount Bangor, Mr. Findlater, M.P., Mr. Corry, M.P., Mr. Dickson, M.P., Lord Ashley, the Bishop of Down, Lord Waveney, Sir Hervey Bruce, M.P., Sir Thomas McClure, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Down, Sir Charles Lanyon, Sir John Preston, Mr. Thomson, M.P., Mr. Mulholland, M.P., and others. The Mayor of Belfast, Sir David Taylor, presided. The usual loyal toasts were given and enthusiastically received.

The Mayor gave the health of the guest of the evening, and the toast was received with great enthusiasm.

Lord Dufferin, after acknowledging the manner in which the toast had been received, and after referring to the many occasions upon which, during the last 30 years, he had appeared before them only to receive fresh proofs of their goodwill and indulgent sympathy, said,—Least of all can I forget that memorable night when, on the eve of my departure for Canada, this splendid chamber was filled with friends who had assembled together to bid me God-speed, and to assure me that, in the opinion of those who had known me best and longest, the honour they conferred upon me by Her Majesty was not considered misplaced or undeserved. (Cheers.) That occasion ushered in the brightest and happiest period of my life, a period passed in one of the fairest regions, within the confines of the Empire among a people animated by the most generous instincts, endowed with all the noblest gifts and qualities which distinguish the British race, and to whom I owe a debt of gratitude and affection whose welcome burden I shall carry to the grave. Since that auspicious celebration twelve years have passed, during which in different capacities I have done my best to render faithful and loyal service to my Queen and country (cheers), and now again that I am about to proceed to a distant land to undertake a task more arduous, more responsible, and, I may add, more honourable than any which has ever been imposed upon me, can it be wondered at if, like the hero of old who was invincible so long as he was in contact with his mother earth, I come back here among you to gather fresh strength and vigour, and renew my youth by once more looking around on your familiar faces, by listening to your genial words of welcome and encouragement, and by taking a farewell grasp of your thousand friendly hands. (Cheers.) His lordship continued—I cannot help being aware that the unanimity with which you, who sometimes are temporarily divided by differences of opinion in the fields both of political and of religious thought (hear, hear), have been pleased to hail my nomination as Viceroy of India—the cordial acceptance with which my appointment has been endorsed, and which it would be an affectation as well as an act of ingratitude on my part not to recognize and take pride in, is a condition of public sentiment which can never again recur to me (cheers)—never again, I fear, no matter what my efforts or exertions, can I hope so completely to unite in their pleasant, harmonious concord the suffrages of my countrymen. The Government of India is not only a laborious task; it is one presenting problems of the very greatest doubt and intricacy from day to day. The most complex questions are submitted to the attention of the Executive, which, from their very nature, are incapable of an altogether satisfactory solution, and in regard to which the choice lies, not between the absolutely good and the absolutely bad, but is dependent upon such a delicate comparison of advantage and disadvantage upon either side as to render it very difficult for even those who have every opportunity of acquainting themselves with the elements of the case to discriminate between them. Out of these circumstances must arise a vast amount of intelligent and conscientious criticism, and while on the one hand it can scarcely be expected that he who is ultimately responsible for what happens will be invariably in the right; it is certain that he will frequently appear to many intelligent observers to be altogether in the wrong. Hence it must inevitably follow that very conflicting estimates will be formed of the success with which the Governor-General of the day is conducting the arduous administration over which he presides. Nor is he in any way entitled either to deprecate the most searching examinations into his conduct, or to be irritated at the blunt and angry criticisms to which he may be exposed. All regard to his personal susceptibilities will naturally be postponed and disappear in the presence of the enormous interests which are at stake and which affect at the same time the happiness of millions of our fellow-subjects in India itself, and nearly touch the honour, the conscience, and the safety of that Imperial Power to whom Providence has intrusted the superintendence of their destinies. (Cheers.) All that a person in such a situation can demand is that one thing, and one thing alone, should be remembered in mitigation of any impending condemnation which public opinion may be disposed to pass upon his conduct, and that is that he is the man upon the spot, that he is the man who must know a great deal more intimately than anybody else what may be the requirements of the situation—(hear, hear); that there may be many a consideration present to his mind possessing the most cogent force which is naturally hidden from the gaze of those who are watching the drama from a distance—(hear, hear); that the temporary puffs and flaws of fleeting public opinion are not always a true indication of the direction in which the wind is blowing; and that it is but just and fair to credit your servant to whom you have once given your confidence at least with the presumption of being in the right until the contrary is shown to reasonable demonstration—(cheers). Above all, let me remind you that when dealing with such vast subjects as those which occupy the statesmen of Calcutta, when handling the tremendous forces which are evolved out of the complicated and multitudinous political systems which exist within the borders of the Indian peninsula, when endeavouring to mould by slow and cautious efforts the most ancient, the most continuous, and the most artificially organised civilisation to be found on the face of the earth into forms that shall eventually harmonise more and more with those conceptions which the progress of science and the result of experience have shown to be conducive to human happiness, the result of the ruler's exertions and the flower of his achievements are seldom perceptible at the moment, but far more frequently bring forth their fruit long after those that tilled the field and sowed the seed have rested from their unrecognised and sometimes depreciated labours—(hear, hear; and cheers). The days when great reputations were to be made in India are happily, perhaps, as completely passed as those in which great fortunes were accumulated. Famous Indian pro-Consuls are no longer required by their superiors or compelled by circumstances to startle their countrymen by the annexation of provinces, the overthrow of dynasties, the revolutionising of established systems, and all those dramatic performances which invariably characterise the founding and consolidation of new-born empires. Their successors must be content with the less ambitious and more homely, but equally important and beneficent, work of justifying the splendid achievements of those who have gone before them by the careful and painstaking elaboration of such economical, educational, judicial, and social arrangements as shall bring happiness, peace, contentment, and security alike to the cabin doors of the humble ryot, to the mansions of the loyal zemindar and enterprising European settler, and to the palace-gates of Her Majesty's honoured allies and princely feudatories. (Cheers.) So convinced am I, indeed, of the truth of what I say that I imagine that the greatest success and triumph I can obtain are that, from the time that I depart from these shores and wave a grateful response to the farewell you are saying to me to-night, even the echo of my name may never be wafted to your ears until at the end of my official term I stand again among you, having won from the historian of the day no higher encomium or recognition than that my administration was uneventful, but that I had kept the Empire intrusted to my guardianship tranquil and secure. (Loud cheers.) Nor let it be imagined that this humble programme is not enough to exhaust the energies and strain to the utmost the abilities and statesmanship of India's most experienced servants and England's wisest counsellors. (Hear, hear.) Things go very fast with us nowadays, and the changes in their conditions and relations are as multiplex and instantaneous as those in a kaleidoscope. Yesterday India was an isolated region, remote from the disturbing influences of foreign contact. To-day we have an European neighbour on our north-western frontier, and before long we may have another on our eastern boundary. Happily I have the good fortune to be united to the Foreign Minister of Russia by the ties of personal intimacy and regard. I am convinced that a more moderate-minded, wise, and unaggressive statesman does not breathe in Europe. I believe his great desire is that Russia should live in amity with England—(hear, hear)—and that no causes of disagreement and suspicion should be generated in Central Asia between the two countries. (Hear, hear.) He has more than once assured me that he regarded the expansion of Russia in a south-easterly direction with regret, and that his most earnest wish is for such a condition of affairs to come into existence as should impose upon that expansion its natural and permanent arrest. I rejoice to think that it should have fallen to my lot to co-operate with a personal friend in arriving at this desirable and necessary result. (Hear, hear.) Nor within the confines of India itself have matters remained a whit more stationary. The spread of education and the extension of railways, the congestion of populations, slow moving as are the habits of Indian thought and sentiment, have created new requirements and demands and fresh readjustments, the successful accomplishment of which will call for the most extensive knowledge and the acutest insight. But it would be altogether inappropriate at to-night's celebration to trouble you with the crude speculations of one who is still an outsider and a neophyte in regard to Indian politics. Yet in one respect, at all events, I am to be congratulated, and it is this—that when I come to address myself to the study of these subjects I shall be assisted by as able a body of public servants, both English and native, as has ever been at the disposal of any ruler—(cheers). I believe that the Civil Service of India is unrivalled for integrity, intelligence, loyalty, and a sense of public duty, and probably nothing has contributed more effectually to impress it with these characteristics than the recruits it has received from Ireland, and especially from Ulster—(loud cheers). I might perhaps be straining our native privilege too far if I connected Wellington with the Civil Service, though India's greatest soldier was a civil servant, and some of her ablest civil administrators have been soldiers. But keeping within the letter of the allusion, where has there existed a more capable and benevolent representative of the Crown than the Marquis Wellesley—(cheers)? What Governor-General has ever so captivated the affections of the Indian people as Lord Mayo—(cheers)? What statesman in either hemisphere can point to such an heroic record as that of the immortal Lawrence—(cheers)? Where can you find a name surrounded by a brighter halo of blameless fame and honour than that of Sir Robert Montgomery—(cheers)? But after all these are but the fortunate few whom accident and happy chance, seconding their inherent merits and native genius, have made known to the world. Behind and beyond these are hundreds and hundreds of other noble and high-minded officials, unknown and unrewarded, who in the solitude of their several districts, burdened with enormous responsibilities, compelled to sacrifice almost everything that renders human life delightful, are faithfully expending their existence for their Queen, for their country, and for those committed to their charge, with nothing but their conscience to sustain them, reinforced by the conviction which is inherent in every Briton's breast, that the sense of having done one's duty is better than name or fame, Imperial honours, or popular approbation—(loud cheers). It is to join these men that I go, and though I dare say there may be many among them superior to myself in ability, as they all must be in experience, one thing I can promise you, that neither among those who have lived and laboured and who have disappeared from the scene, nor among those who are still working for the good of England and of India, will any have set forth more determined to walk fearlessly and faithfully in the unpretending paths of duty—(cheers). What the future may bring forth none can foretell, but of this at least you may be sure, that no act or thought of mine shall be unworthy of my country and its sovereign—(loud cheers).

OPENING OF THE INDIAN INSTITUTE AT OXFORD.

The Indian Institute was opened on the 14th inst. in the presence of the Vice-Chancellor, the Proctors, and a large audience. In his address, the Boden Professor of Sanskrit (Mr. Monier Williams) said that they were met to impart the first pulsations of life to the stone building in which they were assembled by making the institute begin its appointed work—the work of facilitating Indian studies; the work of producing a better appreciation of the languages, literatures, and industries of India; the work of qualifying young Englishmen for Indian careers, and of qualifying young Indians to serve their own country effectively. It had been said, why spend so much money on bricks and mortar? Why give stones when knowledge was asked for? But it was forgotten that a material centre was essential to all educational work. The professor then expressed his belief that those who had intrusted him with the management of the funds so generously subscribed towards the Indian Institute would also wish to intrust him with the first utterances within its walls, and would be pleased that his first words were uttered in an attempt to reply to the question, "How could the University of Oxford best fulfil her duty towards India?" This was a question the solution of which the peculiar circumstances of our position in India made it impossible for a great national University to evade. Statistics proved that out of the total number of 903 members of the covenanted Civil Service appointed from 1856 to 1879 at least 618 were University men. Hence it followed that a large number of the rulers of India were brought under the training of the University. Our position in India was not that of colonists. The climate was fatal to the existence in an unmixed condition of any Anglo-Saxon settlers for more than two or three generations. We were present in India as rulers and administrators, and as nothing more. The only parallel case was the occupation of Britain by the Romans; but the native population of England at that time could scarcely have exceeded a million, whereas the native population of India had risen to 254 millions, while scattered among these overwhelming masses were the ruling class of, at most, 140,000 Britons—civilians and military men all told—and of these little more than 900 members of the covenanted service were the actual administrators of the government of the country. This scattering of a few selected British rulers over the surging ocean of Indian life was like choosing 900 scientific men, dotting them about in small ships on the surface of the Atlantic, and requiring them by the application of chemical oils to maintain smooth water amid storm-driven waves and conflicting currents. When these men arrived in India—sometimes before the age of 20—they had to choose between becoming Judges or collectors, and in ten or twelve years afterwards the welfare of perhaps a million souls might depend upon their administrative energy and ability. It might happen that a youth who in England would never have risen above mediocrity might become a Commissioner, a Lieutenant-Governor, a Governor, or even by a remote possibility Governor-General of all India. How important was it to send out such men well educated according to the true sense of the word; and where could a better training be had than at our Universities? Nowhere else was the whole man better drawn out into well-balanced and symmetrical proportions; nowhere else was there the same wholesome attrition and collision between opposite characters and varying intellects. It was on this account that the Government encouraged the Indian Civil Service probationers—who were selected at an annual competitive examination in London—to place themselves under University discipline. They might choose any one of the eight Universities. Those who elected to come to Oxford were very imperfectly subject to the rules of the University, and derived little benefit from University life. They had to serve two masters, and their London masters were the more exacting. They were not required to pass the University examinations, or to take their degrees, or to carry away with them any University stamp of any kind. The professor thought that if the present low limit of age (17½ to 19½) was retained for the competitive examination, every selected candidate should be required to reside for three years (instead of two) at a University. No option should be allowed, but every one should be compelled to take his degree of B.A. at the end of that period. He trusted that the time might not be far distant when the Civil Service Commissioners would consent to leave the proficiency of the Indian probationers to be tested by the Universities, and might accept their examinations in lieu of all, or at least of some of those now conducted in London. The University of Oxford had established special honour schools of mathematics, natural science, law, history, and theology. It had provided special teachers for the Indian Civililians. It ought now to establish two other honour schools—a school of Oriental "literæ humaniores," and a school of modern Indian languages. The Indian vernaculars were neglected and suffered to deteriorate by the Government Universities in India, but their cultivation ought to be encouraged by Oxford. The masses in India could only be educated and civilised through the medium of the spoken languages. It was the duty of Oxford to help in training all intended for Indian careers—not merely the selected Indian Civililians, but chaplains, doctors, lawyers, military men, and others. There was an Oxford Mission at Calcutta which aimed at influencing the higher thought and culture of the educated classes. The professor had seen the members of the mission at their work, and was deeply impressed by its reality, but thought they would be better prepared for coping with the subtle arguments of Pundits had Oxford a Reader in Indian philosophy, who would lecture on its relation to the philosophical and religious thought of Europe. It was also the duty of Oxford to give some knowledge of India to its ordinary students, who might, as members of Parliament, exercise control over the destinies of India. Formerly, in the absence of telegraphy, Indian administrators were allowed much independence. Now, the interposition of Parliament caused administrative complications. How important was it that the members of Parliament trained at Oxford should imbibe correct notions about India! The Indian Institute was to be a centre of union, inquiry, and instruction for all interested in Indian studies, or preparing for Indian careers. Its lecture-room, library, and museum were by their intercommunication to aid and illustrate each other. The professor had received grants and gifts of Indian books and manuscripts nearly sufficient to fill the library, and grants and gifts of objects more than sufficient to fill the half of the museum now finished. Some had supposed that the Indian Institute was intended only for Indians. This was as great a mistake as to suppose it was intended only for Englishmen. The professor, when in India, had proposed to the Viceroy that the Institute should form a home for deserving natives, who would be supported there by Government scholarships. Lord Ripon and his Council had agreed to this proposal, but Lord Kimberley, while sanctioning the scholarships, had refused to attach them to any particular institution. It was to be hoped that the scholars would still be attracted to the Oxford Indian Institute. Professor Monier Williams concluded by expressing his hope that a spirit of friendly co-operation would animate all who would have to teach within its walls, and that the day of small beginnings would increase in brightness till its illuminating power became an acknowledged factor in the benefits which the University sought to confer.

At the conclusion of Professor Williams's address the Vice-Chancellor said he was there to open the building, but before doing so he felt he was only expressing the feelings of all present when he thanked the Professor for his interesting and suggestive address. He added that it was entirely due to the indefatigable energy and simple-minded enthusiasm for India of Professor Monier Williams that the building stood there to-day. He regretted that from its half-finished condition its architectural beauty, and, perhaps, its usefulness, were somewhat impaired. He agreed with the Professor that England, and, indeed, Europe, owed a great debt of gratitude to India, although perhaps in the far distance. It was necessary for Oxford first to understand and learn something about India, before she attempted to train men to govern the 240,000,000 inhabitants, with their different races, religions and customs. He had been told that Lord Wellesley had caused the following verses of Virgil to be inscribed on the portal of the college at Fort William:—"Redit a nobis Aurora, diemque reducit." He concluded by formally declaring the building open, and expressing a hope that the Indian Institute would create a greater sympathy between India and England.

The building, which is from the designs of Mr. Basil Champneys, is of a modified Palladian character, with details serving to mark its Oriental uses. The interior is fitted up with much handsome Jacobean woodwork. The Holywell-street front is completed in clever adaptation to the line of the street, but three out of the five bays facing the length of Broad-street still await erection.

Telegraphic Intelligence.

The following is from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Oct. 17:—

"A memorial, embodying the resolutions passed at the great meeting recently held, has been presented to the Chief Commissioner for British Burmah, who promised to forward it to the Government.

"Advices received from Mandalay confirm the account already telegraphed to the Times of the late atrocious massacre. There was, it appears, no outbreak in the gaol; the whole affair was organized by the Ministers. They wished to get rid of certain of their followers who had been sent by them to the Mengwoon Prince, and were afterwards cast into prison. The danger was, that these men, when tortured, might disclose incriminating secrets.

"The wretched victims were forced to attempt resistance. An eye-witness states that he saw three or four cut down as they came out to escape from the flames. Several Burmese British subjects are missing, and it is believed that they perished in the massacre.

"The condition of the Shan States is very unsatisfactory. It is reported that 20,000 of the inhabitants have crossed into British territory.

"Thebaw is so terrified that arrangements are being made for his escape to the province from which he takes his title."

The following is the usual weekly telegram from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, dated Oct. 19:—

"The Bengal Government has issued a circular to all the divisional commissioners directing them to submit full reports on the state and prospects of the crops and the condition of the people in every sub-division. Attention is also to be paid to the character of last year's harvests, to current prices, and to the activity or stagnation of trade, and an estimate is to be formed as to the stocks of food existing in each district. Information is called for regarding the supply of water for drinking and irrigation purposes, and the supply of fodder for cattle. Any commissioner who anticipates a failure of the food, water, or fodder supplies within his division is required to submit a detailed statement of his views and proposals on the subject, with special reference to the Provisional Famine Code.

"These reports, which must be sent in by November 1, should place the Government in a position to deal promptly with any threatened distress. Meanwhile, the pressure of want in Beerbhoom and in one portion of Burdwan seems to be diminishing, and the area of scarcity, always small, to be growing smaller. The Lieutenant-Governor will leave Darjeeling on the 27th inst., and proceed to visit Beerbhoom in order to see for himself what is the condition of that district.

"The programme of the Viceroy's final tour has been issued. He will start from Simla on the 10th of next month, visit Umritsir, Delhi, Muttra, Agra, Benares, and Darjeeling, and arrive in Calcutta about December 2, and there await Lord Dufferin, who is expected to reach the city towards the 15th. Lord Ripon is to proceed home, via Bombay, immediately after he has been relieved.

The Punjab Government has issued an important order regarding the tenure of appointments in the Provincial Secretariat. In future the majority of those appointments will be limited to a term of four years, after which period the incumbents will revert to district work. The order meets with very general approval. For some years past the practice has been steadily growing of selecting young civilians of three or four years' standing for the position of under-secretaries, and of keeping them at desk work in a local capital during perhaps the whole remainder of their careers. The evils of this practice are manifold. It tends to put secretaries and under-secretaries in a position altogether distinct from that of their brother civilians in districts, and prevents them from acquiring that knowledge of the country and its people which can be attained only by long familiarity with the daily details of executive work in the districts. A local newspaper, in commenting on this order, hardly overstates the case by saying that a civilian who passes half of his term of service between the provincial capitals in the hills and plains, and the other half between Simla and Calcutta is not much better off in respect of his knowledge of the country than if he had spent his time in the India Office. The Punjab Government has been the first to recognise this evil, and the other local governments cannot too soon follow its example.

"Salar Jung, the Nizam's Prime Minister, has been visiting Simla. His object has not transpired, but it may be conjectured, without much probability of error, that the journey was not unconnected with his known desire to obtain the restoration of the Berars, with the complete discomfiture of the opposing faction at Hyderabad, and to procure the removal of Mr. Cordery, the British Resident, to whom he is not well disposed. It is difficult to get at the exact truth regarding the meaning of events in the Nizam's capital—perhaps the greatest hotbed of intrigue in all India. It is, however, daily becoming clearer that the mantle of the late Sir Salar Jung has not fallen upon his son, and that Lord Ripon made a singularly unfortunate choice when he selected this boy Prime Minister.

"It is announced that the Government has ordered the preparation of plans and estimates for the Scinde-Sagar-Deab Railway. The scheme will consist of broad-gauge lines, extending from the present Salt Branch of the Punjab Northern State Railway, across the river Jhelum, to Pind Dadan Khan, and thence to the left bank of the Indus, opposite Dera Ismail Khan, and also from Shershah to the same terminus, with a branch to a point opposite Dera Ghazi Khan.

"The Bengal Government has ordered a searching public inquiry to be made regarding the late accident on the Eastern Bengal Railway at Aranghatta. Such an inquiry is not only expedient but absolutely necessary, in order to restore public confidence in the management of the line.

"The Calcutta Statesman is responsible for the extraordinary assertion that the Indian Government has requested the Home Government to remove Sir Richard Garth, Chief Justice of Bengal, from his high office, on the following grounds:—First, that he, contrary to well-understood usage, published his minute on the Rent Bill, which was an official document; secondly, that in that minute he discussed a very important case in which the Government was interested and which was still sub judice; and, thirdly, that in the same minute he spoke very improperly of high Government officials. I give this rumour for what it is worth, merely remarking that Lord Ripon, high-handed and intolerant of criticism as he has always shown himself, can hardly have committed himself to such an act of stupendous folly.

It is announced that the Indian Government has accepted the Prince of Wales's invitation to take part in the Indian and Colonial Exhibition of 1886."

"The Government of India, as at present constituted, is not likely to show much sympathy with the views regarding the situation in Upper Burma expressed by the people of Rangoon at the recent public meeting. It is believed to consider that there is no reason for alarm as regards British Burma, or cause for interference with Thebaw. The Indian public, however, seem inclined to take a different view, and while, perhaps, not prepared to go the length of the Rangoon meeting in recommending annexation, most people think that it is time to abandon the laissez faire policy of the last five years. Apart altogether from the question of the general interests of humanity, it would seem that the growing power of France in the East renders a revision of our relations with Mandalay a matter of pressing necessity."

"The Zhob Valley expedition continues its march uninterrupted. Beyond the display of our power, and the examination of this hitherto unknown country, the results of the expedition are not likely to be very valuable."

CALCUTTA, Oct. 20.—"It is stated on the best authority that, contrary to the report published here, no despatch has been forwarded by the Indian Government to the Home Government demanding the recall of Sir Richard Garth, Chief Justice of Bengal. A despatch has, however, been sent complaining of the Chief Justice having published comments upon the Midnapur ryot case while it was still sub judice."—Reuter.

SIMLA, Oct. 20.—"A section of the Kakar Pathans still holds out."—Reuter.

THE BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

The Indian Daily News is of opinion that with so many clashing opinions, with many doubts as to the effect of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, with its extraordinary elaboration of details, it ought never to have been meddled with. "With all this against the Bill—with the zemindars discontented, and the ryots unbelieving—it should not be persevered with at the end of Lord Ripon's term of office." The Statesman, in commenting upon these remarks, says that the Bill ought to be suspended sine die, and exact inquiry instituted upon some such lines as the following, in every district of the provinces:—

"The general character of the relations between the zemindar and the ryot.

"The punctuality or otherwise with which rents are paid.

"The proportion of the gross produce which present rents represent.

"The ease or difficulty with which rents are enhanced by the zemindar.

"The practice evicting the tenantry.

"The circumstances of the ryot, and his present standard of living.

"The wages of agricultural labour. The practice of sub-letting.

"The price of all description of produce compared with the prices of 1793, 1820, 1840, 1860, and 1884."

"What may be foretold with certainty," continues the Statesman, "is that the Bill, from its very nature, will plunge the whole of Bengal within five or ten years into such a sea of litigation as was never seen before in the world . . . If official reports speak truly of the general temper of the ryots, the passing of the Bill will be the signal for these to refuse the payment of rent altogether, as they seem to be doing already in Chittagong, in mere anticipation of the Bill becoming law." The Government is determined to shut its eyes to these considerations, and to bring on a catastrophe whose consequences we tremble to contemplate. Would that there were some magic mantras to open the eyes of Government in time to prevent it from carrying out a measure which is sure to involve both landlords and tenants in perennial misery.—Hindoo Patriot.

THE SAME.

We wonder how long the Government of India will persist in error. It will be seen from what we have said above, that the most influential organs of public opinion, both in England and India, condemn in the strongest language the Bengal Tenancy Bill, which will, as we have pointed out times without number, revolutionise the present relation between landlord and tenant, and breed disputes, litigation, and animosities, that will reduce the province to a state of perennial misery. Surely it is time for the State to stay its hand, and to consider in sober earnestness the grave political issues involved in the measure, which is calculated to create an agrarian revolution that will shatter to pieces the very foundations of society in Bengal. Let the position of the zemindars be strengthened and not weakened, and the happiest results can be confidently expected from the legislation which would protect the rights of the landlord. We would earnestly ask the advocates of tenant-right to consider whether the Three F's—fair rents, free sale, and fixity of tenure—of their political creed would not be better promoted by respecting the rights of the zemindars, and creating harmony and good-will between them and their tenantry than by reducing their political status, and utterly destroying their power and prestige. It is high time that wise counsels should prevail in the Viceregal bureau.—Hindoo Patriot.

THE NATIVE PRESS ON THE NEW VICEROY.

It may not be out of place here to try and obtain a glimpse of what his lordship's views are likely to be about one of the most vital questions of the day, namely, the question of the relationship of the landlord and tenant, by casting a glance at his lordship's utterances in Parliament about the same question in Ireland. Speaking in the Lords, about the Tenure Bill for Ireland, as proposed to be introduced by the noble Marquis of Clanricarde, his lordship, on the 11th of May, 1866, very pertinently observed that "it was impossible for Her Majesty's Government to commit themselves to the principle of a measure which would entail a total reconstruction and remodelling of the law of landlord and tenant in Ireland, unless it was shown that the present state of law was intolerably bad and the moderate measure proposed by the Government would not provide a remedy for the evil. He failed to see any ground for embarking in so wide a labour as the reconstruction of the agricultural law of Ireland." His lordship further observed that "the present law of landlord and tenant had been in force for a number of years and various decisions given upon it. The decisions which depended upon some Acts of Parliament were like the down-stretching branches of the Banyan tree which partake of the character and add to the stability of the parent stem, and before any one meddled with so important a growth which had already struck such deep root in the legal practice and constitutions of the country, he was bound to prove that what he proposed would be to a great extent better than what he intended to repeal." It would of course be premature to assume as to what view the Viceroy is likely to take about one of the most burning questions of the day. But if one may be permitted to judge, so to speak, from appearances, if the noble principles enunciated above will in any way govern his lordship's actions in regard to this most important Indian problem, those interested in its satisfactory solution will, we are inclined to think, have little cause of apprehension, and they may rest satisfied that it will be viewed in the correct light, and that it will be solved in a way conducive to the interests of all concerned. . . . The announcement of Reuter that the English Press generally warmly approve of his Lordship's appointment is significant. He has been trusted by the Conservative and by the Liberal alike. Lord Beaconsfield's Government deputed him to St. Petersburg, and Mr. Gladstone's Government deputed him to Constantinople and to Cairo. The man must have rare talents and tact at whose appointment neither the Liberal nor the Conservative takes any umbrage. It shows in the most unmistakable manner that his lordship is capable of reconciling hostile interests in a most satisfactory way, and is therefore fitted to discharge the very onerous duties of an Indian Viceroy. India is passing through a veritable crisis, with complications abroad and complications within. Thorough conscientiousness, sympathy with the natives, independence, firmness and strength of character are more requisite in an Indian Viceroy of the present day than ever, and Lord Dufferin is not known to be wanting in any of these necessary qualifications. If his lordship be determined to do his duty, as doubtless he is, he will, we are afraid, find that his tenure of office will be anything but a bed of roses, and he will have to face and reconcile interests of the most conflicting nature. His very best talents and powers will be called to play, and let us cherish the belief he will be fully equal to the requirements. His long diplomatic career must have brought him in contact with men of various shades of opinion and with various interests, and he must have learnt to value men and things at their proper worth.—Hindoo Patriot.

EASTERN EXTENSION, AUSTRALASIA, AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—The half-yearly general meeting of this company was held on the 15th inst. at the City Terminus Hotel, Mr. Pender, M.P., presiding. On the previous evening warrants were posted for the payment of a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, with a bonus of 2s. a share, making with the interim dividend a distribution of 3½ per cent. for the past half-year, as compared with 3 per cent. for the corresponding period of 1883.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

His Excellency the Viceroy has learnt that Lord Dufferin will leave London on the 6th of November, arrive at Bombay on the 24th or 25th, and reach Calcutta on or about the 1st of December.

The final official inspection of the Robilkund and Kumaon Company's line from Bareilly to the foot of the Naini Tal Hills took place on the 27th ultimo. Regular traffic will commence from the 1st of October.

At last the project for a Town Hall at Simla has emerged from the official toils. Subscriptions to the extent of one-and-a-half lakhs of rupees in six per cent. debentures, on the security of the Municipality, are about being invited from the public.

THERE is still considerable doubt about the impending resignation of Mr. Charles Grant, the Foreign Secretary. All that is certain is that he goes home in November for one year on urgent private affairs.

A TERRIBLE railway accident occurred on the Eastern Bengal Railway on the 2nd inst. The mail train from Calcutta to Calcutta ran into a goods train at Aronghatta station, and sixty people are reported to have been killed.

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT was present at a masonic banquet at Mussoorie on the 26th ult., and responded to the toast of his health.

THE Simla Fine Arts Exhibition was opened on the 2nd inst. The following is the list of prize-winners:—The Viceroy's Prize, Lieutenant-Colonel A. Pullan's set of five water colours; The Lieutenant-Governor's Prize, Mrs. Jardine's set of five water-colours; The Commander-in-Chief's 1st Prize, Lieutenant Oldfield, R.E., two water colours; The Commander-in-Chief's 2nd Prize, Sergeant Wickham, Ordnance Department, for oil painting of a street in Bombay; The Hon. COLONEL EWART's scheme for a detective police force is being sent up by the Punjab Government to the Government of India, with an inquiry as to whether the Supreme Government would be prepared to carry it out as an imperial measure.

TWO mysterious travellers arrived at Cabul lately from Turkistan, bringing a large amount of treasure for the Ameer, which is supposed to have been a present from the Russian Government.

SIMLA.—The Maharajah of Cooch Behar has just purchased one of the best houses in the station, and apparently, therefore, seems to have resolved to make Simla his summer head-quarters. The house is now occupied by Sir S. Bayley, and is in the heart of the station. On becoming its occupant his Highness will probably find it inconvenient to allow his wrestlers to give those exhibitions of their skill which are so great an attraction to the natives of this place that they seem to flock in a body to witness them.

THE Ameer of Afghanistan is confined to his harem by illness.

THE damage done to the B. B. & C. I. Railway by the floods has been repaired, and through communication has once more been restored.

BOMBAY.

THE Governor of Bombay opened the Poona High School for Native Girls on the 29th ult. Already there are fifty applicants for admission, and 150 Hindoo ladies were present at the ceremony. The cost of the school-building will be Rs. 50,000; and one lakh has already been subscribed for foundations.

A TEAM from Calcutta has been playing a series of matches in Bombay during the week. They were defeated at cricket in a single innings, and were also beaten at racquets (single and double), and in the double lawn-tennis tournament. In the single tournament Garth won the only success for Calcutta.

LAST week's mail steamer was delayed for twelve hours owing to the non-arrival of a portion of the mails from up-country, in consequence of the interruption of railway communication by floods.

MADRAS.

IN consequence of the prevalence of cholera at Cottayam, and along the road leading to Peermade, the Governor of Madras has abandoned his intention of visiting those parts of Travancore, and will return immediately from Cochin to Ootacamund.

H.E. MR. GRANT DUFF, replying to an address presented to him at Verapoly by the Roman Catholics of the district, said:—The Catholic Church can have no loftier mission than to "seek peace and ensure it." It is a mission which is curiously consonant with the attitude assumed by the illustrious personage who now presides over her destinies, an attitude to which, as a servant of the British Crown, I feel great pleasure in paying my tribute of respect.

THE Madras Chamber of Commerce have forwarded a memorial to Government, protesting against the proposed introduction of an overland value payable parcel post.

RAIN has fallen in Mysore, and the crop prospects in that province have much improved.

THE Zemindar of Saptam, in the Madura district of the Madras Presidency, has been sentenced to eight months' simple imprisonment, and ordered to pay a fine of Rs. 5,000 for dishonestly using a forged document knowing it to be forged.

THE THEOSOPHISTS.—Dr. Hartmann and Mr. Judge write to the Madras Mail to correct statements made by the correspondent of the Times of India as to the "shrine." They say that they acted on legal advice in declining to show Mr. O'Flynn the "shrine," and deny that they told him that Dr. Hartmann was the guardian of the "shrine."

THE MYSORE GOLDFIELDS.—Fifteen pounds' weight of gold raised in Mysore was exported from Madras during last month.

THE COLLAPSE OF KOOT HOOMI.—The October number of the Madras Christian College Magazine, which has just come to hand, contains a second article on the "Collapse of Koot Hoomi." The writer replies at considerable length to his critics generally and Dr. Hartmann in particular, and denies the possibility of his having been made the victim of a hoax. We quote the following:—"We do not think that even Dr. Hartmann himself could study the mass of documents in our possession without being satisfied that the hoax has been perpetrated upon him and his brother Theosophists, and not upon this magazine. Dr. Hartmann first devotes himself to the demolition of the Coulombs, with the view of showing that their testimony can have no value. Madame Coulomb was never a true believer, always a traitor in the camp. At the best of times she would call Colonel Olcott a dupe and Madame Blavatsky his master. These things were notorious, and the President-Founder knew them long ago. Here is a letter from Colombo in which several years ago he gives Madame Coulomb a caution:—"Colombo, Sunday, September 25th.—My dear Madame Coulomb,—Another request I have to make: kindly abstain from talking about us and our religious views with the Rev. Mr. Bowen, who is, notwithstanding all his personal merit, our bitter enemy; and with the young men in the house—Padshah and Danodar—with whom you never can agree on religious subjects. You are entitled to your own opinions, just as we are, but why make strife and trouble in the house to no purpose? I would also, if I were you, avoid discussing the Society with any outsider, no matter whom; for it looks bad that one so intimately connected with us as yourself should be thought to be so totally at variance with the views and objects of the Society's founders. Pardon the plain-speaking of a friend. I most sincerely hope that by this time Mr. Kassander has come to a just arrangement with your good husband.—Faithfully yours, H. S. OLCOTT."—Mme. Coulomb.

THE BANGALORE BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.—The breach of promise case has been closed. On the 11th of October the counsel for the plaintiff replies generally on the whole case. Lieutenant Strickland's evidence was very damaging to the plaintiff, and caused a great sensation, because he admitted taking her to a strange officer's house, where she was thrown in the way of temptation. Lieutenant Strickland stated that he volunteered his evidence on behalf of the defendant after the case commenced.

THE coffee prospects are very favourable.

BURMA.

THE firm of Gerber Christien and Company at Rangoon have stopped payment.

AKYAB.—On the night of the 19th August Rs. 2,500 in cash was stolen from the house of one Mee Kra U May of Koodoung village, Mozay Circle, Rathedoung Township. Up to date the Police have not succeeded to detect the culprit.

A PUBLIC prosecutor is to be appointed for the Court of Town Magistrate of Maulmain, salary, Rs. 100.

WE hear that the Deputy Commissioner of Henzada has been requested to give his sanction to the formation of a Burmese Cadet Corps in that town. It is said that 100 grown-up school-boys would soon come forward and join. Captain Butler will, it is expected, gladly aid in the movement.—Rangoon Gazette.

MR. AND MRS. BURGESS left for Maulmain on the 25th ult., the former to join his appointment as Commissioner of the Tenasserim Division.

A THIRD-CLASS telegraph office has been opened at Kyeikto.

RANGOON.—The Directors of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China will at the approaching meeting of shareholders recommend that a dividend be declared for the half-year ended 30th June at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax.

SOME of the Rangoon Receipt Stamp vendors have recently been selling stamps which are a delusion and a snare. Not a vestige of gum remains on the back of the stamps whilst the front is shining with it. The pleasurable result of trying to stick one of these stamps on a receipt and then signing your name on the gummy face of it may be imagined.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

Egypte et l'Europe, par un ancien juge mixte, aujourd'hui juge à la cour d'appel d'Arnhem. (Hollande.) Leiden: E. J. Brill. 1884.

Of this large volume of nearly 800 pages, the first half will be interesting to every educated thinking Englishman; the remainder deals with Islam, a subject with which we are already acquainted through many other sources, and can hence leave unconsidered. The writer, who from the preface-signature is P. Van Bemmelen, approaches his political subject from broad political bearings; giving four chapters on Europe, the East, Russia, and the Future of Europe, while the pith of the book lies in the five chapters on V. The Eastern Question, VI, Rights and International Duties, VII, Usury and Finance, VIII, Egypt and Europe in 1881-82, and IX, The Future of Egypt.

The work is, as it should be, critical and speculative; the language and style good French, disfigured by the French mode of spoiling Arabic words in spelling, and the printing is clear and good. The ideas expressed do not show much one-sidedness on any large subject; and the set of conclusions on the whole are sound. Having said this, we do not for a moment assume that the opinions of the mixed judge are free from error, misconception, and false conclusions in detached instances. Yet his work has none of that special peculiarity of so many political works written by Frenchmen, the carefully and artistically finished tissue of false logic, designed to pander to a set of prejudices, and thus arrive at popularity. The author speaks the truth as far as in him lies, favours no nation or party, and endeavours to place his individual opinions in a readable form; this on debateable matters is difficult, but he has succeeded.

We must accept his remarks about the gross incapacity of English officials in Egypt in a light to which he has not arrived, and at the same time we must comprehend the cause of his strong insistence on this special point. The English official is a much—and deservedly—hated man for reasons apart from his incapacity: there are two varieties of them, differing but little, the London official and the Anglo-Indian.

We are so accustomed to go to those of either class as friend's friends, and to be treated in a friendly way, that we become unaware of the fact that we prepare our steps with velvet carpet, and are also too heedless of the treatment that others may receive. But the main point is the treatment of strangers who come on public or private matters affected by the official. It may be briefly described:—First, an inquisitorial catechism or cross-examination by some Cerberus in the form of a rude servant; secondly, repetition of catechism by a foppish vulgar clerk; thirdly, after all detail accompanied by sufficient forbearance in not giving either of them the blows strictly due, one may be asked to come another day, after already passing two hours in an ante-room. This process may be repeated at intervals of two or three days, with the addition of casual remarks from the clerk to the effect that he is compelled to exercise much discrimination;—you might be a shopman trying to introduce or force a market for wares, or you might be a very evil-disposed man spying out the nakedness of the land.

Eventually you may see the official whose duty it was to see you before; and you state certain facts and certain purposes, beneficial to the State, in which you are interested. His replies are to the effect that he has no official cognisance of the facts, and that your purposes are purely selfish. You quote official documents, and refer to some official personage. He is then sufficiently diplomatic to admit that your facts may be so, while still stupid enough to hint that you may be lying; but the reference to the official personage warns him that he is becoming liable to an official kick of some sort. He will, therefore, eventually express his purpose to do something in accordance with your views, perhaps some useless half-measure.

You ask "When," and he then adopts the oily tone of a mercenary medical man, who does not want to relieve you of your ailment. The result is that "Nothing is done."

One wonders little that English officials are hated, one wonders more that they are not more frequently battered about.

Nor is their incapacity so much to blame. Englishmen cannot bear meddlesome officialism. They prefer that their officials, like women and clergy, should be subservient. English officials are hence trained to do nothing; it is a part of their vocation; arrogance and insolence take the place of action; the puppet moves when the string is jerked. Mr. Van Bemmelen has not understood this phase of existence, nor the extraordinary action that follows the jerk of the string, which is necessarily rather wild. Mr. Van Bemmelen's speculations on the future of Europe are mostly based on simple increase of population, with the accompanying delusion that one man is as good as another. His comments on the Egyptian events of 1881-82 are generally very good and rational, but it is extraordinary that a mixed judge of experience should fail to grasp the Oriental subtlety and courtesy of the mass of deputies, ulema, &c., that asked the Khédive for the restoration of Arabia on the 28th of May, for fear of their own lives being sacrificed. Had they mentioned as an object the saving of the Khédive's life, would it not have implicated themselves against the Khédive to a very serious extent? At p. 310 this sad want of appreciation is clearly shown.

Nor is Mr. Van Bemmelen speaking with extreme accuracy when he describes the Liberal-Radical coalition as of mercantile proclivities exclusively; he is, perhaps, not aware that Conservative Governments have always favoured plutocratic supporters in Parliament, and for the honorary distinction of titles. Rich tradesmen and wealthy manufacturers can always find friends on either side of the great See Saw; however little good they may do in return for the losses inflicted on millions to serve their own ends. But the author is fully justified in praising the foreign policy of the Conservatives, and in looking forward to their future action in Egypt.

He admits frankly England's right to deal with the country untrammelled by other European nations, and suggests action with the concurrence of Europe, exclusive of France.

His chapter on International Rights and Duties is by far the best part of the book, and should be read by every one that admits the principles of justice and wishes them supreme.

He strenuously opposes "false liberalism," remarking that every people should be protected against the importation and entry of merchandise and strangers on account of which they might suffer. He equally supports the expulsion of Greek usurers from Egypt, and of Chinese labourers from the United States; showing that protection to life and property are not sufficient to a people; protection against swindling and extortionate prices, interest, &c., are also necessary, and in some instances protection for the manufactures and labour of the country. He justly exclaims against the English benevolence that pays largely to mitigate sufferings in distant countries while neglecting those at home. But he insists on international treaties to neighbouring countries, positively declaring that England should have intervened and stopped the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, by declaring war against France. It is difficult to determine limits for the application for such a principle.

Curiously, however, he treats the bombardment of the Alexandrian forts as a crime; while his mode of considering the massacre of the 11th June as a spontaneous outbreak (though mostly due to the Egyptian police) is far from candid in finality. Granting the spontaneity, should the matter have remained unavenged? and if so, was its recurrence not to be prevented? Besides, were Egyptians to be allowed to sink an English fleet without opposition? Hardly, not even to please the Mixed Judge. The real error consisted in not landing troops out of excessive consideration for the delicate susceptibilities of the French. But the Mixed Judge wishes this the main point of the affair. In conclusion we ask him, is it a crime to baselessly assert a crime? We believe it is. Perhaps this idea never occurred to him.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

ON the night of Wednesday, the 24th ult., nine Martini-Henri rifles were stolen from the barracks of the 33rd Regiment at Nowshera: it is supposed by Pathan thieves, who made off to the hills.

AZAB KHAN of Kharan has supplied 300 riding camels, which will mount all the infantry and followers.

THE projected manoeuvres in which the troops in the neighbouring hill stations and Simla Volunteers were to take part has been abandoned. The doctors are said to be responsible for this result, they having represented that it would be inadvisable to expose the men. The weather, too, has turned out unseasonably. Inclement rain has fallen, and the temperature is low at night and in the early morning.

H.E. MR. GRANT DUFF having expressed his desire to retire from the Honorary Colonelcy of the Bangalore Volunteer Rifles, Mr. Lyall, British Resident, was unanimously elected on Saturday to fill the the vacant post.

THE attack upon Simla which was to have been made by a combined force from the neighbouring hill stations has been countermanded. There is a good deal of sickness among the garrisons, the weather is again showery and unsettled, and exposure on the bare mountain sides (for tents were to have been dispensed with) is thought to be better avoided.

THE companies of the 99th Regiment under command of Major Wayman, who are working on the new road to Cashmere, were to leave Gharial for Pindi on the 25th. The company of Sappers under Lieutenant Stafford remain there for the present. The latter have done a great deal of blasting work, for which the men are well paid.

THE Lahore paper states that it has at last been finally settled that only a wing of the 99th Regiment will go to Peshawur. The remainder will proceed on relief to Nowshera, about the middle of November. The 33rd will, however, continue to supply the Attock garrison until the 60th Regiment from Ferozepore relieves the wing of the 99th Regiment at Peshawur. This will probably not be until January.

THE 1st battalion South Lancashire Regiment leave Peshawur on the 15th and 16th proximo, by two special trains, and proceed to Deolalee via Allahabad and the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

THE Duke of Connaught, it was understood, was to inspect the Heavy Battery at Campbellpore as he passed on his way to Peshawur. The battery was to be drawn up at the railway station. The guns in Fort Attock were to be manned and fired so that his Royal Highness might see the capabilities of the Fort, defences.

THE head-quarters of the 2nd battalion Dorsetshire Regiment proceed to Peshawur about the 6th inst. Two hundred men will be left at Peshawur to assist in the duties. The 1st battalion South Lancashire Regiment arrived there on the 3rd inst.

THE inspection of the Mussoorie Volunteers took place on the 20th ult. When the parade was over H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught addressed the Volunteers as follows:—"Mussoorie Volunteers,—I am much pleased with what I have seen this day, and congratulate you on the very satisfactory manner in which you have acquitted yourselves. I am well aware of the great difficulties under which you labour, for you have but little time to give up to drill, and the recent heavy rains have much interfered with opportunities of preparing for the inspection. The drill has been very fair, and shows me that you all take an interest in your work, and wish to prove yourselves efficient volunteers. It is very gratifying to me also to see in your ranks not only the youth of this district, but many who have done good service for their Queen and country in the army, and who are anxious still to prove their loyalty and to shoulder a rifle in your midst. I was very glad to have had an opportunity on this parade of presenting the good conduct and long service medal to your sergeant instructor, who for over 18 years has done faithful service to the State. I much regret the absence, through ill-health, of your new commanding officer, Major Lane; but I congratulate Captain Stowell and the officers under him on the manner in which they have commanded you, and on the knowledge they have shown of their duties. I hope that the same spirit which now animates you will continue, and that you will increase in strength and efficiency, and thus prove your wish and ability to serve the empire should the occasion ever arise. As the senior officer of the division it will be my pleasing duty to make a very satisfactory report of this day's inspection."

CAPTAIN H. P. WILLOUGHBY, Bengal Ordnance Department, intends retiring from the service.

SURGEON-MAJOR SARGEANT, 2nd Cavalry H.C., from Hingoli, proceeds on two years' furlough to Europe.

COLONEL B. T. HILL, Commanding 3rd Punjab (Railway) Volunteer Rifle Corps, is about to resign his commission in that corps.

CAPTAIN C. ROBINSON, 5th Northumberland Fusiliers, whose name was lately before the public, has sent in his papers to retire from the service.

LIEUTENANT C. E. MATURIN, E Battery, B Brigade, Royal Horse Artillery, Bangalore, has been ordered to proceed to Hong-Kong forthwith for duty.

THE orders regarding the resignation of their combatant commissions by Captains Harward, Thackwell and Powell have been cancelled. They join the Pay Department under the new conditions.

THE Malabar, the first homeward troopship of the season, sails from Bombay on the 23rd instant, carrying 214 long service and 881 short service time-expired soldiers, 3 insanes, 2 convicts, 55 women and 100 children.

THE IRISH QUESTION IN THE PUNJAB.

TO THE EDITOR.

SIR,—In the Pioneer Mail of the 14th ultimo the editor publishes a third calm and dispassionate article on the causes of discontent among the rural population of India. Public opinion is gradually becoming convinced that something must be done in those parts of the country where crops fail or are abundant according to the varying rainfall, and where artificial means of irrigation have not been supplied. The acts of the Imperial Legislature for relieving oppressed landholders in four of the Deccan districts, and in the Jhansi district, are precedents which we may quote wherever there is reason to fear a rising of the peasantry.

Lord Dufferin should carefully keep in mind that if the peasantry be against us in India, we cannot hold the country, even though we were to double our European army.

The editor proposes as remedies:—

- 1st. Abolition of imprisonment for debt.
- 2nd. Abolition of auction sales of land.
- 3rd. Modification of our hard rules for exacting an invariable land-tax.

Even in this country we vary the tithes according to the prices of agricultural produce; but in India, where there are broad tracts of land without means of irrigation, crops are often entirely lost from want of rain, and the cultivators, after losing all the labour, and all their seed corn, are cruelly forced by a relentless foreign Government to pay heavy land taxes out of nothing. What can they do? They must borrow. They must submit to the extortionate terms of the usurers.

Two measures of relief are required:—

- 1st. On the 1st of October in every year the Collector, the Commissioner, and the provincial Governor should determine to what extent in each pergunnah or county the crops on unirrigated lands have failed. Where the failure has exceeded fifty per cent., remissions of land-tax should be made according to calculated average losses. The rate of remission would extend to the whole of each pergunnah, so that no delay in investigating individual losses would occur.

- 2nd. We should imitate the measures of the Tithes Commissioners in England by modifying the cash payments of land-tax according to the average prices of staple products during the previous seven years.—Your obedient servant, October 17th.

THE PACKING OF INDIAN TEA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "ECONOMIST."

SIR,—Among the "Trade Notes" in your Supplement issue of last week was one with reference to a question raised by the Calcutta Syndicate of Tea Merchants, who propose that the Indian Government should adopt means to investigate into the cause of tea being injured from the packing in lead-lined chests.

You very properly remark that this is a matter for the Indian tea growers themselves, who alone ought to bear the expense of a scientific investigation, if such is called for.

But would you permit me to offer them a suggestion, which will cost very little to carry out? It is this, that in packing their tea they ought to make a closer copy of the Chinese method. China tea is packed in lead-lined packages as well as Indian tea; but while the Chinese make a liberal use of fine silky paper to cover the sides and bottom of the lead, and also to lay over the top of the tea, the Indian growers use no paper whatever in their packing process. The leads of the Indian packages are thus more easily broken, and as the teas frequently have to be bulked, and invariably are sampled in London, the condition of the packages when they reach the dealer's hands is quite sufficient to account for the deterioration of the tea.—I am, Sir, yours respectfully,

J. S.
Edinburgh, October 14, 1884.

He stated that they had met for the special purpose set forth in the notice which had been issued to the shareholders—namely, for the declaration of an interim dividend. After referring to the state of trade at home and abroad, and the caution with which their business had to be conducted, owing to the shrinkage in value of articles exported from this country, as well as imported from India, he moved the declaration of an interim dividend for the half-year ending the 30th of June last, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, payable on and after the 22nd inst. The motion was seconded by Mr. Jones, and the resolution was carried unanimously. The usual complimentary vote brought the meeting to a close.

THE SILVER MARKET AND THE EASTERN EXCHANGES.

On Wednesday dealings in the silver market were very limited, and the prices of bars and Mexican dollars unaltered. Eastern exchange advices show no variation. Rupee Paper was flat, the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. closing at 82½ 83½, a fall of ½, and the Four per Cent. at 80 80½, a fall of ½. LORD DUFFERIN.—The semi-official Journal de St. Pétersbourg, commenting on Lord Dufferin's recent speech at Belfast, says:—"We cannot form an opinion on his lordship's speech from the short telegraphic analysis received here, but we may remind our readers that on the first announcement of Lord Dufferin's appointment to the Viceroyalty of India, we attached the greatest weight to his lordship's character and opinions, and we are, therefore, glad to see in his speech a confirmation of the views which we expressed from the outset."

INDIA TO ENGLAND.

(Times of India.)

Are we fools that you should dose us with your nostrums and your pills?

Feel our pulses and prescribe us half a grain of Ilbert Bills? Give us what we never wanted, and take care we cannot use, Local boards and local members, whom we may not even choose? We, too, see our Simla rulers, with their fingers to their ears, Wrapp'd in philanthropic fancies in remote Olympian spheres. We respect their learned leisure, even we can share the grief Felt by those whose beds of roses have a single crumpled leaf. But we, who watch the coming famine, we, who swelter in the plains,

Can you ease our draught and hunger with your Simla-scheduled rains?

Can you from your heights Olympian, and your Lethean slumbers tell

Any one of all the causes that make Indian life a hell? Have you time to guess the anguish of our little girls of ten, Torn from cots, almost from cradles, to become the wives of men? Or, as virgin widows, going to a life we hold as worse, In its utter degradation, and its never-ceasing curse? All the people of your islands, men and women, far and near, Are not equal in their numbers to our wretched widows here. Total up their childless yearnings, and their miserable lives, Full of youth and babyslayers, tempted, tortured, never wives— Here, you have a social problem, soak'd and steep'd in women's tears,

Robbing every generation of some half a score of years; Here, you have our best men crying for strong measures of reform, And you give a mere simulcrum of a vote to stem the storm! You, who taught us of the evil, now you say it must endure, That the plague-spot of a nation has no hope of foreign cure. Every day we grow in learning, and you teach in school and college

That our gods are dead as yours are; tags and shreds of Europe's knowledge,

Darwin's theories, and Blavatsky's mumbojumbo all have said That the old régime is over—Christ and Brahma both are dead. So we sit in dumb amazement, with our hands across our knees, Waiting for Hindoo reformers from the once condemned Parsees, For you who stole our own life from us, you pretend to cure our ills,

With your boards and mock elections and your trumpery Ilbert Bills!

"INDIAN DANGERS."

THE articles which have appeared in the St. James's Gazette under the above title, on Thursday last and subsequent evenings, have created a profound sensation throughout the country, even among Anglo-Indians. As we recently remarked, with reference to Mr. Wilfrid Blunt's alarmist views, we are of those who entirely refuse to believe in any such general spread of disloyalty among our fellow-subjects in India, as Mr. Blunt's paper would make out. Still, the veriest optimist cannot fail to remember that the peculiar circumstances of India—and especially the comparatively recent annexation of many considerable military States, whose soldiers, or their descendants, are now left without much work "for idle hands to do"—are such as to encourage the formation of a large class of swash-bucklers who would delight in disorder and anarchy. And to this it must now, alas! be added, that Lord Ripon's policy, like Mr. Gladstone's in Ireland, has distinctly tended to dishearten the most distinctly loyal classes—those who have the greatest interest in the maintenance of a firm and stable Government, such as the Bengal landowners; whilst among other classes it has stirred up all manner of vague aspirations which may prove difficult to gratify, and which will naturally increase the general spirit of unrest. With regard to this supposed internal danger we believe the only serious point is the fear, lest those who have led Lord Ripon into so many scrapes, and who will remain in India after Lord Ripon is gone, may endeavour to blind Lord Dufferin's eyes to the real state of affairs.

With regard to the dangers from without, on the North-Western frontier, so clearly described by the St. James's Gazette, we are at a loss what to say. Under any other Government than that of Mr. Gladstone we should have been inclined to say, "The Government itself is now at last aroused—it is sending out exactly the right man in Lord Dufferin, with Mr. Mackenzie Wallace (who knows the Russians thoroughly) as his private Secretary—it is building again the Afghan military railways of the late Government which it abandoned as fast as men and money can build them—Lord Dufferin may be trusted to do the rest." But when we look at Mr. Gladstone's treatment of Mr. Mackenzie in Bechuanaland, of General Gordon at Khartoum, and, above all, of Lord Dufferin himself in Egypt, we are led to fear that it is almost certain that Lord Dufferin's hand will, at the critical moment, be stayed by the fatal paralysis that is everywhere threatening the very existence of our Empire. And in that case it is better that the truth—already perfectly well-known in all official circles here, and most undoubtedly in the possession of every Foreign Office in Europe—should be laid before the public by the English Press, even at the risk of causing unnecessary panic and embarrassment. We, therefore, have no hesitation in calling on the Government to publish Sir Charles Macgregor's Memorandum which, as everyone now knows, is "an open secret." It has for some time been "an open secret," talked of only in "stage whispers;" but now, at last, we are betraying no confidence in referring publicly to its existence. The St. James's Gazette itself says:—

It seems to be assumed by one of the "service" newspapers that our recent articles on "Indian Dangers" were based on the calculations set forth and the opinions expressed in a single memorandum. That is by no means the case. In order that there may be no doubt on that point, we make bold to say that the considerations and the warnings we have laid before the public have been urged on the Government by more than one, two, or three of its most competent, most trusted, and most trustworthy servants. And though we have not and do not pretend to have their authority for doing it, we make bold to name Sir Donald Stewart, Sir Frederick Roberts, and Sir Charles Macgregor as amongst the many men who are convinced that our Indian Empire is at this moment exposed to extraordinary perils through the deliberate neglect and indifference of the Indian and the English Government. These men, besides others whom also we could name, will be able to say, should the disaster suddenly arrive, "You were well warned of it."

The public will do well to remember that when all the great authorities named by our contemporary—backed up by what was virtually the unanimous opinion of every other authority, military and other, in India—protested against the Kandahar scuttle, their combined protests were ignored by Mr. Gladstone's despotic Radicalism. Will Lord Dufferin prove strong enough to cope with that despotism? We hope so most sincerely; and it is possible that it may be so, if the Morning Post is correct in affirming that the Prime Minister has been clearly warned that the new Viceroy is one who will resign rather than betray his country. But we should like to see Lord Dufferin supported by the public opinion of England in such a way that no Minister, however imperious, will dare to accept his resignation.

SIR RICHARD GARTH'S MINUTE ON THE REVISED BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

THE minute of Sir Richard Garth, the Chief Justice of the High Court of Calcutta, is one of the most important documents connected with the Bengal Tenancy Bill in its present stage which has as yet been communicated to the public. It has been published in the Calcutta newspapers; and we circulated it as a special supplement with our issue of the 15th instant. We now propose briefly to notice some of the most salient points in the minute, although doubtless most of our readers will have made themselves masters of the whole paper.

It will be convenient to explain, first, how it comes to pass that the Chief Justice has had an opportunity of recording such a minute. There was a time when the Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court was ex officio a member of the Legislative Council of the Viceroy; and the impress of the hand of Sir Barnes Peacock is manifest in many of the Acts which were passed when he had a seat in that assembly. But it used to be rumoured that Sir Barnes Peacock was an inconvenient colleague, and in all probability he was "too many" for some of his fellow-councillors, and so an opportunity was presently taken to deprive the Chief Justice of his seat in the Council; whilst it was provided that whenever the Viceroy thought fit to consult the Chief Justice and the Judges of the High Court on any proposed legislative enactment, a letter should be addressed to the Court, to which the Judges would reply, either collectively, or by recording their opinions in separate minutes. Then it came to pass that the Viceroy consulted the High Court of Calcutta upon both the Ilbert Bill and the Bengal Tenancy Bill; and Sir Richard Garth had the opportunity of recording those powerful minutes which have met with such an ungracious reception from Lord Ripon and some of his colleagues.

We have entered into this explanation because possibly there are some people who have failed to comprehend the seva indignatio with which Sir Richard Garth refers to the treatment that he has received on account of a former minute which he recorded upon the notorious Ilbert Bill, and of another minute which he wrote upon one of the rejected drafts of the present Tenancy Bill, when it was known under the title of Mr. Reynolds's Bill. The minutes of the Chief Justice differ very little from judicial decision. The Judges of the Court usually discuss in solemn conclave the drafts of the bills which the Viceroy refers to them; and though there may be no argument from counsel before them, there is usually a sufficient difference of opinion among the twelve judges of the Court to bring out all the prominent points of any vexed question. Their reply to the Viceroy is as nearly as possible the equivalent of the collective judgment of the Court, or of their individual judgments, recorded under the title of "Minutes." Nevertheless, the Marquis of Hartington, the late Secretary of State for India, probably at the prompting of Lord Ripon, did not hesitate to denounce Sir Richard Garth's minute on the Ilbert Bill in the House of Commons as "not being invested with any judicial authority, but rather as the offspring of partisanship." But the insolence of Lord Hartington, possibly assumed for political motives, was perhaps comparatively insignificant in contrast with the treatment which Sir Richard Garth's minute on the Reynold's draft of the Tenancy Bill received at the hands of the Civilian Secretary, who took upon himself to criticise the minute on behalf of Lord Ripon, and to publish his criticisms, with the aid of the Government printer, and the undisguised approval of his master. A Government Secretary may be an able man, but there are some men who have reached that position by the arts of sycophancy rather than by open and honest service. Be this as it may, it has never been the custom in the Indian Government to allow a Secretary to stand forward in his own name to comment on such papers as the minute of the Chief Justice. It is difficult to find an exact analogy for the case in English affairs; but a clerk in the India Office would hardly venture to come before the public with a scurrilous, libellous, and personal denunciation of Lord Kimberley, or any member of the Indian Council. Nevertheless, Mr. Mackenzie, Lord Ripon's Home Secretary, did not hesitate to set himself up as a rival authority to the Chief Justice of Bengal, and permitted himself to indulge in personalities of such a character that he would have summarily dismissed any clerk in his own office who had indulged in such license.

It is not, therefore, strange that Sir Richard Garth should have adverted with sorrow, if not with anger, upon the indignities which had been offered by the Viceroy and his colleagues towards the Court over which he so ably presided; but we must hasten to notice some of the leading points in the Chief Justice's minute in which he condemns the present Tenancy Bill.

In the first place, Sir Richard Garth complains, as we have on former occasions complained, of the entire want of evidence in regard to the questions of fact with which the Tenancy Bill has to deal. The Select Committee of the Legislative Council did examine a few zemindars, but only on the special point of sub-letting. It is true that the Ruler of the Select Committee do not admit of the examination of witnesses; but Sir Richard Garth pertinently asks, "Why should this be the rule?" "This is just one of those cases which shows how necessary it is, in order to obtain proper materials for the purpose of legislation in India, to appoint Select Committees with power to take evidence as is constantly done in the House of Commons." These remarks go to the very root of the subject. There seems to be a sort of fatuity on the part of Government officials, which makes them imagine that their own official opinions and reports stand in the place of legal evidence. This belief grows with their own official growth; and authority, as it is called, closes their eyes to the other side of the question. Thus they pile Pelion on Ossa, forgetting that though their column may grow in height its base is never strengthened. But if the Chief Justice's advice is accepted—and it is to be hoped that it will meet with Lord Dufferin's early attention—the whole of the Bill requires to be considered de novo. As the measure involves disputed questions of fact it should be referred to a Special Committee, and the very best evidence that can be procured upon both sides of the question should be taken by the Committee. "A Committee composed of an equal number of gentlemen on either side of the question, with a chairman selected for his moderation and justice, would, I believe," adds Sir Richard Garth, "give more satisfaction and confidence to the public than any number of Select Committees, such as that which was constituted last year." If Mr. Ilbert, who introduced the Bill into the Legislative Council, were to be examined before an independent Committee of this kind, it would be curious to observe how long he would be permitted to adhere to his definition of a landed proprietor under the Bengal Settlement of 1793, according to the technical definition of ownership in a sanitary Act of Parliament of 1880; and perhaps he would find it rather awkward to have to explain how he would hereafter deal with the sub-tenants, who are to be left to the tender mercies of the middlemen. But our remarks have already extended to such a length that we must reserve further comment on Sir Richard Garth's minute for a future occasion.

LORD DUFFERIN AND COLONEL STEWART.—At the banquet given in Belfast on Wednesday Sir Thomas Bateson, M.P., made reference to the reported death of Colonel Stewart, who was an Ulsterman.—The Earl of Dufferin, referring to the remark, said that Colonel Stewart was one of the noblest and most heroic individuals with whom it had been his good fortune ever to have come into contact. At Constantinople he became acquainted with Colonel Stewart's unexceptional qualities. He had served under his (Lord Dufferin's) orders in Asia Minor and again in Egypt. He had been sent by Her Majesty's Government in a diplomatic capacity to make reports upon the condition of affairs which he found existing at Khartoum. He (Lord Dufferin) had recorded in official despatches his testimony to the capacity, industry, and ability with which under the most unpropitious circumstances that officer discharged the task entrusted to him by his Queen and country. Colonel Stewart sent home a series of despatches which were unrivalled for the lucidity and mass of complicated information they contained, and, above all, for the noble spirit of humanity which they breathed. It was a pleasure to him, if they must give up the hope of ever seeing him again, to have this opportunity of paying that public tribute to the memory of Colonel Stewart.
